SPORTS

SPORTS SHORTS

Before the mild climate of San Francisco allows that summer tan to fade or disappear, something will be said about swimming and the swimming team. The Russian River and Santa Cruz and China Beach groups are already preparing a competition in "Beach Relaxation," "Beach Gymnastics," "Beach Ball," and "Weenie Roasting." Swimmers will sign up at a later date.

California, Stanford, U.S.F. and the J. C. Conference neighbors will offer the handball team all the competition they will possibly need as a starter. The problem of courts is one to be solved by the manager, for handball to be played "according to Hoyle" requires more than a broken-down tennis ball and calloused fist.

Harding, Lincoln and other well-organized meadows should contribute their share to the future of the Scotch-American sport at the College. If Galileo High School has developed any other "Lawson Little," we can expect the name of S.F.J.C. to be carried to all major amateur competition. Aspirants for managerial positions in this sport are warned that part of their work will include keeping track of the golf ball on the course and off. Multiplication rather than subtraction should be the basis of a good manager's qualifications here.

Kezar pavilion was the scene of the California badminton tourney during the past summer and our ace reporter tells us that the College found many a prospect there. They say the sport plays a lot better than it sounds.

Conference regulations among the junior colleges do not interfere with the general enjoyment and participation in the original "Rugger" game. With us it will not be an artfully disguised opportunity to make spring practice last from the time football season closes and authorized drill sessions begin. It's a free-for-all game, speedy and open, that is attracting more attention in San Francisco sports circles. If you like to kick here's your chance—no stars and everybody for himself.

For those who couldn't get to the seashore for their vacation, we have planned to continue their leisure time activity and "summer fever" ... by active participation in ping pong, shuffle board, croquet and quoits. Bowling courts may also be arranged for those who can afford a [illegible] or two at bowling.

Volleyball offers a strange combination of handball, basketball and tennis. Perhaps it can be said that this is one of the most entertaining games for interclass competition.

We wonder if the English influence will introduce lacrosse, cricket, field hockey and ice hockey? Roller skating and cycling clubs have their fun, too.

Horseback riding, hiking and horseshoes make an ideal combination.

Gov't Class To Work For A. S. J. C.

Student Constitution to Be Ready Later in Term

The members of the class in Public Administration, Political Science 51, will form the student committee for the formulation of the Associated Students' Constitution which will be presented to the Associated Students for revision, approval and final ratification. It will be the duty of the members enrolled to prepare, by extensive research, the various articles of the constitution, its basic form for administration and student control. The constitutions of the California junior college student associations will be examined and tested by the fundamental principles of government and administration for their adaptability and practicality in the light of student government standards.

The Associated Students of the San Francisco Junior College will be a growing organization, and for that reason alone it is most necessary that the utmost care and expert methods be used in the writing of its constitution. The work will be conducted as an extracurricular activity on the basis of outside assignments paralleling the progress of work in the course on Public Administration.

It is anticipated that the final draft of the constitution will be submitted to the Associated Students just prior to the Christmas holidays. This will permit the distribution of printed copies to all the students and a final revision and vote before the officers for the spring semester are sworn in.

A tentative constitution for the fall semester will be drawn up and approved in skeleton form by the Associated Students shortly. This work will start at the Constitutional Committee meeting to be held on Wednesday morning, August 28, at the California Extension Building.

Aspirants for office and nominees are requested to file their candidacy with Mr. Agosti, Room 101, High School of Commerce.

Dean Browne Asks For Card Salesmen

Dean Edwin C. Browne has issued a call for representatives of the Associated Students who will be willing to canvass the students for the sale of A. S. membership cards. No awards have as yet been announced since such matter will be within the discretion of the executive committee which is yet to be formed from the officers who will be elected by the student body. The awards offered by the Emanon are based entirely upon its advertising budget, a matter separate and apart from the funds to be apportioned to the publication by the student treasury.

"It is up to the students to convince the Administration of their whole-hearted support for student activities by a 100 per cent sale of membership cards," said Dean Browne.

College-spirited men and women sign up with Dean Browne in Room 101, High School of Commerce, tomorrow, August 28.

MESSAGE URGES SPIRIT
"The young men and women of our new College are the links of a great chain that holds our institution together. If there is a weak link in this chain the entire structure is in danger of falling. If each link is strong and held together as one force, then we may expect great things of our student body. There is one phase of college life that cannot be acquired by beautiful buildings, expensive equipment, or an excellent faculty—that phase is SPIRIT. The SPIRIT of our student body will be the temperature of our College. The public will immediately sense this feeling by the way we enter into our student meetings, our class functions, our athletic contests.
Already we have established a wholesome respect for our teams. Los Angeles Junior College will be with us as our challenging guests on November 2. We journey to Modesto on October 26. These trips cost money. We have budgeted our expenses for the student body for the first year of our existence and to properly support our newspaper, our organizations, our athletic program, etc., we are asking each student to purchase a student card at $3 per semester. In buying this card the students make it possible to put our college on the map. These days in a new institution will be remembered all your life—make the most of them—get into the harness—be a real strong link in a great chain. Buy that ticket—you'll be proud of it. It will be one of the first tickets of a new college that is going places and you will be happy to be one who has made it possible.—Dean Browne.

J. C. Hoopsters To Have Conlan Chief Mentor

Basketball to Have Great Support with Strong Coaching Staff

Basketball enthusiasts will be happy to hear that their winter sports program will be in the hands of "Dutch" Conlan. As head coach, Conlan will take the responsibility of turning out a varsity five that will make its competition felt in the Northern California Junior College Conference. This will be the first competitive sport in which the College will participate under the direction of conference authorities. In 1935, the conference championship honors were shared by Menlo and San Mateo.

As yet nothing has been said about registration for basketball and we have no preliminary sign-up from which we can judge the possibilities for Conlan's team. Jack Gaddy is the most likely assistant for this sport and the memory of his work on the Kezar floor in the popular U.S.F. games should commend him to all likely prospects.

If the pre-season indications for football may be used as a norm, we can spare any worry over the problem of [illegible] wealth of material to answer the first call of Coach Conlan.

Sport Managers Called For By Athletic Coaches

All students who have had experience as sports managers and those who are interested in assisting the athletic program in this capacity are requested to sign up immediately with Mr. Russell Sweet or Mr. Louis Conlan of the Physical Education Department. All aspirants will be asked to try out for the positions available and, after a brief probationary period, the staff will announce those who will officially serve the football team for the 1935 season. Opportunities are also open to students for the management of track and basketball.

The duties of a sports manager may be explained by the fact that all equipment must be carefully cared for, visiting teams assisted in obtaining the service necessary for preliminary game preparation and the efficient practice session must be managed with a minimum loss of time. The players must be ministered to and the coaching staff can be more efficient if there is a corps of managers to serve them in their work.

Real college spirit marks the members of the Associated Students who give their services and time to this activity.

Messrs. Conlan and Sweet will be available today at Funston Field.

Sweet May Aid College Tennis

Although tennis is primarily a spring sport, nevertheless it seems to fit in so well with San Francisco atmosphere and climate that it is safe to say that it respects no season of the year. The Physical Education Department has not yet announced who will take over the coaching duties for this sport so there can be no news of preliminary sign-up. The Associated Students hope to obtain a fair indication of all material available through a general student-interest registration in extracurricular activities and minor sports. A managerial staff may first be organized to prepare for practice courts and tentative opponents. The conference provides organized competition for the spring, but fall and winter practice sessions are more than available in the bay region among the universities, colleges and high schools.

School Colors Are Sought By Paper

To the student who submits the color or combination of colors which the College will adopt, EMANON will refund Associated Students fee. Here are the rules: You must be a member of the Associated Students and you may submit only one combination or color. Within thirty days after the final choice is announced the winner must submit one five dollar ad. Entries and names and number of student body card should be submitted to the offices of the EMANON.

Girls to Have Varied Sport Activities

Interclass and Field Day Contests Planned by Faculty

It is anticipated that the women in the Department of Physical Education will, under the leadership of their instructors, form a Women's Athletic Association for the general management of women's intramural, interclass and intergroup sports competition. It will not be the policy of the Administration to sponsor competitive athletics outside of the College. Association's activities. No games with other college teams will be scheduled, but an annual field day for women's sports will climax the competitive activities of the year.

Entrance to the association usually depends upon athletic achievement in physical education as determined by a point system. All awards are sponsored by the association and the teams are sometimes organized under presidents and managers.

The scope of women's athletics will depend largely upon the interest and competition which an ably directed students' association can foster. The association may also have its social as well as its athletic interests.

To the screams of "Get that ball! Kick her! Kick her!" the speedball teams will streak up and down the field during gym periods and after classes. A combination of soccer and sprinting and a few other of the finer sports played by men, speedball has gained in popularity among women until it is a part of every well-organized athletic program.

Hockey and cricket are two field games that afford the best in proficiency and activity for women who like the feel of a club in their hands. The urge to hit something and run is adequately served by both, but the score in one is usually much lower than in the other.

For the ambitious girl, the one who likes to reach up and push, volleyball is the real answer. Famed for shoulder developing qualities, this sport has the advantage over tennis in that a stout pair of hands is all that is required for service and return.

Girls' basketball (some say the women really prefer to run with the masculine regulations) will probably be the first sport organized for group competition. Artistic, indeed, is the activity of women in such restricted areas as the regulations in this sport provide.

Hiking should [illegible] want [illegible] enthusiastic followers. Known as the best form of exercise (with the possible exception of swimming) and as the simplest, many, no doubt, will be anxious to take the trips that will be arranged. Good companionship is the added attraction in which hiking boasts as well as the great outdoors—wild life, bugs, spiders and poison oak.

Tennis should be queen at San Francisco. Everybody can play with everybody else any time anybody can find a racquet and a vacant court. Most likely the fall will witness a women's open doubles tournament, and singles elimination matches.

Diving, individual races, relays and novelty races will be the program for the women's swimming meets. It is expected that the Western Women's Club will be approached regarding the use of their facilities in the development of this sport.

Women baseball enthusiasts are not limited to rooters alone. We understand that the game has a large following of participants among the fair ones. The gymnasium is the usual setting for this game, although there is nothing to prevent its being played on turf. We wonder how many Didricksons the W.A.A. will develop here.

Archery is a majestic sport to watch. Through it a group of girls for whom strenuous activity is deemed inadvisable may find the benefits which all athletic activities provide.

Program Rules Must Be Rigidly Observed

Once your program is filed, no program change will be permitted without the approval of the Registrar. To obtain credit on a course, it is not sufficient to merely take the course; it must be entered upon your approved program. Be careful not to drop a course without the approval of the Registrar. Failure to observe this regulation will result in the grade of E (failure) being entered upon your permanent record. Read the Circular of Information.

Stars Come To J. C. from Prep. And U. Teams

The pre-registration sign-up for football demonstrated unusual interest on the part of former high school players who were planning to enter the College. The coaching staff were more than enthusiastic over the sixty-five candidates who had cooperated with the Dean of Men's office by registering early, and they are prepared for an unusually enthusiastic turnout next Wednesday morning. It is planned that over seventy candidates will answer the first call. Here are some of the early indications of the strength of the College team:

Galileo (1934 champions): McHugh, Vanelli, Lamerdin.
Lowell: Clarke, Pedrin, Bedros.
Polytechnic: Warren, Brown.
Balboa: Guisti, Finnerty.
Mission: Susoiff, Wegin.
Commerce: Kremesec, Rose.
St. Ignatius: Murnin, Casey.
Sacred Heart: Jambruno, Brady.

Other high schools represented include Denton (Texas), Otis (Colorado), Fort Bragg, San Rafael, Oakland Tech, Castlemont, Alameda. Transfers from higher institutions include men from Golden Gate Junior College, Lick - Wilmerding, University of Cincinnati, Stanford, California and the University of San Francisco.

Coach Sweet Calls Track Candidates

Coach "Russ" Sweet has issued a call for fall practice for all track prospects. While the intensity of the drill sessions will not be so marked as are the usual spring practice meets, Sweet intends to conduct week-end meets for three-quarter and half distances.

Each prospect will be given his program immediately upon signing up with the team, and while the supervision will only be weekly, nevertheless each competitor will be expected to prepare himself for a strenuous spring season. Some natural aptitude, patience and perseverance go to the makeup of a successful track man. It is the one sport where individual responsibility plays a great part in success. Since all students will be required to register for courses in physical education, it seems natural that this sport should encourage an unusually large fall turnout.

Candidates should sign with Coach Sweet at their earliest convenience. He will be found in Room [illegible], Commerce High School, every afternoon this first week.

It is anticipated that this sport will be entered in the Northern California Junior College Conference.

Gridders Sign For Schedule With Rivals

College Teams Anticipate Tough Contests with New Member

The coaching staff together with the Administration have announced that the football schedule for the 1935 season will be as complete as any alumni, if there were alumni, could wish for. Local colleges and universities and also members of the Junior College Conference have been most generous in their cooperation. Schedules and dates have not yet been definitely announced but the games will be played if only in the square opposite the Public Library.

The biggest game of the year will be with our sister institution, the Los Angeles Junior College, and a potential traditional rival. The utmost student enthusiasm is expected to make this game stand out in the local football schedule. The game will be played in San Francisco, and, with an enthusiastic student body behind the team, should be the first of a long list of victories over the "Cubs" from the south.

On October 26 at Modesto, your College will play a night game with the valley gridders. It is hoped that the Associated Students will sponsor a trek to the game and enjoy the famed hospitality of Modesto Junior College.

Other games will be with Marin Junior College, San Mateo Junior College, San Francisco State, Stanford frosh, and U.S.F. frosh.

Gridders Will Sign-Up Wed. At Funston Field

All players and prospects for the 1935 football season are asked to report for practice and official sign-up with the coaching staff at Funston Field, Wednesday morning, August 28, at 10 o'clock. Practice will be held from 10 to 12 on Wednesday, Thursday, Friday and Saturday mornings of the first week. Beginning September 3, practice will be called for 2:30 in the afternoon.

Equipment will be distributed on Wednesday and Thursday, August 28 and 29. All those who intend to participate in the first practices are asked not to delay the sign-up. There is a limit to the equipment which the Department of Physical Education will be able to supply to aspirants and those who are to be assured of complete outfitting will serve their best interests by their fullest cooperation.

Coaches Sweet, Conlan, Eisan, Gaddy and Wilson will be on hand to greet the 1935 team. Drill sessions will start Thursday, August 29.

Well-Known Coaches On Grid Staff

Sweet, Conlan, Eisan Among List of Sports Leaders for College Teams

Followers of sports columns in the local dailies have already been introduced to the coaching staff on the faculty of the College. For the football season, many have asked the question: "Who will be the head coach?" Another popular query is: "What system will the College use?" The answer to those two questions is simple enough, just one word: "cooperation." By "cooperation" is meant that the head coach's name will be: Mr. Conlaneisangaddywilson Sweet, a very versatile individual, expert in football, basketball, baseball and track.

The system to be used will be determined more by the material than by the experience of the coaches. Bleacher coaches have planned a system whereby the games played with opponents trained in one of the five, Montana, Madigan-Notre Dame, Warner, Stagg, Price, would be set on the strategy of using the most difficult system for said opposition to beat. An example would be a Warner system v. Warner System, much yardage but no score, and then surprise by springing Madigan-Notre Dame and ending athletic relations.

The reputation of Russel Sweet, star of Montana and Olympic Club teams, and successful coach from Menlo Junior College, needs little in the way of introduction. In competitive sports for the Junior College, he will lead in football and track. For football he will depend upon the other four coaches already mentioned, but in track he will have the full responsibility of developing record breakers for the College.

Louis "Dutch" Conlan is the friend of every San Francisco high school student. From the prep gridiron and the playgrounds, players will flock about him with an enthusiasm that commands his leadership. He will be assistant among the football quintuplets and later in the fall will lead the casaba throwers on the courts at Kezar pavilion. All basketball competition will be "Dutch's" responsibility.

An All-Coast end was John "Jack" Gaddy. Gaddy's achievement at the University of San Francisco was similar to the spectacular play of Conlan at St. Mary's. Players and students alike will find Jack to show the same personality as the rest of the staff. He is expected to have the ends under his personal tutelage, a fact which guarantees a spectacular open game when the play depends upon that position.

"Lee" Eisan is another satellite of the collegiate football world who defies comment. His name alone, not to speak of his success at La Verne College, is sufficient to send a shiver of thrills up the spine of any follower of the Golden Bear and its football history. Scouts from the big leagues will also be dinning at Lee's door when baseball season opens. As coach of the College nine, he is expected to find it difficult to keep the material he develops this first year from going professional.

Probably the most successful and colorful player to be developed at the College of the Pacific is T. D. Wilson. Under Amos Alonzo Stagg, he completed a career that had all the scribes up and down the coast shouting his praises. It was he who humiliated the proud Trojan and scared the Golden Bear out of its season. Footballers will be anxious to meet Wilson, and we guarantee a new experience for the men who will work under him on the field.

Here, members of the Associated Students, is your coaching staff. The Administration has chosen wisely and carefully. What will be your response when their teams need your support?

Call Sent Out For Yells and Songs

The Associated Students have issued a call for student ideas for individual and distinctive yells and songs. The conventional "Six for Ducky Wiggit" and "Three for the Los Angeles Man" or the "Skyrocket," the "Locomotive" or "Spell-It" need little embellishment. It is suggested, however, that even an appropriate name for the team such as Bears, Indians, Dons, Gaels, Broncos, Trojans, Tartars, might add a distinctive touch to the traditional cheers.

All contributions should be submitted to the Emanon as custodian for the proper student committee which will soon be appointed. Quick action is desirable as the football season will be upon us. Awards will be announced later.

Candidates Start Election Campaigns With Nomination Assembly Today At Galileo

Friday, September 20, Selected as Date For Associated Students Elections; Heavy Vote Expected

Candidates Given One and a Half Minutes For Speech Making; Over Twenty-Five Seeking Offices

Candidates for election to student body offices will be featured at a nomination rally this afternoon at 4:30. The affair will be held at Galileo High School and will be the beginning of an active week of campaigning leading to the election definitely set for next Friday.

As yet no definite plan has been outlined by the faculty as to the operation of polls. It is believed that they will be set up both at Galileo and 540 Powell to insure a full vote. In all probability complete information as to the method and qualifications of voting will be announced early in the week.

Time Limit Set

Participants in today's rally will be held to a time limit. One and one-half minutes will be allotted to each candidate. This will be adhered to in order to present every candidate to the student body.

A tentative list of the candidates for student body offices has been compiled through petitions received from junior college students desiring to run for office. This list is in no way complete due to the fact that many students are still undecided and many are not aware of the procedure to follow if they so decide. For these students the qualifications and rules regarding circulating of petitions and running for office are printed elsewhere.

The list of candidates who have turned in petitions to date follows:

President:
Maury Schwarz
John P. O'Looney
Bennett McGuire
Leonard Leahy

Vice-president:
James Neal
Howard Markuse
Ken Bennett
Rose Snaider
Dorothy Vincent

Although there are no official qualifications for running for student body office in Fall 1935, except membership in the A.S.S.F.J.C., many candidates believe that experience should be a factor to be taken into consideration. Jaysee Students To Benefit By Gov't Work Allotment

Approximately 180 Positions Open to Students in Need of Work to Continue College Careers; Miss Edith Pence in Charge

Although a new institution, San Francisco Junior College will benefit through National Youth Administration funds. This money will be used to provide work for those students unable to attend college without some means of outside support.

Funds have been allotted on a basis of previous enrollments from years preceding 1935. Due to the fact that San Francisco has just been organized, State and Federal officials have waived this quota restriction.

The N. Y. A. has been designed solely for those students in need of work, and only those whose situation is such that they must have the work in order to continue their attendance at college are eligible for jobs.

Twelve per cent of the total number of registered students at the college will be aided by this work and it is therefore estimated that approximately 180 positions will be provided. Many of these have already been filled but there are still a number of positions as yet unoccupied.

Thus far the type of work to be done consists of clerical work, office work, secretarial work for various instructors, making maps and posters, stage work necessary for dramatics undertakings, and other work of this sort.

It has been announced that the average pay will be about $15 a month. This will necessitate approximately thirty-seven and one-half hours of work during the month. It is almost a certainty that the college will participate in the benefits of the N. Y. A. for the entire 1935-1936 school year. This, however, does not mean the same students will occupy the various positions for this entire period, for it is the express purpose of the movement to help as many students as possible.

Miss Edith E. Pence, assistant dean of women, has complete charge of the work at S. F. J. C. and all applications for positions must be made directly to her.

Potential Scribes Welcome

Potential reporters and other ambitious scribes are welcomed with open arms by the staff of Emanon. Anyone who is eager and willing to work and would like to get that awful journalistic bug into his system may come to Room 150 in the ground floor (Bay Street side) of the Galileo Hi building any afternoon. Please don't ask to write a column, the editors request.

Contest For Names And Colors Open

Associated Students Cards to Be Awarded For Best Suggestions

In this modern world of sport and sports writers there is hardly a competitive group which has not been "tagged" by the writers. Among the junior colleges we have the "Bulldogs," "Mustangs," "Jaysees," "Tartars," "Cubs," "Bucs," and "Yellowjackets."

In accordance with the wise policy of adopting a name for the teams before the newspapers do it for us, the committee in charge has adopted the following plan: To the student who hands the best combination of three items, viz., a name for the team, a name for the paper, and a suitable combination of school colors, the committee will award one Associated Students card free of all cost.

Below is a blank with names that have already been suggested. Beneath the names are spaces in which you may put your own suggestions. Cut out the entry blank with your suggestions on it and leave it in Room 150 in the Galileo Hi building any afternoon up till one week from today, Friday, September 20, at which time the contest closes. Winners will be announced in the following, September 27, issue of the paper.

The Constitutional Committee will meet Monday, September 16th, in Room 303 at 4:30.

Hard-Hearted R.R. Commission Bans Ferry Fare Cuts

Oakland and Berkeleyites will have to dig just a little deeper in the pocket this semester. Stern dignitaries of the State Railroad Commission have decided that no reduction in rates will be allowed for any purpose, so Johnny and Mary will have to lay their seven and a quarter on the line to get to school.

Ways and means of circumventing these regulations are being devised. While the ferry companies are passing the silver plated buck to the railroad commission, students are trying to figure means of thumbing a ride across the bay. It has been done, you know!

Constitution Committee Is Formed

First Unofficial Conclave Of Associated Students Held Recently

On the opening morning of classes at the U.C. Extension Building, interested students and members of the faculty, under Mr. L. D. Luckmann, held the first unofficial meeting of the A.S.S.F.J.C. for the purpose of organizing the student government of the junior college.

Due to the fact that only a small group of students were present, the business of the meeting was restricted to general matters of immediate importance.

Of primary importance was the establishing of a constitutional committee for the purpose of drawing up the school constitution. The group present, in the capacity of the general constitutional committee, appointed a subordinate committee for the specific planning of the constitution. To facilitate procedure, a plan was arranged by which the constitution when completed would be passed from the subordinate committee to a faculty advisory board for necessary changes and revisions. It would then be given over to the general constitutional committee for further alterations and revisions, and then the student body would be allowed to vote for and against the complete constitution.

The general constitutional committee voted that the student body of the college will be known as "The Associated Students of the San Francisco Junior College" or A.S.S.F.J.C. It was also resolved that the student body will have the following officers: president, vice-president, recording secretary, corresponding secretary, treasurer, and yell leaders.

The remaining business of the meeting was devoted to planning the forthcoming student body election. The form for the nomination blank or petition to be circulated by all students desiring to run for office was drawn up as follows:

(1) Qualifications
a) Fall '35 only—Personality
b) Member of A.S.S.F.J.C.
(2) Number of signers
a) All signers must be owners of A.S.S.F.J.C. cards
b) Must be ten signers on each petition
(3) No duplication of signatures on petitions for any one office. In case of duplication both candidates will have five days in which to procure the needed additional signatures.

Journalism Course Offered for Scribes

Students interested in journalism will notice on the list of new classes one classified as practical journalism, scheduled for 1:30 Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays in the library. This class is designed to fill an existing need for an intermediate course in this subject.

Members of the staff of the school paper who have already taken elementary journalism but who wish additional credit in this field may obtain such by attending one lecture per week. Those desiring further information regarding this subject are requested to consult the instructor, Miss Nourse, in the Junior College Library in the Galileo High building.

Class spirit soared high at the University of California last week when thirty candidates were nominated to run for only four freshman class offices.

BUILDERS!

By PRESIDENT A. J. CLOUD

Ye are the builders!

Many elements are involved in the erection of a building—time, persons, materials, but above all, spirit.

A building goes up from the ground. It cannot stand unless on solid foundation. Then, too, it must be tied together, be a definite whole, be a true expression of form, rhythm, and beauty.

The early stage in the building of the San Francisco Junior College has been passed. It consisted of the selection of an administrative and instructional staff; arrangement of physical facilities for instruction and administration; construction of a curriculum and a program of studies.

The present stage is the process of adjustment of part to part. Individual problems, while in some instances difficult, have largely been adequately met. It is all a phase of building. The right spirit is abroad. The student body will soon be under way; the football squad is out on the field; a college paper, drama, and debate are moving ahead.

My compliments to the builders!

Two Sites Proposed For J. C.

Many think that, with the hustle and bustle that accompanies the organization of a new junior college, no thought is given to plans or possibilities of a new junior college building which would house the college exclusively. On the contrary, quite a few plans are under consideration by the Board of Education, two of which have been recently mentioned.

One is for the building of a complete college plant with an extensive campus on the site of the cemetery bordered by Geary Street, Masonic Avenue, and Turk Street. This cemetery was known as Calvary Cemetery and has not been used for a number of years. Provisions would be made for moving the bodies to a new location. The tract would afford sufficient space for an extensive building schedule, complete with a practice field and other necessities for the operation of a complete junior college second to none.

The Sunset district is also a favored section and, if the Board of Education follows the recommendation of Dr. Edwin A. Lee, superintendent of schools, a college might be built on the large site at Twenty-second Avenue and Quintara Street, where the Board of Education already owns four blocks of land. This location would not be as central as the cemetery site, but would probably be favored by the board because of the high cost of improving the cemetery property after buying it. The Sunset land has already been graded for school buildings, the work having been done by hand labor when the CWA was in effect.

Photographer Names Time For Pictures

Complete records of every student at San Francisco Junior College will soon be on file. Photographing of students is being undertaken and will be carried on during the coming weeks. Pictures of the students will be an essential part of the permanent records now being started by Mr. Mohr.

A schedule to take care of all men and women in the college has been announced. It is the desire of the Registrar's office that this work be expedited to the utmost and so a comprehensive plan has been worked out to care for every student.

To date pictures have been taken of groups ranging from those with last names ending in A to those ending in G. Today will find the H-I-J group slated to face the camera.

A complete list of days will be made below. It is the desire of the Administration that those unable to fill their times should either be "shot" a day before or after their date. The cameraman will be in Room 401 from 2:30 to 5:00 on the following days:

Group H-I-J	Friday, Sept. 13
Group K-L	Monday, Sept. 16
Group M	Tuesday, Sept. 17
Group N-O-P-Q	Wed., Sept. 18
Group R	Thursday, Sept. 19
Group S-T	Friday, Sept. 20
Group U-V-W-X-Y-Z	Mon., Sept. 23

Art Class Meeting Scheduled Today

Noon today is the time chosen for the organization meeting and first luncheon of the art class. Present attendants of the art classes or anyone else who is interested in such an activity will be eligible for membership. Bob Metcalf will preside over the meeting, during which temporary officers will be elected.

Charlotte's Tavern, directly across the street from the U.C. Extension Building on Powell Street, is the restaurant selected for the inaugural luncheon. Prices for meals are reasonable, ranging from 35 cents upward. The time will be 12:30. This hour has been set to enable those who have 12:00 o'clock classes and do not get out till 12:50 to attend. The luncheon will be extended so that those late-comers will have an opportunity to take part in the election of officers.

Press Group to Be Formed

Plans are now under way for the formation of a Press Club. All persons who are on the staffs of this paper are eligible for membership. An extensive program of activities is planned, with talks to be given by local prominent newspaper personages, luncheons, and, if plans progress as is hoped, a school dance sponsored by the Press Club. More definite notice will be given later.

Large Attendance Is Necessary For Subject A Retake

At the student body assembly held last Tuesday, Mr. Paul J. Mohr, Registrar, made the following announcement regarding retakes of the English A examinations for students who have not already taken it.

"Unless a large number of persons apply to take the English A examinations no more examinations will be given this semester. Late entrants to the college will have to take their English A exams next semester. If the reexamination is put off until next semester, all students who have not as yet taken their Subject A will not be allowed to take any English courses for the ensuing semester."

After today, a fee of one dollar will be charged for all late registrations and a fee of one dollar will also be charged for late changes of programs.

More catalogs have been printed and they are available to those who wish them at either the 540 Powell office, or the junior college office at Galileo high school.

Semester to Be Lengthened

It has been announced that the school semester has been lengthened two weeks to facilitate the completion of all programs as originally scheduled.

Tradition's the Thing!

We have heard quite a bit recently about "pioneering" and the opportunities that accompany pioneering. But there is another phase of this adventurous undertaking that should be foremost in our minds. Upon the shoulders of the pioneers or "charter members" of this institution falls the noble responsibility of founding a tradition—setting a standard.

In years to come this school will have a name, a reputation, which will be directly traceable to the standard set by the inaugural classes. "Getting in on the ground floor" has many advantages, but it carries with it grim responsibilities. It is up to the argonauts of San Francisco Junior College to start a tradition so that graduates and prospective students alike will, in the future, be able to say, "San Francisco Junior College is a fine school—it always has been, ever since it started."

The faculty of this Junior College were chosen with care, and their ability cannot be defined in mere words. But without the whole-hearted cooperation of the entire student body, they alone can do little toward establishing a tradition such as would be desired. Reciprocally, the faculty is more than willing to cooperate with the student body. Therefore, it is up to each and every individual to make the most of the opportunities set before him in order to set a standard which in future years will be honored.

Think It Over!

May we point out to you simply just what happens to the money that goes into the student body treasury?

To begin with, there's this newspaper—the "Emanon." We're discussing the paper first mainly because it is naturally the one thing in which we, the staff, are most interested and the one thing we know the most about. There's no denying the fact that a newspaper is the most vital factor in keeping the student body of any school together. Especially is this true here at S.F.J.C. A new institution is being started and that, coupled with the great handicap of being in two widely separated buildings, naturally results in much confusion. Most of us don't know whether we're coming or going. Practically the only reliable and accurate medium that we have for finding out what's happening around the school, and certainly the fastest reaching and most convenient medium, is the paper. The paper is financed in part by the student body treasury and, therefore, the frequency with which it comes out depends largely on the condition of the treasury. You'd like to have all the news as often as possible—we want to give it to you as often as possible. It's up to you.

An even more important factor in college life, and undoubtedly one of paramount interest to all of us, is athletics. All sports sponsored by the school are financed by the student body treasury. This term football is THE sport. We're in a particularly fortunate position as far as football is concerned. In spite of the fact that we're a new college, we have "the cream of the crop" of the high schools and other junior colleges, and with our fine staff of coaches the team ought to go a long way. But it takes a lot of money to get the team started. Even before the first practice there's a tremendous expense for uniforms and adequate equipment for the players. During the course of the season much money is spent on traveling and on medical attention. Until practically the end of the year all this money will come from the student body treasury. We'd like to have winning teams, but we can't have them unless they have proper financial, as well as moral, support.

Then, too, there are a lot of other activities—athletic and otherwise—that are financed by the Associated Students. Expenses for school dances and social functions must come from the student body funds, so the larger the treasury, the more good times you'll have. Plans are also being made for the presentation of a term play by the dramatics classes, and all its expenditures will probably come from our treasury. All in all, you can see that your money is by no means being wasted.

We have here presented nothing but the same old cut-and-dried arguments and facts that student body card salesmen have used for time immemorial. But every one of these arguments still holds true. Think it over!

Jaysee Etiquette

Cooperation, Efficiency, Timing are the keywords of every student's program. Without these all-important items college students resemble elementary school students. Especially in an institution such as ours these things must be foremost in our minds.

Keep to the right on the stairways of the Powell Street building.

Don't loiter in the hallways.

Keep the main lobby clear at all times.

Don't use the staircase as a study hall or a place to hold informal chats. The auditorium on the basement floor is designated as a study hall, and Union Square will do for the unnecessary chatter.

Make it a point to get to your classes before the last minute.

Don't bother busy members of the President's staff with petty questions in regard to programs, studies, etc. Go to your advisor. The advisors have been appointed for just that purpose, and they are more than willing to cooperate with you.

Don't invade Galileo corridors before the time appointed for classes. Special meetings are held at two-fifteen and the attendants of these meetings are the only persons allowed in the building before class time.

Personal Close-Ups Of The Faculty

(In accordance with the policy of this paper to present short biographical sketches of the members of the faculty, this article is published in order to better familiarize the students with their teachers. The following is the first of a series. Watch for them each week.)

EDWIN C. BROWNE
Assistant Dean of Men

Edwin C. Browne was born in Seattle, Washington, on March 21, 1893. His elementary education was obtained at the Edison and the Lick schools here in San Francisco, from whence he went to the Boulder Creek High School. When the time came 'round to begin college, he entered the University of Washington and while in attendance there played on the freshman basketball team.

After spending two years at the University of Washington, he transferred to U.C. at Berkeley. He left U.C. to take the position of vice-principal of Santa Barbara Junior High School. He remained there only a few months before the United States entered the World War. At that time he left to join the air service at Kelley Field, Texas. From Texas he went east to Wright Field in Dayton, Ohio. From there he was moved to Louisville, Kentucky, where he transferred from the air service to the field artillery. He held a commission as 2nd lieutenant in the Reserve Officers Training Corps until he retired in 1933.

At the close of the war he returned to the West and completed his college education at the University of California, where he received his degree in 1919.

From 1920 till 1923, Mr. Browne was superintendent of the Rogue River School in Oregon. He came back to California at that time to become principal of the Yreka High School, where he remained until 1925. In that year he went to Placerville, where he established the El Dorado County High School. His commendable work in connection with this school gained him statewide recognition both as an organizer and an educator. After ten years as principal of the El Dorado County High School, Mr. Browne comes to our San Francisco college.

Up till the time that he became affiliated with this college, he was vice-president of the Association of California Secondary School Principals. He is a Phi Delta Kappa and the author of a satirical skit on present-day education which was produced at a meeting of California school superintendents in Fresno in 1934.

Mr. Browne is married. His wife is the former Maurietta Martin, a graduate of S. F. State Teachers' College. They have two boys, aged six and ten.

Men students can well appreciate the fact that a man of the experience and calibre of Mr. Browne has been appointed to the position of Dean of Men when they take into consideration that he has taken a very active part in school sports during his own education, together with the fact that he has served with the Army Air Corps, and, what's more—his hobbies are hunting and fishing. He has traveled back and forth across the continent considerably, and has spent a great deal of time in most of the large cities; even as distant as Puerto Rico.

Not content with such activities as are afforded a Dean of Men who has been working feverishly in the organization of a new junior college, Mr. Browne takes an active part in the following organizations: The American Legion (Fred Bunch Post), the Lions Club, and the Advisory Committee of the De Molays.

ABOUT TIME!

A professor at Cornell recently made a survey to determine what happens to a college student's time. Here is some of the data: "Junior women spend on the average ten hours each week for entertainment. Freshmen write home as a rule two and one-half hours a week. Women of Cornell devote four hours more per week than the men to personal appearance. Senior men are the most studious of the students. The four-year men spend 55 hours of each week sleeping; while they are occupied nine and one-half hours each week at the dining table."

Library Head Sets Hours, Rules For Using References

With the opening of the college library on the north and south mezzanine of Galileo girls' gymnasium, the schedule of hours, rules for borrowers, and full staff have been announced by Mr. Francis J. Colligan, librarian.

The library will be open daily from Monday to Friday from 11:00 to 6:00 o'clock. "The library schedule will be subject to change as students demonstrate their demand for an extension of hours," said Mr. Colligan.

All registered students may borrow books upon presentation of their registration cards. Due to the limited number of volumes available at present, no student will be allowed to have more than two books at one time, and these may not be kept for more than two weeks. Books reserved for specific classes may be used only in the library reading room and for not more than two hours at a time by any one student. These books may be taken out for overnight use after 5:30 every day, but must be returned before 11:30 the following morning.

It is planned to stack the reserved and reference volumes in the south reading room and books for home circulation in the north room.

Ready to aid students in their library work, the following members of the faculty will act as assistant librarians: Mr. Robert J. Parker, Mr. John M. Horowitz, Mr. William Goss, Miss Jennett Henderson, Miss Claire Cuneo, and Miss Joan Nourse.

'Emanon' to Have Two News Staffs

Probably some of the readers of this paper have noticed that there are two distinct editorial staffs. This situation is easily explained by the fact that a great number of students applied for positions on the staff and, in order to give everyone a chance, the advisors decided to maintain two staffs.

This system facilitates more even distribution of assignments and enables one staff to supervise the compilation and editing of the paper one week and the next staff to officiate the following week. Thus the staffs alternate on successive issues of the paper.

There are still positions to be filled in various departments of the paper and anyone with previous experience is requested to apply.

There will be a meeting of both staffs Monday, September 16, at 2:10 in Room 150 in the Galileo building.

Pres. Roosevelt May Speak at U.C.

Possibility that President Franklin Roosevelt will speak at the University of California on his proposed western tour was revealed last week in Berkeley, when dual invitations from the University were expected to have reached Washington.

One invitation was sent by President Robert G. Sproul of U.C. on behalf of the University administration, and the other by the Associated Students on behalf of the youth of California.

If President Roosevelt accepts the invitations, he will probably speak in the Greek Theater, it was indicated. Three previous presidents have given addresses there.

AD-MEN CO-OPERATE

Mr. C. F. Stough, Advertising instructor, has announced that his advertising class will co-operate with the business staff of the college paper, aiding with the writing and make-up of advertising copy.

Music Data Is Given Out By Mr. Sandifur

Many jaysee students are vitally interested in the organization of an orchestra, a band, or other instrumental groups, and, for their benefit, Mr. Sandifur of the Music Department has issued the following information:

"Because of the many problems confronting us at the outset of the semester, we have not been able to get information about the new instrumental ensemble groups to the student body at large.

"So many questions have been asked, that I am taking this opportunity of stating some of the many advantages these groups offer.

"The musical ensembles exist simultaneously as classes and as activities corresponding to the extra-curricular activities of other colleges.

"The first of these groups being organized is String Orchestra, meeting Tuesday and Thursday, 2:30 to 4:30, 2 units (listed in the catalog as Orchestra). This organization comprises a select group of string players performing compositions of the best composers, composed or arranged for string orchestra. Some numbers will be only sight-read, others will be finished off for public performance.

"The second group is Wind Instrument Ensemble, meeting Monday and Wednesday, 2:30 to 4:30, 2 units (listed in the catalog as Band, meeting T-Th, 4:30-6:30). Wind Ensemble will play music specially arranged for this group. The course will present fine possibilities to woodwind or brass students for getting and keeping in practice on their instruments. There will be a lot of playing.

"If you have played in high school, another junior college or college, or if you are eligible material, come around, let us know. We are making every effort to build up groups that will be worthy of S. F. J. C. The splendid turnout for football and the spirit shown at the recent Friday night dance show that the student body is capable of great things. Are you behind us in Music?"

Debating Classes Being Organized

A debating class has been formed and is functioning under the direction of Mr. Lloyd Luckmann. The class has outlined an active program for the coming semester.

Ability is a prominent factor in the group, but the group is as yet quite small, therefore a call is being made for more members. Any person interested in debating is welcome. The activity is especially suitable for those who are taking public speaking, for it is an ideal opportunity to put to practical use their training.

Further information about the class may be secured from Mr. Luckmann in room 303.

Dean Browne has expressed his appreciation for the splendid cooperation shown by the students in their use of the University Extension Building at 540 Powell Street. However, he calls attention to the fact that the use of this building has been made possible by the kindness of the University of California Extension Division, and disturbances or smoking in the building is obviously not to be desired.

Camera Men Will Meet Next Monday

Camera enthusiasts who have been deprived of the opportunity of class instruction due to the suspension of the photography class will, nevertheless, have a chance to put their hobby to practical use. A Camera Club is being organized under the direction of Mr. Green, and a meeting will be held Monday, September 16, in Room 464 at 2:15.

At that time an election of officers will be held, and plans for the coming semester's activities outlined. It is hoped that the products of such a club might find their way into the school paper, and possibly a college exhibition.

The field of photographic possibilities is extensive and varied, thus Graflex-grapplers and Brownie-bunglers alike are welcome to the organization meeting.

Dean: The best thing for you to do is to give up cigarettes, liquor, and men.

Coed: What's the next best thing?

A.S. Card Sale Slackens After Opening Week

After starting with a big bang, the sale of student body cards has slackened to a near standstill. A certain amount of this is accredited to the business of registration, and that of getting the needed supplies of the term. As soon as this business is over, a boom is expected in the sale of the cards.

As our quota is $4,500 and, at the present time, the sales add up to a mere $1,800, we are far behind our prescribed sale.

Some of the students who are selling cards are as follows: Clyde Polland, Bill Ellis, Patty Wells, Mervin Coleman, George Pedrin, Bud Mayer, Bill Weinstock, Barbara Latz, Maury Schwarz, Helen Mann, Dave Koblik, Adolph Pedrin, Bernard McGuire, Helene Bowman, and John Baxley.

HARD LUCK, A LA CARTE

Probably 1,900 Jayseers had interesting vacations but to Pat Hurlihy goes the leather medal for tough luck. Pat, who now attends S.F.J.C., was run over a day or two after San Mateo closed for the summer and has been laid up with a broken foot for three months.

THE END OF ALL THINGS

A newspaper student at Columbia gave a group of faculty members intelligence tests. The average test indicated a mental age of 20.

FOOTBALL TURNOUT SETS RECORD

SPORTS COMMENTS

By TIM GUINEY

Some good news has just come in from the student body office. The student body card shekels are rolling in fast, and this money will help plenty towards buying some equipment for our athletic teams.

Head Coach Russ Sweet is happy—yes, and who can blame him? After all, if you were the football coach of a new school, and expected a measley turnout for the team, then found out that there were 120 candidates out for jobs, I guess you'd be going around grinning too. Better look out, Los Angeles!

It's a known fact that when ol' man football season puts in an appearance, all the other sports are quietly shunted to the sidelines. But it seems that the coaches at "Esseff-Jaysee" are going to try to be different.

Yes, sir! In spite of all the martyrs who have attempted this task before them, and failed miserably, our own stalwart athletic leaders are going to start tennis and golf in this hean institution.

Rumor also has it that Joe Amori, who had a successful season as boxing coach at San Mateo last year, will soon be starting a team under the banners of the J.C.

Here's one for you soccer enthusiasts. A team is going to be organized tomorrow at 10:00 A.M. at the Golden Gate Park Beach Chalet Field. There's just one string tied to it. The team is not being sponsored by S.F.J.C., so you'll have to bring your own shoes. R. Wenburg, who attends Jaysee, is the organizer.

Marin J.C. has been chosen as the first opponent of the unnamed gridders of San Francisco. This affair will take place September 27 at Kentfield. After that, a tentative game has been scheduled with McKinley High of Honolulu, to be played in San Francisco.

If this game does take place, the 1936 engagement between these two aggregations will be played on the McKinley High field in Honolulu.

San Francisco State will be the opponent on October 19, and then Coach Sweet and his gridders will travel to meet the warriors of Modesto on October 25.

This engagement will be followed by the "big game" of the year, namely, Los Angeles vs. San Francisco. This is scheduled for November 1, and will be a night game, played at Seals Stadium.

After the Los Angeles skirmish, there will be two games left on the J.C. sked. One with the U.S.F. frosh on November 16, and, last but certainly not least, the battle with Murius McFadden's San Mateo Bulldogs on November 28.

It seems we are being held slightly in contempt by the other junior colleges whom we will encounter on the football field this coming season. Or so I have inferred, after conversing with sports "aigsperts" connected with some of these Jaysees, who don't concede us much chance when our gridders tangle with theirs. They might get a surprise . . . but, well—what's my opinion against millions of others?

THIS AND THAT . . . "Tex" Byrd, track coach of San Mateo, has a real prize in Kirkpatrick, the hurdler, who, on graduating from Montezuma High School, turned down offers from some of the finest colleges in the United States to attend the Peninsula school. . . . San Francisco high schools have contributed a good part of the football players to the J.C., many of them having been all-city stars in their prep days. . . . "Stub" Stollery of the Call-Bulletin is claiming that "victory will be Sweet," for Russ Sweet's boys when they get their team a-goin'.

Fifty Men Given Uniforms As Grid Practice Starts

Prep Stars Furnish Nucleus of Attack; Santa Rosa May Play Sept. 21

"If we can strengthen the ends in the line position, we will have a good chance of going through a successful season. Otherwise . . ."

The speaker was Russ Sweet, head coach of the new San Francisco Junior College football team.

When asked what he considered a successful season, Sweet's reply was: "Why, to win a few games. After all, we can't expect too much of a new team that has never played together prior to this time."

At present, there are approximately 70 candidates out for the team, while there are suits only for 50. Sweet has not yet said when the first cut will be made, but is content to give every member of the team a chance to show his ability.

Many of the candidates were former stars on local prep elevens, while still others represent Texas, Colorado, and many East Bay institutions.

From Galileo High, the 1934 champions, three stars have been recruited, namely, Vanelli, McHugh, and Lamerdin. McHugh is the lightest man on the team at 150 pounds.

Sacred Heart's gift to the new Powell Street College was Pete Jambruno, a fullback who graduated in '32, and Red Dervin, an end.

From Lowell High come three stellar athletes: Bob Eltringham, a promising halfback, George Pedrin, guard, and George Clarke, a tackle.

St. Ignatius is responsible for Bud Wiechers, Tom Murphy, a guard, and Bud Harrington, a 230-pound tackle.

Red Brickley, a tackle, and Ed Warren, center, hail from Polytechnic, while Balboa's contribution numbers two: Finnerty, and Odero Guisti, a former star halfback under Walt Lester.

Pedrin	R.E.
Kurtz	R.T.
Murphy	R.G.
McHugh	C.
Horrington	L.G.
Scafani	Q.
Clarke	R.H.
Eltringham	L.H.
Jambruno	F.

This line-up is subject to change at any time, and is by no means official.

Besides Sweet, the coaching staff comprises Lee Elsan, former University of California star quarterback, Jack Gaddy, of the University of San Francisco, "Dutch" Conlan, former star gridder at St. Mary's College, and, until recently, head coach at the High School of Commerce, and Tom Wilson, recently famous player of College of the Pacific, who gave fans a treat last year with his strong-arm passing attack against U.S.C.

The grid strategy board is trying to get a game for the new junior college with Santa Rosa Junior College at Santa Rosa on or about September 21. If this game proves unavailable, plans will be made for a scrimmage between first and second strings on the same date.

Practice field at Funston playground has been crowded with "rail-birds" for the past week watching practice with five coaches running around in bright red silk pants, trimmed with blue. Outfits for the players were distributed all through the week, as each man earned his uniform. The jerseys are white with four-inch letters across the front, "Property of the S.F.J.C."

Following games this year at Seals Stadium at night with McKinley High of Honolulu and Los Angeles J.C. of the southern city, rumors are current of prospects of a game next year with McKinley at Honolulu.

At predicting we were never any good, but we feel safe in predicting that a lot of traffic violation tickets will be given to those Jayseers who insist on bringing their cars downtown.

Candidates For Managers Wanted By Varsity Staff

The call is still out for sports managers! There are still many fine positions as managers on different teams that have not yet been taken up.

Any students who have had experience as sports managers in other institutions, or who are interested in this activity, are asked to see Mr. Russell Sweet or Mr. Louis Conlan of the Physical Education Department as soon as possible.

The duties of a sports manager may be explained by the fact that all equipment must be carefully cared for, visiting teams assisted in obtaining the service necessary for the preliminary game preparation, and the efficient practice session must be managed with a minimum loss of time.

Many rewards can be reaped by those who are appointed to these positions, including that of traveling with the team on all of their journeys.

Any students interested in this activity can find Messrs. Conlan and Sweet at Funston Field every day between the hours of 10:00 and 12:00 A.M.

Pres. Holds Informal Chats

President Robert G. Sproul of the University of California holds office hours once a week when students may drop in and enjoy an informal chat with him.

Sports Writers Wanted

Any students with sports writing experience, interested in covering sports events of the college, are asked to see Tim Guiney any afternoon between 2:15 and 2:30 o'clock in Room 150 of Galileo High School.

Menlo J.C. has signed George "Ad" Deway to coach football for the coming season. Deway was appointed in the absence of Russ Sweet who came to S.F.J.C. to drill our own pigskin punters.

Soccer Team To Be Entered In Conference

Jaysee Squad to Compete With 4-Year Colleges; Practice to Start

The California Intercollegiate Soccer Conference title has gone out of the hands of the junior colleges since the University of San Francisco upset the six-year reign of the San Mateo Bulldogs in 1932. This is one of the sports which is gaining in popularity among the men, and it offers the only competition in which the College will be on equal schedule standing with Stanford, California, U.S.F. and San Jose. The popularity of the sport has been gaining greatly in the past few years and, with the interest shown by Galileo, Commerce, and particularly Mission High School, the student body should furnish real material. No definite announcement has as yet been made as to schedule and practice plans, but it will undoubtedly be an important part of the physical education program.

Place and time of sign-up will be announced shortly.

Soccer Notice

Soccer practice will be held at the Beach Chalet Field in Golden Gate Park instead of at the Park Stadium.

Jaysee Girl Athletes To Meet Tues.

Miss Bertha Keller has made the following announcements in order that the women of San Francisco Junior College will have the opportunity to participate in athletics:

"We are planning to carry out a recreational program with opportunities for leadership in the various activities, such as tennis, golf, swimming, group games, hiking, etc., within the regular class hours. The plans under consideration are to have representatives from each enrolled class for these various activities. I should like to call a meeting Tuesday, September 17, 4:30 o'clock, in the women's gymnasium, of all women who are interested in the organization of athletics for women. Girls who are not free at that time may sign up on the bulletin board in the women's gymnasium."

Facilities for women's athletics are being arranged for, and will be announced later.

Tennis Team Is Certainty, But Coach Unnamed

Although the question of who will coach tennis is still a mystery, it has been definitely ascertained that there will be a team, the Physical Education Department announced recently.

While in most colleges this is considered solely a Spring sport, San Francisco Junior College will consider tennis a year-round activity. In a short time there will be published a sign-up card, on which the "John Henrys" of all the potential racqueteers should be placed.

The department goes further to explain that, while the Junior College tennis conference does not open until the Spring, a team worthy of the name of S.F.J.C. should be organized and ready to play by that time.

Due to his former experience as head of the Menlo Junior College team, it is expected that Russ Sweet, who also coaches football, will be chosen as the leader in this branch of sports.

Baseball Nine To Join Conference

With baseball about to be eclipsed by the coming football season, there is very little in the way of organization that Coach Elsan can announce. We do know that the varsity will be entered on the N.C.J.C. Conference, but apart from that there is little news emanating from the Physical Education Department. Always the handy helper, "Jack" Gaddy, whom some say is a better baseballer than he is anything else, will be on hand to take care of the pitching arms and do a little fungo hitting for Coach Elsan. Practice will most likely take place on Funston Field.

Before it is time to put the gloves away for the winter, Lee Elsan will call a meeting of all enthusiastic fly-chasers and announce the spring plans for his nine. Baseball is a real San Francisco sport and a colorful team will get over with the local fans.

A certain cynical fellow about the college swiped eighty-five of the hundred mimeographed petition blanks and therefore closed the nominations after fifteen petitions had been filed.

Track Men Given Call By Sweet

Fall Practice Meets Are Slated; Easy Drills Plan of Coach

All students interested in track are asked to report to Coach Russ Sweet as soon as possible. While the intensity of the drill sessions will not be so marked as are the Spring practice workouts, Sweet intends to conduct week-end meets for three-quarter and half distances.

While the practice will only be weekly, nevertheless the results gained from this method of keeping in condition will be found invaluable to the athlete by the time the Spring semester starts.

Some natural aptitude, patience and perseverance go to the makeup of a successful track man. It is the one sport where individual responsibility plays a great part in success.

Coach Sweet expects a large turnout for this sport, chiefly because of the fact that all students are required to register for physical education, and those interested in track will be given credit through this medium.

At present it is believed that the college will enter this sport in the Northern California Junior College Conference at the opening of the Spring semester.

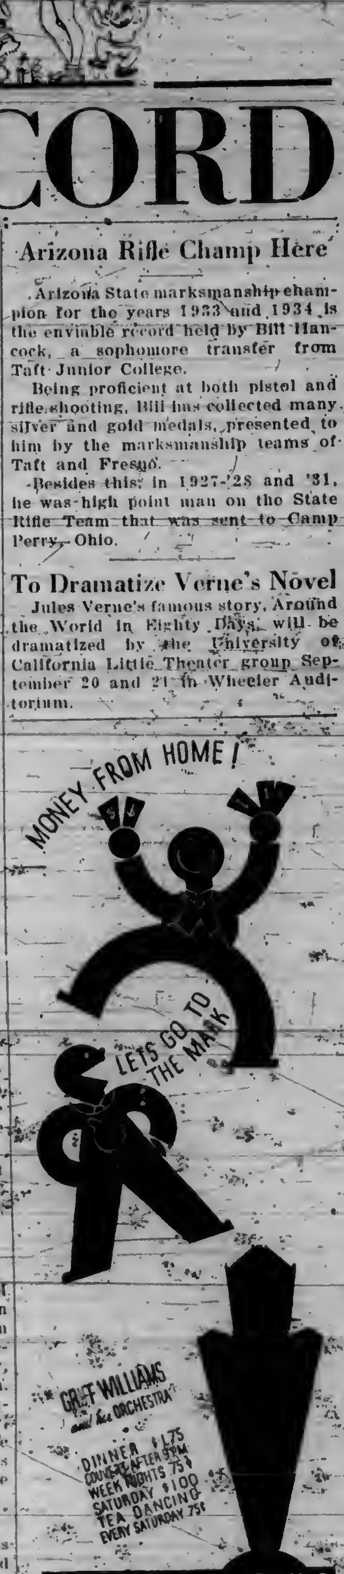
Coach Sweet can be located at Galileo High School in the afternoons, or in the mornings at Funston Field.

Adonises Sought For Crew

Tomorrow and Sunday, M-G-M films will take a series of shots on the Oakland estuary in preparation of a two-reel short depicting the development of a college racing crew, according to the Daily Californian. The subject to be filmed this week-end will be the U.C. freshman crew and consequently applicants who are handsome in addition to being brutes are being sought, according to the Berkeley paper.

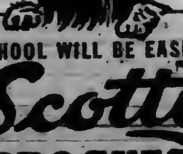
There's a certain Jaysee sports-editor around who has degenerated into a crooner. Yeah, he wows 'em on those radio amateur hours.

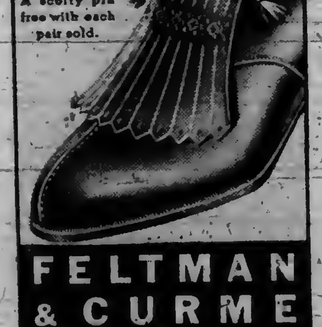
Arizona Rifle Champ Here



Arizona State marksmanship champion for the years 1933 and 1934 is the enviable record held by Bill Hancock, a sophomore transfer from Taft Junior College.

Being proficient at both pistol and rifle shooting, Bill has collected many silver and gold medals, presented to him by the marksmanship teams of Taft and Fresno.





Besides this, in 1927-'28 and '31, he was high point man on the State Rifle Team that was sent to Camp Perry, Ohio.

LOUD SPEAKER LOWDOWN

By JAY O'GEE

For those who study higher mathematics and the physical sciences to the accompaniment of a radio, let us pass along the following info: Jack Benny will return to the ether on the 29th of September. He will be followed on October 2 by Fred (Nasal) Allen, who will crack wise between the tunes of Art Kassel. Four boys and a guitar may be heard on October 4 'cause that's when the Mills Brothers return. And for those who enjoy tunes of Ozzie Nelson and his blonde charmer, Harriet Hilliard, they will return on October 6, but instead of being interrupted by the tomfooleries of Joe Penner, Nelson will have to contend with the tales of Robert L. (Believe-it-or-Not) Ripley. You see, the Penner fellow has decided to live in Sunny California and won't sign any contracts that won't permit him to broadcast from the west coast.

NEW FEUD BREWING

For those who enjoy the finer things, Grace Moore returns on September 16, just three days hence. . . . Guy Lombardo might be bothered by Jan Garber, but now Ted Fiorito can be bothered. Sterling Young, whose tunes are aired from the Wilshire Bowl in the Southland, apes the popular maestro and his methods to perfection. . . . Incidentally, Garber is scheduled to return to the Powell Street frantic place for three months later in the winter. . . . That would-be oracle who writes a Raddio Column for the U.S.F. Foghorn thinks he's telling something when he says that a Montreal station is broadcasting television successfully; phew! the Don Lee people have been broadcasting the pictures through the air for two years or more—but from their L.A. studios. . . . He also says that Garber's clown trumpeter Fritz has no last name. I beg to correct—he has, and it's Heilhron, so there.

MORE HARLEM RECORDINGS

. . . And Ray Noble won't be back on the Coty hour either; they've signed someone else for the Fall "semester." . . . If you care for the warmer tunes on the gramophone discs, may I recommend Earl Hines' "Rhythm Lullabye" or Lew Stone's "Garden of Weed" which was written by Reginald Forsythe, that English Negro, who grinds out one weird tune after another. . . . Then there are those folks who go into wingdings when they hear Fats Waller; for them I would recommend any of Cleo Brown's records. . . . That dusky maid almost burns up the turntable.

RADIO GOES HOLLYWOOD

. . . If you'd rather listen to the hot records on the radio than invest in them, you might try tuning in to station KRE at 1370 kilocycles—it's a peewee station located in Berkeley, but at 3:30 every afternoon they play a program of chestnuts that are guaranteed to blow your tubes. . . . Of course the program isn't quite as nutty since Don Hambly, the Prime Dizz, came over to KJBS, but what is one station's loss is another station's gain. . . . For smokin' swingin' dance music the late stayer-uppers might tune in on Benny Goodman's band, KFRC, 11:00 P.M. . . . and rumor has it that Helen Ward is as easy on the eyes as she is on the ears. . . . You can take it from Secret Agent Q1¼ that the "Broadway Melody of 1936" and "Big Broadcast of 1936" will both have a lot of best-selling tunes, as will the new Bing Crosby-Joan Bennett opus "Two for Tonight." . . . Incidentally the new "Big Broadcast" will have a whole flock of big shots of the air, namely, Bing Crosby, Amos and Andy, Ray Noble, Jessica Dragonette, Ethel Merman, and others, not to mention Charlie Ruggles and Jack Oakie. . . . And now, listeners, we will close with that lulu which was heard on the Burns & Allen program: Puzzled Person—"Er, hello, I'm upset and confused." Gracie: "Well, how do you do? We're Burns and Allen." . . . Goombye please!

IN THE CORRIDORS

Frosh co-ed in the Powell Street bookstore: "Oh, do you have to PAY for your books?"

By one of those athletic fellows at 540 Powell: "Hey, where's the pool? I'm taking swimming."

Also at Powell Street building: "Gosh, I've been waiting ten minutes for this elevator."

Then there's always this one: "Who's my advisor?"

By frosh co-ed from out of town: "Is that square in front of the St. Francis Hotel really our campus?"

To the editor of your paper have come several thousand (maybe less) queries like this: "Can I write a column?"

One soph to another: "If our school colors were black and white we could call ourselves the "Zebras."

HOW ABOUT IT, Professors?

A chemistry instructor at Alabama college kept his class five minutes overtime at a lecture recently . . . Then he apologized and excused them all from attending the next class.

The University of Delaware Review is conducting a prevarication contest which will be won by the student who can prove most convincingly that Baron Munchausen influenced his ancestry. Stories that are not real lies will be thrown out.

Novel Plans Set As Groups Begin Seeking Sponsors

"Student Activities Give the Extra Bit That Makes College"—Browne

Plans for student organizations and groups will be pushed by faculty advisors within the next few weeks. With students forming groups to pursue their own interests, selection and formation of the various student groups will further a full social program planned for this semester.

"Our college is fortunate in the fact that it has a great variety of student activities all of which are included in its curriculum. All activities must coincide with class registration and class room work," declared Dean Browne when asked for an interview concerning formation of these groups.

"I believe that student groups will assist members of the San Francisco Junior College in getting just that extra bit of life that makes college a college and not just a school. We sincerely hope that the members of the Junior College will participate fully when these plans are organized."

Faculty members and heads of various departments will act as advisors to the new organizations. Although plans are in the most part formative, it is believed that among the active organizations on the campus will be the dramatics class. Possibility that several plays will be staged in the near future was opened up when it was announced that the Junior College will participate in the Century of Progress fete to be held in San Francisco.

Reports of a flood of interest have been reaching the Administration concerning the clubs. Journalists have definitely decided upon the organization of a Press Club. Plans for several functions are being arranged under the guidance of the journalistic faculty and class.

Staff Sets Next Issue at Sept. 27

Due to a last-minute change before this issue of the "Emanon" goes to press the announcement is made that the next edition of the paper will appear on Friday, September 27, instead of Friday, September 20.

Future publication dates will be announced at that time.

Students Asked To Name Newspaper

The word "Emanon" still heads this nameless paper, although it is hoped that this is the last issue that will bear this name. Elsewhere in this issue will be found a blank upon which your suggestions for a name for this paper may be written.

That blank may be the means of someone winning an Associated Students card free of charge. Read the rules of the contest over carefully, jot down a name, and, if you're lucky, the next issue of the paper may carry the name which you suggested. Try your skill at naming a newspaper—it may mean the winning of a $3 Associated Students card for you.

I wish another "Buy American" mood would descend upon William Randolph Hearst, to draw his attention away from America's universities and colleges. Which were doing very nicely, thank you, before he took to uncovering the "Red menace." If he had no basis for complaint when he first took up the cry, it's a cinch that he will have before he is through, what with the power of suggestion confronting our eager young minds at every turn, and Red consciousness being forced upon us daily. Universities of Wisconsin, Chicago, and Columbia have already basked in the focus of his floodlight; there are enough educational institutions left to provide copy for quite some time to come, which dreary prospect leads us to believe, with Brown university's Daily Herald, that things are going, indeed, from "bad to Hearst."—From Los Angeles Junior Collegian.

Emanon Lists Candidates At Galileo Rally

sure that no one is influenced in voting by the schools in which these students may have obtained their experience, we have omitted naming the schools involved.

John P. O'Looney: high sophomore; served at another junior college as freshman president, student body vice-president, head of social committee, chairman of awards board, member of rally committee; and he is candidate for office of president.

Maury Schwarz: high sophomore; was captain of his high school wrestling team, was captain of a junior college wrestling team, and at this same junior college acted in the capacity of head yell leader, secretary of frosh class, secretary of men's club, president of men's club, and member of executive council for two terms, and he is also running for president.

Dorothy Vincent: high sophomore; candidate for vice-president; was vice-president of her high school student body, and also secretary of the same school.

Howard Markuse: high sophomore; candidate for vice-president; served at another junior college as frosh president, men's club president, and member of social committee, member of ex-council for two terms, and member of championship crew for two years.

William R. Ellis: upper classman; candidate for recording secretary; was secretary of the Chamber of Commerce at his high school, and also secretary-treasurer of the alumni chapter of this same organization.

Helene Bowman: high sophomore; candidate for recording secretary; served at another junior college as vice-president of low frosh class, secretary of high frosh, secretary of social committee, and girls' swimming manager at the same school.

Bill Weinstock: low sophomore; candidate for treasurer; committee member of several groups at another junior college, also managed an apartment house.

Allan Koblick: high sophomore; candidate for treasurer; assistant treasurer and treasurer of high school student body.

Mervin Coleman: high sophomore; candidate for yell-leader; served as assistant yell leader in high school, and assistant yell leader at another junior college for two terms.

Bill Kennedy: candidate for yell leader; was assistant and head yell leader in high school, served on four dance committees, was parliamentarian of student body, was student body representative of drama club, was member of rally committee, and soccer and tennis teams.

On the ballots you will find many names of worthy students who did not turn in their experience and personal information to us, either through modesty or ignorance of this service offered by the Emanon. We regret to say that though this is all the information that was available, this list is still incomplete.

For Pugilistic Scholars

College men of the athletic type who aspire to the pugilistic prize ring while absorbing a knowledge of the sciences, the languages, and the classics, may scan the following excerpt from the Troy Times Record:

On the eve of the Dempsey-Tunney fight, Mike Trent, an old-timer, who was in the Dempsey quarters, was sent as a scout over to the Tunney training camp to bring back information of value to Dempsey on Tunney's style and hitting power.

When he returned, Mike's face was beaming. "It's a set-up," he said. "I seen him readin' a book."

Unusual Quest Of Femme Startles Hardened Males

There we stood. Men whose blood was warm within, men who claimed to know all the answers, stumped by a mere slip of a lass. "Fate, thou art cruel indeed."

It was a foggy, dismal afternoon. The Administration offices of S.F.J.C. at Galileo High School were packed with myriads of questioning students and a few haggard looking members of the faculty.

There came dancing through the door a charming damsel in quest of a slight piece of information. Being a fair damsel, the male population of the room neglected the faculty for a moment to allow her to make inquiry to one of the profs.

Shyly, cautiously, the maiden approached a lord of the faculty. "Where," she asked, "can I buy a student body card?"

The prof staggered as from a fatal blow; he was quite ignorant of the answer.

Recovering rapidly from his start, the instructor turned to the assembled male contingent. In his eye scintillated the will of a Caesar—he would obtain the correct answer, or else - - - "Where, gentlemen," he demanded in a determined voice, "can this young lady obtain a student body card?"

Silence greeted his ears; brainless brawn hung its head; Goliath had fallen. Eventually, with as much dignity as was commandable, one blade was forced to call Dean Edwin C. Browne into consultation to obtain the answer, as the fair cause of it all surveyed the occupants of the room with scorn.

OOPS! MY MISTAKE!

High interest and great dramatic talent have been shown the last few weeks in the various English classes at Santa Monica Junior College. One in particular had the members dramatize a story. At the conclusion of the massacre, a student went forward to congratulate one of the brilliant stars for the portrayal of a dumb stooge BUT—found it wasn't acting.

FRATERNITY? Oh No!

Seniors at Princeton university recently voted 86 to 78 that they would rather win a Phi Beta key than a varsity letter in college.

LET'S ARGUE!

A waitress in the Harvard Union denounced Harvard men as being "conceited, inconsiderate, spoiled children." A Harvard man called this statement a "damnable lie and an unmitigated falsehood."

Mmmm, Right of Course!

Recently a fire started in one of the women's dormitories at Ohio State. Firemen found the charred end of a cigarette at the spot where the fire began. Officials were in a dilemma. Finally they turned in a report which attributed the fire to a "cigarette which blew into the building."

Oklahoma Daily offers this bit of wisdom, which warrants due consideration during the summer months by the nation's coeds.

"Sophistication," says the Daily, "is when you don't know something and you pretend you do, so you never find out.

"For if you found out you'd no longer be sophisticated. So be careful. It is dangerously easy to learn something."

BELIEVE IT OR NOT!

According to the charter of Purdue university, members of the university board of regents must include one farmer, one woman, and one person of good moral character.

SOMETHIN' Wrong Here!

When seventy students of a certain Harvard university professor's classes failed his course, the students met and drafted a petition to secure re-examinations and re-gradings.

WASTE OF TIME

Kisses of the fair sex are more deadly than those of the male, according to Sanford Siegrist, California psychologist. Subjects for the test kissed—not each other—but little pads of cotton. When these were tested, science showed that the kisses of the girls were more powerful in germs.

"But this test need not be considered conclusive," Siegrist said. "The women were more enthusiastic when it came to kissing an uninteresting ball of cotton than the males."

Bill Ellis: "Want to buy a student body card?"

Clyde Pollen: "What for?"

Bill: "Cheap. Only three bucks."

WHAT'S THE USE?

Students at the Colorado College of Education offered some of the following reasons for failure:

Commerce student: "I couldn't budget my time."

Architect: "The buildings all looked alike; I couldn't find my classroom."

Chemistry student: "The elements were against me."

Dance Voted Big Success By Students

"An overwhelming success!" That is what more than twelve hundred attendants thought of the reception and dance presented by the college in the girls' gym of Galileo High School on Friday evening, August 30.

The dance was augmented by many features during the course of the evening. Prospective candidates for student body offices were introduced, as were candidates for the position of yell leader. These hopeful contestants were presented by Mr. Edwin C. Browne, Assistant Dean of Men.

Another highlight of the evening was the presentation to the students of their Fight Song, which was introduced by Mr. Lloyd Luckmann. The words and music of this song were written by Bob Auino, youthful maestro who led the dance band. Auino has written many college songs, but his latest effort seems to top all the rest.

During the evening's festivities Bill Kennedy led the audience in some yells which proved that the college will have no difficulty in making themselves heard in future gridiron or basketball games.

Among other accoutrements which added greatly to the success of the evening were the colored spotlights, which were used so effectively, and the public address system, both supplied through the courtesy of Galileo High School.

To Joe Kessel, Paul Rippon, Bill Selneke, Tyler McHugh, and Fred Campagnoli, who worked under the direction of Mr. Lloyd Luckmann on the preparations, go the compliments of the entire student body for the successful outcome of the college's first social event.

Grid Squads Meet At Salinas; Game Set For Sept. 20

Gridders of San Francisco Junior College will swing into action next Friday at Salinas. Announcement of the game with the Mustangs from Salinas Junior College was released late yesterday by the coaching staff.

No starting lineup has been named by Coach Russ Sweet at this time. However, with such men as Pedrin, Mauer, etc., it is believed that the Junior College Varsity will triumph.

Negotiations are being carried on with other colleges for games, and it is hoped that a full schedule can be announced shortly.

Give Little Support To Card Sales

Approximate Totals 30 Per Cent Less Than College Average

Expenditures Exceed Revenue; Support Is Sought

Only 43 per cent of the enrolled students have purchased student body cards granting them admission to the A. S. S. F. J. C., according to a statement by Mr. Ward M. Nichols, financial advisor. Statistics gathered from other junior colleges in the state set the average student body membership at 70 per cent, which indicates that the San Francisco students are nearly 30 per cent below the par of their contemporaries in this respect.

Apparently failing to realize the benefits of membership in the student organization, 850 students, out of a total enrollment of 1,500, have yet to buy their cards.

Although the student body income is below normal, the expenditures from this fund far exceed normal circumstances, according to reports. Because this is a new institution, all student departments must start from scratch. The football squad required an entire stock of new equipment, something which happens but once in the history of any school, Nichols states. Likewise many other departments of the school, including this newspaper, called for funds with which to get started, applying an abnormal drain on the treasury.

Student leaders announce that cards will be on sale for three dollars at Room 260, Galileo. They urge those not yet members of the student body to remember that the card entitles members to admission to dances, athletic contests, to the newspaper, and to many other activities.

Reasons Listed By Students for Liking College

Junior college is the beginning of a new life for the freshman—a life that is destined to be filled with things that the freshman will do and experience for the first time. It is with these "firsts" that we will deal when asked "Why I Like Junior College."

For the first time, the freshman is free of the fetters that have bound him so long. He is free to work on his own time, in the way that he thinks best. This new-found independence is the turning point, for the better, in the lives of those students who choose to continue their education in a friendly junior college, rather than take the jump that lands them in the cold bosom of a university.

When one enters junior college, there is ended for all time the incessant intervening of instructors to aid a student whose problem-of-the-moment is a little too difficult. One does the work because one wants to, and this new attitude, aided by the friend help of the instructors, forces the student to adopt an entirely new attitude toward studying. One realizes for the first time that he is working for his own advancement, and that he will learn something if he does more than the required curricular assignments.

The size of the junior college student body, and the attending loyalty of this group, is appreciated by the freshman. It is not so large that one is obliged to search diligently for two or three years before establishing himself in the intricate maze that so often marks university life as a thing apart; nor is it so small as to be filled with the cliques, and these in turn filled with their pettiness.

Student Association Constitution Plans Almost Completed

Political Science Group Preparing Drafts of Document; Aided by Voluntary Student Associates

Reports emanating from Room 402, 540 Powell, have it that the Constitution of the Associated Students is well under way. The group in Political Science 51, Public Administration, are ready to guarantee that the Constitution and fundamental laws of the United States will be put to the fullest test when the student opus is complete. The Constitution will be the work of these students and the Constitution Committee of voluntary associates working with them.

Must Decide

At present the report of progress by the class is to the effect that their research has carried them to the point where they must decide upon the fundamental structure for the administration of the student government. Indecision rests with the problem of using a purely executive administration with a minimum of popular representation, or a government of separated powers with a representative legislative branch, or a directly representative assembly which would act in an advisory and policy forming body only. When these problems have been answered to the satisfaction of the political scientists the more detailed work will be taken.

In view of the development of student organization as far as the recent elections have indicated the administrators have moved to one important detail which must necessarily be a vital part of our provisional constitution, namely, the duties and functions of the executive officers.

Committee Meets

The Constitutional Committee in its recent meeting on the Monday prior to the elections formed an election committee with Mr. Luckmann as election commissioner. His assistants were, Miss Hall, Miss Hyde, Miss Mann, Miss Toso, Miss McPherson, Miss Landecker, Miss Bonham, Mr. Seineke, Mr. Kissell, Mr. Mayer and Miss Anderson. The most important resolution passed was to the effect that no candidate would be considered elected unless he had a majority of all the votes cast. It was also decided to hold the election on September 20 and 23 with a possible extension on September 24 in favor of the students who attended classes in the morning session alone. It was anticipated that the final elections would be held on Friday September 27 or Monday September 30. Miss Helen Mann continued in her capacity as acting secretary of the committee. The addition of ballots on the college nick-name and the college colors and the newspaper name was suggested by the dean of men's office.

Class Officers

With the formation of the Executive Committee for the Associated Students when the announcements of the elections shall have been made as final, the first official act of the president will most probably be the summoning of class organization. The four classes, I, II, III, IV, designated by semesters of college work completed will be presided over by one of the student officers for the purpose of electing class officers and representatives to the Executive Committee. It is to be noted however, that such organization of the Executive Committee will be temporary pending the adoption of the Associated Students Constitution as finally drafted and ratified.

Course Reopened For One Student

"I haven't been so set up in a long time," were the words of President A. J. Cloud when he was recently approached by one Eddie Cassino of the football team, and asked to reopen a course in "Readings in Biography," which had been closed due to the stress of administrative duties. Cassino is now the one and only member of a class taught by President Cloud.

Seek College Campus; Eye Union Square

City Fathers Calmly Face Loss of Mythical Title to Famed Park

Stern and austere members of the San Francisco Park commission have a real problem on their hands. With the San Francisco Junior College a scant block and a half from famed Union Square there is a grave danger that members of the college will appropriate the park as a campus for that institution.

Undoubtedly the idea that Union Square soon would become a portion of the city's school system never entered the heads of the city fathers when they asked the loan of the Extension Building at 540 Powell Street.

With the old proverb that "possession is nine points of the law" in mind, members of the college student association are setting in motion the movement to secure the park by fair means or foul. Bent on finding a suitable place to meet the girl friend after class the men of the college are considering the Dewey monument as personal property and are endeavoring to find ways and means of shooing the sea gulls from their new found rendezvous.

So the battle may be a long one and the processes of the law stern and cold, but San Francisco will have a campus, by hook or crook, by gosh!

Temporarily Stop Filling of N.Y.A. Positions by Dean

Until the registration of the San Francisco Junior College is completed, there will be no more of the NYA positions filled, stated Miss Edith Pence, director of employment. There are approximately 50 more positions open and to date 168 students have been given employment.

The work that is being done by the students is entirely within the junior college. The type of positions includes that of readers, map-makers for the history department, clerical positions in the administrative offices and a few positions in the journalistic field. A student must work at least nine and one-half hours per week in order to be eligible for reimbursement.

The greatest difficulty, according to Miss Pence, has been to find students with experience sufficient to fill the positions. The director urges all students wishing employment to specialize in some field so that in the future work may be more easily obtained.

New Editorial Office

A morning editorial office has been established for The Guardsman in the ticket office on the mezzanine floor of the Extension Building through the efforts of Mr. Lloyd D. Luckmann, faculty business manager of the publication.

Select New Officers At Two Polls

Two Candidates Win Approval to Run for Office of President

Neal Faces Bennett in Race for Vice-President

Final election of officers of the Associated Students will be held today, following the preliminary ballot of last Friday and Monday, in which 343 out of a possible 650 students visited the polls. Votes may be cast on the mezzanine floor in the Extension Building in the morning, and in Room 150, Galileo, in the afternoon.

Spiritless, spasmodic voting characterized the Associated Students election last Friday and Monday, with a total of 343 votes cast out of a possible 656.

For the office of president, John O'Looney and Bennett McGuire qualified to run in the finals, with 85 and 169 tallies respectively. They defeated Maury Schwartz, who garnered 52 votes, and Leonard Leahy, with 30 in his favor.

Vice President Candidates

Qualifying candidates for the vice presidency are Ken Bennett, 83 tallies, and Jim Neal, who received 75 votes. Their opponents were Howard Markuse, 37 votes; Rose Snaider, 16; Dorothy Vincent, 62; and Alice Lubeck, 56.

Mimi Colton led her opponents for the office of corresponding secretary by a large score, but not enough to reach the majority of 172 necessary for election. She polled 143 votes against 83 for her closest opponent, Frank Pedersen. Those defeated in the preliminaries for this office were Joy Panas, 53 votes, and Anita McKaye, 56.

Bowman, Ellis

Helen Bowman and William Ellis polled 128 and 97 tallies respectively to reach the finals for the office of recording secretary, against 92 votes for Clista Wilkinson. Due to pressing duties on the staff of The Guardsman, however, Ellis has withdrawn from the race. This automatically gives Miss Bowman the office.

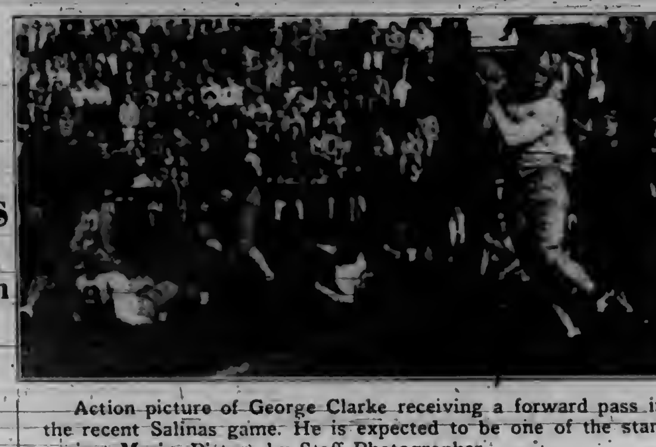
Allan Koblick was elected to the office of treasurer, with no need to enter the finals. He received 176 votes against 140 for his opponent, William Weinstock.

Poll Yell Votes

Jim Fahn, 71 votes, and Bill Kennedy, 136, will oppose each other in the finals for the office of yell leader. Those who failed to receive enough qualifying votes were Arnold Green, 33, Deming Smith, 32, Ray Kaaret, 24; and Mervin Coleman, 32.

The two college nicknames to be decided on in the finals are Clippers and Rams with 81 and 71 tallies respectively.

The colors to be decided upon are green and white, with 118 votes, and red and white, 121.



The Guardsman was elected as the name for the college newspaper with a decisive majority.

New Circulation Rules Revealed

Starting with this issue, The Guardsman is being given only to holders of Associated Students Cards. This custom will prevail during the rest of the semester.

NOTE: The officials in charge have the right to confiscate any card which is presented twice for a copy of the paper. Only one copy to each cardholder and no copies to anyone not presenting his or her OWN card. A careful check will be maintained to prevent duplication of any sort.

Government Funds Lost To College

Blame "Boondoggling" For Loss of Building Funds; City Gains

With all the millions and billions of dollars which are being poured into circulation by the National Administration under PWA and WPA, some students have been asking where the Junior College has been while the melon was being cut. San Francisco has benefited greatly, according to the announcement last Tuesday—that approximately twenty-six million of Federal funds will help to build our 1938 exposition; still that does not answer the pressing needs of the college. But there again youth cannot overlook the NYA.

Boondoggling Rumored

Somebody has said that we have been the victims of "boondoggling." This is brought out by the so-called PWA-WPA row at Hyde Park between Secretary Ickes and Administrator Hopkins in which the latter was caused to answer for such projects as rat extermination, polo field lighting, bedspread weaving, while at the same time turning thumbs down on a lot of substantial projects.

Most of the criticism is answered by the fact that Hopkins was in a mad rush to allocate the major part of the four billions before September 12.

Work for Five

Interesting to note, however, is San Francisco's plight—$1908—for salvaging music of Golden Gate Park Band; wharf, airport and school building vetoed.

In all justice it must be noted that said "school building" was not the San Francisco Junior College. And even if it were, the answer to the Administration's objection is hard. Congress passed the following limitation in the law granting the funds to President Roosevelt: "All work commenced under this grant must be completed in one year." So our swan song in this little field of golden opportunity is—that it would be economically unsound to attempt to build the kind of junior college we need and want within one year.

Delay Defeats

The natural administrative delays are apparent, selection and approval of site, voting on bonds for city's 55 per cent share, bids, and so on to the end of the city ordinance and state statute books.

Registrar Gives Enrollment Data

The total registration of the college was revealed today as 1,449 students, instead of between 1,500 and 2,000 as has been commonly rumored, according to an announcement from the office.

Men outnumber women students by over 300, with the latter totaling 560. Taken by classes, there are only 233 second year students, against 1,179 freshmen. In addition, there are 37 special students.

First Rally Brings Out Real Spirit

Brown Players Feature In Skit Promoting Sale of Student Cards

By JOHN UNIVERSITY

The first Associated Students "pep rally" held last Wednesday was a real test of the "old college spirit" for which Dean Browne has been searching. Under his inspiring direction, student enthusiasm reached its highest peak of the semester.

Held for the prime purpose of stimulating student enthusiasm for the S.F.J.C.-Marin contest, the rally developed into a "subtle" campaign for the sale of Associated Students cards.

Ellis Withdraws

As only Dean Browne can introduce, the first order of the program was the introduction of the finalists in the election to be held Friday. Bill Kennedy and Jim Fahn again went into action as yell leaders with the singular advantage of being the only candidates to display their wares. Bennett McGuire and Jack O'Looney, candidates for president, were followed by Jimmy Neal and Ken Bennett, the vice-presidential nominees.

The surprise of the afternoon's introductions was the withdrawal of Bill Ellis, "the only man allowed to make a speech on his candidacy." Due to the stress of his duties with The Guardsman, Bill felt that the office of recording secretary would benefit most if he withdrew in favor of Miss Helene Bowman. Ellis again sends his thanks to all who supported him so loyally in the primaries.

A Brown(e) Skit

The last to be introduced were Miss Mimi Colton, the girl who should never deplore her christian name, and Frank Sandorff-Pedersen.

Frank Koblick, winner in the treasurer's contest over Bill Weinstock, failed to appear for his introduction.

"The Brown Players" followed the official announcements by Dean Browne, who disclaims any relationship or responsibility, with the first rally skit of the year. The opus was the work of the pen of Miss Parnel Brown. The membership of the cast was much too colossal for mention here. Notable among the dramatis personae were Mr. Ward M. Nichols and Mr. Al Agosti.

The stunt of the afternoon was the introduction of the masked marvel, the Mysterious Mr. X, representing what the last (and we mean LAST), word in student presidents should be. A more serious note of this bit was struck in the appeal made by the "masked mystery" (now unmasked) for a serious consideration of individual membership in the Associated Students as evidenced by the payment of three dollars, or three bucks, or three simoleans, or three iron men—excuse us, for we only read the funny papers.

Rate Marin Strong For Arc Battle

Coach Lays Defense Plans; Expect Use of Aerial Game by Squad

Mariners Hold Wins Over State, U.S.F. Frosh Teams

After having defeated Salinas Junior College by a score of 12-0, the gridiron warriors of San Francisco J. C. will move to Kentfield tonight to tangle with the gridmen from Marin. The battle promises to be a hard fought affair, with the outcome a toss-up.

Of the two teams, Marin, at present, seems to have the greater advantage, due chiefly to the fact that it has already engaged in three skirmishes, and emerged the victor from each.

Play One Game

San Francisco, on the other hand, has played only one game, but did creditably well on that occasion.

The Mariners have already defeated the Mare Island Apprentices by a score of 12-0, San Francisco State, 26-8, and the University of San Francisco frosh, 7-0.

The weight average of the Marin line comes to 200 pounds, as compared to 170 for the San Franciscans. In the backfield, the East Bay aggregation averages 170, to 160 for S. F. J. C., a quite noticeable difference.

While so far in the season the Mariners have depended mostly on line plunging to gain territory, they can, if pressed, resort to an aerial attack that has already proved its effectiveness. Pete, a left half-back, has been doing most of the bombing for the gridders, and can toss the pigskin very accurately over long distances.

"Scoop" Carlson, the head man of the Marin footballers, however, is going to depend mostly on ground work, with Hughes and Gebhardt doing the half carrying. Taylor, a smart quarterback, will probably be calling the signals again tonight.

Main Stay of Line

"Scoop's" mainstay in the line is Fuergeson, captain of the team, and end. Fuergeson has been largely responsible for the fact so few points have been piled up on the team.

Carlson's probable starting line-up will be:

Ends—Loving and Fuergeson; tackles—Thew and Scherr; guards—Lee and Bergerman; center—Hardy; quarterback—Taylor; halfbacks—Mullins and Gebhardt; fullback—Hughes.

Lineups Given

To combat this, Coach Sweet intends to start:

A. Pedrin and Allen at ends, Brickley and Kurtz at tackles; Murphy and R. Clarke at guards; McHugh, center; Cassino, quarterback; Eltringham, G. Clarke, halfbacks; Cattolica, fullback.

Forget the Prep Stuff!

In college, an institution of higher education, the flagrant use of high school ornaments and trimmings is most conspicuous. A word to the wise, frosh, in the manner of Emily Post. "It just isn't being done!" So whether you were an all-city end or captain of the Alviso (Cal.) Hi team, let's dispense with those blocks and letters, even though it hurts the old pride a little. And also you honor students or you who won that spelling "bee" in your sophomore year of high school, let's leave those pins on the mantel at home or in some other place of honor; but don't burden your sweaters, etc., or tax the reserve of faculty and upperclassmen alike by barging into class looking like Admiral Dewey or General Pershing. Stickers, too, in the best college society are taboo. So whether they be on your binders or on your jillopie—off with them! If you have a flare for either promotion, publicity, or advertising, exert your energy in boosting your junior college, now! And let bygones be bygones.

College Advertising

Few members of the Associated Students are not proud to be called college men and women. The fact that they are the first members of the student association should make them feel that they have a distinction over other school and college students.

As members of San Francisco Jaysee they should be proud to advertise the fact that it is a growing institution and destined to head the junior colleges in the state.

The organizations that are sponsored by the Associated Students are doing their part to put the world wise to the fact that San Francisco Junior College is on the map and is a pretty big spot on the map.

But theirs is only a minor part of the real advertising that a college does. The individuals of the college are the best "copy" in making the prominence of any college.

So tell the world about San Francisco Junior College—it pays.

Unburden Your Mind

Taking a parody from Abraham Lincoln, this newspaper is published of, by, and for the students of San Francisco Junior College. There is a fairly competent staff of embryonic journalists and advertising aspirants doing the major part of the work. This does not mean, however, that the columns are open only to this staff. They are open to the opinions of any and every member of the student body.

There is an editor who writes editorials, endeavoring to make the mind the medium through which the desires and opinions of the student body shall flow en route to the linotype machine, and ultimately back to the student body by way of the student publication. Editors, however, are only human beings (despite opinions of some struggling reporters), and now and then their personal opinions are apt to creep in too much.

The remedy lies in having each individual student who has a thought on his mind he would like to lay before the readers of The Guardsman put his idea in writing, and present it to the editors. This idea, as long as it falls within the boundaries of sensibility and decency, will be published under the caption of Campus Opinion. So, fellow crusaders, cast aside your natural modesty and unburden your minds!

Don't Be a Slacker!

Shameful!—abominable!—are the words which best describe the Associated Students card purchases. Only about one-third of the entire college have purchased their cards. With card salesmen doing their best, there is no excuse for such a small sale. The sorry part of the whole thing is that the activities which had been planned for the semester must necessarily be curtailed. It's too bad—but there's no alternative. Activities depend upon the cooperation gained by the sale of student cards—not on the indifference shown by slackers. Don't be a slacker! Show your spirit! Buy your Associated Students card NOW and do your part to make a 100 per cent sales record.

Art Students Contribute

Fine arts students will contribute to the development of the college library by donating sketches to cover the walls of the reading rooms.

According to Mr. Richard Allman, instructor in painting, these pictures will be the result of classroom projects which will be conducted during the year. While serving to decorate the reading rooms, these sketches will also form an exhibition of the better work of the fine arts students of the college.

Plan Publicity

Members of The Guardsman's staff will contribute substantially to publicizing the college if the proposed publicity bureau takes shape shortly.

The bureau will handle news of interest to the public at large regarding the college and its general activities. A card file of non-resident students will be kept and home papers will be supplied with interesting news items regarding college students.

Personal Close-Ups Of The Faculty

(In accordance with the policy of this paper to present short biographical sketches of the members of the faculty, this article is published in order to better familiarize the students with their teachers. The following is the second of a series. Watch for them each week.)

Joseph Albert Amori, one of the younger set of the faculty, has been chosen for our column this week, because of his popularity and general "man about the school" attitude.

Mr. Amori received his first degree, an A.B., at San Jose State, in 1929. His second degree, an A.M., was earned at the University of California in 1932. He also attended the University of California during the summer sessions of 1930-32. Upon his completion of this course he enrolled in the federal service training bureau, which requirements he fulfilled in 1933.

Mr. Amori is a writer of some repute, having written editorials for the San Jose Mercury-Herald from 1925 to 1933. While enrolled in San Jose State, Joe was the editor of that college's paper. In addition to these writing proclivities he has been a member of the San Mateo Times sports staff.

Joe's first experience as a teacher was during the period of 1929 to 1931. At the same time he acted as a playground director for the Oakland Recreational Department. In 1931 Mr. Amori was promoted to teaching assistant at the University of California. While acting in this capacity he was appointed dietitian for the Associated Students, University of California, athletic teams. The summer sessions of the University of California, 1931-1932, saw Joe acting as an assistant instructor. It was in 1933 that Mr. Amori was selected as chairman of the department of hygiene, and athletic coach at San Mateo Junior College. This last summer Joseph Albert was employed as superintendent of recreation for the cities of San Mateo and Burlingame.

As an athletic coach, Joe has been marked with phenomenal success; this fact, no doubt, is due to his outstanding ability as an athlete. While a student at San Jose State, Mr. Amori won letters in football, basketball, track, baseball and soccer. Incidentally, Joe is the captain, manager and one of the outstanding players of the present Olympic Club rugby team. To supplement his athletic achievements, Joe has won awards for swimming. The most important swimming trophy he has was earned in 1930, when he outclassed his competitors in the 150-yard backstroke event for the championship of Santa Clara County.

A coach, to be successful, must have the attributes that contribute to success. Mr. Amori has certainly shown that he has the qualities that make for a winner. It is little wonder, therefore, that the Amori-coached San Mateo Junior College golf team won the junior college conference championship two years in succession. As a boxing and wrestling coach his team has yet to lose a match. Probably the best fighting prospect that Joe has coached was Hugh McPhillips, the lad who recently won the A.A.U. light-heavyweight belt. Last year as an assistant basketball instructor, Mr. Amori's team, the S.M.J.C. varsity, won the state championship. As assistant football coach at San Mateo, Joe was outstanding. Mr. Amori is a stellar trainer of unusual quality. This, I believe, is his forte.

To sum up, Mr. Amori is a real man and a professor who will prove himself a friend to every student. But this isn't all; I have neglected to say that he has been vice-president of the San Jose State student body, and president of the Men's Club at the same institution. His hobby is horseback riding and he also plans to organize a boxing and wrestling team here at San Francisco Junior College. By the way—GIRLS, here is your chance to get a real he-man, Joe isn't married.

University Aids Library

Shelves of the college library will soon be weighted by the addition of over 3,000 volumes according to an announcement of the assistant librarian Miss Joan Nourse. They comprise a donation of 3,000 books from the University of California library, and one of 20 books from President A. J. Cloud.

"Though small in numbers," the librarian stated, "Mr. Cloud's donation is of particular interest, representing, as it does, the field to which he has devoted special studies during his career as an educator—English and American literature."

The gift from the university will give the library a foundation, to help build a lasting collection for the college, according to the librarian, Mr. Francis J. Colligan. In addition, an order for 1,000 new books is now being filled, Mr. Colligan revealed.

Other members of the faculty have also made personal donations of books. These are on special reserve, and may be used by students throughout the library hours, 11 o'clock a. m. to 6 p. m.

LOUD SPEAKER LOWDOWN

By JAY O'GEE

Hello again! It might interest you to know that Thomas "Well-all-right" Waller is coming back out west to artfully beat the piano for a new Warner Baxter galloping tintype titled "The King of Burlesque" which 20th Century-Fox will grind out. . . . And have you noticed how much Bob Howard's orchestra sounds like "Fats" Waller's. . . . You probably have noticed how "Rhythm Is Our Business" resembles "How'm I Doing, Hey, Hey," and also the similarity between "That's What You Think" and "Here Come the British." Another suspicious similarity is "What a Little Moonlight Can Do" and "Baby Face." Still another likeness will be noticed when the picture "Sweet Surrender" is released. "Take This Song" from that picture sounds like "Chinatown, My Chinatown." . . . Loring Nichols, better known as "Red" Nichols of Five Pennies fame, is turning magazine contributor. In last week's, September 23 issue, Time magazine, the famous swing-band leader takes pains in alibiing for the exaggerated reports of orchestra leaders' salaries. SO WOT? . . . ennyhoo Time gives Nichols a plug by adding that Riverboat Shuffle, Eccentric, Plenty Off Center, and Get With, were among his best numbers.

Have you heard Paul Whiteman's concert disc of Deep Purple and Park Avenue Fantasy? If not, give a listen. . . . Another few that are "tops" are Benny Goodman's recordings of Ballad in Blue and Sometimes I'm Happy. Lew Stone's record of the old tune, Don't Change, with Al Bowlly doing the vocal, simply can't be beat. . . . And if you like sweet music played in rockin' rhythm listen to some of the Columbia records by Red Norvo and his Swing Septet, the best of which is I Surrender Dear. . . . A real mellow theme song is that used by Les Hite's band who plays from Sebastian's Cotton Club in L. A. via KFRC.

Patricia "Patti" Norman who went from Paul Pendarvis' orchestra to Loew's Warfield, and thence to the local NBC studios where she did a turn with Jack Meakin's orchestra, may now be heard singing with Al Lyon's orchestra from the Cocoanut Grove in the Southland. . . . Every once in a while you see Sam Hayes, the Richfield Reporter, doing the radio announcer's job in some moom pitcher—well now Tom Hanlon, who has handled the Cocoanut Grove band announcing since 'way back in the Phil Harris days, is also answering to the lure of the silver screen. . . . Winchell sez: "Louis Prima's hot licks on the trumpet rate him the 'ag Primative" and if you don't think so, just listen some time (KFRC). . . . Walter also wants it known that "no columnist is as yappy as Jack Benny is made to appear in "Broadway Melody of 1936," and what's more, Benny received $65,000 for playing the part—and he's better off the screen, than in this flicker. . . .

Whiteman's dance records are slowly returning to the high standard which he maintained about six years ago . . . outstanding among his late recordings is one of the old tune, Ain't Misbehavin'. . . . Too bad Phil Baker's programs aren't piped this far west; he's still among the "tops." . . . Victor has re-released the five-year-old record of "Love for Sale" by Waring's Pennsylvanians, and it is now played on the air quite a bit . . . the ban which has always been on it must have been lifted. But ennyhoo it's a wonder someone hasn't objected . . . maybe it's because it's a Cole Porter tune. . . . With your kind permission we're going to start our own private Hall of Fame and we hereby name the four greatest contemporary composers and exponents of modern music: George Gershwin, Hoagy Carmichael, Ferde Grofe, and Reginald Forsythe. And we predict their compositions will last longer than any of the current popular stuff. The works of the first three mentioned already have withstood the test of a good many years. . . . See you next week. Goombye please!

The College Reads—

"GREEN LIGHT"

Lloyd C. Douglass, one of America's foremost writers of fiction today, has given us another one of his truly great novels, with a strong plot setting forth the fine qualities to be found in this present-day America. A novel even more powerful and inspiring than "Magnificent Obsession," or "Forgive Us Our Trespasses."

"Man's progress through life is not steadily onward, but for all of us there comes a day when the light turns green and the road ahead is clear. This is the inspiring theme of "Green Light."

The characters are vital, living people, searching for a way to happiness through the congested traffic of life. Dr. Newell Paige, a young surgeon who has ruined a brilliant career to shoulder another's blame; Phyllis Dexter, who thought the man she loved had been responsible for her mother's death; Dean Harcourt, who believed that love was a gift and hate a disease—these and many others play their part in the dramatic sweep of "Green Light" toward its happy ending.

High Points of Salinas Game as Told By Those in Attendance

By THE INFORMER

"Really, my dear, you should have been with us at the Salinas game. I felt just like a pioneer going off on a hunting trip or something. It was just like that. You had no idea, Salinas is a swell little town and really the men down there don't wear chaps and sombreros all the time. It's just when they have the "horse operas." No, that isn't what they call them; they're rodeos, that's it.

"It was my first time at a college football game and my dear, was I the queen? I sat up there in the Salinas stands right by Dean Browne and yelled my head off. Shirley Barrett and Parnil Brown were that excited that they tried to outyell the Salinas rooting section.

"I really think if my big moment ever makes the team that I'll have to be sure and go to every game. The way those football men were monopolized by the Salinas belles was just too unbelievable for words. I'll make sure that my h. f. breaks training or something if he ever does rate a first string assignment.

"You should have seen Adolph Pedrin. The coach says he was playing 'heads up football' but I'll give you the lowdown. He was standing on the field trying to get a rise out of a peroxide blond when that intercepted lateral fell into his hands. He was that surprised that he ran for a touchdown.

"You don't believe me, huh? All right, we'll see. That "Little Cuss" Cassino. He was just the perfect he-man. If my Philbert wasn't so stuck on me I think I'd go for him in a big way. For that matter I could go for any of those he-men.

"I got to go study; see you next week, maybe."

Miss Edith E. Pence and Mr. Edwin C. Browne have been giving a series of talks in the various high schools throughout the city. These talks, presented by the Evening High Schools' Public Forum, under the direction of Miss Rose C. Haslett, have dealt with the organization of the junior college.

San Francisco Junior College wishes to thank Maj. C. J. Collins, city registrar of voters, for generously allowing the students to use the voting machines in the recent primary election of officers.

Seventy couples from San Francisco Junior College danced to the music of Paul Pendarvis at the Palace Hotel last Friday night. The committee responsible for the success of the evening included Helen Condon, Bud Mayer, Jack Barron and Bill Weinstock.

Mrs. Eugenie Leonard, Dean of Women, returned to her duties last Monday after a week's vacation in Southern California. The strenuous activities connected with the opening of school compelled Dean Leonard to take this rest.

The vast majority of those attending this institution of higher learning are under nineteen years of age. At least that is the indication judging from the swarms of students trying to buy street car tickets at half price under agreements with the Market Street and Municipal Railway companies.

To be eligible for half-fare tickets, students must prove their residence at Room 260, Galileo. Municipal tickets will be sold on Mondays and Fridays after 2:30 p.m., Market Street tickets on Tuesdays and Thursdays.

Among those people prominent on the campus that journeyed to Salinas to see the game last Saturday were Dean Browne, J. Paul Mohr, registrar, and Misses Parnil Brown and Shirley Barrett.

A Women's Athletic Association has been formed within the past week in conjunction with the regular gym classes. The turn-out for membership in this truly worthy organization was remarkable considering the short space of time that the college has been in running order. Miss Spencer, the faculty advisor, will welcome any suggestions to aid in the success of this organization. Have you any?

Your editor humbly begs your pardon for this rather disjointed column. Please excuse it this week and next week we promise you one that will be much better. See you next week!

Mrs. Eugenie Leonard of the local faculty was a speaker at a recent meeting of the Pen Women's Society of San Francisco.

Women Form Sports Group At Gym. Meet

Plan Affiliation with College Women's Athletic Federation

Seventy-five women interested in athletic activities met Tuesday, September 17, at the Galileo gym and formed the Women's Athletic Association of San Francisco Junior College.

Miss Spencer, faculty advisor of the W. A. A., was in charge of the first meeting. The prospective program for the coming semester and the development of the activities were discussed. Plans were also made for the forming of an athletic council which will dictate the policies of the organization. This council is composed of twelve representatives, two elected from each gym class. The representatives will draft a constitution which will be presented for approval of the organization.

Survey Activities

In the past week a survey has been made to determine which of the athletic activities will be adopted by this group.

Although the W. A. A. will be a member of the Athletic Federation of College Women, the local group will differ from other colleges in the respect that most of its activities will be held in conjunction with the regular gym classes.

"The purpose of the W. A. A. will be to find for every girl an activity that she can enjoy with other college work. It will be for the mass of the women students and not just for the few primarily interested in athletics. The activities will include swimming and rhythms of dancing as well as team and individual sports," said Miss Bertha Keller, head of the women's physical education department in an exclusive interview.

Classes Co-operate

In order to carry out this plan, regular gym classes will play recreational games and indulge in dancing so that all women students may become acquainted. Health examination will be held in the near future. The regular activities will start at that time.

News of the "Colossals"

— By Sinema Sleuth

Promise of a very full and robust program of "stupendous and colossals" for the winter months, marks Hollywood's new season as one of the most extraordinary in the life of that bizarre town. Everything from the Bible to Shakespeare will be used by the producers to feed the hunger of the American public for its cinema fare.

DeMille's Latest

"CeeBee" DeMille delves into the Testaments to find the story for his latest colossal, "Samson and Delila," (tentative). The story is in a very preparative stage and no leads have been assigned by the director. DeMille's "Crusades" may show San Francisco as a road show production. It is probable it will be at the Warfield later at popular prices. Prevue reports list it as grand entertainment even if the history is a little faulty. Among the cast are the names of Henry Wilcoxson, Loretta Young, C. Aubrey Smith and many more. Tab this as a "must see," even if you don't like history.

Max Reinhardt's "Midsummer Night's Dream" is the other side of the picture in Hollywood's new program. The Hearst papers have been carrying glowing reports about this one. Since Cosmopolitan Productions moved to the Warner lot you have to discount about a good fifty per cent of the Hearst propaganda. However with the German genius directing and over a million dollars being spent on the "Dream" it looks as if this is another one to be seen, even if it is just to see what Hollywood wastes a million on.

Musicals Coming

Two classy musicals should be coming from the distributors' shelves in a very short time. The "Big Broadcast of 1936" looks good for a ticket at any time. Jack Oakie, Wendy Barry, Charlie Ruggles, Ray Noble and the Orchestra, and not to mention "Bingo Crosby," have the featured billings in this grand opus. A host of famous names from the radio world will make this worth while. To date no advanced information has reached San Francisco, although the prevue was aired over a national network by the cigarette sponsors of Fred Astaire from Los Angeles, while the Astaire program was trying to get organized. Astaire being in Hollywood and the rest of the program in New York.

M. G. M. introduces a new "stupendous and colossal," or in other words a new star in the person of Eleanor Powell, who swipes Jack Benny's "Broadway Melodies of 1936," right out of the hands of the capable Mr. Benny. According to reports, Miss Powell is the feminine Fred Astaire of the screen. We think that is about as fine a compliment as we can pay the nimble Miss Powell.

Crosby's Newest

Bing Crosby gets "Anything Goes" after finishing "Two for Tonight" at Paramount. With new lyrics and tunes by Cole Porter and Ethel Merman in support, the boy from Gonzaga is getting one of the best vehicles of the year. Henry Duffy is bringing the stage show into the Curran later in the month and if the reports from the South can be accredited it is a very fast-moving, witty production. Of course the stars of the original New York cast are missing but very capable and promising substitutes have been found.

Current Shows

"China Seas."

George Warren on the Chronicle says that it was well worth waiting for by San Franciscans. It is a robust drama with Clark Gable and Wally Beery in the leads.

LOST AND FOUND

As a result of numerous requests, a lost and found bureau will be organized through the efforts of Edwin C. Browne, assistant dean of men. It will probably be two weeks before complete establishment, according to Mr. Browne.

The probable location of the bureau will be in the back of Room 260, Galileo High School, with another office somewhere in the Powell Street building.

FALL FASHIONS PREVUED

By CATHERINE COLLEGE.

What to wear to the college football games that will be both chic and warm? A corded wool outfit with a jacket with leather buttons down the back featuring various college colors, is the correct answer to this question. But if you are the type of co-ed who goes in for blouses in a big way, there's one being shown in a downtown store in all the college colors and a contrasting scarf.

Suits are making all the touchdowns in the co-ed's wardrobe this fall. Perhaps it will be a camel's hair coat with a plain or checkered skirt, or maybe you will go in for the Continental swaggers or the wraparounds.

Twin sweater sets are thrown for a loss this season, but an inverted pleat coat sweater worn over another slip-on is quite the thing when you are rooting for the "heart-trouble" out there on the field.

The neckline of the new slip-on sweaters is something quite far from the turf field. It is the "boatneck," on the order of the "crewneck." The opening extends all the way to the shoulder seams. The latest weave for these sweaters is the rope stitch, or if you go in for distance—how about the cable stitch? The zipper side fasteners for the skirts are quite the latest thing.

If you must wear a bonnet to the game, it must be something with a military trend, perhaps to match one of those the men in the band wear. Angora softies are still leading the game as they are adaptable to any costume and stand rough treatment from too much enthusiastic rooting.

Instead of football cleats, the co-ed should appear in the white saddle sport oxford; or if you prefer a higher heel and for a little more dressy costume, how's for the alligator sandal of black or brown?

GRID-MEN BEAT SALINAS J. C.

Clarke and Pedrin Star As Gridders Complete 12-0 Win

Offense Is Ragged, But Defensive Line Strong; Backfield Unit May Develop into Threat

San Francisco's first football victory was inscribed on the records last Friday when the grid squad defeated Salinas Junior College. Two touchdowns accounted for the win over the Salinas "Cowboys," the final score being 12 to 0.

Displaying a ragged offense but a strong defense, the team showed a world of power. Bulwarked by a strong line, the backfield composed of Mauer, Cassino, Eltringham and G. Clarke gave promise of working into a power-house unit that will be a real threat to Los Angeles.

San Francisco pushed over touchdowns in the first and third periods. George Pedrin intercepted a lateral pass and scored on a run of fifty yards. It was the outstanding play of the game.

The starting lineup was:

A. Pedrin, LE; Kurtz, LT; R. Clarke, LG; McHugh, C; Telesmanic, RG; Brickley, RT; Lee, RE; Eltringham, LH; G. Clarke, RH; Olberg, Q; Cassino, F.

Following is a play-by-play description of the game:

San Francisco won the toss and elected to receive. San Francisco defending the south goal and Salinas the north goal.

Salinas kicked off to the San Francisco 5-yard line, Cassino returned the ball to the San Francisco 20. A line buck gained 5½ yards. On a reverse Eltringham made 3, fumbled and recovered. Another line smash netted one yard. A bad pass from center caused Clarke to be spilled for a 10-yard loss. Salinas took the ball on the San Francisco 15-yard line. On an end run Salinas made two yards but fumbled, and San Francisco recovered on their own 13-yard line. On a wide end run Cassino failed to gain. Clarke on a reverse picked up two yards. Eltringham kicked to the Salinas 40-yard line, from where Salinas ran it back five yards. A "Cowboy" reverse failed to gain, but Salinas was holding on the play and was penalized 15 yards. The ball now resting on the Salinas 30-yard line. First and 25 for Salinas. A Salinas pass was intercepted by Cassino on the Salinas 35. A reverse lost two yards. Cassino's pass to Clarke fell incomplete. Cassino made two yards over right tackle. Eltringham kicked out of bounds on the Salinas 6-yard striper. Salinas on a line plunge made four. A Salinas reverse picked up three more. Salinas kicked out of bounds on the Esseff 45. Cassino went forward six yards on a fake reverse. On a reverse Clarke fumbled and Lee of San Francisco recovered for a 2-yard loss. Eltringham punted to the Cowboy's 20-yard line, where Kurtz downed the ball. Salinas' ball first and 10 on the Salinas 20. A Cowboy line stab failed to gain. Salinas tried a reverse off left tackle, failed to gain; San Francisco was off-side on the play and was penalized five yards and the ball rested on the Salinas 25-yard line, second and five for the Cowboys. On a lateral pass Salinas made four and one-half yards. Salinas engineered a left tackle smash for two yards and a first down on the Salinas 31½-yard marker. The Cowboys elected to attempt another lateral pass at this point, but Adolph Pedrin broke through the Salinas line, and on the lateral the Salinas quarterback practically handed him the ball and Pedrin ran to the Salinas goal for the first score of the game. San Francisco 6, Salinas 0. Cassino's place-kick was wide. Telesmanic kicked off for San Francisco to the Salinas 25-yard line and Salinas returned the ball to their own 30. George Pedrin and Murphy replaced Captain Clarke and Telesmanic in the line for San Francisco. Brickley was appointed acting captain for Esseff. On a reverse Salinas gained 12 yards for a first down on the Salinas 42-yard line. Salinas went forward two yards on a line plunge as the first quarter ended. Score San Francisco 6, Salinas 0.

Second quarter:

As the second quarter opened Salinas gained two yards on a line smash. Third down and six to go on the Salinas 46-yard line. "Tiny" Harrington replaced Kurtz at left tackle for San Francisco. Esseff Jaysee drew a 15-yard penalty for holding during the next play making a first down for Salinas. Salinas tried a line plunge and were thrown for a 5-yard loss. A center rush netted Salinas 13½ yards. Another line play gave Salinas five yards and a first down on the San Francisco 20-yard line. San Francisco called for time out. A reverse through the line lost one yard for Salinas. The Cowboys made one yard on a delayed buck. Another delayed buck was good for an additional yard, but Salinas lost the ball to San Francisco on downs. Esseff picked up three yards when Guisti worked an end around. Cassino made three more at left tackle. Cassino went over center four yards to the San Francisco 29-yard line. Cassino booted the ball to the Cowboy's 25-yard line, Salinas returned the ball to their own 29. Salinas lost one yard at Harrington's side of the line. George Pedrin broke through the Salinas line and threw the Salinas ball carrier for a two-yard loss on the next play. Salinas kicked to Clarke on the San Francisco 35-yard line, Clarke came back 10 yards to the San Francisco 45. Salinas took time out. Janbruno replaced Olberg at quarterback for San Francisco. Janbruno lost one-half a yard on a delayed buck at the left side. Guisti, on an end around from Janbruno, lost five yards. Cassino kicked out of bounds on the Salinas 30-yard line. Salinas' ball, first and 10 on their own 30. Salinas tried a reverse over Harrington but were unable to get around the girth of that trusty Goliath and were thrown for no gain. Salinas fumbled in the course of the next play and Guisti recovered the ball on the Salinas 20-yard line for San Francisco. A pass by Janbruno fell incomplete. A line buck gained one-half a yard. Sports Comments

By TIM GUINEY

Our own Mr. Russ Sweet and his gridders seem to have done all right for themselves in their first game of the season, and incidentally the first game in the history of the college.

Salinas J.C. couldn't be considered a set-up in anybody's league, and a lot of those scoffers who were laughing at the thought of any coach being able to produce a worth-while team in one season are already beginning to change to another tune.

Whether we win or lose, however, we can be secure in the knowledge that we are represented by a coaching staff and football team that is well worthy of the name of San Francisco Junior College.

This Crew Question!

How about a crew? That seems to be the most popular question in the college at the moment, and unless I'm greatly mistaken, it's going to stay the most popular question until it is officially answered.

There really seems to be no good answer as to just why we shouldn't be represented by a crew, and plenty of reasons as to why we should.

Let me name a few. First of all, we are in an ideal location for one, the Galileo High School building being just a short distance away from Yacht Harbor, where the cutters are kept.

Secondly, there is plenty of competition in this sector, and an active interest that would insure keeping the sport "alive."

And lastly, and most important of all, we have a good deal of excellent material right here in our own back yard. For example, from San Mateo, the defending champions of the past two years, we have, among others, Howard Markuse, Duke Hitchcock, Aaron Galant, Al Schwarz, and Red Martin, captain of last year's champions.

Besides these, we also have many transfers from other jayaees, and enough former prep stars to form the nucleus of a sure-fire championship gang of oar-benders. Yes, Messrs. Conlan, Sweet, Gaddy, and Company . . . how about a crew?

Marin Encounter

This evening the gridiron warriors of the college will meet a real test, when they tangle with the gridders of Marin over at Kentfield. Marin already trounced San Francisco State and the University of San Francisco frosh, and if our footballers can get over this hurdle they'll really be going places.

Sweet's probable starting line-up will be: A. Pedrin, LE; Kurtz, LT; R. Clarke, LG; McHugh, C; Telesmanic, RG; Brickley, RT; Lee, RE; Eltringham, LH; G. Clarke, RH; Olberg, Q; Cassino, F.

Marin, on the other band, has decided to keep its line-up dark until the night of the game. Looks like Ol' Scoop Carlson is going in for mystery in a big way.

Grunt and Groaners

There are many promising young grunt and groan artists enrolled in this institution, and they are all clamoring for a wrestling team. Among these are Maury Schwartz, John Hilipish, "Butch" Brown, formerly of San Mateo, "Red" Brickley from Polytechnic High School, and Jack Segurson from Y.M.C.A.

The only thing that's standing in the way is the fact that no coach has been appointed, and until one is named, there will be no wrestling team—at least, no official one.

FIRST SAN FRANCISCO GRID TURNOUT

Presenting the first grid squad in the history of San Francisco Junior College. Over 120 answered the first call of Coach Russ Sweet for candidates for the team. The squad holds a 12-to-0 victory over Salinas. The Salinas triumph was the first athletic conquest made by the college.

Tentative Track Practice Date Set By Coach Sweet For Fall "Warm-Up" Meets

Plan Indoor Trials on Style of Eastern Relays; Material Strong

Tentative dates for fall practice were announced yesterday by Coach Russell Sweet. Cinder path artists will start their warming-up grind in approximately a month or less. Present plans of Sweet call for the building of the fall track schedule to a position of importance in the athletic life of San Francisco. A new departure in junior college track development is the plan for a number of indoor meets, patterned after the famous dual meets held in the East during the winter months.

Prediction of Outcome Hard

Due to the fact that the college has no veterans it is difficult to predict just how far they will go in upsetting Sacramento, Junior College Conference track and field champions, next Spring. However, the new material is fairly promising and a strong squad is expected.

If the team is not strong in the sprints it will not be for lack of material. Stan Evans of Lowell, and Johnny Fitzgerald of San Rafael, head a list of good sprinters. Both Fitzgerald and Evans are capable of a ten flat century. Other sprinters of note are: Georgo Compás of Mission High, Jack Perrin of Galileo and "Flash" Bryant, who was formerly a student at Richmond High School.

Strong in 440 Class

The quarter-mile should prove a strong event with at least two capable performers in George Warren, Polytechnic star and Stan Evans.

Percy Towell, 880-yard star from Poly who has broken 2 minutes, will be given strong competition by Charles Keyer, a fighting lad from Sacred Heart College.

Brown, a great hurdler, formerly of Poly, and holder of the San Francisco 110-yard hurdles record since 1929, should make this event one of the strongest. He will be ably assisted by Red McKenzie, a transfer from San Mateo.

The shotput finds Johnny Montez of Texas Tech, the sole prospect. He has tossed the iron ball out to 42 feet.

Jumpers Do Twenty-Two Feet

The broad jump should be handled fairly well by George Dunne, a transfer from San Mateo J.C., and Stan Evans, colored star. Both jumpers have marks exceeding the twenty-two and a half foot mark.

Conlan Opens Pre-Seasonal Hoop Practice

Well fortified by material, the varsity basketball squad recently opened practice with Coach Louis "Dutch" Conlan in charge. Over fifty men answered the first call for hoopmen, probably a record turnout for the junior colleges of the state.

Although the regular conference season will not open until late in January, Coach Conlan is holding sessions and practice games during the fall term.

"I feel that the sooner I can get working with the squad, the better our chances will be to make a showing in the conference," stated Conlan, "and as this is the first conference sport that the college is participating in, I feel that we should try to make a real effort in the basketball race."

Conlan also announced that as yet the squad has not been picked and that any player eligible for conference competition will be more than welcome to try for a place on the team. Practice is being held in the Galileo gym on Thursday nights. Men interested should sign up with Coach Conlan in the afternoons at Galileo.

Jack Gaddy, former U.S.F. athlete, will be Conlan's assistant coach.

Football Men Battle Marin At Kentfield

Eltringham, a graduate of St. Ignatius, and George Clarke, a San Mateo J. C. transfer, are the two best bets in the backfield, both being stellar ball carriers, and both adept at passing and receiving. Clarke is especially dangerous as a broken field runner.

Pedrin, a star end of Balboa, manages to get into every play, and is considered the greatest threat in the San Francisco line.

To combat the difference in weights between the two aggregations, Coach Sweet may order a wide-open passing attack as the menu for the San Francisco offense.

Only Way to Beat Mariners

This may be the only way to beat Marin, the "master minds" of the coaching staff agreed. The entire coaching staff comprises Russ Sweet, Jack Gaddy, Lee Eisan, "Dutch" Conlan, and Bill Wilson.

Wilson, especially, is working on this angle, for, while playing with College of the Pacific he was considered one of the greatest passers on the coast, and has a great deal of knowledge pertaining to this branch of football, which he can relay on to the various members of the squad.

Official Gridiron Schedule Issued

Russell Sweet, head football coach of the college, has announced the grid schedule as follows:

Sept. 27	Marin J. C.	(there)
Oct. 12	S. J. State frosh	(there)
Oct. 19	S. F. State	(here)
Oct. 25	Modesto J. C.	(there)
Nov. 1	Los Angeles J. C.	(here)
Nov. 11	Cal. Aggies	(there)
Nov. 16	U. S. F. frosh	(here)
Nov. 22	San Mateo J. C.	(here)
Nov. 28	Sacramento J. C.	(there)

Both the Marin and Los Angeles games are night affairs, while the Sacramento and California Aggies skirmishes are tentative.

Sports Staff Gets Reports On Opposition

Guardsman Receives Dope on Conference Teams; Marin Strong

Pre-season dope on teams in the Junior College Conference was received by The Guardsman today from various sources along the coast.

Sports authorities rate Marin as the strongest of all grid squads in the conference race. Scoop Carlson, Mariner coach, has a line that would do credit to college coaches. The average weight of the Kentfield contingent is supposed to run close to the two hundred pound mark.

As yet there is no report from the interior. Sacramento, like "Hank" Applequist as coach, has as yet failed to break the silence concerning prospects for the coming season.

New Policy Slated For Advertising

Announces Rate Card; Gives No Preference to Any Business Firms

Elsewhere in these columns will be found a reprint of the advertising rate card for The Guardsman. These rates have been made effective with this issue and all previous announcements and policies are hereby corrected to conform with the card. Advertisers who have purchased space in numbers two and three will be continued under the new policy with a provision for adjustment between the two policies.

No Preference

The advantage of the rate card is found in the fact that no advertiser will be given preference by column inch rate for a single issue. The only reduction available to an advertiser is that gained through long contract advertising based upon a semester's output. Where the advertising is of a classification other than the most popular "display type," the rate granted will be uniform upon the basic price but page and position will so vary the cost that no one advertiser will be in the same class as another, hence such advertisements as "readers" must be presented to the business office for exact rates. With this one exception there are no space discounts, no time discounts.

The minimum size of an advertisement is one inch, and no advertising contract will be accepted for less than one dollar gross or for a period longer than one semester.

New Ad Section

Attention of everyone is called to the new Classified Ad Section. No display classifications will be accepted. Students are encouraged to use these columns to advertise such personal items as texts or engineering materials for sale, lost and found, rooms to rent, board wanted, work wanted. See the rates.

The Business Staff of The Guardsman are confident that they are offering the advertising public a unique media and that they have space to sell. At present the availability of our advertising columns is evidenced by the solicitation by our salesmen. However, it is almost a certainty that within a short space of time, unless the size of the paper is increased, there will be a great demand by advertisers who are at present slow to take advantage of the opening opportunity.

Policy Stressed

The business policy of The Guardsman is to establish a select and permanent clientele and once the space guaranteed to the advertising staff has been contracted for the opportunity to place additional advertising will be extremely limited.

A student enrollment of over fifteen hundred, with an almost equal division for men as for women, located in the heart of San Francisco's down-town district offers to merchandisers an opportunity for direct advertising that cannot be matched. Any believer in advertising who looks to the future of the San Francisco Junior College will appreciate that buying habits that may be formed now will become customs with the future thousands who will attend the college in the next four years.

To the student solicitors and salesmen the Business Staff sends the reminder that the space in The Guardsman is for sale. You have a commodity to sell. Let nothing compromise that attitude and above all accept no gratuities which may be based upon personal obligations. No longer will the $1.50 commission be paid for the first $5.00 advertisements procured by any student. Saleman's commission is straight 10 per cent, payable monthly.

Rate Cards Given

Advertising rate cards may be procured at Room 150 Galileo, together with contracts and information and instructions helpful to the salesman. Anyone is welcome to make application. Position on the staff is based upon results per issue.

The Business Staff assumes the responsibility for the collection of all bills except when the advertiser makes immediate payment. See rate card for weekly dead-line.

Students if you want a bigger paper, if you want a Sporting Green, if you would like to see your newspaper appear twice in one week—sell out the advertising space now available.

College Forensic Groups Fling Debate Challenges; Coach Seeking Candidates

San Mateo, Golden Gate, and U.S.F. Gavel Organizations Ask for Dates on Schedule; Participants Rate College Credit for Course

With challenges besieging the debate squad, and with the mailman searching all over 540 Powell and the boxes at Francisco and Polk streets to discover the address of the college debating team and manager, we find the answer to the time-worn adage; "Opportunity knocks but once." San Mateo Junior College is knocking; Golden Gate Junior College is knocking; San Francisco State is ringing and the University of San Francisco's Gavel Club is rapping, rapping at our chamber door. And so far there has been only the raven to answer. In other words the outlook is pretty black behind the eight ball, and just how black only Mr. Luckmann, instructor of debating, knows. It seems that there is something about the hour originally set for the class that caused an epidemic of antidebatitis.

Change Ordered

The doctor has ordered a change in the hour for this class which meets on Monday, Wednesday, and Friday and also a division of the units of the course among the numbers 53a, 53x and 53y. It is hoped that this vitamin treatment will cause new life and hope to be again surging in Mr. Forensics with the result that this semester will see him in action against the aforementioned foes.

Grade Points

An explanation of the treatment follows. Those students who by reason of laboratory classes or a schedule which provides for physical education at 3:30 on Mondays, etc., may take the course for one or two units. Full attendance guarantees three units. Those who have already programmed themselves to a full seventeen and a half units will be welcomed as special students. And we mean welcomed. College credit is not given for lower division participation in debate but in some consistent cases where the student maintains a grade of "A" it may be expected that registrars of higher institutions will grant grade points in lieu of the units taken.

Numbers Fourteen

All those who have had experience or have only an interest are urged to sign up immediately. The course is a requirement for participation in intercollegiate debating. Room 303 Galileo is the haven where you may join the following loyalists: Mr. Carrillo, Mr. Rippon, Mr. Senter, Mr. Tassos, Mr. Young, Mr. Bryan, Mr. Davis, Mr. Hancock, Mr. Haylor, Miss Latz, Mr. Kraft, Miss Wright, Miss Colton and Miss Vincent.

J.C. Votes Nite at Palace Success

Esseff Jaysee's first hotel dance was a huge success, judging from the attendance of 150 couples at the Palace Hotel last Friday evening.

Varied terpsichorean innovations were displayed in the Palm Court as Paul Pendarvis stirred the crowd with his toe-tickling tunes.

Friendships and feuds alike were renewed as many Bulldogs met many Clippers on the dance floor, for it was also San Mateo J. C. nite at the Palace. The feuds, however, were all in the spirit of fun, thus the Mateans and the ex-Matean-Clippers seemed to enliven the evening with such remarks as "H'y' fella, I haven't seen you since—" and so far, far into the night.

Filipino Group Organize At Initial Meets

The Filipino Students Association has been organized by the Filipino students of San Francisco Junior College under the efforts of its founder, Mr. Larry A. Nepomuceno.

The aims of the association are:

1. To promote closer relationships among its members.
2. To give each and every member an opportunity to cultivate that sense of loyalty and confidence among members.
3. To co-operate as much as possible and share with the various activities of the San Francisco Junior College.

The election of officers was held September 12, at the University Extension Building, under the capable assistance of its faculty advisor, Miss Gertrude Bolton. Results of the election were as follows:

President, Mr. Larry A. Nepomuceno; vice president, Mr. Jose P. Daco; secretary, Miss Leonella Cordova; assistant secretary, Mr. Plo Duldulao; treasurer, Miss Adela Suguitan; assistant treasurer, Miss Aurora Madamba; auditor, Mr. Lazaro Fabian; sergeant-at-arms, Mr. Paolino T. Cases; publicity director, Mr. Paul Mauricio; associate publicity director, Mr. Vicente Suguitan; representative, Mr. Emilio Cruz; faculty advisor, Miss G. Bolton.

They are proud to express their sincere gratitude and appreciation to the officers of the Administration of S. F. J. C. and members of the faculty, who tendered them their valuable assistance, especially Mr. Pitman, Mr. Browne, and Miss Bolton, the faculty advisor.

Sale of Associated Students memberships at the University of California reached the highest peak in years, it was revealed when the card drive there was officially closed recently.

Card Holders Get Copies Of Guardsman

Circulation Manager States A.S.S.F.J.C. Contract Will Be Upheld

Circulation Manager Gerald Heinreich has announced that in accord with the contract made by the Associated Students with the holders of Associated Students Cards that, beginning with this issue of the newspaper and with each weekly edition the paper will be distributed only to those who present their cards.

Since the paper is supported directly from student funds and further since those funds are the accumulation of fees paid for membership cards it is only fair that circulation be guaranteed in this manner.

New Publication Costly

It is the hope of the business manager and the advertising heads that The Guardsman will soon boast of sufficient accounts to defray the costs of publication. But until the paper becomes more widely known so that it may attract a constant clientele of advertisers that ideal will not be achieved. Students must well be aware of the fact that this is a new enterprise and that the fate of a college newspaper in competing with metropolitan dailies for advertising sales is a hazardous one. Already the cost of the first three issues has flung a definite challenge to the advertising manager, Miss Barbara Latz, and her staff.

"Buy Junior College" Campaign

"If the college students want the official organ of the Associated Students and of the College Administration to be distributed among all those attending Junior College our advertisers must be encouraged and made to realize that our numbers represent a tremendous buying power due to our location and the constant needs of young men and young woman," said Miss Helen Mann, advertising superintendent who is campaigning to canvass the merchants of San Francisco with the purpose of convincing them that they are purchasing dollar for dollar value in the advertising columns of The Guardsman. When you buy, say that you are from the San Francisco Junior College. You can help to educate the merchants to the possibilities of advertising with your paper. Let's get a six-page paper. Let's aim for publication twice weekly.

Courses in swimming, boxing, and gymnastics have been added to the requirements of graduation for men students here, it was disclosed recently. These courses must be taken the first three semesters, with the students having free choice of the fourth, according to information.

Salinas made one yard at center. A Salinas reverse was broken up for no gain. Salinas kicked to Scarfani who took the ball on the San Francisco 40 and went to the 45. Esseff was penalized 15 yards on the next play for holding. On the following play San Francisco went to the Salinas 47-yard line, then fumbled and Salinas recovered at that point. San Francisco took time out. Wiecher and Warren replaced Lee and Pedrin. Harrington relieved Kurtz at left tackle, and Scott went into the game for Brickley at right tackle. San Francisco was penalized five yards for too many times out.

Second down and five to go for Salinas on the San Francisco 48. The Cowboys made seven yards on a reverse through the line and had a first down on the San Francisco 41. Salinas repeated the same play and added four more yards. A line plunge picked up an additional four. Once again a buck at the line was successful and six yards were accrued and a first down resulted. The Cowboys took a breather here. Salinas rambled through right tackle for three yards. A Salinas pass was blocked by Warren as the quarter drew to a conclusion with the ball on the San Francisco 30-yard line.

Fourth Quarter

San Francisco defending the north goal, Salinas protecting the south.

A Salinas line buck failed to gain. An incomplete pass was the next play. San Francisco's varsity was given the ball on downs on its own 30. Mauer gained one yard at right tackle. On a reverse Scarfani fumbled but recovered for a five-yard loss. Mauer kicked out of bounds on the 50-yard line. On this play Salinas was penalized for committing a foul while the ball was in the air and San Francisco was given the ball on the 50-yard line. Esseff failed to gain at center. In attempting a run from a fake pass Mauer was thrown for a five yard loss, however, Salinas was penalized for illegal clipping. San Francisco failed to gain off the right side. Mauer's pass fell incomplete and Salinas took the ball on downs. Guisti, Cattolica, Vanelli and Morrison replaced Ryan, Stalfni, Scott and Mauer. Salinas failed to gain in two attempts at the line. Salinas then fumbled and San Francisco recovered on the Cowboys' 30. A line plunge was stopped for no gain. Morrison picked up three at center. Morrison's pass fell incomplete. Morrison's pass to Warren was intercepted by Salinas on the Salinas 10-yard line. Salinas picked up two yards but San Francisco was penalized 15 yards for holding. Salinas had the ball on their own 25, first and 10. Salinas lost one yard at the line. Cattolica batted down a Salinas pass. Olberg was replaced by a substitute. A Salinas pass was over the heads of the receivers and fell to the ground incomplete. Salinas kicked to Cattolica who signaled for a fair catch on the Salinas 45. San Francisco made one yard at the line. Guisti on an end around picked up two more. Morrison smacked left tackle for another yard. Morrison kicked to Vasquez, the Salinas safetyman, on the Cowpuncher's 10; Vasquez came back on a pretty run to Salinas' 39. Cremesao replaced Pedrin. Morrison was substituted for by Janbruno.

A Salinas pass fell incomplete. The next Salinas pass was intercepted by the San Francisco quarterback and then fumbled. Salinas recovered. Another Salinas pass was complete to the San Francisco 45-yard zone. A Salinas line buck was smeared by the entire Esseff line as the gun ending the game was fired.

McGUIRE, NEAL HEAD OFFICERS

Football Squad Will Meet U. S. F. Frosh In Grid Game Today

Dons Are Rated as Favorites, But Scribe Does Not Under-rate Coach Russ Sweet's Men

Both Teams Have Suffered Defeat at Hands of Mariners; Admission to Event Free for Holders of Associated Students Cards

By Tim Guiney
Guardsman Sports Editor

In a game that may feature a wide-open passing attack by both teams, the gridders from our own S.F.J.C. and the University of San Francisco frosh will tangle this afternoon at 3 o'clock on the U.S.F. field.

Both teams have already suffered defeats at the hands of those big bad wolves from Marin J.C., the frosh by a score of 7 to 0 and the Jaysee team finishing on the short end of a 19-to-6 affair.

Logical Favorites

According to comparative scores, then, the frosh should be established as the logical favorites to win. However, rarely can football games be judged on this system of past scores, for our Clippers gave quite a creditable account of themselves Friday night at Kentfield.

Bob Kleckner, the head man of the Don bebes, has in Rice, a fullback, the most versatile player on the squad. Rice is adept at both passing and receiving, an excellent broken field runner, and a hard-hitting line smasher.

Besides Rice, he has a smart-quarterback in Fordone, a brainy signal caller, who is also a good safety man, and one well versed in all the wiles of returning punts.

Dangerous Backs

For halfbacks, Kleckner has a couple of dangerous line plungers in Vergers and Erata. Erata has also done a considerable amount of the punting for the Babes since the start of the season.

In the line, the Don ends are Jackson and Moskowitz; tackles, Weir and Madetich; guards, Kennedy and Medriar; center, Seranson.

Show 'Divorcee' Film Next Friday

Devotees of Fred Astaire and Ginger Rogers will have another chance to see the picture that started them on the road to fame when the college presents "The Gay Divorcee" next Friday in the Galileo auditorium at 12:45 P.M. The presentation will run from 12:45 to 2:20, providing enough time to get to 2:30 classes. A nominal charge of fifteen cents will be made to defray expenses. The profits from the performance will go toward the support of The Guardsman.

FLASH NEWS

CLASS ELECTIONS

Election of freshman and sophomore class officers will be held next week, it was disclosed yesterday.

To San Francisco has been allocated a large sum of money for the repairing, completing, and building of schools by the four billion dollar federal loan.

That the vacant building directly opposite 540 Powell may be rented for extra junior college classes was rumored late yesterday.

A decision from the board of education on the location for the proposed junior college building is expected in the near future.

Mayoral candidates for the forthcoming city election are making the construction of a junior college building a major plank in their platforms.

There is a great public interest—there is a need—for a junior college building. Keep this fact before the voters of San Francisco in a favorable light.

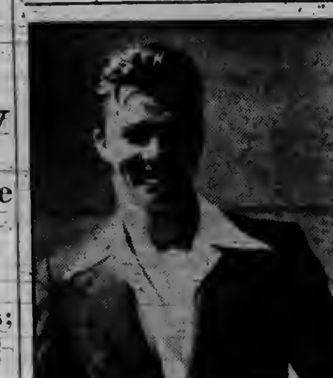
Composer Of College Song Is Musician Of Experience

Student at New York conservatories, participant in concerts on both coasts, and winner of musicians' prizes, briefly summarizes the musical experience of Natan Koblik, composer of the college song.



In addition to being an accomplished violinist, Koblik has done fairly well as a composer. Not only has he engaged in serious attempts at composition, but also has written a few popular songs that have met with success.

Koblik has, besides his studies at the New York conservatories, studied with the concertmaster of the Philharmonic Orchestra in the same city, participated in concert programs on radio station WHN, and played with Walt Roesner at the Fox Theater in San Francisco.

Perhaps not content with such an array of experience alone, Koblik has in the last few years accumulated an enviable collection of prizes. Among these are first Music Week prize in 1930, and first prize in the western division of American Federation of Music Clubs in 1931.

On page four, Koblik's college song, as yet nameless, is printed. Cut it out and paste it in your binder.

YELL LEADER

Bill Kennedy, above, newly elected cheer extractor, will lead the rooting section at the game with U.S.F. this afternoon.

Card Sales Slump Following Election; Still Below Quota

Student body card sales showed a slight gain last week during the excitement of elections, but since then have dropped back into a slump. The membership in the student organization is still nearly 30 per cent below quota.

That some purchases are still made, however, was evident yesterday, when a pretty co-ed strolled nonchalantly into room 150, Galileo, and inquired in a peremptory tone where she could vote. Asked if she had been in a daze for the last two weeks, she replied, "No, but I just bought my student body card."

It is expected that many more will buy their ducats when the lavish program for the current semester is announced by the Associated Students, according to reports. Cards are still on sale at room 260, Galileo.

Only Card Holders to Get Guardsman

Beginning with the current issue, persons not possessing student body cards will have to pay five cents for a copy of The Guardsman, it has been announced.

The circulation department of this paper, acting by authority of the newly-elected student officers, will confiscate any student body card which appears twice for a paper of the same edition; cards without the bearer's own name will also be voided. A careful check will be made to prevent any duplication.

This policy will be in effect indefinitely, and is expected to bring up student body membership appreciably, according to student heads.

Pres. Cloud Works on Local Campaign

President A. J. Cloud will assist C. Harold Caulfield, president of the Board of Education, in the annual Community Chest drive by school employes. The goal sought by Mr. Caulfield for the campaign is $19,700.

The teachers will contribute a proportionate amount of their wages to the chest. Campaign officials hold high hopes for the outcome of the campaign.

Mr. Cloud's contribution to the work is entirely voluntary. His efforts are greatly appreciated by the Board of Education, officials say.

Advertisers Will Offer Awards

First Students To Make Purchases at Stores Get Ducats

Luckmann Proffers Grid Tickets to Winners

"I am from San Francisco Junior College." Say this when you are buying from San Francisco advertisers, and you may win a free ticket to a football game, according to Mr. Lloyd Luckmann, faculty advisor to the business manager of The Guardsman.

Fifteen pairs of tickets to S.F.J.C. football games and one pair admitting the bearers to one bay region university gridiron event will be given as prizes to students patronizing the advertisers in The Guardsman. There will be one pair at each of sixteen different stores, Mr. Luckmann announces, with the name of the advertiser giving the tickets to the university game kept a secret until the award is made.

The prizes will be awarded to the first junior college student patronizing the advertiser on Monday of each week.

This plan is being carried out to stimulate advertising, and to show the merchants of San Francisco the desirability of advertising to the college students, Mr. Luckmann stated.

Whether The Guardsman can continue, whether it will have to be cut in size, or whether it can be increased in size and made the outstanding junior college publication on the coast depends entirely upon the success in selling advertising space in it, Mr. Luckmann said in announcing this feature contest.

Dramatists Stage First Meeting To Inspect Scenery

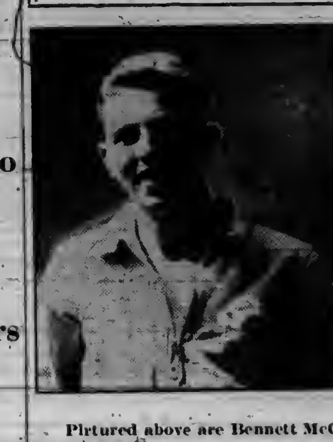
On Wednesday afternoon, September 25, the dramatic section of the San Francisco Junior College held a joint meeting in the auditorium of Galileo High School in order to inspect the stage equipment which includes the most modern lighting effects. The classes were also shown pictures which portrayed the history of stage scenery from the very early periods to the present date.

Miss Jensen's collection of over 150 plaques of theatre and stage designs was shown in an arrangement to present the evolution of the modern theatre from the earliest times to the present. This collection is one of the finest in the West. It contains numerous designs by many famous artists.

Dr. Leonard Guest at Recent Banquet

Dr. Eugenie Leonard was the guest of honor at a banquet tendered her by the Principals' Association of San Francisco recently. She spoke a few words about the college.

Among those present at the banquet were Dr. and Mrs. Edwin A. Lee, President A. J. Cloud, Mr. Edwin C. Browne and Mr. Paul Pitman.



Music was furnished by Donald Sandifur, college music instructor, who gave trombone solos, accompanied at the piano by his brother.

Registrar Takes Vacation at River

Mr. Paul Mohr, registrar, has been spending a week's vacation with his family in the Russian River country. He will resume his duties here Monday.

Mr. Mohr was the guest of former associates at Marin Junior College last Friday, following the Marin-San Francisco football tilt. He was formerly the vice-president of the Kentfield institution.

Candidates Give Thanks; Promise Future Activity

By George Tuttle

Promises of a profitable term of interest and activity, and expressions of thanks for support shown in last week's election characterized the statements given to the press this week by winning candidates.

Bennett McGuire, president, was most emphatic in his aims.

"We need unity," he declared. "I want a college student body, not a high school group. I appreciate everyone's efforts in my behalf and thank all cordially."

Vice-President James Neal compared his position with that of John Garner, saying: "I have no intention of being forgotten after election. With the co-operation of the students, I shall attempt to uphold the responsibilities of my office."

Allan Koblick, treasurer, has definite plans for the future. "There is a dance planned," he said, "and student card holders will be admitted free of charge. I hope to see card sales rise when students receive funds from the N.Y.A. I also plan to sell thirty cards to the faculty and seventy more to students to reach our quota."

Corresponding Secretary Mimi Colton wished to thank her supporters. "I shall try to handle the correspondence in the most official manner possible. I am very thankful for the loyal support I received."

Helene Bowman, recording secretary, also expressed her appreciation and declared: "I intend to uphold the confidence that the students have shown by electing me."

Bill Kennedy, yell leader, has mapped out his plans. Jim Fahn, who ran opposite Kennedy in the finals, will be the first of two assistants, the second not yet selected. They plan to make up some new yells and would appreciate any others from students. "Thank you for your support," was Kennedy's statement.

NO STAFF COMMISSIONS

Students accepting a commission on advertising space they sell in The Guardsman will not be eligible for membership on the business staff of the newspaper, Mr. Lloyd D. Luckmann, faculty advisor, has announced. Members of the staff receive compensation in that they will receive credit for two units of work each semester, Mr. Luckmann said.

CHARACTERS VISIT COLLEGE LIBRARY

"Wise guys," Patty Wells, popular co-ed, characterizes such historical characters as Mark Antony, Napoleon, Cleopatra, and other celebrities of the past who have visited the college library so far this semester.

Those noteworthy but unheralded visits were revealed when the library inaugurated a system to keep a record of the number of students utilizing its services daily.

"The idea of signing a silly name," library assistants, among them Miss Wells, declare; "may be amusing to some, but it is just a little out of line since those in charge are honestly endeavoring to keep an accurate check."

Modern self-styled Napoleons are, when found violent or hopeless, taken care of by the state.—Editor.

Miss Latz Thanked in Letter to A.S.B.

To the Associated Students:

As faculty advisor to the business staff of The Guardsman, I wish to express appreciation and thanks to those students on the staff who have, through their own initiative in selling advertising space, made possible the publication of this college newspaper.

To Miss Barbara Latz I express the greatest appreciation, and feel that the Associated Students should know that she has done more work on the business staff, with no financial remuneration, than any other student. She has been ably assisted by Helen Mann.

Others on the staff who have been outstanding in activity are Lois Toso, Paul Green, A. Rubino, Miss Laura Amas, and Miss Beverly Mulkey.

If the business staff had a few more assistants with as much initiative as these I have mentioned, the future continuance of The Guardsman as a weekly would be a certainty.

LLOYD D. LUCKMANN.

ERNIE SMITH IS VISITOR

Ernie Smith, well-known sports radio announcer, visited the college last Tuesday. He promised to address the Associated Students at an early date.

Spirited Vote At Final Election

Mimi Colton Takes Secretary's Post; Kennedy Made Yell Leader

Student Body Card Holders Control Polls

Slightly more spirited voting than that shown in the preliminaries characterized the finals last Friday in which Bennett McGuire, with 265 tallies in his favor, defeated John O'Looney, who polled 137, for the office of president of the Associated Students.

Kenneth Bennett, who held a slight lead over his opponent in the preliminaries, was defeated in his race for the vice-presidency by James Neal. Neal received 209 votes to 189 for Bennett.

Mimi Colton, victor in the race for the office of corresponding secretary, polled more votes than any other candidate for any of the offices. She received 273 tallies, against 122 for her opponent Frank Pederson.

Kennedy Wins

In a close contest for the Associated Students yell leader, Bill Kennedy nosed out Jim Fahn with a majority of twenty-six votes. Kennedy received 213 ballots to Fahn's 187.

Helene Bowman was automatically elected to the office of recording secretary following the preliminary balloting two weeks ago when William Ellis, her opponent, withdrew his candidacy in her favor.

Also in the preliminaries Allan Koblick received a large enough majority over his opponent to win the office of treasurer without having to enter the finals.

Two-Thirds Vote

A total of 402 votes was cast in the finals, compared to 343 in the preliminaries. This represents about two-thirds of the members of the Associated Students. The total membership of the Associated Students represents somewhat less than one-half of the total registration of students in the college.

BEARS OUST BEAR

The Daily Californian reports that because a committee had once ruled "no bears in the stadium," Oski, fraternity's roly-poly cub mascot, was ousted from Memorial Stadium just before the Whittier-California game last Saturday. Arthur Harris, president of the Associated Students of the university, has asked Oski to "bear up" until the grizzly matter can be settled by the executive committee.

Gridders Squawk About Colors, Name of Varsity

Objections to the colors of red and white for the college and aversion to the nickname of "Clippers" were raised by members of the football squad this week.

So strong were the objections that Dean Edwin C. Browne decided last Monday to put the matter before the Associated Students at their next meeting.

"After all," Mr. Browne said, "it is the football men who must bear the brunt of the colors and names. They are the innocent recipients of any puns or nick-names. For that reason, I believe they should have something to say in the matter of what they are to be called."

The principal objection to the colors red and white was that they are too common; the complaint against "Clippers" just on general principles. Fred Wilkinson, a candidate for end position on the varsity, expressed the idea that "Clippers" could mean any of three things: a sailing ship, an airship, or an illegal football block.

Students at large have not yet expressed their opinions on the subject, but observers believe that as a whole they follow the inclinations of the gridmen.

Active student body members pointed out that so long as a minority held voting power such conditions would be common. Leaders contend that these conditions will exist until a majority of registered students possess Associated Student cards and represent themselves at elections.

So This Is College!

Last week's editorial on "prep stuff" seems to have started the ball a-rolling, arousing comment from instructors and students alike. Other complaints have been registered so we herewith present them, hoping that they might provide food for thought.

About a week ago a group of Galileo R.O.T.C. fellows crossed the court in their full regalia and were made the recipients of "boos" and "Bronx cheers" and various other types of the "raspberry" by some of our alleged COLLEGE students.

At the assembly that preceded the Marin game, Dean Browne's remarks were continuously interrupted by the antics and clownings of the stalwart, brawny football men, who seemed not mature enough to control their outbursts.

On the contrary, the conduct of the students themselves at the Marin game can only be described as rowdy. There is no logical explanation for out-and-out rowdyism—especially when such spirit might well have been directed toward whole-hearted, well-organized rooting and boosting for the team.

In the study hall, on the lower floor of the Extension Building, there has been a continuous undercurrent of mumbling, interspersed with an occasional giggle, which has made it necessary for the person in charge to walk around the hall in the manner of a grammar school proctor.

And last but not least: we now hear that MONITORS are going to be placed in the hallways! What is the college doing—degenerating into a prep school? Monitors are certainly not even befitting a high school, and we are supposed to be attending a college which in dignity is second only to the universities.

May we add that as crude and as childish as some of these regulations may be, they were brought on by the actions of the students themselves. If the students insist on acting as young children they will be treated as such. So throw off that yoke of high school "prepishness" and get into the college spirit. Don't act like boys and girls, but like men and women.

Excerpts from Letters to the Editor

It might be well to consider the need by the students for a book exchange (for used books only) sponsored by the Associated Students.

This need is going to be felt tremendously just before the next semester begins, by all of the 1,449 students in the college. If we use one dollar as the average cost per book—and if we consider that each student has bought an average of five of such books, then we see that they will have to find either a market for the books which cost an average initial sum of $7,245, or keep them and enjoy no monetary return.

And the plan whereby this marketing can be carried on with the greatest return and satisfaction to its users is one supervised by agents of the Associated Students; a plan allowing the seller to state the price he wants for his book; a plan allowing the buyer to inspect all of the books so reoffered for sale; and a plan authorizing agents of the Associated Students to retain a percentage (possibly 10 per cent) of the selling price to meet the cost of administration.

The exchange need only be maintained near the end and at the beginning of successive semesters; but now is the time for the new members of the executive council of the Associated Students to prepare the details; and now is the time for we other students to lobby before the executive council until it takes action on this matter for us.

The College Reads—

NORTH TO THE ORIENT

Anne Morrow Lindbergh

Charles A. Lindbergh, met and became engaged to Anne Morrow, the daughter of the late Dwight Morrow, then the United States Ambassador to Mexico, on one of the many trips that he made to Mexico City. Since that time, Mrs. A. Lindbergh has travelled exclusively with her husband all over the United States, Canada and Mexico.

In the book, North to the Orient, Mrs. Lindbergh goes into detail of her learning the short-wave radio system for which they were able to keep in touch with the rest of the world and to keep posted on the weather reports along the way.

Mrs. Lindbergh writes of the routes that were taken on their trip by easy stages flying to the Orient. Up through Maine, Ottawa, Aklavik, Nome, Karaginski, and Tokio—to Nanking and the flooded valley of the Yangtze river. How they were driven down by fog off the coast of Japan and were nearly mobbed by the hungry Chinese during the overflow of the dangerous Yangtze River. She also explains of the hardships that were encountered. The trip was more than a mere pleasure cruise.

The publisher's review of this book says:

"Nowhere characterizing her husband, or writing at length about him, Anne Lindbergh tells a few anecdotes that reveal him as a matter of fact, friendly, laconic character." Unable to reach Nome before dark, the Lindberghs landed in a far lagoon on Soward Peninsula; anchored the plane and slept. In the middle of the night they were awakened by guttural voices, discovered two boatloads of Eskimos beside the plane. "Hello," said the Eskimos, "we hunt duck." Taken aback, not knowing what manner of men his visitors were, Charles Lindbergh replied, "That's nice." Conversation lagged. To keep it going, he explained that he and his wife were just stopping for the night. The Eskimos did not understand. Still trying to make conversation, he asked, "Get many ducks?" Eskimos could not understand that either. "Well," Lindbergh said at last, "Guess I'll go back to bed." He closed the hatch, stretched out on his parachute, fell fast asleep, while the puzzled Eskimos floated off into the inky night.

LOUDSPEAKER LOWDOWN

By JAY O'GEE

Here we are back at you with more microphonic mutterings.

WUXTREE! Benny Goodman's troupe are traipsing up to these h'yar parts again for another one-night appearance at Sweet's Ballroom in Oakland, Sunday nite, October 6. It probably won't go on the air. Goodman closed a six-week engagement at the Palomar in Los Angeles last Tuesday nite. He was replaced by Anson Weeks.

Last nite Paul Pendarvis, who has been playing in the Palm Court, moved his troupe back into the renovated Rose Room Bowl.

What ho! The Dorsey Brothers have split up again, the latest rift occurring on September 21.

It is rumored by those who know that Fanchon and Marco are negotiating for Cab Calloway and his band for a tour of their theaters in the West.

RED NICHOLS & SPORTSCASTERS

Red Nichols' orchestra heads the list of celebrities to be presented tonite over KPO at 5:30 as easterners observe "Penn-Princeton Night" on the eve of the East's first major gridiron contest of the season. Harvey Herman, famous Pennsylvania coach, will discuss the prospects of his powerful squad, while Les Qualley, sports analyst, and Ted Husing's right-hand man, will predict scores in the big games of Saturday, October 5. Ruth Etting will contribute to the program, doing her part from the Hollywood studios, while the remainder of the program will originate in Radio City.

With his first starring role behind him, James Melton, tenor, will return to the air in the leading role of the ever popular operetta, "The Student Prince," in the Palmolive Beauty Box Theater broadcast over an NBC-KPO network tonight at 8:30 o'clock. Melton, who has just completed work on "Stars over Broadway," a new picture to be released this Fall, will play opposite Francia White in "The Student Prince," and later will be featured in other Beauty Box Theater productions. He will have the title role of Prince Karl Franz in "The Student Prince," and Miss White will be heard as Kathie, the daughter of the tavern keeper. "The Student Prince" was first presented on Broadway on December 2, 1924, with Howard Marsh and Ilse Marvenga in the leading roles, and in February, 1927, was first shown as a silent moving picture. It has been produced in seven countries as a stage show, with invariable success. It was first presented by the Beauty Box Theater players in April, 1934, as the second production in their long series. The music is from the pen of Sigmund Romberg and the lyrics are by Dorothy Donnelly.

WINCHELL IN CHATEAU SHOW

Another boatload of big shots may be heard tomorrow evening as Walter Winchell takes Al Jolson's place as master of ceremonies on the Shell Chateau program from Radio City via KPO at 6:30. Louis Armstrong, dusky hot trumpeter, will be heard playing one of his Armstrongian selections. Eleanor Powell, lovely dancer who has recently taken Hollywood by storm and who scored such a success in the "Broadway Melody of 1936" (Jack Benny's new pic), will demonstrate her versatility by singing several numbers. Niela Goodelle, young singing pianist (whom the editor of The Guardsman would like to meet), will give a sample of the entertainment she provides in her own Sunday night broadcasts over NBC nets. Miss Goodelle was recently seen here in the cast of "As Thousands Cheer." Elaine Arden, comedienne, will put on a Greek dialect act and the Erin Sisters, singing trio who were discovered by N.T.G., will sing popular songs. Ironically enough, Milton Berle, star of Broadway musical comedies, whom Winchell is continually accusing of pilfering other "comedians'" jokes, will present an "original" sketch. Jolson is leaving the Chateau program to devote all his time to pictures. He seems to have difficulty making up his mind whether he'd rather be a radio star or a movie star, as this is about the 'steenth time he's "quit" the air for the screen.

"MIDSUMMER NIGHT'S" PREVIEW

A new form of Hollywood preview with a nation-wide, rather than a local, audience, has been arranged for the Shakespearean spectacle, "A Midsummer Night's Dream," through the cooperation of the National Broadcasting Company and Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc. A one-hour broadcast, beginning at 9 P.M. tomorrow, will be presented over KPO via an NBC network from Hollywood and New York and will feature Max Reinhardt, director of the picture, virtually the entire star-studded cast, film executives and a symphony orchestra playing Mendelssohn's famous "Dream" music under the direction of Erich Wolfgang Korngold.

Broadcasting with Reinhardt from New York will be Jean Muir, Ian Hunter, Anita Louise and Hobart Cavanaugh.

Jack L. Warner, head of Warner Brothers, and Hal Wallis, production chief, will head the Hollywood contingent of broadcasters including James Cagney, Dick Powell, Joe E. Brown, Hugh Herbert, Frank McHugh, Olivia De Haviland, Verree Teasdale, Mickey Rooney and William Dieterle, co-director with Reinhardt.

Off-stage incidents in the filming of Shakespeare's immortal comedy and the many inventions and effects created by Reinhardt for his first screen production will be described in detail. The broadcast prefaces simultaneous premieres of "A Midsummer Night's Dream" in New York, London, Vienna, Amsterdam, Paris, Manila and Sydney, Australia, on October 9.

PEARCE GANG BEGINS SERIES

With the playing of a double theme, "We've Taken a Likin' to You" identifying Al Pearce and His Gang, interwoven with the familiar Amos 'n' Andy "Perfect Song," the Gang with the famous blackface pair as guest speakers, will inaugurate its new tri-weekly series for Pepsodent over an NBC nation-wide network Monday, October 7, at 2 P.M. MISS PATRICIA RICCIARDI

For this week's column we have chosen Miss Patricia Ricciardi, another member of the younger set of the junior college.

As I entered Miss Ricciardi's room to obtain the interview for this story I saw, seated at the instructor's desk, a very attractive young lady, somewhat petite in stature and whose straight brunette hair seemed to suggest more the student than the instructor.

Miss Ricciardi was born in Oakland but she considers Sacramento to be her home; in spite of the fact that her parents are at present residing in San Bernardino.

Miss Ricciardi attended Sacramento High School. While a student at Sacramento High she was the women's editor of the Sacramento High School "X Ray," secretary of the C.S.F. and president of the French Club for two years.

Upon her graduation she enrolled as a student at Sacramento Junior College. Here she was president of the Associated Women Students, editor of the Sacramento Junior College "Pony Express," and secretary of Phi Theta Kappa. (This is a lower division of Phi Beta Kappa.)

Up to this point, Miss Ricciardi had been answering my questions in a rather matter-of-fact way. I sensed a change in her attitude, and said, "Miss Ricciardi, isn't it true that while you were at Sacramento Junior College that institution conferred a signal honor upon you?"

She said, "Yes, I was the first woman to have her name engraved on the honor plaque that hangs over the main entrance of Sacramento Junior College."

A preference of red and white, as compared to blue and gold, compelled Miss Ricciardi to enter Stanford University. Now the time for choosing a life's occupation had come and she chose to make psychology her major. Among her co-ed activities on the Stanford campus, she was elected to Gamma Phi Beta sorority and was chairman of the scholarship committee of that sorority. Newspaper work again beckoned Miss Ricciardi and she became news editor of the "Stanford Daily." During her senior year she was elected to Phi Beta Kappa. Having earned her A.B. at this institution, she graduated "Magna Cum Laude."

Then came a period of post graduate work to earn an M.A. degree at Claremont, which is the graduate division of Pomona. Her activities in the psychology field required that she serve a month in Patton State Hospital. Then in conjunction with her research work for her M.A., another month was spent at Pacific Colony. After this work was completed she was installed as a manager of a child's guidance clinic for the remainder of the year. She received her M.A. in psychology in June 1934.

Soon after receiving her degree from Claremont, Miss Ricciardi was called to Paso Robles to serve as a member of the faculty of Paso Robles High School. After spending three months as a teacher in the English Department, her knowledge of psychology benefited her to the extent that she was promoted to the position of Dean of Girls and, later, advisor of journalism, which positions she held up to June 1935, when she was transferred to San Francisco Junior College.

She enjoys swimming and playing tennis, although she prefers to play tennis with a beginner, for, as she so ably puts it, she finds that she is much more successful in her game when her opponent has but slight knowledge of the finer points of play. She is also an enthusiastic spectator at all athletic contests and is looking forward to seeing the Los Angeles Junior College game later in the year.

Miss Ricciardi says that she enjoys teaching English and French but, nevertheless, she would like also to teach psychology, public speaking and journalism.

THE CO-EDS CORNER

Mrs. Leonard Talks About Early Training, Career, As Interview Given Reporter

Raises Family Before Going On with Plans for Degree from University

By Jean Coplestone

A charming and gracious lady that San Francisco Junior College is proud to claim as one of its executive members, describes Mrs. Eugenie Leonard, Dean of Women.

Mrs. Leonard is one of San Francisco's own daughters, having graduated from Lowell High School in 1906. She was in President Cloud's English class. It was President Cloud's initial appearance in the teaching profession in San Francisco.

Has a Doctor's Degree

After graduation from high school the dean went abroad for several years, coming back in 1909 to enter the University of California. After she obtained her junior certificate she married and went east. After rearing two splendid children, Mrs. Leonard obtained her A.B. degree in 1920. From the period of time in which she left the University of California to her subsequent graduation in 1920, Dean Leonard aided her husband in his duties as a college professor. In 1930 she obtained her doctor's degree from Columbia University. She majored in child psychology and religious education.

Dean at Syracuse U.

During the war she conducted special classes at Berkeley. In 1923 Mrs. Leonard again went east. In 1930, a year after her husband's death, she accepted the position of Dean of Women at Syracuse University which had an enrollment of 2,000 women students. She was in charge of thirty-three dormitories and twenty-two sorority houses.

In our college library there are two books dealing with the research Deon Leonard has conducted in the field of psychology.

To quote Mrs. Leonard, "I thoroughly enjoy San Francisco and love the development of this new college."

Business Women

CO-EDITORIALS

Worthy Causes

It was a fortunate day for the women of the world when they were given equal rights to those of men. One of the most important factors was the privilege of women to obtain and hold jobs of importance, and because of their proven capability, the number of positions held by the feminine sex are good proportion to those controlled by the males. Two examples of which we are justly proud are those of Miss Francis Perkins, Secretary of Labor, and Ruth Bryant Owens, United States Ambassador to Denmark.

The overthrowing of the idea that it was a disgrace for a woman to work for a living has had much to do with the entry of the fairer sex into the man's possessive business world. The college co-ed of today who finds it necessary to work in order to obtain an education is now regarded as an example of intelligence and industry, instead of being a social exile as she was often in former years. The girl who is working her way through college has that smug feeling of independence.

Orchids to the co-ed of San Francisco Junior College who has the ambition and the integrity to put forth the effort to obtain more than a high school education. It is a proven fact that the students who work their way through college gain more actual knowledge than those more fortunate ones who have no financial worries. The federal government is doing everything in its power to help the needy students by its splendid program under the NYA.

Recreational Pools Opened To Gym Work

Swimming Adds to Women's Physical Education Department

Swimming will definitely be part of the women's gym activities during this college year, as arrangements have been made with the Lombard pool for swimming on Tuesday and Thursday from 1:30 to 2:30 p.m.

It is in the city outdoor pool that Anita Sheffield, famous University of California swimmer, taught her students. The swimming tank is located on Lombard and Mason streets.

POSTPONE ACTIVITIES

The activities of the Women's Athletic Association of the college will be postponed temporarily because of the impending health examinations. Miss Spencer, student advisor for the organization, stated that the program will be followed as soon as examinations are completed.

Girls who are not enrolled in the hygiene course have this opportunity of taking swimming.

Second, third, and fourth semester students will have the preference of attending the swimming, dancing, or riding classes given on Friday over the low freshmen. Instruction will start as soon as physical examinations are over.

SPORTS BRIEFS

Recreational games in the women's gym classes have been temporarily disbanded this week in favor of a new game called "cork." The game of cork is introduced by Miss Verrel Weber, instructor in the department.

The game is played on a diamond the same dimensions as that of baseball with the exception that there are only two bases and a home plate. The ball used is made of cork and the bases differ in size to the regulation indoor baseball pads.

The game requires no skill in order to be played with enjoyment. "Cork" is a very popular game in the southern states, but this is its initial appearance on the west coast.

VOLUMES SPEAK WORDS TO WOMEN

A short list of readable books that are of interest to the co-ed will appear in this column weekly along with short comments as to the nature of the book.

For the student in philosophy Will Durant has published his first volume of a set of ten on the "Story of Civilization." The name of this book is "Our Oriental Heritage." It is the story of Egypt and the near east to the death of Alexander and of Eastern Asia from the beginnings to the present. Mr. Durant writes in a simple and direct method that is within the reach of everyone. The task he has set about to do—that of writing the story of civilization—is a gigantic one in itself. Philosophy students have been waiting for the starting of the publication of these volumes.

For the psychology major, William Seabrook's book "Asylum" is most interesting and entertaining. It is an account of life in a fine type of modern mental hospital.

The Pulitzer prize winner in plays for this year is Zoe Akin's dramatized version of Edith Wharton's "The Old Maid." It is a clever play written with the usual Wharton insight into character.

For those who are interested in the romance of royal blood and history, "The Reign of King George the Fifth" by D. C. Sommervell is suggested. It is not a biography but a succinct chronicle of English history during the last 25 years.

Franz Werfel's "The Forty Days of Musa Dagh" has attracted much attention of novel readers and is now being adapted for the screen. The central episode of this novel of the great war is the story of forty days during which the inhabitants of seven Armenian villages resisted the Turkish army. It is a vivid narrative of the horrors and hardships this section of the world endured during the World War. It is well worth your reading.

Female Data Given Out By Dean's Office

Out of the 565 women enrolled at the college, nineteen of this total are married, according to statistics supplied by the dean's office. Many of these students are carrying only fifteen and one-half hours or less.

There are two girls attending San Francisco Junior College who are only fifteen years old, twenty-one that are sixteen, 164 that have reached the age of seventeen years and the majority of the entire enrollment—214—that are eighteen. The remaining 155 students range in age from nineteen to thirty-nine years. Apparently from these statistics the average co-ed attending school this fall plans to go to junior college more than the required two years as a student must carry at least sixteen hours per semester.

The rather large number of married women attending junior college reveals an alive interest in obtaining an education despite the fact that they are married. In comparison the data given out this year by the larger universities in California, the number of married women graduating has increased each year.

Dr. Merton E. Hill Visits in College

Dr. Merton E. Hill, of the Department of Education of University of California, who willingly contributed his services in the organization of San Francisco Junior College, recently visited the college. Dr. Hill, who is widely known in the field of education, generously aided in the formative work prior to the opening of the college.

Faculty Honored at Classroom Tea

Members of the Junior College faculty were guests at a reception and tea given recently by the San Francisco Classroom Teachers' Association. Honored guests were Pres. A. J. Cloud, Miss Edith E. Pence, and Dr. Edwin A. Lee. Mayor Angelo Rossi addressed the group.

Etiquette Hounds Mass on Editorial Sanctum of Staff

DEAR ED: How long do you have to know a girl before you can date her?—C.M.

DEAR C.M.: You just have to meet her—but you had better wait a day or two before you phone her. Incidentally, don't start out by saying, "What are you going to do Friday?" It's none of your business. Speak up, and do it bravely—you're much more likely to get what you want—and anyway, few girls carry revolvers!

DEAR ED: When does this "ladies first" business go?—K.T.

DEAR K.T.: When you are wending up or down some dark stairs, you go first. Ditto for heavy doors and street cars. In the theatre, if the usher shows you to your seats, he goes first, then the girl, then you bring up the rear guard; if no usher, reverse order, only let the girl go in first when you're found your seats. So, with these FEW exceptions, the rule is "ladies first."

STYLES GO RENAISSANCE

By Catherine College

Due to the Italian Exposition's being held in Paris this fall, evening clothes are being worn in the colors of the Italian Renaissance period combined with the modernistic trend of black and white.

The better dresses are not fussy in style but are simple with subtle details, many of them having draped features. Evening dresses, as well as street dresses, are getting shorter but only in the front.

Jewels and more jewels this fall for the well-dressed co-ed. Wear striking jewelry for a buckle, or in your hair, and, of course, either bracelets or clips are always good. Fashion denotes incompleteness of costume without something in your hair. The hair ornaments may be clips or flowers or even a beautiful vegetable. The costume jewelers have put out some very unique and good looking accessories imitating the good old garden variety. Have you seen the new artichoke bracelets?

The combination of fur and satin for evening wear is very smart and at the same time gives a warm and rich feeling. Another practical gown is one of velvet with a short sleeve jacket shot with silver or gold metal. The jacket is detachable and other contrasting jackets may be worn with the same gown.

Of course if you care to be really exotic, adopt a Hindu evening dress with a sari thrown over the head in the manner of a Hindu princess.

For evening wraps, velvet, silver, and gold lamé are being shown by the leading stores this fall. Of course a co-ed may always wear her fur coat and have that well-dressed feeling.

Marin Takes Tough Battle From Squad To Win On Gridiron

Breaks Pave Way for Marin Touchdowns as San Franciscans Go Down to Defeat by 13-Point Margin

By George Dunne

Demonstrating a powerful and smooth working attack, Marin Junior College, led by Hughes and Mullins, drove to a 19-to-6 victory over San Francisco Junior College in a night game at Kentfield, Friday.

Capitalizing on the breaks, the Mariners turned an even game into a seeming rout. Scarcely five minutes of the opening quarter had passed when Fuerguson, Marin captain, recovered a blocked kick on the San Francisco 15-yard line. Mullins packed the ball to the 1-yard line on an end run and the Mariners were in position for their first score. Hughes went through the line on a buck to tally the first six points made against San Francisco Junior College by any team. Later in the same period the overnuxious San Franciscans duplicated the misplay to lose possession of the ball on their own 5-yard line. Hughes again smashed over for a score, Fuerguson's conversion making it 13 to 0 in favor of the Mariners.

A bad pass from center and a fumble seemingly paved the way for a third touchdown by the Kentfield aggregation. Pete, Marin half, faded back to the San Francisco twenty-five and rifled a pass to an apparent receiver near the end zone. Cassino, San Francisco backfield star, intercepted this and was "off to the races." Running behind perfectly formed interference, he was finally downed by the Mariner safety on the 40-yard marker.

Clarke Paves Way For First Score

Clarke was sent in at end at this point. Taking a beautifully executed reverse he sped down the sidelines only to be knocked out of bounds on the 5-yard line.

A plunge into the center of the line gained a scant yard. On next down San Francisco, using its most effective play—a reverse around the left side of the line—sent Clarke crashing into the end zone for a touchdown. Clarke was injured on the play and was forced to retire from the game.

Pass Counts For Final Touchdown

With but 30 seconds of play remaining in the first half, Herman Pete, Carlson's colored star, tossed a short pass in the flat to Loving, who went over for the last of Marin's three scores.

A much better brand of ball was displayed by the Red and White during the second half. The miscues of the first periods vanished and "Russ" Sweet's forward wall stood up brilliantly under the hard charging of the heavier Marin eleven.

There was little to choose between the two teams during this half, although one costly fumble kept the San Francisco team on the defensive most of the period.

"Scoop's" most effective offensive weapons were passes from Pete to Loving, 6-foot 4-inch colored end, and end runs from punt formation featuring Hughes and Mullins.

Attack Given New Emphasis by Team

Russ Sweet's eleven showed up well on reverses and Eltringham shows promise of becoming a great passer. Mauer at fullback caused the center of the enemy line a great deal of trouble. His line smashes showed terrific power.

Eltringham at fullback was outstanding, appearing to be the hardest fighting and toughest player on the gridiron, although it was difficult to pick any individual stars as all of the men played great ball. During his brief stay of three minutes, George Clarke again demonstrated that he is one of the shiftiest and cleverest ball carriers in the conference.

The San Francisco team was outweighed 12 pounds to the man by the strongest team in Marin's history.

Mullins, shifty Mariner backfield star, in an exclusive interview after the game, made the statement that the new Jaysees were the toughest team that Marin had met all season. He claimed that the Red and White are just as strong as San Francisco frosh, a team that played Scoop Carlson's men to a standstill only to lose on a blocked kick, 7-0.

2,500 Witness Game, Opening Ceremonies

A crowd of approximately 2,500 packed the stadium. Opening ceremonies were conducted to introduce the "Baby Jaysees" to the Junior College Conference, and to cement the feeling of friendly rivalry that exists between the two institutions. Speeches were given over the public address system by the president of Marin, Dean Browne of San Francisco and the student leaders of both schools.

The president of Marin Jaysee officially welcomed San Francisco to conference competition and wished them success in their football ventures.

Dean Browne thanked Marin for giving San Francisco such a worthy faculty member as Paul Mohr, and stated that their loss was the college's gain. He also warned the gallery that the babies they saw out on the field were not the usual type of babies and would prove it in the following game.

Team Shows Well; Defense Strong

Despite their defeat, the gridmen showed up well and should enter the next game as favorites to defeat San Jose frosh. The defensive play leaves little to be desired and with a little polishing up the offense should really begin to click.

The starting lineup used by Coach Carlson was: Ends, Loving and Fuerguson; tackles, Tbew and Scherr; guards, Lee and Bergerman; center, Hardy; quarterback, Taylor; halfbacks, Mullins and Gebhardt, and fullback, Hughes.

Coach Sweet started: Ends, Lee and Allen; guards, Murphy and R. Clarke; tackles, Capt. Kurtz and Brickley; center, Jambruno; quarterback, Olberg; halfbacks, Cattolica and Guisti; fullback, Eltringham.

SPORTS COMMENT

By TIM GUINEY

After that Marin game, a lot of you who just read the final score are probably beginning to think that our footballers are in for a rather disastrous season. Take it from a guy that saw the game—they were swell!

We're not trying to use that old alibi that we lost on a couple of bad breaks. Marin had a great team on the field and deserved to win. But don't sell your own school short. They're plenty good.

After the game, George Dunne, star sports reporter for The Guardsman, interviewed Captain Mullins, who played practically the entire game at end for the Mariners. "It's the toughest game I've been in this season," Mullins stated. "And," he added, as he limped off the field, "that includes the U.S.F. frosh."

The Mariners beat the frosh by a score of 7 to 0.

Soccer Practice Starts

Practice for the college soccer team has been started by Coach Bass. Practice dates are Tuesdays and Thursdays, 12 o'clock, at Funston Field. On Saturdays the workouts will be taken over at the Bench Chalet Field at 10 A.M.

Among those signed up are: Al Conway, Ed Frediani, Dick Date, Don Leed, and Bob Wenburg.

Those interested are requested to see Coach Bass immediately.

Refuse S.A. Cards

This business of not honoring J.C. student body cards at college games has brought a large number of complaints by the students to our sports department. They all ask that we bring pressure to bear on the proper authorities and see that the cards are O.K.'d as soon as possible.

However, we must admit we're stumped. Much as we hate to say it, we don't know who the proper authorities are.

So, in the chance that some far-off and influential traveler in Podunk, South Africa, or someplace, should happen to glance across these columns, we wish to make it known that the majority of the Associated Students of S.F.J.C. would be very grateful if these cards would be acknowledged by the business staffs of the various major institutions in the bay area.

AROUND THE SQUARED CIRCLE: At last the call is out for wrestlers and boxers . . . a sign-up board will be posted shortly . . . Joe Amori may be named varsity coach . . . was quite successful at San Mateo . . . knows his way around in this branch of sports . . . the writer was talking with him about this subject . . . Joe says he hasn't much time but would like to do it . . . also says Henry Stone, coach of the University of California team has issued a challenge for his freshmen to meet the J.C. boys as soon as they are organized . . . more challenges from San Mateo, S. F. State, and other colleges . . . tell you about our own talent next week.

"I'll make a real center out of Jambruno if it's the last thing I ever do."—Russ Sweet.

Gridiron Gossip

It's with a distinct feeling of sadness that we receive the news that George Clarke, star halfback, will be out of the U.S.F. frosh game this afternoon. George injured his knee in the Marin encounter and has done no playing since. However, Coach Sweet says that Clarke will be back in harness for the game with the San Jose State frosh on the following week.

The Clippers have been using both single and double wingback formations, and will continue this system against the Don babes.

SEE ALMA MATER GAMES

San Francisco Junior College students who have attended the different high schools in San Francisco can be seen regularly at most of the high school football games held weekly at Kezar stadium. Among those at a recent prep battle were President Bennett McGuire, Jim Fahn, Richard Cary, Willard Siegel, Don Grossman, Jean Coogan, Stanley Neyhart, Virginia Turnley, Herbert Blumenthal, Suzanne Sheehan, and Muriel Morrison.

Inter-University Service Is Planned

Plans for an inter-university news service were launched last week at the coast convention of Major College Publications, held at Portland, Oregon.

The resolution carrying the plans also encouraged and favored the transmission of news by amateur radio stations located at the universities participating in the service, according to Fred C. Fischer, director of University of California Associated Students Publications and secretary of The Major College organization.

Reserve Grid Squad Wins By 28 Points In Season Opener

Playing an inspired brand of football, the San Francisco Jaysee Reserves, coached by Jack Gaddy, opened their schedule with a convincing 28 to 0 win over the Continuation High warriors on the Commerce grid field Friday afternoon, September 27. Using a combination of running and passing attacks, the cubs had the situation well in hand throughout the fray.

The squad, led by diminutive Tony Scafani started things off in a big way in the first quarter due to the line plunging of Fullback Wierner. Scafani made a 47-yard dash for the first score of the day, Wierner converting.

Scafani again made a thrilling 25-yard run in the second period to score again.

In the second half, the Continuation team looked pathetic in their attempts to stop the ever charging, hard blocking San Francisco aggregation.

California crews get a new shell about every three years. The best boats are made by George Pocock in Seattle, and cost around $3,000.

Dopesters In League Slate S.F. For Title

Material Rated "Tops" By Hoop Fans; All-City Men Answer Call

With prospects for a strong squad, basketball fans are already pointing towards San Francisco's first championship in the Northern California Junior College Conference.

A wealth of material is the opening threat displayed by the fans in their pre-season dope picking contest. With several transfers from other junior colleges and several all-city men, Coach "Dutch" Conlon will have a strong nucleus to build a team around. His task is the developing of a team to dethrone San Mateo and Modesto, co-champions of the 1934 season.

Squad Lists Star Players

To date an imposing squad has turned out at the pre-seasonal practices. Such men as Fred Comba from Lowell and Menlo, Ralph Hillman from San Mateo, Bedacaro from Menlo and Loustalot from Commerce, to say nothing of Rippon from Galileo and Caine from Commerce, have sports authorities in the bay region declaring that the first team from the San Francisco Junior College will be at the top of the heap when the conference race is finished in February or March.

High schools in the city have given many stars to the squad. Caine, an all-city center; Loustalot, an all-city guard; McSweeny from Galileo, Connelly from St. Ignatius, Guinee, Egan from Lowell, and Glynn from Mission are a few of those that the prep league has sent to San Francisco.

Closest Race Expected by Fans

The Junior College Conference race during the coming season will probably be one of the closest fought battles that the jaysees have ever staged for championship honors. Little advance information has come from other schools in the state, but undoubtedly San Mateo and Modesto will repeat the strong teams that played for the Blue and White and Yellow and Black last season.

San Mateo has the dubious distinction of being the mythical state champions of the junior colleges. Playing an unofficial series with Compton Junior College from the southern part of the state, they succeeded in downing the southerners and taking the title.

Serious Consequences From Title Game

Serious consequences came of that game at San Mateo. Compton Junior College was expelled from the southern conference for their part in the series. Reinstatement was later made, according to reports from the Los Angeles area.

Coach Dutch Conlon has been busy the last few weeks in lining up a series of practice games for the San Franciscans. Games with university freshman teams have been definitely scheduled. These games will probably be preliminary to conference games of the larger colleges.

Reduced Rate Tickets

Negotiations are being made this week to secure an agreement with local universities to have Associated Students cards of San Francisco Junior College honored for reduced rate tickets to gridiron events; Mr. Edwin C. Browne, assistant dean of men here, has announced.

Tennis Asks Support

Jimmie Neal dropped in and requested that anyone interested in tennis see Mardie McKnight, Charlotte Zier, Ralph Howland, or himself. He says that practice will start as soon as a tennis club is organized.

MENTOR

EISAN

Lee Eisan, former U.C. athlete, who will coach baseball. He is expected to have a very strong aggregation.

Coach Speaks On Prospects Of Ball Team

"Baseball to some is gone for 1935, but for many others it is just starting. Although the fellows aren't playing prep ball, they have organized various teams and entered them in the numerous industrial leagues." The speaker was Lee Eisan, newly appointed baseball coach of San Francisco Junior College.

Eisan further urged all those who intend to go out for varsity baseball to keep in trim by playing "Sunday ball."

Competition Keen In J. C. League

Competition will be keen in the Junior College League next season, with Modesto Jaysee the proud possessors of the 1935 pennant, returning with a veteran nine that will be hard to beat. San Mateo, San Francisco's closest rival, always had, and probably always will have a good squad, being classed as one of the best junior college teams on the coast.

Mateans "Tops"

Coach "Tag" Taggart, Matean mentor, when asked of his team's chances for the coming season, replied, "When the cards are shuffled, San Mateo will come out on top."

The Mariners, on the other hand, are as weak in baseball as they are strong in football, which is saying a Joe E. Brown mouthful. "They can't help but go to extremes."

The prospect of this college's having a good team seem excellent, due chiefly to the fact that many former prep stars are enrolled in the institution, along with many other J. C. transfers.

Many Promising Players

Most promising of those in the college at the moment are Odero Guisti, a former all-city third baseman, and Johnny Fitzgerald, a flashy second sacker from the San Rafael Military Academy, who is often referred to as one of the greatest players ever to see action under the banners of that school.

Plan Classes For Mittmen Under J. Gaddy

"Grunt and Groan" Men To Have Team Also; Cal Frosh Rarin'

Future Jack Dempseys and Man Mountain Deans are learning the fine points of boxing and toe twisting under the able tutelage of Mr. Jack Gaddy, a member of the San Francisco Junior College staff of instructors.

No Schedule on Boxing Class

Regular classes have not, as yet, been scheduled for the pugilists and pachyderms but those thusly inclined will soon have the opportunity of displaying their skill. Mr. Gaddy is now giving preliminary instructions to men in regular gymnasium periods.

Every able-bodied male student in the college, with the exception of those toting pigskins, is required to spend two hours per week in a physical education class. The classes are arranged so that each student at some time during the year will have participated in every major sport. As a result, every student who wishes to follow one particular sport will be better qualified to do so.

Gaddy to Coach Wrestling Class

Games now being played in the gymnasium classes are basketball and pass-ball, with the instruction in wrestling given by Mr. Gaddy. The latter reports that there is an abundance of material for a strong team to represent the college in these two major events.

Already challenges have been issued by the wrestling and boxing teams of the University of California frosh, San Mateo Jaysee, San Francisco State, and many others.

Official Gridiron Schedule Issued

Russell Sweet, head football coach of the college, has announced the grid schedule as follows:

Oct. 12	S. J. State frosh	(there)
Oct. 19	S. F. State	(here)
Oct. 25	Modesto J. C.	(there)
Nov. 1	Los Angeles J. C.	(here)
Nov. 11	Cal. Aggies	(there)
Nov. 22	San Mateo J. C.	(there)
Nov. 28	Sacramento J. C.	(there)

Both the Marin and Los Angeles games are night affairs, while the Sacramento and California Aggies skirmishes are tentative.

Sweet Names Starting Team In Game Today

To combat this, Russ Sweet, head coach of the jaysee, will probably start: Ends, Lee and Allen; tackles, Kurtz and Brickley; guards, Murphy and R. Clarke; center, Jambruno; quarterback, Olberg; halfbacks, Cattolica and Guisti; fullback, Eltringham.

In the Marin skirmish, Mauer proved himself to be both a capable passer and line plunger, while Eltringham can also do some pigskin tossing for the Clippers if called upon.

Incidentally, here's the news everyone has been waiting for. To holders of San Francisco Junior College student body cards, the game will be free for nothing, gratis, and everything that goes along with it.

Clarke Out With Knee Injury

Some of the more distressing news that has come from the coaching office was the announcement that George Clarke, triple threat halfback of the Jaysee gridders will not see any action in today's encounter. Clarke damaged his knee.

Coach Sweet has stated, however, that Clarke will be back in action against the San Jose State frosh next week.

The Don game, which was originally scheduled for November 16, has been changed to this afternoon because of the short space of time which the J. C. team would otherwise have had if they played San Mateo a few days later.

DIARY OF A CO-ED

Dear Diary:

I repent, really I do . . . a New Year resolution made in 1934 to keep a diary . . . at the Palace, incidentally . . . and no entries as yet. However . . . from now on I promise you . . . I suppose I might call you the "hangover of a New Year's resolution." The spirit is willing but the flesh is left-handed. What brought about this sudden change of heart? . . . and what's it all about? . . . simply this . . . since Sue went to L.A., I am desolate, as I have not a friend with whom I can discuss the things that happen . . . and so, Diary, I am going to confide in you as a real friend and talk to you as if you were alive (and maybe you are!).

September 20, 1935

Dear Diary:

This is really September 21, not the 20th, as it is three A.M., but I just couldn't wait to tell you all about the Palace. Last night was the "San Francisco Junior College Night" at the Palace Hotel in the Rose Room Bowl, and I had such a keen time and the dance was such a huge success that it stands out in my mind as a real event (an event, in my mind, Diary, is something to be remembered for a long time). I think I shall use it as a means of measuring time—you know, B.F.C.N. and A.J.C.N. (Before Junior College Night and After Junior College Night). The date today is September 21, A.J.C.N. Diary, you have no idea how important this dance was, as it served the double purpose of celebrating our first football game—win or lose—with Salinas Junior College—and our first official J.C. hotel dance. I am so glad that the dance was held at the Palace Hotel because you have no idea how beautiful the newly redecorated Palm Court is, Diary. It was absolutely heavenly; and those gorgeous revolving prisms made—(I think they were prisms, but then I never was up on my physics 10 course)—well, as I was saying, the prisms made the Rose Bowl delightful to look at and . . . I just couldn't stop looking at them and admiring the delightful romantic atmosphere they created. I think they are such a welcome relief from the old spotlights that caused such a glare, incidentally. Oh! Diary, I almost forgot to tell you about the funny thing that happened to the football team—it seems that Coach Sweet absolutely guaranteed the team that they would be back home in time to attend the dance at the Palace, and therefore a perverse fate took a hand and settled the matter in a manner quite embarrassing to Mr. Sweet. On the way to the game the team had a punctured tire and had to stop four times for the same engine trouble, and then, to add insult to injury, two flats in the same tire coming back. This last trouble necessitated a change in busses as there were no more tires to be able to change. Consequently the team arrived home at 11:30 P.M. instead of the 8:30 that was promised them. The only fellows who were able to make the Palace were those who hitch-hiked in from San Mateo because they could not bear to give up their chance to celebrate the J.C.'s first football victory at the Rose Bowl in the Palace. I understand that the air was quite blue around San Mateo. Honestly and truly, Diary, I had a simply simply . . . well, I have run out of adjectives and therefore can only say that it was really simply simply time. There were all of two hundred students from the Jaynes there, AMONG WHOM I SAW: Barbara Swanton with Jack Barron, who also sold bids for the dance; Helene Dallman, who was a perfect vision in a stunning outfit of black velvet and white ermine, escorted by LeRoy Billsborough; Helen Mann and Bernard Callme-Bud" Myer . . . Helen was wearing a soft crimped wool blue frock with a matching hat. Al Cohn and Babe Taylor; Dick Reilley, who wasn't at his best as he was given to dizzy spells; and Lois Tyson, Bob Ellingham and Rose Duggan.

Bill Weinstock and Nancy Spalding . . . Hazer Goss and Betty "I Saw Stars" Grey, who was wearing a Hattie Carnegie model of marine blue set off by a white accordeon and belt, both sprinkled with rhinestone stars . . . Betty McNeil in a black velvet cocktail frock which was trimmed with white lace, starched collar and cuffs, escorted by Jack Brigham, of course . . . Merritt Cutten with Helen Hall, who was lovely in a turquoise blue princess model with a black velvet skirt . . . Jane Williams and Bill Cordano; Bob Fisher and Bette Stanley, Charley Marsh and Betty Beckman, and oh, oodles of others whom I can't remember to save my soul.

Well, Diary, I must be off to gain my beauty sleep in preparedness for tea as I am going to the Palace this afternoon. Good nite!

Helen Condon.

Fight, Rally Songs From Co-Ed's Pen

Offerings of Jeanne Anderson Are Presented

A musically minded miss, Jeanne Anderson, has submitted for the student body's approval a collection of original songs and yells which she hopes the college will adopt. The editorial staff believes that these songs have genuine feeling and although it is impossible to print the music, it is hoped that the words to Miss Anderson's contributions will prove to be in line with the spirit of the school.

Following are Miss Anderson's offerings:

An Alma Mater Song
(Tune original)

In the gold-tinged hills by the Western sea,
Lies our college in a grandeur we adore;
Treasured memories linger in our hearts for aye.
Loyal voices sing thy name forever more.
Chorus:
Hail to thee! Fair College
We pledge thee loyalty,
In trial and victory.
Our love and lives we give to thee.
Long may thy banner float on high,
Led by honor we obey with heart and hand.
As we strive to keep thy standards firm on high.
The Spirit of the cheering throng resounds with joy
For our motto is forever "do or die!"
Chorus:
Hail to thee! fair college
We pledge thee loyalty,
In trial and victory.
Our love, our lives we give to thee.
Long may thy banner beat on high,
Fairest college 'neath the hope-filled Western skies.

Hail Alma Mater to thee!
Victory Song
(Tune: "Washington and Lee Swing")

Ah-when our J. C. boys all fall in line,
We're going to win that game another time.
We're going to fight, fight, fight for victory,
And make our name go down in college history.
We're going to back our team in every way,
And in the end we will have won the fray.
We'll do or die!" Loud rings the cry.
As our boys go tearing by. Rah! Rah!

Fight Song
(Tune: "Hit the Line")

We'll hit the line for J. C.
For J. C. wins today.
Yard by yard we'll fight along,
Every man in every play.
Fight! Fight! Fight!
Cheer and pull for the varsity,
All behind our men.
For our San Francisco Clippers
Are going to pull us through again
(A yell—then repeat:)

Pep Song
(Tune: "Caissons Are Rolling Along")

In San Francisco, by the bay,
We're a band so strong and gay.
That keeps marching and moving along.
Full of pep, right in step
Mighty soon we'll have a rep.
We'll keep marching and moving along.
Then it's hi! hi! he! S. F. J. C.
Shout out that name loud and strong.
J. C.
Where are you go, you will always know.
We are marching and moving along.
marching forward.
We are marching and moving along.

Automobile Stolen From Coach Sweet

Theft of his automobile from in front of the Galileo building was reported last week by Mr. Russell Sweet, head football coach here.

Police recovered Mr. Sweet's automobile a few days after the theft, but it had been so completely stripped that Mr. Sweet had to get another one, reports said.

J.C. Bridges Gap

Junior college is the single step that bridges the unfathomable gap that invariably faces the high school senior diploma in hand. It is the device that intrigues the bewildered mind of the same senior, fills him with confidence, inspires him to new and better things, and sets him on the path that leads to success in later life.

CAN YOU MAKE IT?

As famous locally as Big Ben is in London, the clock on the Ferry Building tower is a source of inspiration and desperation to East Bay commuters attending the junior college. It spells success to four at present—hence no time to make the boat!

When a commuter has an eight o'clock class and is just passing Yerba Buena on a ferry boat, he has the thrill of watching the hands of the clock speed around as that ferry nears against time, bringing him to school—if it isn't foggy. Coming over from Oakland there isn't much a commuter can do but bite his fingernails if the clock is ahead of the boat, but when the boat is behind that it has only four minutes to reach the Ferry Building from far out on Market Street, the speed laws can and must be broken—in fact it necessitates.

Traffic Regulations Askew In Keep To The Left Edict

American traffic regulation suffered a reversal recently with reference to the congested crowds in the Extension Building, when the edict of "keep to the left" was issued.

The new rules, which have been in force two weeks, state that students must enter the building by the mezzanine floor entrance, leave by the main door, and keep to the left in the halls and on the stairways from 8:15 o'clock in the morning until 5 o'clock in the afternoon, when last Junior college classes are dismissed.

This regulation, it is reported, has thus far worked out as satisfactorily as possible under the crowded conditions, apparently, with no casualties to report. It is alleged, however, by a scribe interested in collecting such jarring data that the number of minor abrasions and contusions resulting from violent contact with corners of books and binders has already climbed into the four-number figure. The scribe claims to live in daily deathly fear of a rainy day, when umbrellas might supplant the comparatively softer book corner.

A Cappella Group, Glee Club Formed

Formation of an A Cappella Choir and Glee Club is now taking place within the music classes, according to an announcement made by Miss Fiosalta Badger, music instructor.

At present, the choir has a membership of thirty-two students, and the Glee Club fifteen. There are still openings in the Glee Club class for qualified men students, Miss Badger states.

SAILING THROUGH THE NEWS

BY THE NEWS EDITOR

Hardly a day goes by that someone does not give voice to that trite expression, "Life is too short for . . ." Sometimes we think that, and are impressed by the futility of it all. Other times, life seems to be all too long, and we become depressed with the monotony of it all.

Right now, we are devoting a little of that too short, or too long, life to a bit of education, the average among us probably intending to take two years of it at this particular home of semi-higher learning.

Just how much the average among us will get from his two years here is, of course, still a nebulous question. Mr. Robert 'Gordon' Sproul, president of the University of California and recognized as a respected educator, recommends one way of deriving good from the academic years.

"Freshmen," the noted educator says, "should join some campus activity group as soon as they enter college. Avoid that they can keep their grades up to average. Activity work is the surest way of becoming orientated into campus life."

Administrative Notices of Importance

Faculty members are notified to call for class registration cards Friday, at the college office in Galileo building. Grades are to be recorded on these cards and returned to the office Monday, October 14.

Faculty members are requested to investigate the completion of registration by requiring every student in each of their classes to present the blue registration card. In many cases delay will be encountered, due to the deposit of this card for library privileges.

Registrar J. Paul Mohr announces that there are yet outstanding some 100 registration books which have not been filed with his office. Students are warned that every card in existence last year. Therefore, through a literal interpretation of the plan, San Francisco Junior College would not normally have been benefited by it. Nevertheless it had been hoped that, through the efforts of California authorities, the school would benefit on the same basis as older colleges in the same district. On this hope students were appointed to full time NYA positions last month.

The new orders state that, inasmuch as this college was not in existence at the time the NYA plan was drafted, it will be impossible for us to have an appropriation of our own this year. That some funds will be on hand, though, was made a certainty last week when local authorities announced that the unused portion of the funds allotted to other colleges in California will be transferred to this Junior college. This will enable the administration to pay students in full for work done by them during the month of September.

Due to the rainy, beginning Oct. 1, the amount at our disposal from unused funds of other colleges will be 47 per cent of the amount expected. So that the shortage will be borne by the entire group of workers, Miss Pence has stated that those who have been working thirty-seven and one-half hours per month will hereafter put in only seventeen and three-quarters hours per month; those who formerly worked twenty-five hours will be reduced to eleven and three-quarters hours per month. The compensation will be cut from fifteen dollars to seven dollars and five cents for the first group, from ten dollars to four dollars and seventy cents for the second.

"It would be an unselfish move if some people who have earned enough to meet their immediate emergencies could drop their jobs and let some less fortunate people work for a while," Miss Pence said.

Service Club Is Organized; Browne Aids

Under the enthusiastic and spirited leadership of Alvin Hipshman and Bill Kennedy a Service Club has been organized with a view to the voluntary support of the general activities of the Associated Students.

Start Constitution

A committee of five, including Ray Bruns, Bill Ellis, Fbay Pedersen, Bill Kennedy and Al Hipshman, has been selected to work on a constitution to be submitted to the group at its first regular meeting. The club has asked Mr. Lloyd D. Luckman to act as its sponsor.

Dean Edwin C. Browne attended the first meeting held last Monday and lent his encouragement to the enterprise. By his suggestion it will probably be planned to hold all functions at luncheons with a program limited to well defined achievements.

Support Picture

One of the first tasks assumed by the club was the support, by selling tickets, of the "Gay Divorcee," showing today in Galileo Auditorium. Their next effort will be in the organization of a bus trip for the Modesto game.

The central program will be the publication of the junior college and its needs before local social and civic groups through the presentation of entertainment programs and speakers.

List of membership follows: Messrs. Bert Baxter, Jack Welsh, A. Hipshman, Joe Jarrett, Bill Kennedy, Ben McGuire, Bud Mayer, Jim Neal, Bob Neal, Bob Rhoele, and Ed Talavera.

Chest Fund Swells

Lieut.-Col. Archibald J. Cloud, president, and Capt. Edwin Browne, dean of men, report that the junior college faculty and staff have oversubscribed their portion of the several quota assigned to the Education Department of San Francisco. Col. C. Harold Caulfield, president of the Board of Education, announced that he was most gratified at the results achieved in the newest organization of the board. President Cloud and staff were prominent at the luncheons of Community Chest leaders on Tuesday and Thursday of this week.

Staff Offers Grid Passes As Prizes

Sixteen pairs of tickets to the San Francisco J. C.-S. F. Teachers' College football game next Saturday; one pair of tickets to the California-Santa Clara grid meet at Berkeley, free.

That is the offer being presented by the advertising staff of The Guardsman in order to promote sales interest between the advertisers in this paper and the students of the college.

Store Conjecture

The tickets will be given away by each Guardsman advertiser to the first person who makes a purchase at the store holding the pass to the university game is a matter of conjecture, this will not be known until the lucky student makes the lucky purchase on Monday morning.

This feature contest will continue throughout the semester, with tickets to the outstanding football events in the Bay Region being given away each week.

Semi-Weekly Planned

"The success of The Guardsman depends upon the success of its contributors," Mr. Lloyd D. Luckman, business advisor to this paper, said. "Our plan is to build up the outstanding junior college publication on the Pacific Coast; to eventually print a sporting green in conjunction with the newspaper; and to have two issues a week if possible.

"These hopes depend on the advertising space we can accommodate, and the amount of advertising depends upon how the students respond to the opportunities offered in the advertising."

In order to qualify for the awards contestants need simply present the sales slip (cash or charge) dated October 11 to the Finance office in room 260 Galileo. Purchaser must surrender his sales slip to The Guardsman for its business office, that evidence of patronage may be submitted to the advertisers.

New Members In Forensic Squad; Room for More

The Debate Squad is still open to students who may be interested in the activities. If necessary, the team will change its meeting hour to 1:30, but still the league meeting, which is to be held in conjunction with the junior college conference on the Berkeley campus of the University of California, Saturday, October 26. Mr. H. M. Adams of Menlo Junior College, is president of the league.

SCHOOL TERM EXTENDED

In order to make the Fall and Spring terms more equal in length, the Fall term will be extended to January 24. This will not be one unbroken stretch of school, however. Students will have vacation during the week of Institute and Thanksgiving recess, and two weeks of respite from December 23 to January 3 have been granted at Christmas time. In the Spring term, which extends from January 27 to June 19, there will be the usual week of Easter vacation, April 6 to 10.

Gridders Will Tackle Frosh At San Jose

Scribe Still Has Hopes For Touted Strength of Local Team

By Tim Guiney
Guardsman Sports Editor

After being knocked over twice in a row, our gridders should bolster up their batting averages when they move down south tomorrow and tackle the San Jose State frosh.

So far, the San Francisco Jayson warriors have been in three encounters and finished on the short end of two of them. Salinas J. C. students in the opening game of the season believe what was in the papers about the San Franciscans being too tough for them.

Marin and U. S. F. From Missouri

Marin J. C. and the University of San Francisco frosh were from Missouri, and said the Rams would have to show them. Well; the Rams showed they were big and tough, but they didn't win, and they paid off on final scores.

So said they were big and tough, but they play a hard game of football, a statement that can be verified by the Don frosh, in case you care to go out and ask them. The Jaynes pigskin toters scored 9 first downs to 5 for the frosh, which, as ol' Pop Warner would say, was doin' mighty well.

Need Pop Warner As Referee

But even though "Pop" Warner wants points scored for first downs, the rest of the officials don't seem to be so hot about it, and I'm afraid that, try as we might, we won't be able to get the rules changed this season.

So, instead of working for first downs, Coach Rims Sweet and his defence of patronage may be submitted to the advertisers.

Gay Divorcee Film Shown Today

Critics on the leading papers throughout the nation termed this as one of the outstanding pictures of the Astaire-Rogers combination, set to the tuneful lyrics of Cole Porter, it is a breezy musical that rushes along at a rapid tempo. Porter's haunting "Night and Day" is one of the tunes that had first nite audiences whistling and humming when they came away from the theater. When Mack Gordon's and Harry Revel's "Looking for a Needle in a Haystack" was sung by Betty Grable in the film, reviews and letters were lavish in their praise.

Dance Continental

Martin J. C. and the University of San Francisco frosh were from Missouri, and said the Rams would have to show them. Well; the Rams showed they were big and tough, but they didn't win, and they paid off on final scores.

Official Sanction Given To Clubs By Authorities Here

Extra-curricular Work Urged Now; Heads Map Out Liberal Plans for Getting Organizations Launched

Student activities heretofore banned while the administration was occupied with matters of priority, were given official sanction following a meeting of the college faculty held late last week.

Few limitations were placed on prospective clubs, according to a formal plan drawn up by Mr. Paul Pitman, assistant to President A. J. Cloud, full details for getting an organization launched for into activity were contained in Mr. Pitman's outline.

Under Mr. Pitman

All organizations, societies, and clubs of every description and character which bear the name of the college, and which are made up of college students, must obtain a charter from the college, according to present plans. These organizations will be directly under Mr. Pitman, with the exception of men's athletic groups, which will be under Assistant Dean Edwin C. Browne, and the women's athletic program, which will be under Vice President Eugenie Leonard.

Charters for groups may be obtained by filing a formal application with Mr. Pitman. Applications must contain the following information, in accordance with the administration's decision: explicit statement of purpose of the organization; description of kind of activities to be undertaken; requirements for membership; method by which group will be financed; signature of seven members of the Associated Students; and endorsement of faculty sponsor.

Advisor Needed

All organizations will have a faculty sponsor, according to Mr. Pitman, to act in an advisory capacity. This faculty sponsor, Mr. Pitman states, will be responsible to the administration for the club, but will not in any sense be the dictator of the club. Organizations will be run entirely by the students, the President's Assistant asserts.

Applications for charters should also state the desired time and frequency of meetings, and an attempt will be made to provide satisfactory places for them, according to the administration. The most easily available time, it was stated, will probably be between 1:15 p. m. and 2:15 daily, in the Galileo building.

With the ban on these activities now lifted, the college administration is urging students to participate in and reap the benefits of campus organizations.

Participation Urged

"Now that the classes are under way," Dr. Leonard stated in an announcement to the press, "the administration wishes to urge development of extra-curricular activities, not as pendants to the curriculum, but as voluntary expressions of subject matter interests. These inevitably will include some social life and interests in range from serious discussions and lectures to purely social events such as dances and teas."

Dr. Leonard explained that the present plan of organization was suggested, not to curb activities in any way, but to plan them in such a way that, instead of competing with classroom work, they will co-operate with and aid the curriculum.

A formal application for a club charter is printed elsewhere in this issue of The Guardsman.

Library Has Facilities For Reserve Books

Recent reorganization of the library has definitely increased its value for students and faculty, according to Mr. Francis J. Culligan, Librarian.

Reference volumes are confined to the reading room, which is under the general direction of Miss Joan Nourse, Assistant Librarian. Reference volumes may be taken from the shelves by students, but must not be taken from the reading room. Reserve books and special reserve books may be procured by surrendering registration cards to the faculty library supervisor. Reserve books, but not special reserve books, may be taken out overnight after 4:30 p.m., but must be returned before 1:30 the next day.

Books which may be borrowed for two weeks will be found in the north reading room, which may also be used as a study hall by students. These books may be taken out by presenting registration cards to the student clerks on duty. Since few students use the north reading room for study, it is planned to allow group meetings to use the room between 1 o'clock and 2 for the hour immediately preceding the 2:30 classes. Requests for such use, says Mr. Culligan, should be made through Mr. Paul Pitman, Assistant to the President.

In order to make room for 1,000 new books they are coming into the Library Department this month, the books that formerly were stored in the South Library have been moved to the one at the north side of Galileo Building.

Cards Before Clubs

At the present time it does not seem to be a rule that only members of the Associated Students will be allowed to belong to organized clubs. Perhaps at present, for the welfare of the various groups, it would not be wise to so limit the prospective membership of some organizations. But in the future it would seem that the primary requirement for membership in any subordinate organization of the Associated Students should be membership in the parent group.

There is no excuse for the poor showing of the students on the treasurer's books. Although the women have well supported the purchase of A.S.S.F.J.C. cards, the men are short in this regard despite the fact that they are long on student activity and leadership.

Certainly the price is not prohibitive. No one can deny that The Guardsman and the NYA have not afforded ample opportunities to lighten the burden, if it is a burden.

We suggest that a person will be no better member of a club than he is of the Associated Students.

Safety, or Else!

Watch your step! Several accidents have occurred in the vicinity [illegible] nore have been just [illegible], but don't overwork [illegible] empers and nervous [illegible] ers and assorted onlookers.

Would-be acrobats and other nimblefooted tram-step artists should confine their side-stepping tricks to the ballroom. Keep in mind those time-worn but significant bromides: WAIT TILL THE CAR STOPS—LOOK OUT FOR PASSING CARS.

A Correction

A letter from the Administration addressed to the editor of the Guardsman informs us that we erred in our remarks about the "monitors" in the hallways. The editorial, as published last week, would lead the reader to believe that the monitors were stationed in the hallways to give orders and command obedience. This is not true. As a matter of fact, the students who have these positions have been appointed to aid all of us. Their duty is to answer questions in regard to rooms, advisors, etc., and generally alleviate the somewhat congested flow of traffic during the change of classes. So kindly remember the students in the hallways are there to help you. Do your part by cooperating with them.

Anthony Wynne brings a familiar character to the readers in his "Case of the Gold Coins." This author, one of the well-known writers of modern fiction of the murder mystery and detective story type, recreates the character of Doctor Halley, who has [illegible] the medical [illegible] ed to devote [illegible] rime detec[illegible] or Halley as much ability as [illegible] h as he bequeathed to him as a famous doctor. His case in this book centers around the murder of Lord Wallace at Eastsea. The killing of Lord Wallace was an overnight sensation in that it was done without a single clue being left on or around the body in the sand at Eastsea.

The climax of the book is built upon the final linking of many insignificant clues by the good Doctor Halley. Wynne cleverly involves all the suspicious characters deeper and deeper into the plot. The action is accelerated by the additional finding of the gold coins, from which the books gets its title.

We find foremost among the characters one Peter Ingram, the jilted fiance of Lord Wallace's niece. The knife in the body was that of Ingram's although that weak individual stoutly denies the fact. Among the other human characters that Wynne has created in the "Case of the Gold Coins" are Miss Bolton; her father, Mr. Bolton; Mr. Story, Rumbold, and lastly, Captain Jack Ainger of the C.I.D.

Suspense keeps you interested until the very last, when you discover how Dr. Halley and Captain Ainger of the C.I.D. join all the simple little clues to unravel the mystery: the shot fired into the boat; the unknown stranger falling to the floor dead; the mystery of the stranger. How these contributed to the story is graphically done by the author. You can't miss a good book if you read the "Case of the Gold Coins."

LOST AND FOUND

Students who have lost articles should apply at Galileo, Room 260. Following is a list of the articles with no claimants: Works of Shakespeare, two wallets (Harold Wagstaff, Michall Rossello), a pair of woman's gloves (Mary Blue), a glass case, a leather comb and file case, and two note books (Ellis Frederick, Keith Lamb).

Support of the soccer team is urged by Mr. Bass, coach of the shindiggers.

It has been announced that the nomenclature for classes during the Fall semester will be as follows:

"Second Semester Class."

(Sophomores): "Third Semester Class."

"Fourth Semester Class."

There is no classification higher than fourth semester. These divisions will be used for student as well as official organizations.

LOUDSPEAKER LOWDOWN

By JAY O'GEE

Are y' listenin', hmmm . . . ?

Seems as though it's quite the style for the Ozone Artists to answer the call of the Squawking Silver Screen. After all the radio stars in "Every Night at Eight," "Big Broadcast of '36," and "B'd'y Melody of '36," now comes the dope that a flickering tintype called "Thanks a Million" now in production will boast the following headliners: Paul Whiteman, Ramona, Roy Bargy, Peggy Healy, Johnny Mercer, Jack Teagarden and all the others usually heard on Whiteman's Music Hall show. In addition you'll be able to see Rubinoff (and his violin).

Among the four hundred musicians and near-musicians of the bay area who stood up for four hours watching and listening to the swingin'est band in the land were Buddy Marino (of Griff Williams' troupe), Murray Bolen and Beatrice Benedaret (of KFRC) and Horace Porazzi. The reason for all the "to-do" was the one-nite appearance of Benny Goodman and his wild men at an Oakland spot. Besides the stand-arounders, a capacity crowd of two thousand danced to his hot rhythms. Winchell, or anyone else, can give several trainloads of orchids to Joe Harris, trombone; Arthur Rollini, sax; Jess Stacey, piano; Benny (himself) Goodman on the clarinet; and of course the man with the wild look in his eyes, and swingin' rhythm in every fibre of his frame, Gene Krupa, the drummer, and HOW! Goodman's band has just recorded three more tunes for Victor; they are: "Santa Claus Comes In the Spring" "Madhouse" (it is), and their slow theme song, "Goodbye." They are going to do five more shortly.

Wallace Beery replaces Walter Winchell on the Shell Chateau tomorrow evening at 6:30, KPO. From now on Beery will be the regular master of ceremonies.

HYLTON TO MIDWEST

Another Britisher is answering to the lure of American coin. Jack Hylton and his orchestra are on their way over here to do a series of broadcasts for the Standard Oil Company of Indiana. But the unfortunate part of the whole thing is that the programs will only be broadcast throughout the Middle West, reaching neither the East nor the West. Hylton and the boys are also skedded for a series of personal appearances in mid-western theaters.

"DID YOU KNOW: That Paul Whiteman's first record, "Whispering," sold two million pressings, setting a record of some kind?

That Hubert Pryor Vallee learned to play the saxophone while listening to records by Rudy Wiedoeft, whose first name he appropriated for theatrical (and maybe practical) purposes?

We hate to keep blowing about the merits of Cleo Brown's records—but that snappy string section of hers really deserves mention, so here they are: guitar by Perry Botkin, bass fiddle by Arthur Bernstein, and drums by Gene Krupa (who also handles the drums for Benny Goodman).

SPECIAL DELIVERY

Bernice Berwin (Hazel in 'One Man's Family) had her narrowest escape from missing a broadcast on an occasion when a traffic tie-up made her so late that the program in which she was appearing was already on the air when she arrived. The studio was at the top of a flight of steps and two of the men in the cast were waiting on each side of the stairs. As she came running in, they lifted her and rushed her up the stairs so fast that her feet never touched the floor until she was at the mike.

Two grand opera singers have had a part in the singing career of Harold Dana, NBC baritone. The first one was Georgianna Strauss of the Metropolitan who discovered Dana at the age of sixteen; the other was Titta Ruffo, who selected him out of a score of contestants as the possessor of the best baritone voice in San Francisco.

ELEGY ON RESUMING BROADCASTING

by

Mary Livingstone

Arrival Day! Oh, Arrival Day . . .
The happiest day of many!
The day that back on the air comes Jack . . .
Oh, what's his name?—
Yes, Benny!

Jell-O again—it's Arrival Day
We've had a lovely time.
My cheeks are red as cherries, too,
And lemon, orange and lime!

Jack's bronzed just like a Grecian god,
And glad for work to begin.
He's tanned from Hollywood make-up, though—
For out in the sun he ain't been.

Jack's bringing lovely music, too . . .
Cute Johnny Green's Or-chester,
So Jack will say, "Oh, Johnny, play!"
Instead of "Play, Don Bestor!"

And Michael Bartlett! Girls' be's nice!
His voice you're going to like;
I get Jack mad each time I say:
"Oh! For the love of Mike!"

Well, anyway, dear Arrival Day,
You come and then you go,
But I and Jack are glad to be back
'Cause you work too hard on vacation!

After that outburst of unadulterated gonk, we step from the ridiculous(y) to the sublime by adding four more names to those presented two weeks ago in our own "Hall of Fame": Louis Alter, Rube Bloom, Maurice Ravel and Cole Porter have all done their part in adding to the better types of modern music.

Again it comes time to say,
Goombye please.

Carolinans List Faults of College Professors

Students in the elementary psychology class at North Carolina State College had the pleasure of listing all their grievances and annoying habits their professors have in a recent confidential survey.

List Dramatics, Journalism As Accomplishments of Miss Keller

By the Reporter

Miss Bertha Keller deems it "a rare experience to participate in the development of the building of what will be one of the finest institutions of the country." She also says that there is a chance to form a pattern in a school where the rules are not cut and dried.

Actress and Poet

Miss Keller is both an actress and a poet. Last year she played the leading role of Stella in "Another Language" for a little theater group at Purdue, Indiana. Dramatics has always been one of her favorite recreations.

As for her poetry, she was charmingly modest as she admitted that a few pieces have been published. While attending school she wrote for her school paper but now she writes for her own enjoyment.

Several trophies and cups have been awarded her for swimming in high school and college. At present her favorite sports are archery, swimming, tennis, hockey, and mountain climbing. She served on the national basketball committee for three years.

B.S. from Washington

Miss Keller received her B.S. at the University of Washington at Seattle in 1924 and her M.A. at Columbia in 1932. At Washington she was elected to "The Mortar Board," an honorary senior society of very high standing to which just a few of every senior class are elected. She is a member of the Delta Gamma sorority.

She has taught in Monterey (in 1925), Ceco State University, Bellingham State Teachers, Berkeley (in 1928), and was head of the health department in the University of Purdue, Indiana.

Composer Of Victory Song Writes Hymn

The "Lady in Red" confesses! Jeanne Anderson, one of the college's most versatile song writers, has a passion for Hershey's chocolate. In case you didn't read page four of last week's Guardsman, you may not know the reason for her fame—she has written four songs which we soon may be singing. An "Alma Mater Song," "Pep Song," "Victory Song," and "Fight Song" are the titles and the first has an original melody!

Versatile Singer

She started writing songs when a mere infant in high school; after joining a girls' trio she seems to have taken a dislike to their songs or "somethin'," anyway she wrote some for herself. Sings in quartettes, in churches, over the radio, and around school. Her newest, still under construction, is "Alma Mater Hymn" and will be published soon.

Vivacious Jeanne is a physical education major, specializing in tennis. If you could really classify her interests, sports would be first, but many other things are in the running. Dramatics, journalism (she's on the women's staff of the Guardsman), and collecting tennis balls and numerals. She has 13 of the latter and has won them all herself.

Mills Transfer

A transfer from Mills and a graduate of Fremont High School in Oakland, where she was the first girl student body president in eight years and re-elected for a second term, at that, she is also one of our few sophomores.

If your ambitions run towards song writing too, she says, as a tip, she writes the words first.

Women's Dean Asked To Fill Twelve Posts

Women Sought for Positions in Private Residences Doing Housework

Women interested in getting room, board and some compensation are asked to see Miss Pence. There are twelve jobs open in homes to do housework and care for children. Also there are eight more openings for those women who do not need room and board, but who can earn money by doing work of a similar type and live at home.

All of the jobs offered under the NYA have been filled, that is, 168 students have been placed on jobs connected with the junior college. The reason for only that number being employed is because of orders from Washington that just 12 per cent of all the registered students (those carrying twelve or more units) can be placed. However, it is possible that there will be occasional openings whenever an employed student withdraws either because of leaving school or because of being no longer in need of financial assistance. Only students between the ages of 16 and 25 are eligible for application.

Miss Pence is now waiting for reports to come from Washington, and as soon as they arrive the men and women now working will be asked to hand in the record of the hours they have worked in order to receive their pay. Until then she can do nothing, but she says she hopes the directions will be here soon.

WOMEN EYE FALL HATS

By Louise Corica

Three cheers for fall hats! This season there is such a variety that everyone can find the hat that she wants. So come on, now, girls; pick your bats.

Any girl who likes to peek out mysteriously at her beau through her sly-looking veil should be sure to get a hat with a veil. Be sure it's a small hat. There are lots and lots of types.

If you want a hat to wear with your fur-trimmed coat, get one of those new fur-trimmed hats with fur matching that on your coat.

On that date with a soldier, show him your loyalty and respect and wear a military hat.

The forward movement in hats is increasing with bows, bows, and more bows on turbans, and off-the-face halo effects.

Gloves, hat and scarf to match are beginning to be seen around Paris. So let's go Parisienne!

The predominant colors in millinery are black and brown, of course, and following them come navies, rust, dubonet, and lots of bright colors.

A black felt chin-strap pill-box hat with a red plume is not only very exciting, but very different.

A brown tricorn velour hat accents the Renaissance with a jewel clip motif and an angular crown.

And last but by no means least, contrast your hats with your outfits for a striking appearance and remember impressions linger.

Start Physical Education Work: Plan Varied Courses

Regular women's gym classes start this week with over 500 students enrolled for the various courses. There will be six sections of tennis given on Monday, Wednesday and Friday with Miss Keller and Miss Weber instructing; one soccer section on Monday and Friday with Miss Keller in charge, and there is to be one riding section with Miss Laurine Cune as riding mistress, in addition to Miss Spencer's swimming sections.

Miss Vera Spencer, swimming instructor, is anxious to contact all the girls who are interested in a life-saving course to be held in conjunction with the regular swimming classes. Inquire at the P. E. office in women's gym.

The first semester students take the introductory course of games, rhythm of dancing and posture, but until the advanced courses are filled they are permitted to also enroll in them without credit. Many students have enrolled in the advanced courses for outside recreational work.

For the women who are not physically strong enough to take the regular physical education courses, restricted classes are being held.

Editors Flee Still More Attacks By Etiquette Hounds

DEAR ED.:

What do you do when some girl thinks you're the mint? After a dance the other night I suggested we get something to eat; consequently I am doing without my lunches this week, and lucky at that.—HUNGRY.

DEAR HUNGRY:

I hope the young damsel taught you a lesson. If you had been wise you'd have said, politely but firmly, "Say, who told you I was a banker, anyhow?" and steered for a place where the shakes were good. Now that you have dieted for a week, I hope you will take this editor's advice and try out a new girl for the next dance—one who has heard of jobs, and other such weighty subjects.—EDITOR.

DEAD ED.:

How do you introduce a girl to a fellow around school?—ANN.

DEAR ANN:

You always present the boy to the girl. The formal way would be, "Miss Smith, may I present Mr. Jones?" or "Miss Smith, Mr. Jones" letting the inflection of your voice substitute for the "may I present." But, due to the informal air that prevails around school, "Mary, you know Bill Jones, don't you?" is really the smoother way of doing it.—ED.

Fireplace Engineers

Norman Pederson, the only fireplace engineer in the West, is making good use of his occupation while attending University of California at Berkeley.

Pederson has supervised the rebuilding of the fireplaces in the International House this fall. He stated that the fireplace in the Henry Morse Stephens Memorial room in Stephens Union was beautiful but would not heat a room.

The fireplace engineer started studying fireplaces and their construction six years ago while attending San Bernardino Junior College. In a short time he had a thriving business as advisor to builders, architects and home owners.

Women Leaders

"I like my coffee strong and my women weak." That was man's ideal, but since then times have changed. The occupations women now enjoy require labor as strenuous as that of digging ditches. Since "variety is the spice of life," the college girl, in selecting her career, should have no dull moments. Among the most interesting, perhaps the MOST interesting, are the arts. Included are architecture, the fine arts, commercial arts, costume designing, interior decorating, and the stage, screen and opera.

Architecture has been considered primarily a man's vocation. That women can also become eminent architects has been proved by the work of Marcia Mead, member of the American Institute of Architects. Mary MacKinnon's success as a commercial artist disproves the old belief that a woman is unfit to become a proficient. No one can dispute Miss MacKinnon's skill. Men are generally thought to be more adept at designing than women. Fifi Wurzweiler, designer and foreign buyer of the Edward L. Mayer Company, has risen to supreme heights in her profession.

Women were once limited to the home. It was believed that if a woman turned her attention to other affairs, she must naturally slacken her hold on her home. That this is not so has been revealed time and again by women well known in world affairs. They have achieved the greatest heights in their professions and yet the task for which they were created has remained their supreme achievement.

Gridders Battle U.S.F. To Standstill; Break Gives Frosh 7-0 Win

Only Sustained Drive Gives Don 'Babes' Tally to Win Encounter

Guisti Stars as Ball Carrier; Jaysees Show Power

By George Dunne

Taking advantage of one of the breaks of the game, an alert and hard-fighting University of San Francisco freshman team upset San Francisco Junior College to win a close game 7-0 at U.S.F. stadium last Friday.

The break, which spelled disaster for Coach Russ Sweet's gridmen, came in the third quarter after the Jaysees had completely dominated the play in the first half, both offensively and defensively.

Berges, sensational backfield ace for the Don babes, punted to the "Clippers'" thirty-yard line, where the ball took a bad bounce and touched a Jaysee player.

Guider, center of the Frosh team, recovered the free ball to put the Hilltoppers in position to drive over for the only score of the game.

Surprise Power Counts for Score

The big Green and Gold machine which had sputtered and missed fire throughout the entire first half, seemed suddenly transformed as they shifted into high gear and launched their surprise attack to travel the remaining distance and send Berges crashing over on a tricky spinner for a touchdown.

Berges' kicking was an outstanding feature of the day's play. He sent a place kick straight through the uprights to add the extra point.

After this sensational and unexpected drive the Jaysees seemed to solve the tactics of Bob Kleckner's eleven and stopped the attack cold for the remainder of the last half.

College Shows Power Surges

San Francisco came back strong and almost put over a touchdown in the fourth quarter as they penetrated deep into the Hilltoppers' territory three times, only to be halted by an inspired defense.

The powerful Red and White gridmen put fear into the hearts of U. S. F. adherents with their last desperate fourth quarter attack. Standing in the shadow of his own goal posts, Cassino started the drive by rifling a bullet pass straight down the center complete to Allen on the 30-yard marker. An exchange of kicks followed and the Clippers drove to the Frosh 25-yard line before an interception gave the Dons the ball on their own 15.

Berges kicked out beautifully, but Sweet's men resumed their wide-open aerial game to pass their way to the enemy 21-yard line, where another interception halted them short of the goal line.

Team Loses Battle to Time

Desperate in their attempts to score, the Clippers fought a losing battle with old man Time. Olberg dropped back and tossed a nice pass to Scafani, who ran down the field to be knocked out of bounds on the Hilltoppers' 7-yard line. The Jaysees, with hard plunging Tom Mauer out of the lineup, were unable to punch the ball over and the Dons kicked out as the gun ended the game.

Despite the defeat the Junior College eleven really looked good. For the first time this season the running attack started to function smoothly. In the first quarter reverses featuring Eltringham and Guisti plus terrific power plunges by Mauer carried S. F. J. C. to midfield, where a fumble lost 7 yards and ended the drive.

Some of effectiveness of the Jaysee attack was lessened when Eltringham and Mauer were forced to retire early in the game.

Backfield Men Show Sparkle

The new backfield combination of Russ Sweet's seems to click well, Eltringham and Cassino looked especially effective on the few occasions when they were able to break into the open and demonstrate their running ability. Guisti showed considerable power and drive, and seemed to be the most consistent ground gainer. His work at safety showed up well and on one occasion he returned a punt 30 yards.

The wide-open passing predicted by Sports Editor Tim Guiney materialized in the last quarter of the game and almost resulted in a score. With such passers as Cassino and Eltringham the Red and White aerial game should prove a constant threat to all future opponents.

Defensively the Jaysee line leaves little to be desired, both in fight and ability. Testifying to the toughness of the Red and White forward wall are the statistics which show that the Freshmen failed to bang up a first down in the first half and were held to five in the second part of the game.

Improvement Seen In Work of Center

Another incident that may have great bearing on the Clippers' future success in the gridiron wars can be noted in the greatly improved work of Jambruno at center. His defensive ability could never be denied and his ball passing is improving considerably with each game.

SPORTS COMMENT

By TIM GUINEY

Needed—A Spark Plug on the Team

Well, again our gridders outclassed their opponents, and again they finished on the short end of the score.

I don't know for certain just what was wrong — they looked swell when they started passing their way down the field. Daring, wide-open play, that thrilled the comparatively few spectators that attended.

They would advance to the fifteen or twenty yard stripe. Then, somehow, things would seem to go haywire. Not that the team didn't try—they gave their all for dear old Alma Mater—but it wasn't enough.

My own impression was that when they got within a certain distance of the goal line, they suddenly found out they didn't know what to do with the ball.

Much as I dislike to use those hackneyed terms "if," and "it might have been," I can't resist saying this much: "If George Clarke (who was injured in the Marin skirmish) was in that game at halfback, I am almost sure that our footballers would have scored at least once, and possibly more times than that."

But, as I said before, the word "if" is involved in there, and the game is already gone. So, since the truth or falsity of that statement can never be proved, I can only give my reasons for having made it.

In my opinion, the U. S. F. line would have been helpless against a shifty, deceptive ball carrier of the Clarke type. As it was, our off-tackle and guard plunges were of little avail against the decidedly heavier line of the opposing team.

On passes our gridders were clicking fine. But when the ball was put in scoring position, it was another story. They could no longer continue to throw the ball around wildly in the air, for the opposing backfield was in too close to the play.

So the result was, a few agonizing smashes at the line, a pass with a player knocked down by an opposing back, and the Don babes again took possession of the ball.

If I were handing out orchids or bouquets to any of the gridders who played in last Friday's encounter, I know who two of them would be for.

Number one would be for Quarterback Tony Scafani, the "little guy" who once again proved the old adage that "dynamite comes in small packages," and Roy Kurtz, the tackle and game captain, who continually kept the opposing ball carriers "biting the dust."

Also, if I were handling out brickbats, I'd give them to all those dopes who have been around all this week, chirping: "How'd the U. S. F. game come out?"

They ought to drop out and see a game once in a while.

This Student Card Business

If you remember, last week in this column we ran a complaint about how Jaysee student body cards were not being honored at college games.

All the students who complained to us about this subject referred mainly to the game between the University of Santa Clara and the University of San Francisco.

We have been since informed that Saint Mary's College accepted all student body cards in their game with Nevada, and will continue to do so when they encounter College of the Pacific tomorrow at Kezar Stadium.

Our informant also adds that Saint Mary's is going to bend every effort to see that J. C. cards will be accepted in its game with U. S. F. . . .

ATHLETES IN CHINA

The students of Chinese universities go in for athletics in a big way, and in other respects Chinese university life is much like that in the United States. This is stated by Dr. Ira J. Condit, associate professor of subtropical horticulture in the University of California at Los Angeles, who has just completed a year of teaching in Lingnan University, Canton.

Roos Bowl Shows Action Pictures to Bleacher Coaches

For the benefit of those who are not able to attend their favorite football games over the week-end, the Roos Bowl is now showing official moving pictures of these encounters.

The bowl is located in the Roos Bros. store at the corner of Stockton and Market Streets, and admission is free to all.

These pictures are shown daily during the full time that the store stays open. All of the major bay area games are photographed, and it is a good place to settle those arguments about how Joe Bush played at tackle, and how Pete Smith made a 90-yard run in the last play of the game to win for dear old Rutgers.

FLASH!

Tom Wilson, prominent member of the Jaysee coaching staff, was seriously injured when he collided with a tackling dummy post late Wednesday while chasing a football.

Wilson was taken to a near-by emergency hospital, where it was revealed he has a slight concussion of the brain.

San Jose Frosh Game

boys are concentrating on an aerial attack, and really figure on "goin' to town" when they tackle those Spartan youngsters before the thousands of San Jose fans that won't be there.

Spartan Coach Says Team May Win

Bill Portal, who bosses the frosh down in the prune-growing vicinity, claims that his junior Spartans will give the Jaysee team a darn good battle and may even beat them.

But this writer doesn't agree with him. (Not that it makes any difference, but I thought I might just as well tell you.) I can't see how our Rams can miss winning by at least two touchdowns.

This gala battle will be staged as a preliminary to the game between San Jose State Varsity and McKinley High of Honolulu, which should be a lulu, if you don't mind the pun.

The first encounter will start sharply at 12 o'clock, and the Bay-shore highway is as good a place to hitch-hike as any.

Starting Lineup From San Jose Camp

The frosh starting lineup will probably be: Rocca, Price, ends; Ford, Saunders, tackles; Dinsmore, Ferreira, guards; J. Anderson, center; Akron, quarterback; Favor, Boggs, halfbacks; Rios, fullback.

Athletes Protest Title; Seek Use of 'Rams' as Name

Protests against the name "Clippers" as applied to the athletic teams of the college have come in so fast that further continuance of the name has been made impossible.

The athletes prefer to have themselves known as the "Rams," and this sports department will co-operate with them in the use of this term.

Red and White was voted upon and accepted as the official colors of the new Powell Street college.

SAILING THROUGH THE NEWS

BY THE NEWS EDITOR

"Millions of readers are waiting to enjoy the meanderings of a contented mind, ready to smile in quiet appreciation with a scribbler who leisurely unfolds his random thoughts," wrote O. O. McIntyre recently, in prophesying a new era for columnists.

What, we wonder, has Mr. McIntyre been doing but that for the last few years?

"Leisurely unfolding random thoughts" is the most pleasant way of writing. Whether college students would prefer to read such "meanderings" is, however, something else again; for, as a rule, the only well-perused column of a college publication is the so-called hog-wallow column, dirt dope, scavenger section, or under whatever caption it may appear.

Not Dead, but in Ethiopia?

Hardly a columnist today does not devote considerable space to the current Italo-Ethiopian situation. An interesting possibility that I have not yet seen in print is the rumor that the recent tragic death of diminutive, mysterious Lawrence of Arabia was a shrewdly faked story, perpetrated in order to keep him permanently out of the limelight.

Instead of enjoying the rest of death, the rumor declares, the little man who led thousands of Arabs to success against the Turks in the recent world war is now in the employ of the British government organizing the sons of the Conquering Lion of Judah for successful guerrilla warfare against the minions of the Iron Dictator.

No One Is to Blame

Certainly the big news of this week is the sanctioning by the college administration of extra-curricular activities. Interesting have been the rumors that have pervaded the campus since the ban was officially announced.

The students cannot be blamed, for they were given no explanation. The administration cannot be blamed, for it was busy with matters of greater importance to the institution. The ironing out of this difficulty probably culminates the last major step in the actual organization of the college.

Students May Use Galileo Caf.

That college students may eat in the Galileo High School cafeteria was officially ascertained this week through an announcement of Miss Virginia Bartlett, cafeteria supervisor.

Hot luncheons are served up to 1 o'clock P.M. and cold luncheons may be obtained as late as 2:30 in the afternoon, Miss Bartlett states. Students may also use the cafeteria for studying after the rush hour.

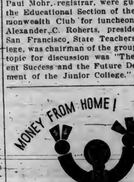
Chess Club Is To Meet Today, 3:30

An organization meeting of the college Chess Club will be held at 3:30 o'clock this afternoon in room 358, Galileo Building, under the sponsorship of Mr. Henry J. Ralston, faculty advisor for the new group.

Good material and competition are expected by Mr. Ralston, as the local high schools have had organized chess teams. The college team will be eligible to the Northern California Chess League, of which the University of California is a member.

Luckmann, Colligan Aid Student Heads



Appointment of Mr. Lloyd Luckmann and Mr. Francis J. Colligan as a committee of two on A. S. S. F. J. C. constitutions was made by Dean Edwin C. Browne last Wednesday.

This committee will prepare a provisional constitution for Fall semester which will be submitted within the next ten days to the student executive committee, which will be composed of the A. S. S. F. J. C. executives, the president and representatives from the four classes.

The final constitution will be based on the research and work of the members of Political Science 51 (Introduction to the Principles of Public Administration), under the direction of Mr. Luckmann. It will be submitted, as previously planned, just prior to the Christmas holidays.

On Wednesday, October 8, President Cloud, Dean Leonard, and J. Paul Mohr, registrar, were guests at the Educational Section of the Commonwealth Club for luncheon. Dr. Alexander C. There are also those who are not taking some or one of the courses for which they are officially registered.

Attention of all such students is called to the regulation on page twelve of the Circular of Information regarding change of program and the conditions which must be fulfilled.

After a student's program has been approved and filed with the Registrar, no change is permitted without the approval of the Registrar. First Social Affair Set For Gold Room As Bid Rates Named

Student Card Holders Get Reduction In Price on Admissions; Date Bureau Functioning to Facilitate Dance

"No stags or tuxedos allowed," said Jimmie Neal as he discussed the plans and committees for the first official college dance to be held next Friday night at the Palace Hotel.

The dance is to be a semi-formal and only couples who have obtained their bids before Friday evening will be admitted, the social committee decreed.

The bids went on sale last Wednesday morning at both The Guardsman office at 540 Powell Street and also the ticket booth at Galileo High. They are of an unusual nature, the bid and the program to the dance are sold at the same time. The actual receipt for the bid is the envelope that contains the program. These envelopes will be taken by the doorman on entering the Gold Ballroom.

Bids Chosen

The programs and bids were chosen by the bid committee, a subdivision of the social committee. Bill Weinstock is the chairman of the group and has been very active in obtaining attractive programs using the college colors of red and white.

For the students who are not well enough acquainted around the campus, a date bureau is being conducted in conjunction with the college office to be held next Friday evening at the Palace Hotel. The office of the bureau is located in the Guardsman office down at the Extension Building. All applications are strictly confidential and satisfaction guaranteed!

Talent Hunted

Miss Inez St. Ledger is in charge of the "quest for talent" contest with the winners appearing at intermission numbers during the evening. This contest is open to any member of the college. The winners will also receive free bids to the dance. There is no limit set as to the type of entertainment that will be presented. Auditions will be held in the lecture hall on the third floor of the Extension Building at 1 o'clock Monday afternoon. The judges of the auditions working in conjunction with Miss St. Ledger are Dorothy Roberts, Allan Kohlik and Bennett McGuire and several members of the faculty.

Attractive posters have been made by Miss Donna McPherson and Deming Smith as part of the work done by the publicity committee.

The admission price of the dance will be $1.00 with a student body card and $1.50 without a student body card. Bids may be purchased from any member of the bid committee up until Friday afternoon, October 25.

Skull and Blade Holds Meeting Today at One

Meeting today at Galileo Cafeteria, the Skull and Blade Society will continue discussion of plans for that group.

Although the purposes and incentives of the organization remain the same, the group has changed its title name, to the Skull and Blade Society from the Service Club, according to reports from the society's constitutional committee. The committee is composed of Al Hipshman, Frank Pederson, Ray Brunn, Bill Ellis and Faculty Advisor Mr. Lloyd D. Luckmann.

Board Pushes Hunt For New College Sites

Sunset District Leads Race as Most Likely Place for Proposed Campus

Taking active steps in the choice of a site for the new junior college, members of the San Francisco Board of Education are now considering various proposed locations throughout the city.

In an article released through the San Francisco Chronicle early this week, President C. Harold Caulfield of the board stated: "While we are considering several sites, that piece of property located at Twentieth Avenue and Quintara Street is the only properly belonging to the city which is suitable for a modern college campus. The fact that the city has an investment of over $250,000 at that location will probably be of some importance in the final determination of the school site."

The land at Quintara Street covers four square blocks and was purchased by the Board of Education ten years ago in anticipation of an emergency such as that which now confronts the City of San Francisco.

Situated on high ground, the grounds command a view of both the ocean and the bay in clear weather.

News Editor Asks Staff Meet

Attendance at a meeting of the news staff of The Guardsman this afternoon at 4:30 o'clock in the north library, Galileo building, is urged by William Rawson, news editor.

Women Form A.W.S.With Dean Leonard As Advisor; Plan Joining State Body

Unanimously voting to organize a San Francisco Junior College Women's Student Association, 200 women students met last Wednesday at the Galileo cafeteria.

The meeting, suggested weeks ago by Jean Copestone, prominent co-ed leader, was called to order by Dr. Eugenie Leonard, dean of women.

In addressing the group, Dean Leonard said: "This Women's Association will undoubtedly be one of the most potent forces in the college. There are various activities in which it can engage when once organized, and I believe that the women should be represented on the Student Council.

"Next year we shall have both Women's and Men's Associations, governed separately. We plan to have a universal student body, with membership entitling students to the two groups according to sex."

The women plan to take steps to join the state-wide confederation of college Associated Women's groups, and already leaders anticipate sending representatives to the Santa Rosa convention of the state body.

A list of proposed social activities was suggested by Miss Copestone, in which were included a big sister party, charity work, a co-eds' dance, and a mothers' tea or a dads' dinner.

A nomination committee headed by Patty Wells met this morning in conjunction with a constitution committee to decide on the government of the body.

The next meeting will be held next Wednesday in Galileo auditorium, at 1:15 o'clock.

Club Members Seek Charter From Pitman

Journalist Group Plan To Affiliate with National Society

Plans for the formation of a Press Club were completed last Wednesday, when students prominent in College journalism addressed a request for a charter to Mr. Paul Pitman, assistant to the president.

Plan Organization

Meeting under the direction of Mr. Francis J. Colligan, editorial adviser of The Guardsman, the group decided that the organization was to be in the nature of an honor society for meritorious work on student publications. The group will have more practical aims, however, for it plans to establish contact with metropolitan newspaper men and so secure valuable information and training in the solution of their journalistic problems.

As soon as the charter for the organization is granted, steps will be taken to affiliate it with a national journalistic honor society.

Colligan Sponsors

Among those who attended the first meeting of the press group were J. O. Goodell, William Rawson, Tim Gulney, Jean Copleistone, and Bill Buchan. Mr. Colligan signed the charter request as sponsor.

STAFF MEETS

A meeting of the editorial staff of The Guardsman has been called for today at 1:15. It will be held in the North Library.

Grid Leader Speaks For Game Rally

Leaders From State at Pre-Game Pep Meeting of S.F. Student Body

Dance and College Song Given Place on Program

Marking the first official gathering at which Associated Student officers presided, a booster rally to promote the football game with S. F. State and the dance to be given next Friday was held yesterday afternoon in the Galileo auditorium at 2:15 o'clock. President Bennett McGuire presided.

Featured as a guest speaker, Lloyd Yoder, secretary-treasurer of the Football Referees' Association of the Pacific Coast, spoke on college football and its need of support from students.

Also as guest speakers, President Edward Morgan, Yell Leader Bob Link, and Captain-for-the-day of the Teachers' Eleven, George Vordonaff addressed the Associated Students here.

Introduce Stars

Coach Russell Sweet introduced the local gridders who will be in the starting lineup for tomorrow's fray.

Allan Kohlik, treasurer, urged all students to attend tomorrow's game, and told how holders of student body cards will receive dividends on their $3.00 investment.

James Neal, vice-president, gave his little inter talk to urge support of the college dance to be held next Friday night at the Palace Hotel. Neal also explained the functions of the newly formed date bureau, and recommended its use by "unattached Romeos."

School Song Heard

Bill Kennedy and Jim Faha led the student body in an attempt to teach it the college song. The song was first sung by the Men's Glee Club, under the directorship of Miss Flossita Badger.

Kennedy and Faha also interspersed the rally with pep and appreciation yells.

Students Shy At Facing Camera To Finish Registering

Of nearly 1500 students here, it is startling to find that 400 apparently are camera-shy.

This fact was revealed when Virginia Bornmueller, photographer, announced that slightly over 1000 students have had the necessary registration photo taken, with the remaining 400 completely unheard from.

The photographer has been in Room 401, Galileo Building, every afternoon. Next week, however, the time and place to complete this necessary phase of registration will have to be ascertained in the college office.

The administration no longer urges lax students to be photographed. Failure to comply with regulations merely means that offenders will have to take the consequences, the administration declared.

A few of the students already photographed will have to appear for retakes as soon as possible. Miss Bornmueller has also announced. They are: Glen Allan, David Dworkis, Charles Quast, Conrado Oller, Charles Guilder, Victor Guilder, R. Schneider, Francis Burkey, Maurice Abend, Ed Ekierad.

Point For State In Game; Contest Set For Kezar Stadium

Rams Promise to Forget Spartan Debacle as They Get Set for Gaters; Look to Los Angeles Encounter

By Tim Guiney

Our Rams didn't increase the old batting average by much last week, but it didn't drop much either. It seems that the Prune Growers Association of San Jose and all points west got together and decided they weren't going to let their young Spartans take it on the chin from any of these slickers from San Francisco.

So they inspired the boys to go out and fight for the honor of the California prunes (which, I am informed, are nothing but plums that didn't live right) and the freshmen certainly fought. But who wouldn't, with an ideal like that to battle for?

Game at Kezar

Tomorrow afternoon the Rams stay in San Francisco and tangle with the Golden Gaters of San Francisco State College.

The Gaters have been bragging for a long time how they have two coaches on their team, and the time somebody took them down a peg. They have two coaches, ha! The joyous today has five.

Two Stars Out

Hal Harden and Dan Farmer, the co-coaches of the Staters, are temporarily in a bad fix, what with the loss of Ralph Nathan and Ray Kaufman due to injuries. It all happened in the game with Chico State, the country boys adding insult to injury by winning 25 to 0. Last Saturday the Staters battled it out with the Mare Island Apprentices, and finished in a 2-2 tie, which would be an odd score in any man's ball game.

In Bill Harkness they have a passer who is really dangerous. Along with doing all of the bombing

Workers Get Long Awaited Salary Slips

Youth Administration Pay Checks Ready to Hand Out Within Week

Pay checks for NYA workers, long awaited at this college, will probably be distributed next week, according to Miss Edith Pence, NYA administrator for the college.

Official data reports from Washington were filed out by students on Tuesday and Wednesday of this week and will be mailed to government authorities immediately.

Payroll Periods

The first payroll period, as stated in official papers from Washington, will include work done from the beginning of the semester through September 28. The next payroll will be based on work done from September 30 to October 28, inclusive. Checks will be distributed through Miss Pence's office.

In the future, Miss Pence will require a time report weekly from each student working under the NYA.

Work Part Time

Beginning for the second period, students will work only half time, as printed in last week's Guardsman. This was necessitated by the government's inability to grant this school an appropriation of its own. Normally, S. F. J. C. would not have benefited at all, no provision being included in the NYA draft for new colleges. Through co-operation of local authorities, however, the college will benefit on a half-time basis from the unused NYA funds allocated to other colleges in this region.

California Library Opened to Use By J.C. Student Body

Through an arrangement by President A. J. Cloud with the University of California library staff, junior college students will be permitted to use the university library on the Berkeley campus.

The plan was originated in order to establish library facilities for junior colleges commuters in the East Bay, but will also be available to San Francisco students who wish to use the university rooms for research work.

Students will be allowed to use the library only if they identify themselves as San Francisco Junior College students. This can be done with a student body or registration card.

This arrangement applies only to study privileges in the library. Book borrowing privileges may be arranged at a cost of 50 cents per month.

WHERE'S THAT SPIRIT?

Last Saturday at San Jose when our gridders encountered the San Jose State frosh, the most deplorable example of college spirit that could possibly be witnessed was plainly in evidence. Down from San Francisco to support their college football team came approximately fifteen rooters.

Think of it! Fifteen people out of a student body of 1,500! Fifteen people who believed in their team and in their college. Fifteen who aren't just "fair weather" friends.

How can anyone in the college complain about the team when their own student organization won't support them? To that handful of students who did attend the game, we can only offer our heartiest compliments and sincerest thanks. To those who did not it can still be made up through the medium of the game tomorrow afternoon.

San Francisco State College promises to be a worthy opponent for our jaysee gridders. It is really a city championship tilt among smaller institutions. Competition will be keen, so support should be plentiful.

There is no logical reason why the greater majority of students should not be present at tomorrow's fray. The location is Kezar Stadium, the time 2:30 o'clock, and admission will be free to all holders of J.C. Associated Student cards.

Why not give both yourself and your team a break? Go out to Kezar Stadium and root for your college—TO WIN!

Doubtful That Magazine Columnist Knows All About 'His San Francisco'

It might interest Walter H. Krieger, who "browses around the town" for San Francisco Life magazine, to know that U. C. Extension Division has instituted no NEW daytime classes, and even if it did they probably wouldn't approach the grand total of 1,500 attendants.

Krieger, in the October issue of the S. F. Life magazine, authored an article explaining that the Extension Division classes had attained startling proportions. But the writer, who claims to "know his San Francisco," was unaware of the fact that S. F. Junior College occupies the Extension Division quarters every morning.

Whether Mr. Krieger refers to the Campanile or Sather Gate we know not, but nevertheless it probably will be quite a while before anyone moves even Mr. Krieger's imaginary "Sather Tower" to the middle of Powell Street for the benefit of San Francisco Junior College. So Mr. Krieger doesn't know his Powell Street or his Berkeley campus, either.

The College Reads—

The Stars Look Down

A. J. Cronin

Reviewed by Bill Jackson

Taking time off again from his duties, that of an English surgeon, A. J. Cronin again gives novel readers a true picture of mining life in a small English town. The story is directly a problem one, of the rather harassed theme—that of improving working conditions for the poor miner.

Cronin shows through a series of episodes the heartbreaks and the trials of such an undertaking. As in real life undertakings, the miners do not appreciate the efforts that are being made to better their conditions.

The love interest comes in when the hero of the tale, David Fenwick, marries one of the town girls, Jenny. She brings him only despair and tragedy by finally running away with one of the London playboys, Joe Gowlan. It is Gowlan who at last rescues our hero and buys the bankrupt mine so that Fenwick can still go on and try his mine improvement scheme.

The story reaches the melodramatic in several places, first when Jenny is about to depart from this sad and tragic world and a former sweetheart of David tries to save her life. The other piece of melodrama is the mine cave-in and the men await death. They have just about given up hope; even their candle no longer will burn from lack of oxygen, when the dashing hero, David, risks his life in order to save them.

It is an entertaining novel, despite its deficiencies, and would well be worth reading for relaxation. It would be an intensely interesting book for one who was a bit upset on the social conditions of the working class. To your reviewer's point of view, the book would have been much more powerful if the proverbial happy ending hadn't been there. It seems that reformers never receive their laurels in this life and very often do not have the second chance to try their scheme.

College Use of The Galileo Cafe OK'd

College students MAY use the Galileo cafeteria, not only as a place in which to eat, but also as a hall for studying after the rush hour, as stated in last week's Guardsman, a check-up with high school and college offices revealed.

The investigation was made by the news staff after reports reached The Guardsman office the college students had been told that they were not to be allowed the use of the cafeteria.

63 Per Cent Work Their Way at UCLA

Sixty-three per cent of the men students registered at the University of California in Los Angeles worked their way either partly or wholly through school last year, according to figures prepared by Dr. Earl Joyce Miller, dean of men. The students who worked for their education made grades a trifle better than those who did not work, Dr. Miller said.

Whittier College has conferred upon the big-mouthed actor, Joe E. Brown, a degree—Doctor of Mirth.

PROF-O-GRAFS

(In accordance with the policy of this paper to present short, biographical sketches of the members of the faculty, this article is published in order to better familiarize the students with their teachers. The following is the fifth of a series. Watch for them each week.)

Declining to give his age because he agrees with Professor Pitkin that a person is "as old as he feels," Mr. Walter D. Forbes, genial science instructor here, presented an interesting and versatile account of himself in an interview granted to your reporter yesterday.

Chemical research, private patent work, industrial experience, are all included in the history of Mr. Forbes.

Born in Utah, a graduate of Ogden High School, Mr. Forbes came west to sunny California to continue his education at Stanford, where he received his A.B. and A.M. degrees in science.

Gets Post

Fresh from college, he took a position as chief chemist and assistant superintendent for a large western beet sugar factory, with which he stayed for ten years. Leaving the industrial job behind him, he joined the faculty of his alma mater, Ogden High, where he taught science for a year. Teaching as a profession appealed to Mr. Forbes, so he packed up and returned to California, where he was put on the teaching staff at Oakland High School.

After teaching two years at Oakland, Forbes spent seven years as principal of different schools in the same city.

When the war broke out, he was appointed director of vocational war work in the Oakland schools and director in charge of war work in the five evening high schools. At the same time Mr. Forbes was active in organizing war classes in the industries. All these duties ran concurrently with his position as principal.

Sees Action

As the war progressed, he joined the Army Educational Corps and sailed for France, where he was superintendent of instruction for the army in the Haussimont Marne area.

At the end of the war Forbes returned to the commercial field. He was employed as an expert in swimming pool sanitation and as a chemist for the National Lacquer Company. But soon the nostalgia of education struck him, and he left for New York. There he took up the duties of a co-ordinator in the college of the City of New York, working under the United States Veterans' Bureau. In this capacity he had supervision of the educational training of 450 disabled veterans. He studied at Columbia U. while in New York. After a year in the East he returned to San Francisco and continued the veterans' work.

Nine years ago he joined the San Francisco public school system; he taught at Lowell just prior to joining the J. C. faculty.

Mr. Forbes has a modern scientific laboratory at his San Francisco home, where he has been working for the last eight years doing chemical research in the field of perfumes and cosmetics. He has made several trips to Europe investigating these fields, and has made some notable advancements and valuable discoveries with relation to the above.

He is interested in inventions as well, with eight patents to his credit. Among these is a racing swimmer's suit, which was sold extensively in the Argentine Republic.

"Naturally, without the proper facilities, our science classes are hampered," said Mr. Forbes, when asked his opinion of the college. "But I think this shortcoming is counterbalanced by the fine co-operative spirit of the students."

LOUDSPEAKER LOWDOWN

By JAY O'GEE

TIME MARCHES BACKWARDS! So here we are again. Pardon us while we do a bit of gloating. True to our prediction Ray Noble is returning to the air. The date is October 26, and the chain is Columbia, whose S. F. outlet is KFRC.

That new radio flicker "Thanx A Million," now in production, will also have Fred Allen, Portland Hoffa, Dick Powell, Ann Dvorak, and Patsy Kelly, in addition to Whiteman and Rubinoff as mentioned last week.

We have to adopt this fad of moaning—other alleged critics and would-be columnists seem to overdo that—but we do wish to register a few complaints which we feel will meet with your approval. So, in the words of Bill Hay, "here they are": Among the vocalists whose renditions can only be classed as SAD (and we don't mean the song itself, either), are Michael Bartlett, on the J. Benny show, and Carlotta King, on the Your Program hour. Why, in the name of things and stuff, do the authorities air the voices of such phonies when there are loads of talented amateurs waiting to be recognized? So we herehy nominate M. Bartlett and C. King for oblivion.

Henry Ford, the most conservative of the radio advertisers, paid $100,000 (yeah, a hundred grand) for the World's Series b'casts, and the sponsor was only mentioned twice on each program.

While in England the Boswell Sisters recorded Lullabye of Broadway and Fare Thee Well Annabelle with three members of Ambrose's band. Martha Boswell plays the piano and the rhythm section consists of guitar, bass and drums.

Illini Cheers Superintendent

An Illinois superintendent of schools was recently given an ovation when he declared that good looks would be the major requirement of his teaching staff. The feminine contingent of that town is wondering if he meant that the masculine teachers were to be included in that category.

Indiana Goes Psychological

Indiana U. is trying an experiment in psychology that may prove of great importance to all those that are interested in getting their beauty naps in the classroom. At that institution half of the "psyc" class are standing and half are sitting, both being watched to determine which will make the better grades.

An Old American Custom, hmm!

Students of the Forum Club of San Mateo Junior College will assume the rostrum and become auctioneers when that institution holds a carnival in the near future. Following the old American custom, they will endeavor to auction anything and everything.

Earthquakes and Such Bother San Bernardino

Surveys were recently made of the proposed site for a new junior college at San Bernardino when it was discovered that an earthquake fault runs parallel to the land. So the good people decided to investigate before having their buildings shaken down.

Illinois Daily Puts Editor in His Place

The college editor should make a distinction between himself and his job, says the Daily Illini. The job is important; he is not. The editorship is as responsible a position, in its potential power to help or harm the college, as the presidency of the institution.

The editor, unless he is a child prodigy, must proceed thoughtfully and with due regard for the errors of his predecessors if he is properly to fulfill that responsibility.

Women's Gym Groups Start Sports Work

Tennis, Riding Hold Interest of Physical Education Departments

Women's physical education classes started last week with a large number of girls participating in the various sport activities offered by the W.A.A. this semester.

Interested groups of beginning and advanced tennis players turned out at Funston Field last week for the first class meetings. The Funston tennis courts are reserved for the junior college classes with time and coaches as listed:

List Schedule

M. W.—10:15-10:45 Miss Weber
M. W.—10:45-11:15 Miss Weber
T. Th.—10:15-10:45 Miss Keller
T. Th.—10:45-11:15 Miss Keller
W.—2:00-2:30—F.—1:00-1:30 Miss Keller
W.—2:30-3:00—F.—1:30-2:00 Miss Keller

The Lombard pool, Lombard and Mason streets, was the meeting place of a large number of junior college women desiring either to learn to swim or to improve their strokes. Miss Spencer coaches the swimming classes which are held T. and Th.—10:15 to 11:15 and from 1:30 to 2:40. Miss Spencer will also instruct the newly organized class of modern dance, which is to meet T. and Th.—4:30 to 5:30. The class will be based on the German dance, including both interpretive and creative work.

Riding Starts

Those girls interested in riding met last Friday at the San Francisco Riding Academy, Stanyan and Haight streets, for their first class meeting. Class hours, which are under the supervision of Miss Kuhn, will be definitely announced when girls have completed signups stating their preferences for the time of riding.

Girls interested in signing up for any of the above activities are encouraged to do so during the afternoon hours at Galileo High School.

Newspaper Appreciation Week is being recognized throughout California by all publications this week.

Fashions Make Choice Of New Outfit Simple

Silk, Wool Vie for First Place in Milady's Fall Wardrobe

Louise Corica

Choosing an outfit for a Sunday afternoon affair is a very simple matter. Almost any type of Frise silk or simulated wool is correct.

One of the most practical and suitable dresses for Sunday afternoon occasions is a slate blue or really a Grenadier blue—the color worn by French officers, but only shot with metallic threads; for accent there is a periwinkle crushable velvet collar of the simplest style. The drop shoulder effect gives a new line to the shoulders. The sleeves are long and full. Attractive silver flowers are used as buttons, resembling a shirtmaker style. The skirt is simple in its fullness.

Very Practical

The practicability of this new creation is the fact that it can be worn continuously through the afternoon to Sunday night supper.

A very good-looking ensemble is a brown ribbed wool topped with Kolinsky fur designed in an unusual new treatment. The jacket comes to the waistline with a three-button effect up the front. Vogue featured these three-button jackets and claims them to be the very latest thing. The dress has a brown ribbed wool skirt to match the jacket and the top is of brown metallic buttoning all the way down to the waist. The rolled-over collar and small bow right under the chin give finishing touches to a most striking outfit.

Cellophane Adds Touch

Cellophane streaks in a solid color are a very outstanding feature and something quite new. These "Sunday Afternoons" are shown in the cellophane material and also in the very popular military styles.

And remember materials are the most important features, so in selecting clothes watch for different fabrics.

FLASH

Due to a misunderstanding, it was printed in The Guardsman that smoking was permitted in the girls' dressing room at 540 Powell Street. Dean Leonard has given out the information that smoking down there is also against the state law. Please co-operate.

Women's Dean Finds College As Real Ideal

Miss Pence Well Known to Countless Graduates of High Schools

"First and foremost, I am a San Franciscan through and through," said Miss Pence as she settled down to the business of being interviewed. And then she said proudly that her ambition in life had been fulfilled through this junior college. It seems that she has always been interested in the vocations and educational welfare of high school graduates. The last twelve years of her life have been spent in helping the seniors of Galileo through their last terms and advising them for the future. Now she is just where she wants to be—watching and counseling young college men and women.

During Miss Pence's own period of schooling she attended Crocker Grammar School, Lowell High School and the University of California, where she took the Bachelor's and Master's degrees. She finished her education with study in Europe at the Sorbonne in Paris, and also studied in Madrid, Spain. Previously she had taken a ten weeks' summer course at the University of Mexico.

Prominent at Lowell

At Lowell, Miss Pence's hobbies were athletics, dramatics, and journalism, which she still follows. In the field of sports she was captain of the girls' basketball team and received a Block L. She also was and still is interested in tennis and rowing. Her interest in dramatics was centered around coaching and managing, and under the guidance of none other than the college president, Mr. Cloud, she was stage manager of "The Merchant of Venice" during her senior year. Through her ability to write, she soon became editor and chief of the Lowell paper. From that she went on to become women's editor of The Daily Californian. While attending California she majored in languages, her thesis being in German, and in her junior year she was elected to the Phi Beta Kappa honor society, of which she is now a life member. Immediately after her graduation in 1912 she went back to Lowell as a teacher of languages and director of dramatics. After several years of teaching at Lowell, Miss Pence was transferred to Galileo as head of the language department. Again, in following up her dramatic ability, she handled class productions there.

A Journalist

Now, Miss Pence's continued interest in journalism has led her to write articles for teachers' magazines. Last May an article written by her was published in the "Vocational Guidance Magazine," and when the "Junior College Journal" comes out this year she will also have an article in it about San Francisco Junior College.

AGAINST THE LAW!

It's against the law!!! That alone should be sufficient reason to discontinue this practice, which is certainly not a credit to the intelligence of women students. Smoking in the rest rooms at Galileo High School is the habit in question. It is true, of course, that smoking has been accepted in many of the colleges of the country, but the fact that our college must, for only a short while, be housed in a high school building, presents a serious problem.

It is a State Board of Education law that no tobacco, in any form, be allowed in the building, or on the grounds of any public school. Galileo High School is, of course, a public school of the State of California, and naturally must respect the statutes of the State School Board. The adherence to this law by high school students should certainly be a reminder to our older, and supposedly wiser, collegians. It certainly shouldn't be too much of a hardship to forego the pleasure (?) of a cigarette for just three hours and if that is renouncing too much, there are places outside the vicinity of the school where a fag isn't against the rules.

A.W.S. ASK FOR SUPPORT

The Associated Women Students need your support!!!! That is the S. O. S. which is being sent out to all women students of San Francisco Junior College. The new association, planned as a factor to unify the feminine seekers of education in our institution, will assure equal representation of the women in any affairs concerning that of Associated Students. This is a pioneer activity, without traditions or a history, and the first tradition we want to establish is that every woman in the college stood behind the Woman's Association and supported its every activity since its very beginning. The willingness that women students show to co-operate with one another in the founding of what we hope will soon be a great institution will, in a large measure, influence the standing of the women in the college. It's up to the women collegians, and it is our sincere hope that every interested co-ed will answer the S. O. S. and attend every A. W. S. meeting.

Tennis Club Elects Jeanne Anderson to Vice-President's Post

Jimmy Neal, vice-president of the Associated Students, was elected president of the tennis club at their first official meeting last Wednesday afternoon. Jeanne Anderson, of the women's staff of The Guardsman, was elected to the position of vice-president and Marie McKnight received the office of secretary-treasurer.

Tim Guiney, sport editor of The Guardsman and a member of the College Publicity Bureau, was appointed publicity manager for the club.

A constitutional committee was assigned with Frank Pederson in charge. Other members of the committee are Lillian Conkling, Beth Hillyard, Dorothy Roberts, Milton Durfee, Bob MacArthur and Bob Windhorst.

Study Halls Opened Through Efforts of Student Store Head

According to an announcement by Mr. W. C. Patterson, manager of the Junior College Student Store, study rooms for the exclusive use of San Francisco students are being maintained in the store near to the Powell Street building.

A downstairs room with a seating capacity of seventy students is reserved for college men. The balcony overlooking the main floor is arranged for thirty-five students, women and men, where smoking is permitted.

Mr. Patterson said the study rooms operate with the approval of the college administration and will be continued indefinitely.

SPORTS BRIEFS

Girls taking physical education 1A and who have signed up for an activity away from the school building are required to attend their scheduled physical education classes. The outside activities are only for entering freshmen in addition to the regular class work.

The W. A. A. has received permission to use the Presidio field for archery classes, which are to be organized as soon as it is possible to obtain sufficient equipment.

Rousterous Cheer Greets Editors As Etiquetters Mass

Dear Editor:

Would it be okeh for a group of girls to go stag to the dance on the 25th? DATELESS TRIO.

Dear D. T.:

No, afraid that would be impossible. As plans now stand the girls will go formal and that requires an escort. The only dance you could go stag to would be a sport dance at school. But there is still time for a serious campaign for a date. Even though that fellow behind you in Poly Sci. isn't the captain of the football team, he might be a lot of fun, or see one of the two date bureaus. And that's the purpose of the dance—to get acquainted. ED.

Dear Ed.:

Whose place is it to speak first, the girl's or the fellow's? SNUBBED.

Dear Snubbed:

The girl's . . . but don't forget that many girls are nearsighted and don't snub you intentionally. ED.

"Fumbleitis" Holds Team From Score

Poor Offense Keeps Rams from Pay Dirt in Spartan Frosh Encounter

Conclusively demonstrating the old adage, "You can't win if you haven't got the ball," San Francisco Junior College and the San Jose frosh fought to a scoreless tie before a small group of spectators at San Jose.

Nullifying all of their offensive tactics with poor ball handling, Russ Sweet's gridmen relied on a gallant goal line defense to stave off a possible defeat last Friday.

The combination of Jaysee fumbles and Spartan reverses kept the Franciscans in the proverbial hot water for 29 minutes of the initial half. The first and most serious threat of the Spartan babes materialized when Rios tossed a long pass for a total gain of 37 yards to Griffin, who was stopped on the Rams' three-yard line.

Stout Defense Saves Goal

A forward pass and three plunges into the line found the ball resting complacently on the Rams' one-foot line. Morrison kicked out and Guisti intercepted the Spartans' first pass to carry the Red and White out of dangerous territory. The Franciscans obligingly put themselves on the defensive as Duffield of San Jose recovered an inopportune fumble on the 27-yard line. The entire Franciscan line stopped the next three plays and a desperate attempt at a field goal failed by a wide margin.

The ever-courteous Rams fumbled and handed the ball back to San Jose to give her another chance to score from the 19-yard line. Great defensive work halted the freshmen far short of their goal and the Red and White gridmen took possession of the ball on the 20-yard line.

Finally An Offense!

Having satisfactorily proven their defensive ability, the Rams finally started to make their offense click. With only one minute of play left in the initial half Morrison, Jaysee aerial ace, started bombing tactics which, combined with Guisti's powerful and deceptive running, advanced the ball 70 yards to the Blue and Gold 12-yard marker.

A 15-yard penalty set the ball back to the 27-yard line and deprived Sweet's gridders of an opportunity to score. Undaunted, Morrison completed a pass to the Spartan four-yard line as the gun ended the first half of the battle.

The Jaysees stopped the freshmen cold in the second half, but fumbles kept the Red and White from scoring territory. During this time the Rams showed spasmodic surges of real power, but could not get together in one concentrated drive.

Aerial Game Shows in Spots

The aerial attack, led by Morrison, looked especially good in the closing minutes of both halves. The backfield seemed to lack smoothness, but exhibited a world of possibilities. Clarke and Guisti looked good on running plays and if they get the blocking San Francisco will start scoring touchdowns.

San Francisco Lineup: Ends, Warren and Lee; guards, Murphy and Kremcsec; tackles, Kurtz and Brickley; center, Jambruno; quarterback, Guisti; halfbacks, Morrison and Pantages; fullback, Mauer.

San Jose Freshmen Lineup: Ends, Rocca and Price; guards, Dinsmore and Ferriera; tackles, Ford and Saunders; center, Anderson; quarterback, Akron; halfbacks, Favor and Marino; fullback, Rios.

Coach Sweet Forms Touch-Tackle Teams

Intramural touch-tackle is no longer a would-be, but has become a reality. A touch-tackle meeting was held in the Galileo gym last Friday and plans completed to start the tournament as soon as possible.

Touch-tackle teams will be organized, and everybody taking gym will be eligible to compete. Different names will be chosen for the various teams, and "master minds" will arrange the plays.

The purpose of this tournament is to stimulate interest in gym classes, so that Coach Russ Sweet will be afforded the opportunity of looking over any promising football material which may have been overlooked.

ATHLETIC MENTORS

Relate Story Of Career Of J.C. Leagues

Charter Members Include Chico State, Loyola and Oregon Normal

NOTE: Questions of what league our teams are entering, when it was started, who belongs, and what its purposes are, have come to the office of the sports department.

Through the medium of The Guardsman we will endeavor by a series of articles to tell you its exact function.

On May 7, 1922, a weary but happy group of men gathered around a paper-strewn table and wrote up the constitution for the California athletic conferences. There were representatives from all of the small colleges and junior colleges, who were strongly interested in athletics.

There were charter members from all over the state. They came from as far north as South Normal Oregon to as far south as Loyola in Los Angeles. They included Chico State Teachers', Sacramento J. C., San Jose Teachers' College, San Mateo J. C., Marin J. C., California Polytechnical, and Santa Rosa J. C.

In 1929 the name was changed to the Northern California Junior College Conference. The state was then divided up into three sections—Northern, Central, and Southern California Conferences. When the division was made all of the four-year colleges were dropped from the conference.

At the present time there are eight junior colleges in the conference, soon to include San Francisco Junior College.

Next week we will describe the function of the conference and its purpose.

Team Sports New Red Jerseys on Gridirons

Last week's game marked the first in which the college football squad wore its elected colors of red and white.

Acting on authority of the student body election, the colors were accepted by Dean Edwin C. Browne and Coach Russ Sweet. The team has red shirts with white numerals. Through lack of finance at the present time it will continue to use the yellow pants.

Red and white, as a college color, is common throughout the realms of the gridiron. Many of the outstanding colleges and universities on the west coast have established the combination as a symbol of victory.

Many of the members of the varsity squad expressed their disappointment in the common, yet popular, selection. This is attributed to the prevailing desire for originality.

CAL. STARTS PROJECTS

Allotted appropriations totalling $176,254 from the federal government, nine departments at the University of California commenced work on eight WPA projects this week, according to Prof. S. F. Light, chairman on federal projects at the university.

Departments receiving benefit of the appropriations are chemistry, entomology, bio-chemistry, mechanical and electrical engineering, civil engineering, pathology, jurisprudence, and paleontology.

No students will be employed on the projects, since the WPA employs only full-time workers, according to Prof. Light, and all expenditures, except those for material, will be spent for labor.

SPORTS COMMENT

By TIM GUINEY

I can think of a million things I'd rather do at this moment than write about that San Jose game. (For the benefit of those who haven't found out yet, it was a scoreless tie.)

The foothill team had the jitters, even to put it mildly, and the ball didn't seem to think it belonged on the San Francisco side of the line. Of course, they should have played a lot harder game for the sake of all the San Francisco people who went down to see them in action. Why, there must have been as many as fifteen rooters there from our own college. All these people banded together, cheering spiritedly for their team, as Bill Kennedy led them on to almost unsurmountable heights was truly an awe-inspiring sight. Alas and alack, I was almost moved to tears.

It looks like Prof. Ople's dying Indian was finally buried down at Palo Alto last Saturday. And approximately 25,000 mourners from the reservation turned out to help him on his way to the happy hunting ground.

More about this Jaysee student card business! Dean Browne, of the college, has taken up the battle cry and written to the managers of the various major institutions in the bay area.

From Stanford comes the reply that while they do not accept junior college or any other type of student body cards, they have a special section for students at half price.

The University of California writes that at any J. C. game played in their stadium, holders of cards will be admitted free. In the event that a junior college game is being played as a preliminary to a college encounter, holders of Jaysee cards will be admitted to a special section at half price.

The University of San Francisco have already announced their policy, which is that they will not honor junior college cards at any games which come under their jurisdiction.

St. Mary's College, as you already know, accepts all student cards (except those from U. S. F.) in any of their games which are not reserved seat affairs.

Which leaves Santa Clara as the only bay region college not accounted for.

With all due apologies to Mr. T. M. McQuarrie we are printing this extract from the San Jose Spartan Daily. Although Mr. McQuarrie specifies that nothing can be used from his columns, we as a football school are taking the liberty of ignoring his wishes, as we cannot be expected, according to the way Mr. McQuarrie sees us, to honor such trifling ethics. "Tuesday, Oct. 15.

That was no mean achievement of the freshmen to hold the San Francisco Junior College. S.F.J.C. is evidently going to be a football school. The very first appointments to the new faculty, at least the first I saw noted in the papers, were football coaches and they're men with reputations too.

Track Team Touted For League Top

Sweet's Men Promise Only Headaches to Conference Champions

By Lou Bertolucci

A new threat in the California Junior College Track Conference, and incidentally a headache to Sacramento, present jaysee champions, has arisen in the person of the San Francisco Junior College. The foundation of the "new threat" is based on the first official fall track meeting called by Coach Russ Sweet on Monday, October 14. Approximately 30 men answered the first call, which does not comprise the full list of track candidates, some of whom are busy in other sports and will make an appearance later. However, the spikesters went ahead with fall practice plans, with Coach Sweet announcing daily workouts at 4:30, to begin within a week. Negotiations are under way for the securing of either Kezar or San Francisco University stadium for practice, with the latter being the most likely choice. If the USF stadium is obtained, the athletes will work out with the Don squad.

Sweet Lays Practice Plans

Coach Sweet, the recent track mentor at Menlo Junior College, has intentions of holding weekly track meets to condition the team and plans a special gym class. Promises of a strong squad were strengthened with the addition of several new members. Besides the aforementioned Evans, Fitzgerald, Compas, Perrin, and Bryant, the sprinters will include five new men, namely, Farley of Balboa, Mason of Upper Lake, Tuttle of Poly, Stafford of Mission, and Atkinson of Bates.

Jimmy Fahn will greatly strengthen the hurdlers. He was a recent winner in the AAA meet, taking the event in record time. Other timbertoppers will include Cook and McKenzie. The high jumping event will boast of four capable leapers in Loustalot, Locke, Welch, and Paxton.

Discover Shot And Discus Stars

The shot and discus, two events in which the Rams appeared without material, will be taken care of by Segurson, Maguire, Lee, and Kohlich. The probable leading candidate will be Montez of Texas Tech.

Poly sends a strong 440 man in Geraghty, while Alameda contributes an able assistant in Kanda. The javelin will not be without strength when we can boast of Kohlich and Hussey. With such an array of athletes Coach Sweet will place a strong squad on the field in the spring conference meet and we predict a great showing of the Ram outfit.

Rams' Own 'Ople-Soss' Says Team Will Down State

"RAM'S" OWN

"Call for Professor Ople-Soss."

Hear ye, lads and lassies. Dust off your vocal chords. Express your emotion; innoculate your spirit with jubilation!

Dean Browne has spoken!

"Our gridders will defeat S. F. State tomorrow 13 to 6 or 13 to 0," he stated yesterday.

Everyone is urged to join the crowd and see if Dean Browne's powers as a clairvoyant are efficacious tomorrow, when the Rams meet the S. F. State eleven at Kezar Stadium.

Racquet Fans Form Nucleus Of Net Team

Ask Sweet to Coach; Jimmy Neal Elected as Prexy of Organization

Organization of a tennis club featured a conclave of net enthusiasts held in Room 150, Galileo, under the leadership of James Neal. During the session election of officers took place, and activities for the semester were outlined.

Results of the election found Neal as president; Jeanne Anderson, vice-president; Mary McKnight, secretary-treasurer; and Tim Guiney, publicity director.

Following his election, the new president appointed committees to draw up the constitution, as well as to select a coach. He also spoke briefly on the purpose of the club, claiming that aside from the social angle it is expected to develop material for competition. He expressed hope to produce a net team that will break the long held dominance of San Mateo J. C. in this field.

Until further notice, it was announced, meetings will be held on Mondays in Room 150 at Galileo at 2:07. Anyone wishing to become a member of this organization may apply at this time, according to the club officers.

SWEET SELECTED

Mr. Russell Sweet was selected by a committee of the Tennis Club yesterday as coach for the racquet squad.

The tennis team will probably be selected from the club was indicated by the newly selected coach.

Forest Morrison Touted As 'Dime Change' Boy; Has Staters Worried

for the Staters, he is an excellent broken field runner, and is considered the spark plug of the team.

Sweet Pulls Ace From Sleeve

But Coach Russ Sweet has an ace up his sleeve, too, in the person of Forest Morrison, a boy who could hit a dime at fifty yards and collect nine cents change.

The Staters, however, if they employ their box defense, will be a tough aggregation to pass against, as has been proved time and again this season.

In the line, Iago, a guard, and Beseman, tackle, are most noticeable. Both are hard chargers and blockers, and both were responsible for the blocked kick that netted the Staters their two points against the Apprentices.

Guiney Hopes For the Best

The Jaysee team will outweigh the Staters from an average of five to ten pounds in the line, and approximately ten pounds in the backfield. For this reason, I believe the Rams should finish on the long end of the score, and I might even go so far as to say, by two touchdowns. Heigh, ho! I think I have a winner this time.

The time will be 2:30 o'clock, the place Kezar Stadium, the—ahem—the admission will be free—to holders of signed Jaysee student body cards. Harold Martin, the publicity scribbler for State, has especially emphasized the part about the cards being signed, and says that anyone who has not signed his or her John Henry or Roberta Burpenstein on the card will be refused admission.

SPARK PLUG

George Clark proved decisively that he is the spark plug of the Jaysee backfield Saturday at the San Jose game, where he returned to the lineup to reel off substantial gains, never stopping until at least four tacklers got hold of him.

Cards Down Soccer Men By 2 Points

Rams Lose to Lowell As Inexperience Is Biggest Factor in Victory

Fighting desperately to overcome the handicap of inexperience, San Francisco Junior College soccer squad dropped a close decision to a smooth-working and clever Lowell High team, 4 to 2, Saturday morning at Chalet Field.

The Cardinals, a favorite in the San Francisco High School League, held the upper hand for most of the game until in the closing minutes the Rams found themselves and scored two points.

Lamby and Vincent Lead Rams

Led by Vincent and Lamby the Jaysees managed to penetrate Lowell's tight defense. Both goals were kicked by Vincent, known as "Killer" to his teammates. Wenburg and Conway served the assists which paved the way to the scores.

The preps definitely showed their experience by making two scores just before the gun was sounded for the first half. Both of these goals were kicked by Rudy Millner, Lowell's elusive left wing, who also played a fine defensive game. Later in the game Blomquist and Malulio showed up well for the victors, each kicking a goal.

Experienced Goalie Saves Scores

Late in the last half Lowell on several occasions came near scoring, but through the efforts of Donald Lee, Rams goalie, their attempts were staved off. Lee, one of the few experienced Jaysee men, will prove a valuable man during the season. Levy and Taylor also showed well on the defense.

Serving in the capacity of referee was Mr. Bass, faculty member of this school and coach of the soccer team.

FIRST WIN

The soccer team won its first practice game against Poly Lightweights by a score of 2 to 0, using only nine men. Don Leed and Bob Wenburg were especially brilliant for the victors.

DIARY OF A CO-ED

Dear Diary:

My humblest and most sincere apologies to you, diary, but I have been so busy; there's the mid-terms and of course I couldn't miss the coveted trips I make to the Palace. Well, here goes; I'll make up for lost time.

October 13 (far into the night).

Have suggested that the Palace be our official campus. Seems to me that most of the fellas and gals congregate there. One of the permanent fixtures and most unusual one at that, is "Stutz" McNear and Bob Eltringham. I wonder why it is that they always sit under a palm in a secluded corner.

Speaking of fixtures, is that passionate purple (pardon me, I mean lavender) shirt and the green tie always going to be on Bud Mayer? Oh, gee! is Jack Barron scorched, or so he told me when we were having a most heavenly waltz. He is insulted because public opinion is against his rolling sign board that some people might call his car. Incidentally, you can never miss seeing the car when it's parked outside the Palace.

Diary, did I have a heavenly time at College Night last Friday? And did I see just lots of people I know! For instance, Helen Lauer and Dick Reilly, Helen Mann and Bob Kahn. Oh, yeah, Betty McNeil was with Jack Brigham, Bill Devlin took that adorable girl, Betty McIntyre, and Nancy Spaulding had Bill Weinstock well in hand, as did Betty Hyde and her Charlie. Bob Selig was there with Babs Taylor (who had on a dress that looked just like the stars and stripes; it was surely chic). Gee, Lois Toso had a Stanford date that looked perfectly swell! Wonder where she meets them? Donna McPherson also had a new male; good looking, too.

Say, diary, I did laugh! Someone thought that Parnel Brown was in a fight, but she wasn't; just recovering from an automobile accident and celebrating the removal of the bandages by going dancing down at the Palace with Johnny Finn. Oh, I am running out of space. There were so many others there, such as Leo Manning, and some off the campus date, and Joe Buckhalter, and Phyllis Falley. (I think this foursome double-dated. Misery loves company?)

And did I have a keen time last Saturday! I went tea dancing with Jeanne and some of her friends. We just about drove the "playboys" batty requesting them to play "Basin Street Blues" every other minute. They were so sweet and did play it for us quite often. I kinda went for Marjorie Beattie's interpretation of "Mad About the Boy." I wonder if this could be personal? I guess you'll have to hand it to the Palace; they've got about the slickest band in town.

Say, that reminds me: Bud Wieckers, that super-triple-threat man, is a constant visitor to the Saturday afternoon tea dances. I wonder if it could be the tea.

Say, diary, my arm is about worn out from all this writing, but I think you know, just about all the news, except that next Friday night the college is going to hold their first semi-formal in the Gold Ballroom. Will I be there, or will I be there? Isn't that a perfect place for the dance? That means another scrumptious time for me.

Diary, I'll see you then and give you all the low-down on who took who and what they wore. Incidentally, I'll get advance reports on who is going when we go dancing in the Rose Bowl tomorrow night. There will be so many college kids there; I can always catch up on the gossip. Bye now.

Reserved Books

When desired by instructors, two-week books will be reserved and thereby restricted to two-hour use in the reading room. To reserve books, please fill out Reserve Request Blank and return to Mr. Francis J. Colligan, librarian, or Miss Joan Nourse, assistant librarian.

Urge Dance Curricula

America will never distinguish herself in the art of dancing unless she incorporates that form of artistic expression in the curricula of her colleges and universities, according to Elizabeth Selden, internationally known student of the dance. She states this in a book, The Dancer's Quest, just issued by the University of California Press.

Book circulation at the U.C. library has increased 18.5 per cent over that of the same period last year, whereas the enrollment increase in the College of Letters and Science has been only 11 per cent.

Test Blanks Show Trends To Vocations

Women Hold More Interest in Business; Men Rate Engineering High

That 25 per cent of the men and 36 per cent of the women attending this college intend to enter the field of business was revealed this week with compilation of the results of the vocational tests, given at the beginning of the semester, by Mr. Harold Luenberger, psychology instructor in charge of the research.

Engineering came next in the choice of men with 17.6 per cent, while but one woman expressed her preference for this field.

The college is also harboring 47 future medicos (33 men and 14 women), 45 embryonic barristers (eight women), and two veterinarians. While no women apparently intend to oppose the men in the field of forestry, with 19 male aspirants, no men announced their preference in the field of nursing.

The future S. F. J. C. building may be planned by the ten men and one woman leaning toward architecture.

Playground supervision and the ministry tied for last place honors on the list, with one aspirant each.

Mr. Luenberger will be in Room 262, Galileo Building, on Monday, Wednesday, and Friday afternoons for consultation with any students who wish to discuss problems related to vocational choices, entrance test scores, or study difficulties.

63 RATE KEYS

Sixty-three students at the University of California were notified of their election to Phi Beta Kappa, national scholastic honor society, this week.

Of the 63 chosen, 15 were juniors and 45 seniors, with three graduate students; 41 were men and 22 women students.

SAILING THROUGH THE NEWS

BY THE NEWS EDITOR

In protest against any possibility of the United States' engaging in any war, students and faculty members in all colleges of the nation are asked to leave classrooms at 11 o'clock a. m., November 11, Armistice Day. The request comes as part of a proclamation made last week at a conference of eleven college groups in New York City, which urged that college students and teachers refuse to support their country in case of war.

At the same time we read, "Behind tall stone walls and sentry-guarded gates, rivet hammers are singing a staccato war song at the Brooklyn Navy Yard."

Injustice Of It All

The Federal Government last week started spending its second billion since July 1st of this year. The Board of Education recently made immediately available $2,000 for physical examination of candidates to athletic teams at this college.

Workers under the NYA here were cut fifty per cent in salaries last week.

What About Hands Off Policy?

That the United States, in converging her fleet in the Pacific, will protect British rights against possible assaults from Japan is a possible contingency propounded to me by a senior lieutenant in the American Navy. There is, he declared, some agreement with England to this nature. Such a plan would enable His Majesty's fleet to chase that of Il Duce around the Mediterranean with no fear of holdings in the Pacific being greedily swallowed by the ever-watchful, envious Nipponese.

But how does this purported agreement reconcile itself with the Navy Department's recent endorsement of President Roosevelt's neutrality declaration?

Classes Choose Heads At Elections; Freshman Poll Names Bob Neal As Prexy

Group Makes Future Plans For Activities

Hickory-Jean Society Slates Hi-Jinks and Dance as First Doings

Plans for a school dance and a hi-jinks to be held in the Galileo auditorium were announced by President Adolph Pedrin at the regular meeting of the H. and J. Society last Wednesday.

Present as advisor, Dean Edwin C. Browne urged all the members to make the purchase of student body cards their first thought before going on to bigger things.

The organization is expected to develop into the college letter society at the close of the football season, but eligible membership for non-letter men will be taken care of according to a special clause in the constitution pertaining to such an issue.

Organized as a self-supporting institution the dues will be 10 cents a week to defray costs of club functions.

All members were advised to wear the society's regalia on Wednesdays, i. e., hickory shirts and jeans.

Hi Sophs Pick Neal Martin as Leader for Semester

Polling a vote which was higher than all those cast at the recent student body elections, the low-freshman class, the largest in the college, voted Bob Neal as its president last Thursday.

In other class elections held on the same day, Jack Welch won the presidency of the high-freshman class. The low-sophomores chose Bill Weinstock as their head, while Neal Martin took the lead in the high-sophomore elections.

Distinct Honor

"Though elected late in the term, and their exact powers a doubtful issue, the honor of being the college's first class officers will reward these leaders for any shortcomings they may have to endure in the first semester," said Associated Students President Ben McGuire, presiding at the low-frosh meeting.

The other class officers are as follows: Low-frosh — Secretary, Ruth Peterson; girls' representative, Clista Wilkinson; boys' representative, Eddie Cassino.

High-frosh—Secretary, Donna McPherson; girls' representative, Vivian Fisher; boys' representative, Bob Sisco.

Low-sophs—Secretary, Betty Gray; girls' representative, Inez St. Ledger; boys' representative, Clyde Pollon.

Choose New Name

At the election the questions of colors and team name were decided. The colors remain red and white, as ascertained by the vote of the student body, but students voted almost unanimously to drop the appellation of "Clippers" in favor of the "Rams."

State Officials Visit College

Prominent visitor to President A. J. Cloud during the past week was Dr. Merton C. Hill, Professor of Junior Colleges at the University of California at Berkeley and Los Angeles. Dr. Hill is also Director of Admissions for the State University. He promises a statement on our college in the near future.

Another friend of the college to visit was Mr. Ira E. Kibbe of the State Department of Education, the Division of Commercial Education. Mr. Kibbe impressed President Cloud with his satisfaction for the work the college has accomplished in this field.

News Of The Clubs

Engineers Name Hilpisch as Head

Election of officers featured the meeting of the Engineers' Club held last week under the sponsorship of Manuel Jacobs.

Officers elected were Carl Hilpisch, president; Ray Yawman, vice-president; Will Rogers, secretary; Joseph Cook, treasurer; and Jack Carter, director of public relations.

Visits to engineering projects of the bay region are planned as semester activities, according to Rogers, with a trip to the engine rooms of the President Coolidge slated definitely for the near future.

Men's Glee Holds First Election

Winston Fisher was elected president of the Men's Glee Club at a meeting held last week, under the sponsorship of Miss Flossita Badger, head of the music department here. Other officers selected were Jack Martin, vice-president, and Albert Schwartz, secretary.

A Cappella Choir Plans Programs

Jack Welsh was elected president of the A Cappella Choir, and Rosella Retalick and Annabelle Tyler vice-president and secretary, respectively, at a recent meeting.

The choir has several programs planned, according to Miss Flossita Badger, faculty sponsor. Miss Badger reveals that there are some fine voices in the group, and holds high hopes for a successful season.

Chess Club Calls Meeting

A second meeting of the Chess Club under Mr. Ralston will be held in Room 358 at Galileo on Friday. Any chess players who are interested are still urged to join. Election of officers will take place if sufficient candidates come out to the meeting, Mr. Ralston announces.

Campus Critics Flood Guardsman With Letters

NOTE: Indicative of real feeling among the readers of The Guardsman, both positive and negative in nature, a deluge of opinions flooded the editorial offices this week. They are published herewith. The Guardsman accepts no responsibility for statements contained in these opinions.

PERHAPS YOU'RE RIGHT

Dear Guardsman:

While you are supposed to be putting out a newspaper, why don't you include a humor column? I think, and I know that many of my friends have the same opinion, that the absence of a comic column detracts from the effect of the paper. C.H.E.

NOW, IS THAT NICE?

Dear Guardsman:

As long as the football team is still squawking about a name, and disapproves of the one foisted upon them by voting members of the Associated Students, I wish to suggest one that I think appropriate, as well as original.

I suggest that we call our team the "Hardwood Floors" — because they're always getting waxed. Yours,

W. M. J.

WELL, WELL, A NEW THOUGHT!

To the Students:

For many years a San Francisco Junior College has been discussed. Now it is at last an actuality.

True, we have no buildings and campus. But we do have an interested, alert faculty and an enthusiastic group of students.

We have had a wonderful start, and all the possibilities of a glorious success are ours. But there is only one way to maintain that school spirit, that feeling of unity, and gain the place in the sun that is rightfully ours. That is by a strong co-operating student body composed of all the students.

Become a part of your college—get your Associated Student's card now!

O. M. B.

BUT THE B. OF E. DOESN'T OWN ONE

Guardsman:

Instead of searching for an imposing site far out in the sticks, I would suggest that the allegedly forthcoming building be built along the lines of Columbia University, i. e., instead of expanding over 40-odd acres of brush-covered sand dunes, elongate straight up.

Why not a skyscraper located as near to the center of town as a suitably priced vacant lot can be purchased, with a number of rooms located on each of its many floors? To alleviate congestion, have a number of elevators, or else staggered escalators. For a campus, have a roof garden, possibly even multiple-deck roof gardens.

As nearly as I can make out, San Francisco is rather fond of being able to boast of having the "only something or other of its kind" in the nation. Here is a chance for the city to have a colossal, stupendous, gigantic, and ultra-modern college.

Yours for what it's worth,

N. R. B.

NEAL, DEFEND YOURSELF!

To Guardsman Readers:

Can someone please tell me who is running the Associated Students? Who decides their issues, their activities?

I have heard rumors that there is to be a college hotel dance October 25. I also have read that we play Modesto J. C. in football that same evening. I am not a football player, yet it seems to me a trifle unfair to those who do to stage a college dance the night they are out of town trying to bring the institution a little honor.

Why couldn't the dance be put off for a while, even indefinitely? Why couldn't all the enthusiasm certain self-styled hot-shots here are devoting to the promotion of the dance be utilized in trying to promote interest in the Modesto game? For instance, they might have tried to charter a special bus to take rooters down at a low cost.

Some of these questions I think I can answer. The underlying cause seems to be the social aspirations of certain of our newly elected leaders (perhaps I could even say, truthfully, leader—and I don't mean particularly the A. S. president). My recommendation is that before starting something new, support be given to what is already established.

Respectfully,

D. A. E.

Another Musician Offers Song For College Criticism

Below is the song submitted by Bob Anino, local orchestra leader, for approval by the college. The song was presented at the first J. C. dance, held last month at the Galileo gymnasium. Anino has written the school songs for several bay region colleges.

San Francisco Junior College,
We will e'er be proud—
Faithful, loyal sons we'll ever be!
We will sing our Victory Song aloud—
Cheering, urging our teams to victory!

Ad Staff Offers Grid Ducats To Students

Free! A pair of tickets to the St. Mary's-U. S. F. grid game at Kezar Stadium on Sunday, Oct. 27.

In line with the policy announced last week in The Guardsman, the advertising staff of this paper is offering the above prize, along with sixteen passes to the Ram-Modesto J. C. game next Friday, to the first students who make purchases at the establishments of Guardsman advertisers on Monday.

According to leaders on the staff, the new advertising system is not meeting with the success expected of it, but better co-operation is expected as new prizes are given away each week for the remainder of the semester.

Patronize Advertisers

The plan was put into effect in order to prove the advantage to advertisers of buying space in the weekly newspaper. Student co-operation will result in benefit for themselves, besides enabling the college to build up a larger publication, according to Mr. Lloyd D. Luckmann, business advisor.

In order to qualify for the awards contestants need simply present the sales slip (cash or charge) dated Oct. 21 to Oct. 25, inclusive, to the finance office in Room 260, Galileo. Purchaser must surrender his sales slip to The Guardsman for the business staff files, so that evidence of patronage may be submitted to the advertisers.

Students may obtain tickets by being the first junior collegians to make purchases next week at any of the following Guardsman advertisers:

Palace Hotel, Koffee Kup restaurant, Siegel's Men's Wear, Moore's Clothing, Charlotte's Tavern, Waters & Ross, musical instruments, or the Junior College Book Store.

NYA employment is being given to 577 college students and 559 high school and parochial school students in the City of San Francisco, according to reports.

Selection of Place For Junior College Center of Interest

Board of Education Hears Backers of All Types of Sites

Proposed Locations Include Valencia St. Ground

By Paul Green

The San Francisco Board of Education, in its efforts to find the ideal location for the erection of the San Francisco Junior College, is still receiving suggestions as to where the school should be built.

With more than a dozen proposed sites on file, the latest spot up for consideration is the old county jail at Ingleside, near Ocean Avenue. Since the new bastile was built, in the Half Moon Bay region, the Ingleside property has been lying idle in the hands of the city fathers.

Mr. C. Harold Caulfield, president of the board, announced last week that the city owns four blocks of land at Twenty-second Avenue and Quintara Street, stating that the site was receiving more consideration than most of the others. The Ingleside property, however, has been commented upon favorably by authorities. These two are the only ones owned by the city which are suitable for a campus.

Many prominent civic groups are lending their support in the quest for a location, among them the Eureka Valley Promotion Association, which has endorsed grading plans for the junior college on the proposed dam site between Portola Drive and Glen Park. The association stated that there is considerable money available for this purpose.

Ranging in scope from jails to cemeteries, the list of the outstanding sites is as follows:

Ingleside jail—38 acres between Ocean and Marston Avenues, and railroad right of way and Phelan Avenue.

Abraham Lincoln School site—Four blocks, bounded by Twenty-second and Twenty-fourth Avenues, and Santiago and Quintara Streets, Sunset District.

Golden Gate Heights—Block, Sunset District, between Lomita and Lawton Streets, and Fifteenth Avenue and Aloha Avenue.

Old Odd Fellows' Cemetery—Four blocks, between Geary Boulevard and Turk Street, and Arguello Boulevard and Parker Avenue.

Ranch Location

Good Brothers' Ranch—166 acres (Glen Park) bounded by O'Shaughnessy Boulevard, Hoffman Avenue, Portola Drive, and irregular line to Bosworth Street.

Miraloma Park—18 acres in "V" formed by O'Shaughnessy Boulevard and Portola Drive.

Old baseball park—Area not given, located between Valencia and Guerrero Streets and Fourteenth and Fifteenth Streets.

Noe Valley—Block bounded by Diamond, Noe, Twenty-eighth, and Army Streets.

McLaren Park—100 acres, between Burrows Street and Velasco Avenue, and La Grande Avenue and Dartmouth Street.

Announce Formation Of College Concert Band

Formation of a concert band which will carry college credit has been announced by the Board of Education through Mr. Donald Sandifur, music instructor here.

The concert band will rehearse on Thursday nights from 7 to 9 o'clock at Polytechnic High School. Mr. Madison Devlin will direct.

Membership in this concert band is considered as attendance upon a junior college course, for which credit will be given accordingly, Mr. Sandifur says.

CORRECTION

The spring semester will terminate June 12 instead of June 19, as was erroneously stated in The Guardsman last week, was definitely announced by Mr. Paul Mohr, registrar. The news editor is sorry if the incorrect statement caused any consternation.

College N.Y.A. Workers Get Salary Slips

Distribution Starts in Early Part of Next Week

With instructions from Washington marking the close of the second NYA pay period as October 28, Miss Edith Pence, administrator for the junior college, announces that time reports for this month must be turned in to her on Tuesday and Wednesday of next week.

Miss Pence stated that the pay checks for those students who did work during September are expected to arrive early next week, in which case payments will be made as students present their time reports for October.

Working on a half-time basis, students are required to maintain a good scholarship average if they would hold their positions. Those who have a low rating on their mid-term reports will be dropped from the NYA payroll, Miss Pence stated.

One hundred and seventy-eight students will be paid in this college when the checks for September finally arrive, she said.

College Expects More Students In Spring Semester

Including students from 21 California counties, 14 states, one territory, and two foreign countries, the total junior college enrollment is 1449 students, according to data collected from files in the registrar's office.

San Francisco sends 1220 pupils here, while the next highest quota is 163, from Alameda County. Eight students come from neighboring San Mateo County, while distant Los Angeles sends two representatives. From the north, Mendocino, Siskiyou, and Stanislaus counties each send one collegian, while practically every county in the central area has one or more students attending.

San Francisco J. C. has attracted pupils from Washington, Indiana, Texas, Rhode Island, Montana, Nevada, New Mexico, Illinois, South Dakota, Oregon, Nebraska, Kentucky, and Colorado, besides several from the Philippine Islands, two from China, and one from Greece.

Besides these figures, the administrative office announces an expected increased enrollment of from 800 to 900 freshmen for the spring semester. This would bring the total enrollment up to 2300, which presents a grave problem for the Board of Education, inasmuch as present morning classes would not facilitate handling of that many students.

Game Odds Show Favor To Modesto

Dope 'Hay Wire' Says Sports Writer Who Won't Make a Prediction

Pirates Prove Real Surprise by Upset of Mariners

By Tim Guiney

Guardsman Sports Editor

Trying to figure out who should win the game tonight between the gridders of Modesto J.C. and San Francisco J.C. is enough to make a person look with dreamy eyes to the peace and quiet of an ocean voyage, where the subject of comparative football scores is tactfully shunned by all of the nervous wrecks who took themselves seriously enough to think they could predict the outcome of most of the gridiron games.

Dope Hay Wire

At any rate, let's look at a few of the comparative scores of both teams. Marin beat San Francisco's ears back to the tune of 19 to 6. Modesto came along and trimmed Marin. Now, the logical answer would be, Modesto should win easily over the Rams. Yes, but wait a minute. The U.S.F. frosh just managed to squeeze out a 7 to 0 win over the San Franciscans, while they walked all over the Modestans by a score of 19 to 7.

Gets Guiney

All of which leaves quite obvious the fact that neither team can be considered contenders for the state championship, and—aw, figure out the score for yourself. It's too much for me.

Fred Earle, the Buccaneer boss, believes he has, in Ed Bowman, one of the finest quarterbacks in the jaysee league. Bowman is active in both passing and line plunging, and is considered an excellent safety man.

For halfbacks, the Pirate mentor has two stellar performers in the persons of "Hub" Neeley and Bob Riddle. It is also rumored that as

Faculty Meets to Form Association; Election of Permanent Officers Set

Meeting for the purpose of organizing a San Francisco Junior College Faculty Association, more than fifty faculty members assembled at the Western Women's Club last Sunday.

A constitution submitted by a faculty committee was finally adopted, after much discussion and consideration.

Acting as chairman was Mr. Walter Forbes, who later relegated the office to Mr. Marsh.

The members plan to meet regularly so that they can act on problems which are bound to arise. Permanent officers will be selected at the next meeting of the association, to be held in the near future.

Draft Final Plans For Semi-Formal At Palace

College Performers Get Star Places In Show For Affair

Versatility Apparent As Singers, Artists Try Out

Supplying one of the surprise features of tonight's Semi-Formal at the Palace, talent from the college will be given headline spots on the program of entertainment.

Hosts of aspirants appeared at the tryouts recently. Every type of artist was included among the people at the auditions. Unfortunately the judges were forced to limit the number selected to a final three.

More Singers

Singers proved to be among the majority and two were selected for the feature spots on the dance program. Miss Marge Silk, a songstress that was acclaimed as one of the finest heard, will present several "blues" numbers. Judges of the audition likened her voice to that of many of the famous torch singers on the air lanes.

Second place went to Miss Corinne Linwood. Miss Linwood was seen in several dance solos and won the instant acclaim of those present at the auditions. She also sang several numbers.

Martin Selected

Third place went to Jack Martin. His medley of banjo numbers was a distinct performance and was outstanding at the tryouts.

The most popular song selected by the contestants seemed to be "I'm in the Mood for Love," although several late numbers were as popular with the candidates. Observers were surprised at the talent uncovered in the search and predicted that the junior college would gain renown from the singers and dancers of the group.

Debaters Schedule Meets With State and S.M.J.C.

Final negotiations are being carried on with San Francisco State and San Mateo debaters for matches with the San Francisco forensic teams. The dates will probably be set for December with the all-important question, "The Decisions of the Supreme Court on Constitutionality of Legislation Should Be Submitted to Approval by the Congress of the United States."

Chess Club Calls For Election of Officers

Election of officers for the Chess Club will probably take place at the meeting to be held this afternoon in room 358, it was indicated by Mr. Henry J. Ralston, faculty advisor.

To date six men are lined up for the team, according to Mr. Ralston, but there are openings for several more.

TALENT WINNERS GET CHANCE ON RADIO PROGRAMS

Winners and aspirants in the recent Talent Quest may have another chance for fame. Although plans are still indefinite, several radio rallies for the Los Angeles game are being scheduled over local stations.

Along with the different sporting authorities of the college it is believed that the people who recently auditioned for places on the Semi-Formal program will be given a chance to perform if the proposed programs are consummated.

Negotiations with one station may be completed within the next week.

Half of Students Purchase Cards In Own Organization

"With at least six more dances to be held this term similar to the one at the Palace Hotel tonight, and some of these to be free, students cannot afford to be without their Associated Students cards," said Treasurer Allan Koblik.

Interviewed on the progress of card sales, Koblik gave 700 as the approximate number purchased to date.

The minimum quota for student body card sales to meet the smallest possible budget is almost reached. This quota would be satisfied if but half of the student body were to purchase their cards, according to Koblick. The budget was set at $2,200 and over $1,900 has been received from sales, the finance office has revealed.

Koblik also urges 100 per cent cooperation of the faculty in the matter of Associated Students cards, and asks that those who have not yet made their purchase do so as soon as possible.

Art Club Schedules Meeting; Invites All Interested in Work

An open meeting of the Art Club will be held October 30 at 12:45 in the form of a luncheon for all students interested. The place of the meeting will be announced on the Extension bulletin board.

Mr. Richard M. Allman, faculty advisor to the club, said that all students who are not taking art, but are interested in the club, may attend the meeting if they come with a member of the club.

Students who are taking an active part in the organization of the club are: Doris Hupps, Bob Metcalf, Lea Celeber, Doris Michels, and Helena Murphy.

Ask Service Club Meet For Thursday at Galileo

Calling for a joint meeting of the three men's service organizations, Dean Browne today scheduled the conclave for the Galileo cafeteria on Thursday at 1:30.

The meeting will be held to adjust matters of policy and to determine just what purpose each club has in view. Included in the service group are the Skull and Blades, the Hickory and Jean Club and a proposed Men's Club. "It is imperative that we get together and decide just what each club has in mind as its purpose," declared Dean Browne. "If the clubs are not unified, there will be too much duplication."

Club Discusses Proposed Sites for Junior College

Discussion of twelve proposed sites for the S. F. Junior College will be the topic of discussion at a meeting of the Central Council of Civic Clubs, to be held November 1 at 150 Golden Gate Avenue.

Officials of the educational department will be invited to attend and take part in the discussion, it was announced by Educational Chairman Leo Hess.

Committee Seeks To Make Affair Rally for Support of Grid Team

Broadcast Quarter-by-Quarter Score from Modesto

With the famed Gold Room as its setting, the college will hold its first semi-formal tonight at the Palace Hotel. The dance will be different in the fact that it will be a game rally dance to give support to the football team at Modesto.

Progress of that game will be reported by direct wire to the ballroom. The quarter by quarter highlights of the game in the valley city will be broadcast throughout the time of the dance. Student officials have arranged the event with the thought that many of the student body would like to get to Modesto for the Pirate contest, but would be unable to do so.

Spare Little

Little is being spared in making the event a success. One of the best liked bands of the Stanford campus has been engaged to supply the music for the affair. The orchestra of Freddy Nagle has been developing into one of the "hottest" along the coast. His future, according to competent observers in radio and dance band circles, should carry him to national fame.

Along with a versatile group of bandsmen, Nagle has two outstanding singers that have gained renown on the airlanes of the nation. Dudley Nix, formerly with Tom Coakley's band at the Palace, has deserted that organization and tied in with Freddy Nagle's group. Nix has been heard many times in transcontinental broadcasts from the Rose Room Bowl. His talent is not limited to vocalizing; his song hit, "So Lovely and So Sweet," won much favor last year.

One of Best

Going farther, the band has obtained one of the best singers in the bay area in the person of Bob Cutter. Cutter has been featured with such musical organizations as Hal Grayson's orchestra and others. Grayson held the feature spot in the Hollywood Roosevelt for a long period and Cutter was the recipient of many flattering movie offers.

A last chance to get bids was offered to the students when Bill Weinstock announced that bids would still be sold at the editorial office of The Guardsman at Extension Building and at Galileo.

BIDS STILL ON SALE

Due to a last minute rush for bids, the committee in charge of the Semi-Formal announced today that the admission tickets would be on sale at the door of the Gold Room at the Palace. No extra premium will be charged those getting their bids late.

NEEDED—A CENTRAL PLACE!

Much has been said recently about the selection of a site for a permanent junior college. Weekly the newspapers contain articles emanating from the Board of Education stating the progress made in this direction. But unfortunately, the trend, up to the present, has been toward the selection of a site in an almost suburban location.

Some of the sites proposed in a current article are: Twenty-second Avenue and Quintara Street, San Jose and Ocean Avenues, Miraloma Park, and Fifteenth and Valencia Streets.

The college is sorely in need of permanent quarters; 1,500 students are working under great difficulty under the present plan. At Christmas time the college will be further burdened by the entrance of probably 800 students recently graduated from various high schools.

When the site for a new junior college is finally chosen, it should be absolutely the best spot obtainable in the city, one extremely central, and one which will be chosen wholly for the best interests of the college. Such a site should not be selected hastily, for although the need for a new home is indeed pressing, the final choice will probably stand for a good many years.

It is likely that when the final selection is made, a great deal of money will be spent so that we might have a junior college second to none. Needless to say, this money should be spent wisely. Any location which is not easily accessible would not be worthy of such an expenditure.

Let us not, then, be too hasty in accepting any proposal which would entail a thirty or forty minute trip from even the central districts to say nothing of the outlying districts. Let us be sure to accept a site which has enough space to handle athletic practice and events, so that all activities, scholastic and athletic, may be carried on at a single central plant.

GET INTO ACTIVITIES!

College life along strictly academic lines would prove rather boresome to the average student. Not only that, but the student would not be getting from his college education all that he should. True, the academic studies have their place. They teach the student to think, to concentrate, and to study; some of the specialized and strictly vocational courses even prepare him for specific positions directly.

Just as important, if not more so, is that the college life teaches the student how to get along with people, both in business and social life. It helps him to remove hindering self-consciousness and bashfulness. That is, it does all these things if he wants it to.

In order to make the best of the above outlined advantages that college life offers, the student must take an interest in and an active part in college activities, most of which are extra-curricular. For the athletes there are sports; for the dramatists there is the stage; for the journalists, the college publication; for the debaters, the forensic arts; for the singers, the glee clubs; for the leaders and organizers, the student body government; and for the rest there are clubs still to be organized.

That doesn't mean, however, that the student should inactively stand by until a club in which he might be interested is formed. It means that he should see that it IS organized, that he aids in its organization. To be specific, if a student is interested in radio, let him gather about him brother radiomen, and then consult the head of the physics department concerning the organization of a radio club; similarly, if the student be interested in photography, let him gather about fellow cameramen (and women) and get a camera club under way. With a student body numbering upward of 1,500, a large number of clubs should be, and is, possible.

Lest the student infer from the above that it is advocated that he indulge in extra-curricular activities to the neglect of academic pursuits, let a word of warning be added. After all, the theoretical purpose of a college is to give an academic education. The student should never lose sight of that. Yet, in all things there is that desirable balance of business and social life, toward which all strive, or should strive, and which few reach. If one of these lives, consequently, is causing undue neglect of the other, then it is time to apply the brakes to the desired degree.

U.C.L.A. Hits "Athletic Fascism" at St. Mary's

Too rapid growth of athletics, resulting in an unnatural expansion, was blamed by the Daily Bruin of U. C. L. A. as the direct cause of the refinancing activities now going on at the Gael campus.

The statement termed the action as laid to the "Athletic Fascism" of St. Mary's and blamed the same over emphasis as dooming the financial structure of other colleges.

To Article of Purity Test Columbia Says "Naughty"

A complete edition of the Columbia University's humor magazine, the Columbia Jester, was suppressed for forty-five minutes. The action was laid to the printing of the results of a recent purity test questionnaire answered by the women of Barnard College. The suspension was lifted without comment.

The article was written by two juniors from the results of the test given to 70 Barnard girls.

LOUDSPEAKER LOWDOWN

By JAY O'GEE

This week the most noteworthy event in local musical circles seems to be the opening last Wednesday of FRANKIE MASTERS and his orchestra at the St. Francis Hotel. He will play nightly, his music being aired by KFRC. Masters comes direct from the COLLEGE INN in Chicago. While handing out verbal bouquets let's give a plug to the WHITE HOUSE RADIO RECORD Department, whose personable attendants are ever willing to aid the record hound whether he be searching for BRAHMS, FORSYTHE or WALLER. ANDY ANDERSON presents three programs per week featuring the latest popular recorded releases. The station, KJBS, the times, Mon. 11:45 a. m., Wed. 3:45 p. m., Sat. 8:30 a. m. The program is known as the MUSIC BOX; on Fridays he also presents the CLASSICAL MUSIC BOX from 10 to 11 on KSFO, and adds that this is one "for the intellectuals only."

JOTTINGS:

GEORGE BURNS and GRACIE ALLEN are raking in $10,000 for one week's appearance at the CLEVELAND AUTO SHOW in November. . . . HELEN HAYES turned down an $85,000 movie contract to concentrate on her radio work. Her program is sponsored by General Foods in behalf of Sanka Coffee. . . KSFO, the local station, and KNX, Hollywood, are busy completing plans for their interchange of programs, which is to start November 1 . . . BING CROSBY has been ribbing JACK OAKIE and playing practical jokes on him for quite some time, to the disgust of Oakie's ardent admirers. Recently Oakie replaced Crosby as a crooner on Paramount's new pic, "MONEY FROM HOME." He took advantage of his fortune by plastering Bing's dressing room with clippings of the item and by mailing them to him daily. Jack made some records of a song from "COLLEGE RHYTHM"; they sold like hot cakes and so he proudly flaunts his royalty checks in the face of Crosby—who has also made a record or two. . . . EDDIE DUCHIN, pianist and orchestra leader, who has recently completed work on the picture "CORONADO," is the author of a book on piano styles which sold 40,000 copies . . . Many letters are being received by RUTH ETTING for her rendition of "JUST A-WEARYING FOR YOU" on the recent WILL ROGERS memorial program. . . HOAGY CARMICHAEL, composer of STARDUST and BALLAD IN BLUE, is collaborating with JEFF MACHAMER, funnyman of LIFE mag. on a revusical called "GAGS AND GALS" which WARNER BROS. are backing. . . . RUDY VALLEE and his troupe are passing up a two weeks' engagement at the COCOANUT GROVE and appearances here in S. F. just to avoid legal entanglements with his ex-wife which would pop up if he entered the state. They are now at the Waldorf-Astoria. . . . While PAUL ROBESON is at UNIVERSAL CITY to do "SHOW BOAT" the WARNERS have their eyes on him for a leading role in "GREEN PASTURES" . . . TOM COAKLEY is now playing in the Netherland Plaza Hotel in Cincinnati, Ohio. . . . CARVEL CRAIG'S band is now playing at the Hotel St. Claire in San Jose; his music is aired via KQW on Saturdays . . . MARTA EGGERTH, film fraulein from Budapest, is wedded to JAN KIEPURA, famous European talkie songster. . . .

From time to time we try to give a boost to worthy records. Here's one that is most certainly deserving of praise—"CHANT OF THE WEED" and on the reverse side, "RHUMBA FANTASY" as recorded by a large orchestra and chorus directed by ANDRE KOSTELANETZ. "Chant of the Weed" was written by DON REDMAN, whose hand used to use it as their theme melody . . . Incidentally Redman's orch. is really the outfit formerly known as McKINNEY'S COTTON PICKERS.

An organization known as THE CO-OPERATIVE ANALYSIS OF BROADCASTERS has released a report giving the status of various orchestras. The report has undoubtedly been worked out in a very scientific manner; here it is. LOMBARDO 15.1, KING 11.6, DUCHIN 10.4, HIMBER 8.2, REISMAN 6.1, NOBLE 5.7, and HEIDT 3.7 . . . gadzooks, curses, fie, & phooey . . . If we had our way the classifications would read in the following order: NOBLE, HIMBER, REISMAN, KING,—and I don't think we ought to even mention Lombardo, Duchin, or Heidt . . . so much for that . . . . Have you noticed how much the choon TREASURE ISLAND resembles two not-too-old numbers, namely, THE NITE WHEN LOVE WAS BORN, and ME . . . No wonder WINCHELL ribs BEN BERNIE so much about his real name . . . Bernie's true moniker is ANCELOWITZ, yowsah, yowsah! Wouldn't that look hot on a theater marquee . . . . FRED ALLEN, who is NOT related to GRACIE, was born as JOHN FLORENCE SULLIVAN, so there—.

This time we'll close with the "knifitie" by the radio and screen announcer, ALOIS HAVRILLA: "Announcer prevention—may he had by switching off your radio" . . .

Goombye, please.

The College Reads—

The Garden Murder Case

S.S. Van Dyne

By Bill Jackson

S. S. Van Dyne, who is America's public hero number one, of modern detective and mystery stories, brings to us again a triumph of super-detecting over the criminal mind and with the delightful character, Philo Vance.

Philo Vance, in my opinion, has been created solely for the role of master sleuth to match wits with the greatest of master criminals. The characters are so real that you just imagine coming in contact with them at all times. A hard-boiled sergeant on the detective force; the district attorney who is always looking forward to the coming election immediately after the tough mystery cases have been solved; the way in which all the clues are added to form a barrier of guilt around the innocent and guilty persons; the lovers' secret rendezvous, the jealous cousin, and other interesting events to keep your mind in a turmoil until the book has been completely finished.

Counting sheep produces slumber, but The Garden Murder Case will keep you wide awake the entire night, so please do not begin reading it before going to sleep.

The events leading to the mysterious disappearance of the nurse; the huge bet placed on Equanimity for the feature race of the Belmont handicap; the strange goings and comings of Professor Garden with his work being centered in the Garden laboratory working with radio-active sodium, and the other minor details to complete the plot.

Until the very last I did estimate the cunning of Nurse Beeton, her actions and why she should have borne the brunt of the attacker's attack. Although Nurse Beeton disliked Woody Swift, she favored him with her intentions until the turning point in her life. Why did Mrs. Garden, the professor's wife, want to commit suicide—or was it suicide?

Van Dyne has so cleverly hidden the real motive of this mystery in the Garden home as to keep the interest keyed to a high pitch until the very end. The Garden Murder Case goes into first place as a super thriller and as the best of its type story.

Recording Secretary Claims Chicago as Birthplace

A girl with the gorgeous complexion, wavy black hair, and blue eyes—that's Mimi Colton, the college's corresponding secretary. She favors horseback riding, dancing, writing, and reading as pastimes.

Through her ability, she has had the opportunity to do some work for the San Francisco Chronicle, which has led to some extraordinary situations. Mimi says she has had her picture taken with everything from a Community Chest Baby to an orang-outang, and if you don't think having your picture taken with an orang-outang is an experience not to be repeated, just ask Mimi.

An Easterner

Chicago is her birthplace and the date was July 1, 1917. When she was six years old she and her parents came west, just in time for her to start her educational career here. Mimi first attended Sutro grammar school and graduated from the eighth grade there. Her class happened to be the last, because of the building of Presidio Junior High School which eliminated the eighth grade from the grammar schools around that district. So she went a year to Presidio and graduated with its first graduating class.

Polytechnic was her choice in high schools, and during her time there she distinguished herself by becoming class officer in her sophomore year and retaining the office throughout her junior and senior years. She was also associate editor of the paper, and member of the Drama Club.

Attended San Mateo

After her graduation in June, 1934, she went to San Mateo for a year. There she continued her journalistic talent as front page editor of the San Matean. Here, at San Francisco Junior College, she is on the Social Committee and the Dating Bureau. She intends to go to California in a year or so and finish up in journalism. Mimi is also interested in salesmanship, and is on call for two of the big department stores, where she works frequently.

College Office Acts As Lost and Found Bureau

Those requiring the services of a lost and found department will receive aid through the college office, which will function in the place of a specially created bureau, announces Dean Edwin C. Browne. Both the Extension Building and the Galileo offices will extend this service.

Dance Has All Staff Worried About Manners

ETIQUINTS

DEAR ED:

If a dance is semi-formal and the girls wear formals, what does the fellow wear, and is a corsage necessary?—D. H.

DEAR D. H.:

To be quite correct, the men should wear tux and black tie . . . but if you are thinking about college-sponsored affairs, the fellows wear business suits. A corsage is a complement, not a necessity. If you can't afford one, don't let that keep you away.—Ed.

DEAR ED:

What does one do if he is stuck with a date?—Jittery.

DEAR JITTERY:

The girl can ask to be taken to some friend's, the boy may say he has the next dance taken and ask where he may leave her—but the best bet is to realize the situation and both pretend to be having a good time.—Ed.

Co-Eds Select Aspirants For A.W.S. Offices

With the idea of getting equal representation from all parts of the city, the nominating committee of the A.W.S. met last Monday morning and three girls were chosen for each of the offices.

Those who were selected for the office of president were: Dot Fidiam, Helen Hall, and Alice Lubeck.

For the vice-presidency of the organization, Dorothy Howell of Oakland, Mary MacGogy, and Helene Wright of Portland were named.

Lillian Agee, Emily LaRock and Pamela Spaulding were chosen.

Those running for the office of treasurer are Myrtle Hamilton, who formerly attended San Mateo J.C., Caroline Knottner, and Elizabeth Yates.

At the open meeting held last Wednesday, the members of the Associated Women Student Body were given an opportunity to further nominate anyone that they believed competent for the offices.

Miss Patty Wells was chairman of the nominating committee and was assisted by Mimi Colton, Helen Davis, Mary O'Neil, Donna McPherson, Helene Wright, and Elizabeth Yates.

Music Career Of Instructor Shows Talent

Miss Badger Stars in Solo Parts With City's Opera Casts

Five seasons singing solo roles with the San Francisco Opera Company! Guest artist last season with the Chamber Opera Company! A professional singer and a college instructor in one! Presenting—Miss Flossita Badger, the lady of accomplishments.

Coming from a musical family, she claims never to have thought of any other career than music, although it was not until she entered the College of the Pacific that she thought of teaching.

Studied in Europe

A member of Mu Zeta Rho, the international music honor society, she received her degree as Bachelor of Music. She studied for many years with private teachers. For a year, she lived in Paris where she also took lessons in French diction from a member of the Opera Comique and lessons in voice and composition. For a season she sang with the Royal Opera San Carlos at Naples, Italy, where she played many leading roles.

She is an accomplished linguist, having studied Italian and French in the respective countries, German in school, and Russian and Spanish for singing—and then, of course, she now speaks English for the benefit of her former students at Lowell and her present ones at college.

Plans for College

A brilliant musical future for the college in the musical city of San Francisco is her prediction. She is pleased with the showing in activities and has many plans for the future.

Amongst the many concerts, recitals and other musical events she plans for herself, is a Spanish folk recital at the Palm Court of the Palace Hotel on November 10.

Co-Eds Choose Crepes At The Cocktail Hour

By Louise Corica

The most important factor in choosing a bar dress is to get a very dressy street dress that carries through till the dinner hours.

Friendship crepe is one of the new materials featured in a cocktail costume of black and white. The plain skirt is of black crepe and the top of metallic. A black jacket accompanies the frock made in a sports style with a pleat in the center back and a belt buckling in the front.

Crepe Sparkles

Another very striking outfit is of black rough crepe shot with metallic threads. The belt is of black and dubonnet braided net. A high neckline and very full skirt complete this simple, but very good-looking, dress.

Dinner dresses are also appropriate for cocktails, if not too formal. One unusual style is of electric blue velvet with a very new quilted neckline. The very full sleeves are reminiscent of the Renaissance. They are gathered and slit to give the full effect. The belt is of gold braided kid.

Dress for Youth

A more youthful and practical cocktail dress is of black and white shirt-waist style. The skirt, black crepe, is plain, leaving the accent on the black and white dotted satin shirt-waist top. It has a Peter Pan collar and a black grosgrain ribbon bow at the throat, and the pleated trimming is effective. Rhinestone buttons down the front of the waist and short puffed sleeves make up a smart costume.

Cocktail dresses and bar costumes should be about street length, but dinner dresses should be more formal.

CO-EDITORIALS

Of the 571 women enrolled in the college, there were but a few over 100 at the Associated Women Students' first meeting. Of course, a good excuse of some of the absent would-be members is that they didn't know anything about it, but by exerting just a small portion of that well-known feminine attribute, curiosity, all of the desired information could have been obtained. The women who were loyal in their support of this movement and eagerly appeared in the Galileo Cafeteria should have their names enscribed on the first page of the charter roll.

The A.W.S. has been formed for the purpose of insuring equal representation for the women of the college in all college activities, and unless the women support their organization, it is certain there will be none.

The nomination and election of officers constituted the business of the past meeting. Nominating committees were appointed at the last meeting to select the women most fitted for executive work in the association.

There will be sufficient publicity to announce the next scheduled meeting of the A.W.S., and the time will be arranged so that it will be convenient for all the women to attend. It is the sincere hope of the women who are working to begin the Women's Association that there will be a hundred per cent attendance and the women will all be interested in the movement.

Date Bureau Functions As College Seeks Dance Dates

No date for tonight? It's your own fault! Girls and fellows of all sizes and types were on the date bureau list.

Under the direction of Deming Smith, dates for this evening's dance have been arranged for the last two weeks by the college's first date bureau. Operating absolutely free of charge to the signees and strictly confidential, this bureau absolutely guarantees satisfaction.

A charge of 25 cents will be levied on each of the two students (man and woman) involved in each successful date arranged by the bureau, according to Inez St. Ledger, date bureau committee member.

By first selecting a couple with similar tastes and reasonably equal height, and then introducing them beforehand, the dangers of a blind date are eliminated. At this point the bureau steps out. If the fellow likes the girl he has the opportunity to ask her; if he doesn't, no harm done. Similarly the young lady is under no obligation to accept. In either case the bureau starts all over again. When the date is finally arranged for, no one is the wiser and a new romance may be beginning.

Contrary to popular belief, the bureau is absolutely on the level. The committee expects that tonight's dance will be made enjoyable to a great many persons by the new friendships it has promoted. Assisting Smith on this very successful committee were Donna McPherson and Frank Standorf-Pederson.

Late News

It was decided at the constitutional committee meeting of the A.W.S. in the Student Store that the college should use State Teachers' constitution as a pattern. The changes were mainly in the provision for the number of representatives of the A.W.S. to attend the executive council.

Ethel Clarkson, acting as chairman, was assisted by Evelyn Van Orshoff, Elizabeth Yates, Patty Wells, Donna McPherson, Patricia Allen, and Emelie La Rock.

RAMS RUN WILD TO BEAT STATE

THE GUARDSMAN SPORTS

Fans Watch Clarke Star In 32-12 Win

Eltringham's Kicks Place Gaters in Hole; Average 68 Yards

By George Dunne

Featuring several long, sensational runs that resulted in scores, San Francisco Junior College uncovered a surprise offense to upset the dopesters and win easily over State, 32 to 12, at Kezar last Saturday.

The victory gave the jaysee eleven the somewhat dubious distinction of being San Francisco's college football champions.

Eltringham Kicks For 68 Yards

George Clarke and Bob Eltringham cooperated to start the Red and White on their way to the landslide victory. Eltringham put the Gaters in the hole with a beautiful quick kick that traveled 68 yards to the State 12-yard line. After three ineffective thrusts at the powerful Ram line, the Staters' attempt to kick out was partially blocked. Clarke took the kick on the dead run and went down the sidelines for 35 yards and a touchdown. The attempt at conversion was wide.

Five minutes later Werner, State's line star, blocked Eltringham's kick to recover the ball on the S.F.J.C. 17-yard line. Two completed passes brought the ball to the 3-yard line where Harkness smashed over to score for State. The Gaters missed the try for the extra point, leaving the score tied at 6 to 6.

From this point on, Russ Sweet's men had the situation well in hand. Clarke took State's kickoff and raced 70 yards to the Golden Gaters' 17-yard marker. A reverse to Guisti carried the ball to the 3-yard line and Eltringham went crashing into the end zone on a power play.

Pass of 40 Yards Brings Score

A beautifully executed pass play, Guisti to Warren, was good for 40 yards and an additional 6 points. For the sixth straight time this season, the jaysees missed the conversion and the gun ended the first half with the Rams on the long end of an 18-to-6 score.

Coach Russ Sweet sent in his reserves for the third quarter and State started moving on passes, threatening twice, only to be halted by the sturdy Ram forward wall. State's aerial circus advanced to the Rams' 20, where Harkness shot a pass towards the end zone which was intercepted by Pantages on the 10-yard line. Behind the beautiful down-field interference of five men, Pantages sped 90 yards to a score. This was the longest run ever made by a jaysee player. Eltringham then proved himself the season's hero by actually scoring the conversion. Something went wrong with the play and he circled left end to score.

State Scores in Fourth Period

With but five minutes of play left in the game, Simon broke through to block a jaysee kick and recover for a State touchdown.

On the last play of the game, Morrison, jaysee passing ace, fooled the opposition who thought he was going to pass, and ran 50 yards to a touchdown. The Red and White gridmen added the extra point to make the final score 32 to 12.

The outstanding star of the day and spark-plug of the Rams was George Clarke, whose quick first quarter touchdown was a blow from which the Gaters could never quite recover.

Kurtz, Kremesec, Pedrin, Murphy and Warren were outstanding in the line for the jaysees while Simon and Werner stood out for State.

Soccer Men Get Another Chance at San Mateo in Night Contest Thursday

Getting another chance at San Mateo, the "Rams" soccer squad will meet the Bulldogs Thursday night at Seals Stadium. The game will be played as a preliminary to the semi-pro contest of the City Soccer League.

San Mateo has one victory over the Rams and will be gunning for another. The San Francisco soccer men lack the experience of the peninsula squad. This has been a real handicap to Coach Bass in turning out a winning combination.

SPORTS COMMENT

By TIM GUINEY

Game Shows J.C. Power

If you want a few of the statistics on that game with State, which definitely proved that our gridders were superior to the Gaters, here they are: The total yardage gained from scrimmage for Esseffjaysee was 215, as compared to 130 for the opponents. The average length of kickoff returns for the Jaysee team was 21 yards, while the Staters could only net 5.

One of the more noticeable phases of the game was the fact that while the Rams were able to make only five first downs, they also managed to finish with five touchdowns to their credit, which meant that they played heads-up ball during the entire encounter.

Another noticeable and pleasing aspect of the day was the attendance of the Jaysee rooters, who far outnumbered the student body of the State organization.

The college tennis team is getting up there fast. There has been such a steadily increasing attendance at the meetings that President Jimmy Neal has been forced to limit the members only to those who intend to actively participate in the affairs of the organization, both athletic and otherwise. Challenges have been pouring in for games, from many colleges and junior colleges in the state.

Meetings are held at 1:45 p. m. every Monday in the cafe, Galileo. Interested? Drop around and talk it over.

Maybe We Are, Maybe Not!

TIM GUINEY,
SPORTS EDITOR,
THE GUARDSMAN.

It is really hard to either pan you or praise you in the same letter. The sports staff of The Guardsman deserves a great deal of credit for the admirable job they have done in co-ordinating the news of the sporting world in the junior college.

I was particularly pleased to note that you have taken liberty, as you so aptly put it in your column last week, to call to account the person who declared that San Francisco J. C. was a football college. It surprised me that such an institution as published the charge would make such a statement. Without doubt I think you should be incensed at such an accusation and try to repudiate it if possible.

As for the panning of the sports section, I don't think that you are giving sufficient coverage to the minor sports in the college. I really think, although I don't know, that there is more news than just football every week.

Sincerely,

W. R. R.

Comment: Dear W. R. R.—You see, when the author of the article called us a "football college" we didn't know whether to feel insulted or complimented. At the time he referred to us with this "nasty-nice" title, our football team had won one game, lost two, and tied one, which, for a "football college," wouldn't be considered so good, but would not be a bad record at all for a college just starting in active competition.

As for the sports coverage on minor sports events, we've tried to give them all a break, although it's no easy job, the school being scattered out as it is. However, we now have regular reporters on soccer, tennis, basketball, wrestling and boxing, track, and football.

As the college athletic events get better organized, so shall the paper be able to give better publicity to all of the different athletic functions.

Any suggestions for starting up new sports would be welcomed in this column.

Hoopsters Put In Hours Practicing For Conference

Although basketball season is still a few months away, the cage-minded candidates are putting in some solid "licks" at the present time under Coach Louis "Dutch" Conlon. The boys are working out during gym periods and every Thursday night at the Everett gym.

Most of the time is being spent on the important fundamentals, mainly passing, shooting, and guarding. Scrimmage is also an essential part of the program.

Outside of the conference schedule, tentative games are being scheduled with San Francisco State, California frosh, St. Mary's frosh, U.S.F. frosh, San Jose State, and Golden Gate Junior College.

Quite a few former prep stars are candidates for the team and will probably form the nucleus for the squad. Among the better known casabans are: Carlyle Caine, Ernie Loustalot, and Opple, all from Commerce. The former two are all-city men. From Sacred Heart are Terry and Slattery. Eagen and Comba hail from Lowell High School; both have received all-city mention. Paul Ripon and Felix Anido are from Galileo High School.

Prospects are for a light and fast outfit which will give any junior college team a good tough contest.

After twenty-three successive years of defeat at the hands of the Indians, the University of California water polo team last Saturday morning defeated that of Stanford by a score of 8 to 2.

Yell leaders at the University of Kentucky have to take a six weeks' training course before they can even try out for the job.

FULL COVERAGE! Again The Guardsman Sports is proud to report that a complete staff will cover the Los Angeles game on November 1.

Expert writers will bring you news of both teams. All the dope about the pre-game practices, any spot news—it all finds its way to the sports section of The Guardsman.

Foremost among those who will give their word pictures of the Los Angeles game are:

GEORGE DUNNE, football expert, will bring you the inside dope on the chances of the teams, their condition, the real story of the game.

LOU BERTOLUCCI will cover the statistics for The Guardsman. This expert will bring a complete comparison of the two teams game by game for the season.

TIM GUINEY, sports editor of The Guardsman, will cover the personal angle in the pre-game campaigns. He will be assisted by:

BILL BUCHAN, who will watch the Los Angeles team and will picture the different personalities of that squad.

The same staff will give complete coverage of the contest at Seals Stadium on November 1.

Soccer Squad Loses Battle To San Mateo

Bulldogs Tally Two Scores From Toe of H. Kotta

Two goals by Henry Kotta, diminutive wing of the San Mateo Bulldogs, accounted for a 2-to-0 victory over the San Francisco Junior College Saturday morning at Chalet Field.

Despite the fact that San Mateo scored but two goals, they appeared considerably stronger than San Francisco.

Bulldogs Show Plenty of Power

The Bulldogs took little time to show their superiority by kicking a goal soon after the opening gun was sounded. After several exchanges in midfield, the ball was passed to Kotta who experienced little trouble in kicking the goal.

Late in the second half, Kotta made another for the Blue and White on an assist from Mutti, San Mateo fullback, whose long kicks and fine defensive work were a feature of the day. After the peninsula boys had failed on several occasions to score, due to the efforts of the Rams' backfield, the ball was finally served to Kotta who kicked the goal. The Red and White backfield which played so well defensively, was composed of Don Leeds, goalie; Walt Odone and Bob Nelson, fullbacks.

Additions Give Rams Strength

With the addition of five new players, San Francisco looked considerably stronger than in past performances. Outstanding among the newcomers were "Juan" Zegura and Bob Nelson; the former is of European origin while the latter hails from Galileo High.

On November 9 a return game with San Mateo is expected, and by this time the local boys should show considerable improvement.

HISTORY OF THE J.C. CONFERENCE

To establish better athletic relationship between the secondary colleges, is the purpose of the Northern California Junior College Conference. The Conference committee, headed by their commissioner, Mr. Mohr, registrar of the S. F. J. C., picks the referees, umpires, and decides what shall be major sports, which include baseball, basketball, golf, tennis, football, and track. Because of the increasing popularity of soccer, it will probably be made a major sport next season.

The Conference meets twice a year, one meeting at the time and place of the annual track meet. The second meeting is held in December, and its meeting place is decided by the commissioner. Special meetings may be called by three members.

Guardsman Starts Series On Track; Local Schools Contribute Stars To Team

Runners Stop Old Rivalry to Work for Squad

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the first of a series of articles by Lou Bertolucci, Guardsman track writer, giving a brief review of the past experience of the various candidates now signed up for the track team. Watch for them each week.

By Lou Bertolucci

Faces and names familiar to all rabid San Francisco track fans complete the roster of the Esseff Jaysee squad. Athletes who at some recent or past years have thrilled onlookers will continue on to greater glory under the Red and White. Coach Sweet's squad is composed of approximately three-fifths of boys from the eight San Francisco high schools. Others on the team to date come from East Bay high schools or schools in Northern California.

Poly, Lowell Send Stars

Poly and Lowell, rival schools, send us several prep stars. Stanley Evans and George Warren have met time and again on track and field while competing for Lowell and Poly, respectively. Evans, the colored ace, is quite a versatile athlete, having run the 100, 220 and 440 besides broad-jumping. He has times of 52.2 in the quarter-mile, ten-flat in the century, and leaps better than 22½ feet in the broad jump. His presence on the team does not hurt Coach Sweet's feelings in the least.

The football team now claims George Warren but the Spring will find him clad in a track suit running the 440. He has run the distance under 52 seconds and can figure in the Jaysee Conference meet. In his spare moments George tries the broad jump and can get out as far as 21 feet. Evans and Warren will discontinue their high school rivalry.

Brown Sets Hurdle Record

Back in 1931, F. Brown was going great guns for Poly. In fact he topped the timbers so fast that he set a new city 120-yard high hurdle record which still stands today. Since then Brown has attended San Jose State and can run the high hurdles under 15 seconds. He is eligible for one year of Jaysee competition.

Switching the scene to the field events, the high jump presents another versatile athlete in Ernie Loustalot, who comes to us by way of Commerce. Ernie is a little fellow with long, slender legs, so necessary for the high jumper. He has climbed as high as 5 feet 6 inches and captured the event in the 1935 high school meet. Ernie was an All City guard on the basketball team and will seek a similar position on the Jaysee hoop squad.

Weak Tackles Worry Pirate Grid Mentors

Tim Guiney's Story

far as punting goes, Riddle has the toe with the college education.

Weimer Threat Worries Rams

Fullback will be Stan Weimer, a heavy, hard-hitting, shifty ball carrier, who was moved up from the position of halfback in the earlier part of the season. Weimer has seen plenty of action in the Modesto backfield, and will be a dangerous man to the San Franciscans, both offensively and defensively.

In the center of the Pirate line will be Al Pearch, a 177 pounder, who beat out four heavier competitors for this position. Pearch will be one of the key men in the Modesto offense, and will back up the line when the Pirates are defending their goal.

Perhaps the weakest position in the Modesto line will be the tackle spots, where Ardon Irey and Ed Hoatsen, both inexperienced, will perform. These two men were chosen for the starting posts due chiefly to their spectacular playing in interscholastic football.

Sweet Names Probable Lineup

Against this line, Russ Sweet, head coach of the San Francisco team, will probably start Pete Jambruno at center, Kremesec and Murphy at guards, Kurtz and Brickley at tackles, with the end positions having a long list of eligibles, among whom are Adolph Pedrin, Glenn Allen, George Warren, and Bob Lee. All of these players have seen a good deal of action at the end positions, and Coach Sweet is uncertain as to which two he will start.

The starting quarterback position will be a toss-up between Ed Cassino, Charley Olberg, and Odero Guisti, all excellent field generals and safety men. Bob Eltringham and George Clarke are almost certain starters at the halfback posts, while Tom Maner will be the likely choice for fullback.

If the San Francisco team continues to click as it did against State, it will have a good chance of finishing on the long end of the score, although the floodlights on the night field may be a strong factor in favor of the Modestans.

Talk About 'Big' Game Stirs Team

Gridders Lay Plans to Combat First Invasion from Los Angeles

Although the Ram footballers are tangling with the gridmen from Modesto tonight, they are really pointing for their game with their sister institution, Los Angeles Junior College, on next Friday night.

Publicity is already being given this affair in the city newspapers, and radio sports programs are beginning to "boom" the game in the interests of the junior college.

The scene of the coming battle will be Seals Stadium, and it is generally believed that the game will be a complete success. After tonight's fray at Modesto, the college team will begin extensive practice for the "big game" of the year.

Russ Sweet, head coach of the San Francisco team, has already hinted that he may work on a few new plays, besides the present ones, so as to be fully prepared for the attempted northern invasion.

PLAN SWIM CLUB

Both members of the American Red Cross, Robert Parker and Ray Hussey, plan to organize a college swimming club. They urge that any students interested contact them as soon as possible. Training in one of the local plunges is planned.

SAILING THROUGH THE NEWS

BY THE NEWS EDITOR

"Peace Dove Hovers Over Ethiopia Again!" cried metropolitan headlines early this week. So what? It must be open season on doves in the desert.

"Science Gives Invaluable Aid to Nations in Developing Technique of Mass Murder!" cried a feature headline in the same paper. That's something.

Can You Spend 4,000 Millions?

Wanted, by the Federal government, someone who knows how to pass out 4,000 millions of dollars in one year. The relief administration, characteristically bogged down in its self-muddied mire of red tape, has had to resort to "boondoggling," the practice of creating wholly unnecessary and often ridiculous jobs, just to give employment.

Why can't worthwhile projects be put through? Because WPA money must be spent almost 100 per cent for labor. Perhaps the brain-trusters do not realize that it takes labor to produce materials.

Death by Slow Strangulation

If ever you contemplate indulging in the gentle art of murder, don't go to Spain to do it. In that country capital punishment is carried out by means of the garrote. The garrote is an iron collar placed around the victim's neck; screws are slowly tightened until complete strangulation is accomplished.

This week a man in Granada, on the eve of his execution by that pleasant method, was married. Following the nuptials he enjoyed a pleasant repast, apparently free from worries of the morrow.

True, or Faked?

The possibility that the war protest movement to leave classes on Armistice Day might be fostered by Communists prompted me to visit local headquarters of that organization in this city, incognito, and sound them out.

The Communist stronghold on Grove Street presented a sorry site. Locked up, and with no adherents apparently present, the place gives one the impression of shattered glass and strewn-about papers. A placard in the smashed window reads, "Is This Hearst's Americanism?"

I wonder if the windows were really smashed by anti-Communists, or if the vandalism were perpetrated by adherents in a supposedly subtle plan to gain sympathy. If so, the Communists defeated their own purpose, for, instead of giving an impression of power, the forlorn appearance creates an idea of abject, dismal defeat, with not enough spirit apparent to rebuild after an assault.

"God, Please Save Him for Us"

The religion of patriotic priests of Ethiopia is interesting in its idea of punishment. A prayer rendered by the ecclesiastics in condemning Hailie Selassie's traitorous son-in-law, Gugsa, said:

"God, do not kill the traitor, but allow him to be returned to our hands some day for banging."

Unknown Achieves Fame With Dress

One of our fair co-eds has at last achieved and worn the ideal sports costume. It could be correctly worn on the street or campus.

A fitted long-sleeved bottle green sweater, (which didn't bulge in the wrong places) and tightened in at the waist by a narrow belt. Over this was worn a sleeveless brown velvet like suede jacket—now girls, get this: It laces instead of the customary seaming. A skirt of brown nobby wool, cut on the bias, fitted perfectly. A tiny brown beret fitted over her curls, and her costume was complete with light stockings and brown and white oxfords.

The Year Begins In the Fall for Me

By CLARA LUNDIE ASKEW

The Guardsman presents this poem contributed by President A. J. Cloud

The year begins in the fall for me,
When the bare brown road
Dares me to come—
A gypsy lurks behind every tree.
And I hear the ceaseless, urgent beat
Of Autumn's scarlet drum.

And I feel its thrum beneath my feet,
Under the wind-tossed leaves.

The year begins in the fall for me,
When the sky is a wind-swept blue,
And the Painter of all the colors of earth
Collects His revenue.

Charter Bids From Groups Swamp Office

Swamped with applications for official recognition, the College Administration has announced through Mr. Paul Pitman, assistant to President Cloud, that no charters have as yet been granted.

Extra-curricular organizations have been going under full steam, working on the assumption that drafts presented to the Administration will be accepted, for the most part.

Drawing up of club charters, with the aid of faculty sponsors, and election of student officers for the organizations have constituted the main work of the groups to date.

Types of Clubs Vary

As a benefit to all interested in student organization, Mr. Pitman has suggested that next semester a group consisting of officers of all extra-curricular clubs be formed in order to study the most modern and efficient methods for governing student activities. Competent advisors and authorities on the subject can be pressed into service, according to Mr. Pitman.

Clubs now well under way here consist of groups in range from nationality organizations to civic clubs, from letters and science interests to those of purely scientific nature.

With times and places still for the most part only tentative, The Guardsman has collected what data there is available at present, in the hope that those not already engaged in extra-curricular activities may learn the how, when, where and who of their particular interest club.

Topping the list with reference to membership, with the exception of the A.W.S., is the Pistol and Rifle Club, boasting over fifty students in its ranks. Further information on this group will be found elsewhere in this edition of The Guardsman.

The Art Club, catering to luncheon-meetings, boasts as faculty sponsors Mr. Richard Allman and Mr. Milton Ecke. Time and place of meetings are announced beforehand.

The Engineers group, leaning, as its new name implies, to engineering majors, is sponsored by Mr. Alfred Agosti and Mr. Manuel J. Jacobs.

Fosters Spirit

Organized to foster the spirit of the college and to assist in Associated Students activities, the Skull and Blades Society, under Mr. Lloyd D. Luckmann, requires for membership bids from members, based on outstanding work done by the applicant.

What will probably develop into a college letter organization, the Hickory and Jeans Society will meet next Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock in the faculty cafeteria, Galileo. Dean Edwin Browne sponsors this group.

The newly formed Associated Women Students organization has as its sponsor Dean Eugenie Leonard. This group meets on Wednesday afternoons at Galileo.

The Tennis Club, which is supplying the college with a net team, meets at 2:10 o'clock p.m. in room 150, Galileo, on Mondays. Mr. Russ Sweet is coach for the racqueteers.

Mr. Pitman in Charge

Miss Flossita Badger sponsors two clubs, the Men's Glee and the A Cappella.

The Press Club, with a limited membership, has as its sponsor Mr. Francis Colligan. This group is seeking affiliation with a national journalistic organization.

Mr. Pitman is in charge of all extra-curricular activities, with the exception of men's athletics, under Dean Edwin Browne, and women's groups, under Dean Eugenie Leonard.

Anyone interested in forming a club should first see Mr. Pitman for details, according to the college administration.

IN MEMORIAM

The faculty and students of the college offer their condolences to Miss Elaine Twomey upon the death of her sister, Julia.

No Better Than A Grammar School!

Editor, The Guardsman.
Dear Sir:

A junior college that was formerly run on the same level as a prep school has now descended to a new low! It is now being bandied on the level of a grammar school! (and even this may be too high for it).

The latest is this business of sending home a report on each student making a "D" grade or worse. Horror of horrors! Monitors telling you to walk around to the mezzanine, "keep to the left on the stairway," and a lot of other silly and irrelevant bunk weren't bad enough. Even charging a student a dollar to change a subject could be borne by keeping a stiff upper lip and consoling yourself with the thought that things were still new around the "college" and would be settled in time.

But this is the last straw. Writing home about grades! Rather than pass out cinch-notices as is done by every other college and junior college in the country, S.F.J.C. must adopt the child-like tactics of going behind a person's back to someone else and writing home about them.

San Mateo, with your man-to-man tactics and beliefs, we salute you!—H.J.M.

ATTABOY! KEEP IT UP

Dear Editor:

I notice with satisfaction that city officials are conducting an extensive campaign to decide just where and when the J. C. building will be constructed. I see that they are bent on erecting a school that will be admired throughout the state. They have suggested many sites, but so far I think they have overlooked one that is a honey. The city owns land on the shores of Lake Merced and that is a place where the most beautiful school could be built. You know that place was considered as a location for the World's Fair in 1938. While sites are being considered, why not give that one a break—it's a natural! (I wish we could get the Yerba Buena shoals grounds after the fair, but we can't wait that long.)

Yours for a great campus,
STUDENT X.

YOU DON'T SAY!

Guardsman:

I don't know anything about it, but my powers of observation tell me that your office on the mezzanine floor of the Extension building is being terribly abused. What with the date bureau and other minor organizations taking possession of the office, it is always filled to excess. Some rumors even have it that there will be a student body meeting held in the ticket booth next week. Is that so? A. W. S.

DON'T ASK US

Guardsman:

I am going to the dance tonight and I have a suggestion for one to be held in the near future. It was followed recently at another junior college.

Leap year is coming and it's time for the ladies to get in practice. How about a "Backwards Dance," with the women assuming the chivalrous characteristics ordinarily attributed to the opposite sex, furnishing the necessary transportation and financial backing for the gentlemen of their choice? BROKE.

SO WE NOTICE

Guardsman:

Can't you find some other way of distributing The Guardsman than through the window in the ticket office at the Extension building? Inasmuch as we have to enter the school through the mezzanine floor, we almost have to be fullbacks to get through the line which waits for the paper. LITEWATE.

Fifty Attend Meet of New Pistol Group

Gun Club Seeking Funston Rifle Target Range for Practice Meets

Over fifty men and women turned out at the initial meeting of the Rifle and Pistol Club held in the North Library, Galileo, at 1:15 Friday, October 18.

Faculty sponsors of the newly organized club are Mr. J. S. Hughes and Mr. Carl F. Stough. Mr. William A. Hancock, former coach of the Tucson High School rifle team, and a member of the National Guard, was selected by the Administration to coach the team.

Mr. Hughes said that the club would be able to use the rifle range at Galileo for practice. He also hopes to obtain the use of the Funston rifle range. This club, after it is well organized, will apply for membership in the National Rifle Association.

A committee of three was selected to draw up the constitution. Those named on the committee are Gordon Soliman, Robert Crowley, and Shirley Barrett.

Among those present were: Warren Pabika, member of the William Kent Rifle Club; A. D. Kuperstein, C.M.T.C. and R.O.T.C.; Joe Roach, R.O.T.C., C.M.T.C. and U.S.M.C.R.; Dallace Ogilvie, California National Guard and R.O.T.C.; Alvin Anderson, National Guard and R.O.T.C.; Robert Crowley, Vallemar Rifle Club and R.O.T.C.; Attilio Ferrari, eight years of hunting experience.

The next meeting of the Rifle and Pistol Club will be held October 30 at 1.15 p.m. in the Galileo faculty cafeteria.

Faculty Hears Doctor Lee at Lunch Meeting

With Dr. Edwin Lee, Superintendent of Schools, and Mr. John Beswick of the State Department of Education as their guests, members of the faculty met at luncheon in the Galileo Cafeteria on Monday, October 21.

President Cloud presided over the meeting and Dean Eugenie Leonard introduced the various speakers. Faculty members discussed the college's semi-professional courses in which they were particularly interested.

Two similar luncheons have been planned for October 28 and November 5. Another will be added if the scheduled material has not been fully covered, according to plans.

Skull and Blades Elect Hipshman

Tentative adoption of a constitution and election of officers constituted the principal issues at a meeting of the Skull and Blade Society held in the Galileo cafeteria last Friday.

Alvin Hipshman was elected president of the society; Ray Brunn, secretary-treasurer, and Bill Ellis, representative to the Associated Students.

The next meeting of the Skull and Blades will be held Thursday afternoon, October 31, at 1.15 o'clock in the Galileo cafeteria. Mr. Lloyd D. Luckmann is faculty advisor of the group.

Glee Club Announces First Concert

The Men's Glee Club will give its first outside performance on November 21 at Cleveland School for Father's Night of the P.T.A., according to Miss Flossita Badger, director.

The selections to be sung are: "Water Boy," "Drink to Me Only with Thine Eyes," "English Folk Song," "Dedication" (by Franz) and the J.C. Cheer Song.

Dr. Mercer Says That Students Are Serious

The college student today faces life in general, and his studies in particular, more seriously than he did five or six years ago.

This was the observation of Dr. Dorothy Mercer of the English Department, last week

"I think that the student of today realizes he must get more out of college than a diploma if he is to succeed," she said, "whereas in 1929 the student thought he was entitled to a good position merely by graduation. Adversity has made for keener competition."

One Way to Get a New Junior College

When residents of Jacuma, outside of San Diego, went to vote on a new school they were given a pleasant reminder. The doors of the present school house, where the balloting was taking place, collapsed due to weakened concrete supports. Needless to say, the bond issue won.

Follow the Furies

By Eleanor Carrel Chilton
Reviewed by Bill Jackson

In Follow the Furies, the age-old question arises of what constitutes the worship of God. Barbara Linton, the heroine, cleverly tries to change a tradition that has been the result of bitter feeling in the early life of her father and mother, Hugh Linton.

... of a man who has his own ideas on how children should be reared and who does not believe in the divine power of God, seeks to impart his own beliefs in the minds of his two children. His son does not respond, but his daughter Barbara proves an apt pupil.

The character of Barbara has been drawn with the finesse of one who specializes in realistic and wonderful portrayals. Grace Linton, the mother of the contented, but not fully satisfied mother who feels she is entitled to happiness. Content to share and not share, Stella Berrick appears as a rather shallow individual, content to wait placidly for happiness. The sketch of Andrew Linton, the son, is somewhat incomplete.

Follow the Furies is well written and worth the time of those interested in theories of divine worship.

Weary Co-ed Wonders If Brawny Men Would Stop Cars

Nonsensitorial

Anyone who has had any science at all knows that the shortest way to a place is the quickest, or vice versa. On this outstanding truth is the following complaint based.

The men of the college quite unconcernedly hop off the Powell street cable car in the middle of the block while the book-laden and weary co-ed must alight at Sutter street and struggle up the hill.

Now this situation is quite serious, especially at one minute after nine. In order to straighten this problem the following remedy is suggested.

First, the big brawny men of the college could get in back of the cable car and hold it at a standstill in the middle of the block while the co-eds got off.

WEARY CO-ED.

Table Vote on New Constitution Till Next Meet

Bulletin

Miss Helen Hall, former Galileo graduate, was unanimously elected to the office of the president for the Associated Women Students at the first election held last Friday. Her nearest opponent was Miss Alice Lubeck.

Miss Helene Wright, a Portland (Oregon) girl, was elected to the position of vice-president with a small majority. There were five other contestants for the position.

For the office of secretary, Miss Pamela Spaulding was unanimously elected over her two opponents. Miss Spaulding is a former Mission High graduate.

Another Galileo graduate was victorious in the treasurer's office in that Elizabeth Yates was also far in the lead for the office.

The officers were installed at the A.W.S. meeting held last Wednesday in the Galileo cafeteria.

For the purpose of introducing the constitution and candidates, a meeting of the Associated Women Students was held Wednesday, October 23, at Galileo High School.

In the absence of Jean Coplestone, women's news editor, Patty Wells, meeting chairman, opened the meeting and spoke briefly on the qualifications considered in selecting girls to run for the various offices. The candidates were then introduced and told of their experience in extra-curricular activities.

Introduce Candidates

Helen Hall from Galileo, Dorothy Edwards of Lowell and Alice Lubeck from Poly are aspiring to the office of president. Dorothy Howell from Fremont High in Oakland, Helene Wright of Portland and Mary McGovern transfer from San Mateo, were the women selected to run for vice-president. Beatrice Murphy, Carmen Ruiz, and Edmunda Arias were nominated from the floor.

Three women are competing for secretary. They are Emily La Rock from Balboa, Pam Spalding from Mission High, and Eleanor Arce of Washington High.

Table Constitution

The treasurer's duties will be filled by either Elizabeth Yates, Galileo; Carolyn Krotter of Poly, Myrtle Hamilton, transfer from San Mateo, or Vera Bracken of Poly. Miss Wells then turned the meeting over to Miss Ethel Clark on, chairman of the constitutional committee, who read the new constitution of the Associated Women Students. Comments were received from the group and a motion passed to table it until the next meeting.

Dean Leonard spoke briefly to the women concerning the constitution and made several helpful suggestions.

Steps were taken last week for the organization of the Women's Athletic Association, under the leadership of Miss Vera Spencer.

Why Ban Sororities?

Why ban sororities? That subject has been under discussion among the women of the college. Some think it is narrow-minded on the part of the faculty and the board others who have thought at all on the subject have come to the conclusion that the "powers that be" are of an [illegible] nature.

These theories should be discussed. The State Legislature has [illegible] attitude toward this [illegible]. It definitely will not [illegible] the formation of any [illegible] social organization which by their very nature [illegible] interfere with the educational [illegible] of the students.

[illegible] impossible to imagine [illegible] is a sincere need for an [illegible] of this type in a college founded to relieve the congested educational facilities in this city, and to provide an economical means of obtaining a university training for those who might otherwise be denied it. The exclusiveness which societies of this type naturally cause, cannot be tolerated in a secondary school which is as closely connected and as small as our college. Another point against sororities in a junior college is that there is no necessity to provide housing facilities for the students, such as is necessary in a standard college.

It is certain that after the facts have been understood, the "no-sorority" rule will be regarded in a more favorable light and will be accepted as final.

Conclave Asks Formation Of Sports Group

State Federation of Athletic Association Sought at San Mateo Meet

Tennis, swimming, hockey, basketball, [illegible] badminton, and baseball [illegible] by a pleasant luncheon were the features of the San Mateo [illegible] women's sports day held at San Mateo Saturday, October 19. Over fifty girls attended as representatives of three junior colleges of Northern California.

During the morning session, representatives from each junior college [illegible] held a meeting with a faculty [advisor] to discuss possibilities of forming a Junior College Women's Athletic Association. One of the number of interesting suggestions made toward bringing J.C. girl athletes together in friendly competition was that of having geographic divisional meetings of the various junior college associations, and then to hold annual federation meetings in connection with the A.W.S. This suggestion was favored greatly by both the faculty members and girls present.

One of the features of the luncheon was an interesting tumbling act presented by members of the W.A.A. Tumbling Club. Activities were concluded after luncheon because of local football games. Faculty members accompanying S.F.J.C. girl athletes were Miss Vera Spencer and Miss Laurine K[illegible].

Helene was born here in San Francisco 19 years ago on August 10, and between that time and now she has attended Gratton Grammar School, Polytechnic High School, and San Mateo J.C. In the first two of these schools she has held offices, leading up to her recent election as recording secretary of the San Francisco J.C. When she was in grammar school, she held class offices, and during her terms at Polytechnic she was once president and once secretary of her class. Besides that, she was secretary of the Social Committee and a member of the Forum Club.

Helene's favorite sports are swimming and tennis, and for hobbies besides collecting china dogs, of which she already has seventy, she also enjoys leather work.

DEAR ED:

Is there any way to squelch the "bleacher coach" and still remain within the boundaries of good taste?—Fan.

DEAR FAN:

Depends upon what you call good taste. Etiquette says you can't speak to a stranger, so that's out. Good manners forbid you making yourself conspicuous by uttering sarcastic remarks in a loud tone of voice. But if you are pretty and feminine, good taste is never offended.—Ed.

DEAR ED:

DEAR SUE:

Of course you should go. All you have to do is scream when the date screams, don't ask any questions—they may be awful dumb—and wear enough clothes so you don't have to go home in the middle of the game.—Ed.

NEW STYLES HINT OF 'BIG' BIG GAME

As you all probably know, our college football team plays Los Angeles J.C. on Friday, November 1, and every one wants to show Los Angeles that we have a well-dressed group of girls at our college, so dress smartly but properly.

If you wear a rabbit's hair or velveteen sports dress, or a plaid or a knit suit, you will be correctly dressed.

A three-piece outfit being featured in one of our best down-town stores is a rust-colored tweed sports suit with a swagger length top coat of contrasting material; this is one of the best kind of outfit for our game, as it is a night game and of course it will get cold. Besides being smart-looking, it is warm and terribly practical. It allows plenty of freedom and when it comes to cheering and yelling this suit "can take it."

Rabbit's hair dresses are making a big hit with the college girls and one very good-looking model is of Grenadier blue trimmed in dubonnet leather. The entire skirt is box pleated. It also features Vionnet sleeves and sunburst stitching.

Wear good-looking clothes, cheer for our team and we're bound to win the game.

Drive Nets Modestans 6-Point Win

Fumbles Cost Rams Chance to Win Ball Game

Outplayed by a fresher, hard hitting Pirate squad, the San Francisco Junior College Rams suffered a 6-0 defeat at Modesto last Friday night in a hard-fought, spirited game.

The only score of the game came as the result of five consecutive plays which netted the Modesto squad 80 yards and a touchdown. Bowman crossed the line standing up.

Bowman's attempt at conversion failed.

Fumble Costly

Hard hitting and clever tactics brought the San Francisco team to their opponent's 18-yard line in the first quarter. The favorable position was managed chiefly, however, through a pass from Bob Eltringham to Glenn Allen. In the next play the Rams lost the ball to Modesto on a fumble.

Modesto threatened to score again in the third quarter when a series of plays by Zinzer carried them to the Rams' 12-yard line. There Russ Sweet's men tightened down and held the Pirates for four downs. Eltringham kicked out of danger.

Pirates Pushed

In the last quarter, San Francisco displayed a marvelous defense, hurling the Modestans back for loss after loss.

Eltringham was outstanding in the game as a kicker, averaging 44 yards on seven punts in the first half. One of these carried 60 yards on the fly.

George Pantages, Eltringham, Odero, Giusti and Tom Mauer all played a bang-up game in the backfield. Eltringham's passes, though fast, were not always accurate, however.

Function Well

The whole team functioned well, considering the disadvantage they had in having to make the three-hour trip to Modesto in a hot, crowded bus.

Rams Are Praised

A major fault that the Rams must overcome if they expect to defeat Los Angeles Junior College tonight is fumbling. Five fumbles in the Modesto clash proved costly to the San Francisco squad.

Coach Fred Earle of the Pirates, when asked his opinion of Russ Sweet's team, said that it was "a pretty good team," which is the same as very good from the average person. Mr. Earle predicted that the Rams would give Los Angeles plenty to think about.

U.C.L.A. Starts Coast Artillery Courses

LOS ANGELES—A coast artillery unit will be established in the military department on the Los Angeles campus of the University of California it was disclosed recently. Action by regents of the University makes possible a new basic course for R. O. T. C. students. The number of students enrolled in the military department, however, will not be increased.

The Los Angeles military staff, which is headed by Colonel John S. Upham, will be increased by two officers, one to arrive in December and one in September. By next fall the course will be well under way.

Equipment for the new course includes one 155mm gun and carriage, two Browning machine guns, and a 75mm anti-aircraft gun and truck. A demonstration truck chassis, a two-and-a-half-ton truck, and a half-ton truck are part of the new equipment. Many small items, such as fire control equipment, drawing instruments, surveying equipment and telephones are also included.

Tim Guiney's Story

beef—around 185 pounds. But the backfield is a different story. The average weight of the Los Angeles backfield is approximately 145 pounds, which would be light for even a high school team. Against this will be a weight average of 180 pounds on the hoof for the San Francisco pigskin toters, a quite noticeable difference.

May Be Break

All of which means that the Ackerman-coached team, using a modified Notre Dame system, will be a fast, clever outfit, depending on perfect blocking and coordination for their touchdowns. But, more than that, it also means that, with this light team on defense, break a heavy San Francisco man out in secondary territory and he'll have a good chance of going all the way.

And speaking of perfect coordination and blocking, it's being rumored around town that li'l Clyde Poppleman, the 26-year-old youngster who handles the fullback job on the L.A. team, is a bit weak on the latter phase of football as it is played in the wild and woolly West. Clyde has already served a four-year hitch with the U. S. Marines, and Coach Glenn Ackerman feels sure that in a few years more the ex-leatherneck will become one of the ace blockers on the team. "Give him a little time," says Glenn; "he'll learn."

Short Formation Causes Line Worries

Another deceptive point about the Cubs is that they generally line up in a short punt formation, sometimes shifting, more often not, thus keeping the opposing linemen jumpy for the entire time signals are on. The majority of the ball carrying is done by the left half, with the fullback carrying the mail on reverses and spinners.

And now for the latest startling offer being put on exclusively to the readers of The Guardsman. Want to earn two free tickets to a major bay area football game? Well, it's easy. All you have to do is to fill out the coupon which isn't attached below, and on it write down your prediction of the final score of tonight's game.

Guardsman Makes Extraordinary Offer

To everyone who hits the score exactly right, The Guardsman will present two (2) ABSOLUTELY FREE tickets to the Stanford-College of the Pacific game in 1939. So here's something worth striving for, but don't all crowd. The line forms to the right.

And, after that startling bit of information, we are prepared to dismiss this column's weekly prediction of the outcome of our games.

This one tonight isn't so easy. As a matter of fact, it's plenty tough. But, anyway, here goes: Uh-um-h-m—ah, let me see—aw, San Francisco, 13 to 7.

Auto Parade Welcomes L.A. Footballers Today

Thirty strong, the grid squad of Los Angeles Junior College arrived in San Francisco at 8:10 o'clock this morning, accompanied by trainers, coaching staff, Dean of Men K. M. Keraus, and representatives of Los Angeles newspapers.

A delegation from the Associated Students of San Francisco Junior College, under President Bennett McGuire and Dean Edwin C. Browne welcomed the visitors, giving them President A. Cloud's official greetings.

The reception committee provided automobiles and drove the visitors about the city, showing them the points of interest.

An informal banquet in honor of the visiting team will be held tonight at 11 o'clock at the Hotel Whitcomb, according to Dean Browne, at which time the Roos silver football trophy will be awarded the victorious college.

Soccer Men Drop Close One To U.C.

Bear Frosh Booters Tally Twice For Hard Victory

By Jack Segurson

Although showing a marked improvement over past performances, the San Francisco Junior College soccer team lost a close game to the University of California frosh last Saturday morning at Berkeley when the frosh registered a 2-to-0 victory over the stubborn Rams.

A letdown of about five minutes in the third quarter proved very costly indeed to the local boys; in fact, so costly that those few minutes were sufficient for the Bears to roll up a margin of two points, enough to decide the game. Throughout the rest of the game the Red and White displayed a strong defense which prevented the opposition from nearing their goal.

Liliot Scores for Blue and Gold

The first score came early in the third quarter when, after the ball had traveled hither and yon about the field, Liliot, center-half for the Blue and Gold, kicked the ball deep into San Francisco's territory to Dean Bennet, who experienced little trouble in kicking the goal.

Less than two minutes later another goal was chalked for California. Yosanti took a kick from Aboitz and sent the ball soaring past Leed, San Francisco goalie.

For the first time this season the Rams have shown a promising offense, coming very close to scoring on several occasions in the first half. The addition of Jim Fahn, who in his spare time leads yells for the school, and the fine play of Wenburg and Mull were the cause.

Zegura and Taylor Shine on Defense

Dragomir Zegura, clever Slavonian, and Eliard Taylor were the defensive stars of the game, making some very effective kicks as well as good general defensive play.

The Rams have displayed considerable improvement with each game and at the present rate should soon be ready to take any team into camp.

At present Mr. Bass is dickering for a game with Stanford frosh, on next Saturday.

Tennis Men Hold First Tourney for Team Places

Tennis Club activities rolled under way with the start of the ladder tournament at the Funston courts Wednesday.

Players showing ability in this tourney will be given places on a team that will engage other colleges in pre-season matches.

The women, too, are competing in the same way, their showings to have hearing upon the selection of mixed doubles teams that the club plans to sponsor in the near future.

Mr. Pitman Posts Schedule Of Club Meeting Rooms

Mr. Paul Pitman, assistant to the president and in charge of extra-curricula activities at the college, announces that all club organizations planning to hold meetings between the hours of 1:00 and 2:30 p.m. should report to the president's office at Galileo for information.

According to Pitman, a chart has been arranged showing all the available room at Galileo between the morning and afternoon class hours.

The rooms are rapidly being assigned on a basis of first come first served and organizations anxious for an official meeting place are urged to sign at the office immediately. Those clubs which are now holding meetings on their own authority are likely to lose their preference.

Armistice Day Services

Armistice Day memorial exercises will be held at 10:00 o'clock Monday morning, November 11, in the Civic Auditorium.

BERKELEY—In memory of the late Dr. Louis J. O'Brien, assistant dean of undergraduates at the University of California, the Winged Helmet Society has established a loan fund, to be known as the Pat O'Brien Memorial Loan Fund. Money for its support will be raised entirely by voluntary subscription, it is announced, no active drive or campaign having been planned.

During his eight years with the university administration, Dr. O'Brien was deeply interested in loan funds, continually striving to increase them and make them more available to all students needing assistance.

Then there's Clyde Poppleman. Out of reverence to our own team I'd like to stop right there. I still think the Rams have more than an even chance to win. This story not to the contrary, etc. To get back to this ex-Marine Poppleman. The name Clyde might be deceiving, and I wouldn't call him sissy. He's about twenty-six and has played more football than any member of the team. Agent 6Y2 says that that four years in the Marines was not all guard duty either. On top of that he says he's improving steadily. What can you do with a guy like that?

Poor Massa Sweet. Still maybe he's letting Lee Eisan in for a little of that worrying. There's more than enough for the two of them. Take Essey Berukoff, and Jambruno will take a lot of him I'm afraid, at center. He's co-captain of the outfit and one of the outstanding men of the team. In all probability he will make every conference team any jaysee man picks in the southern part of the state. A wire from L. A. says he can't miss. Now what can a couple of coaches do in a case like that, I'm asking you.

Result—One Headache

Take these trouble makers and add a light, shifty backfield well versed in the Notre Dame style of play; add one jigger of line, heavy, hard charging, able blockers, and you have one sweet headache for Ole Massa Sweet.

There is one consolation though. The Rams might be giving the same exact headache to a Mr. Glen Ackerman of North Los Angeles way. I wouldn't be surprised. These Rams, they have a lot more than people give them credit for, believe me.

Salinas Pulls Surprise Victory Over S.F. State

Although they were outplayed in every quarter, the Salinas J.C. football team defeated the San Francisco State team last Friday evening at the new San Francisco stadium, by a score of 2 to 0.

The Salinas team capitalized on a third-quarter slip on State's part, making the only score. It was a low pass from center and the halfback was forced to fall on it behind his own goal line, thus chalking up two digits for the visitors.

It will be remembered that the Rams were victorious over both of these teams in recent games.

Perc Towell, Poly Star, Holds Prep Dash Mark

By Lou Bertolucci

There is an old axiom that says "All good things come in small packages." However it may be, we will not argue the matter but will present our version of a good "thing" in a very small package. He is Jimmy Fahn, our assistant yell leader, who stands but 5 feet 5 inches from the ground, but what he lacks in stature he more than makes up for in speed and stamina.

Jimmy is the fellow who in the 1935 A.A.A. meet knocked two-tenths of a second off the 120-yard low hurdles record on the first day of the trials, two-tenths of a second off the new record on the second day of trials, and tied the old record on the final day of competition. He holds the record for the event at 14.2, which is traveling at a pretty high speed. This is not all of his accomplishments, however, as he has used a pole to climb over a bar 11 feet 6 inches in the air. Little Jimmy hails from Lowell and will run the 220-yard low hurdles and pole vault in the jaysee conference.

Essef Jaysee supporters will see a great 880-yard runner in Percy Towell, a product of Poly. Towell won the event in the A.A.A. meet in 1934. During the same season he shattered the half-mile record at the Hollister 20-30 Club's invitational high school meet, competing with athletes from many Northern California schools. He should be a standout in the 880 with a time of better than two minutes.

One boy on the team who will bear watching is Jack Segurson. In his high school career, which he spent at Commerce, Jack was just a mediocre shot putter. This term necessitates a change from the 12-pound shot, which is used in high school, to the 16-pounder used in jaysee circles. His first efforts with the heavier ball were feeble, but he has improved so fast that he can almost hit the 40-yard mark on every put, which is getting that iron ball out. Coach Sweet has not taken Jack under his coaching yet, and when he does he will probably add several feet to his puts.

Fumbleitis Again

According to observers at the Modesto game, the San Francisco J.C. team was still suffering from an attack of chronic fumbleitis, and lost the game because of that dread disease.

Center Trio of Line From South Gets Honor Mention

George Dunne's Story

Kelly, the latter a former all-city man and an exceptionally good pass receiver. Bill Meiser and Alex Miller will be the probable starters at the tackle posts, with Miller, the 230-pound giant of the squad, being the backbone of the line on defensive work.

Capable Guards Star for Cubs

The guard positions will be held down by Williams and Ugrin, two capable performers, while Essey Berukoff, co-captain of the team with Nate Johnson, will take care of the center job.

For the San Franciscans, the probable starting line-up will be Warren and Allen at ends, Kurtz and Brickley at tackles, Murphy and Kremesec at guards, Jambruno at center, Guisti or Olberg at quarter; halfbacks will be Eltringham and Clarke, and fullback Mauer.

In the event that the San Franciscans decide to take to the air, Forest Morrison will probably be called upon to do the flinging. It is very unlikely that they will do this, however, due chiefly to the line-smashing ability of their backfield.

Perhaps the most improved player on the San Francisco squad has been Charley Kremesec, who started in as an unknown third-string guard and has since won his spurs.

DIARY OF • A • CO-ED

Dear Diary:

I have to tell you of the perfect evening I had last Friday night when the San Francisco Junior College (pardon me, I mean MY college) held their first semi-formal dance at the Palace Hotel.

The Gold Room was a perfect place to have the dance. Wasn't Jimmie Neal smart to choose that place? And the orchestra—it was almost as heavenly to waltz to that Stanford band as it is to Paul Pendarvis. Oh gee! but I had a grand time.

Ah-Ha!

The Faculty

You know, diary, it was so nice to see some of our faculty at the dance Mr. and Mrs. Colligan seemed to have such a good time dancing with each other. And I'm wondering—I mean, Miss Ricciardi and Mr. Eccke who seemed to enjoy the affair almost as much as I. And didn't Dean Leonard look charming? I was sorry to see Miss Pence leave so early; everyone missed her. I guess Mr. Pitman didn't read The Guardsman the other week as he was so dressed up in his tux. But even at that, he lent dignity to the occasion in such an attire. Then there were Mr. and Mrs. Nichols and Mr. and Mrs. Ed Sandys. I guess Mr. Nichols had to see that all the money was collected for the dance—he takes his job as financial advisor SO seriously.

It was nice to introduce the new A.W.S. officers to the crowd during an intermission. Helen Hall looked SO charming up there on the platform. And I heard she was there with a railroad man. I wonder if she's thinking about going on a trip? Fred Davis was very attentive to Helene Wright, the new vice-president. Pam Spalding, the newly elected secretary, was as dignified as usual.

Rates

2 Orchids

And diary, just think—Betty McNeil rated TWO orchids. Never mind, I thought my corsage of gardenias from the Palace florist shop was every bit as nice. And didn't Inez St. Ledger and Patty Wells look pretty when they posed for their photographs? Inez had Bill Weinstock well in tow; Patty had her heart throb from Oakland—he's a former St. Mary's man.

I saw Marie McKnight and Bob Near, Betty Hyde and her fiance out at the ice water table about every time I went out there. I guess we all availed to have some of the Palace's extra fine ice water. It was nice of them to have some there, wasn't it?

We surely had a representation from lots of other schools: Rhoda Shepard brought some man from S. F. State; Chris Harnett had some business college girl, and oh! lots of others.

Romantic

Ellis

Bill Ellis looked as incurably romantic as ever at Pat Dolan. And did the Irish get together?—Helene Maloney and Dick Reilley (it's the Irish in us!). I saw our worthy editor of The Guardsman, J. O. Goodell, looking very dignified as he walked up and down the corridors of the Palace. Who is the attractive girl he always has with him? Guess the only way I will find out is to ask him.

Parnel Brown didn't go to Modesto after all. The opportunity of going to the dance at the Palace with Johnny Flinn was too much for her. And did Lanra Ames look lovely! She was there with Sam Stont—you know.

There's another good time coming up for me tonight—I mean that after the football team beats L.A. we are all going down to the Palace to celebrate. Another San Francisco Junior College night!

Meeting Called Of High Sophs, Nov. 4

The high sophomore class, which will be the first group to graduate from this college, will hold a meeting on Monday, November 4, at 1:30 o'clock in room 552, Galileo, according to Neal Martin, president of the class.

The discussion will center on plans for the commencement exercises at the end of the semester. A graduation dance and a proposed Hi-Soph Day will also be considered, Martin said.

Mr. Paul Mohr, Registrar, announces that there are 84 students eligible for graduation, though only a few have petitioned the office in that regard. All those having high sophomore credits are urged to report at the Galileo administrative office of the college as soon as possible.

PLEASE, MORE TIME!

Dear Ed:

See where a joke column was suggested by a student and you agreed that it would be a good thing. Then why has no action been taken upon this matter?

College Gets Plaudits Over Radio Premier

Air Party Features Dean Browne As Announcer

By Bill Buchan

History was written on the air waves last night as the first San Francisco Junior College Radio Party was signed off at 10:45 on Station KGGC. Calling attention to the Los Angeles game tonight the rally ran from 10:15 to the 10:45 spot. Veteran radio observers declared that it was a refreshingly new type of program put on the air lanes.

Browne As M. C.

Based on a continuity written by Junior College students the program was in the form of a radio party and featured Dean Edwin Browne as master of ceremonies.

Starting with the opening signature, the "Cheer Song of San Francisco Junior College" the program moved along in a rapid tempo. Soloist and star, all were heard by the listeners. Miss Marge Silk sang one of the hit tunes of the week. Mort Werner "Duchinized" on the piano. Jack Martin and the humming strings of his banjo more than received their share of the comments on the program.

All Starred

There was no real featured spot on the radio party. In fact all the talent and skits were declared good enough to spotlight individual programs. One of the highspots of the broadcast was the recreation of the second half of the game tomorrow night and the introduction of a guest speaker.

The honored guest of the party was Mr. C. Harold Caulfield, president of the Board of Education. Mr. Caulfield spoke on the game and what it means to San Francisco.

To the strains of the cheer song the rally was brought to a close.

THOSE CAMPUS OPINIONS

NOTE: Next week The Guardsman will run campus opinions exactly as handed in, thus revealing that our commentators also possess faults—multitudes of them—in their usage, or rather misusage, of the English language.

FLOWERS TO COMMITTEE

Guardsman:

May I take this course to compliment the committee which had the administration of the J. C. dance last Friday night? The smoothness and synchronization of the affair were worthy of orchids from Mr. Winchell. The general atmosphere of friendliness and cheer which pervaded the affair is to be complimented.

I wish to suggest that in future dances a type of the old "Round" and "Tag" be given a prominent place on the program.

Your friend,
A. R. H.

WE'LL HOLD COATS

Sirs:

In response to the hard slams made last week in this column about The Guardsman's office, I would like to make a few well timed remarks. First, due to the hardships and compactness with which the J. C. has to put up, we find it necessary to use the office for various purposes.

Should certain LIGHTWEIGHTS find it inconvenient to obtain The Guardsman at 540, they might get them at Galileo in room 150 any time Friday afternoon.

I might remind the students that a suggestion has been published stating certain rules for movement which would obviate any congestion in the hallways.

Let's try to work together and overcome these trivial difficulties, instead of fighting and knocking.

G. S. H.

ASK THE COACH

Dear Guardsman:

I hate to say anything against our football coaches or their systems—they know their business, and know what they are doing, no doubt.

I should like to know, however, why it is that the Rams use so few substitutions in their games. This is not a puzzle muddled over only by myself; in fact, someone else pointed it out to me. No doubt appearances in this case are deceiving, but nevertheless they hint that about 15 players on the team are favorites, and the remainder of the candidates only bench-warmers.

I feel sorry for the poor substitutes, and am rather inclined to think that they could play better than some first string men who already have battled through half of a hot game.

Respectfully,
G. H. A.

ADMINISTRATION BULLETINS

NEWS OF IMPORTANCE

Faculty Meeting Wednesday

Dr. Merton Hill will be the guest speaker at the weekly faculty luncheon to be held Wednesday at 1:15 in the Galileo Cafeteria. Dr. Hill is a member of the faculty at U. C. and also at U.C.L.A., and in addition is director of admissions for the state university.

The junior college in all its aspects is a particular interest of Dr. Hill, and his preeminence in this field has won for him the respect of all who champion this field of education. Dr. Hill was requested by the Board of Education of San Francisco, and by the university, to act in the capacity of counsellor during the days of this college's beginning. His interest has been most active and this visit will not mark his first call.

The program will include important announcements from the Administrative officers, and the continuation of the expositions given by those faculty who are offering completion courses.

Mr. P. M. Pitman calls the attention of all faculty to the bulletin on texts and asks that all changes or adjustments be sent to him within this week.

Meeting of the entire staff of The Guardsman will be held today at 1:30 in Room 203. Mr. Colligan desires the attendance of all members.

It is hoped that all members of the faculty will meet in their own section on the Bryant Street side of Seals Stadium tonight.

The faculty need not be reminded that attendance reports for the week, October 28-November 1, are to be handed to Mrs. Pritchard this afternoon. List complete names.

A list of prospective graduates, seventy-seven in all, has been prepared by Assistant Registrar Mary Jane Lenard. All those who plan to graduate in January should prepare for the occasion.

Education Week Observance

Plans for the observance of American Education Week will be based upon the national outline, which has as its slogan "The School and Democracy," with one deviation; the San Francisco committee may open the week on Sunday, November 10, with the cooperation of all churches in the community.

Members of the professional staff who will participate include. President A. J. Cloud of the San Francisco Junior College; Joseph P. Nourse, principal, Galileo High School; Ralph Lehman, principal, Presidio Junior High School; Miss Ellie McPhee, principal, Fremont Elementary School; E. J. Cummings, principal, Galileo Evening School.

The committee will welcome suggestions from members of the certified staff as to the best method of reminding patrons and non-patrons of the service rendered by the public schools around the topics suggested for the day to day observance.

MASCOT AWAITS CLUB

Already adopted by curricular geology classes, Mico, Mr. Albert Green's pet monkey that he captured in Colombia, awaits adoption as mascot by the Geology Club which Mr. Green hopes to organize.

SAILING THROUGH THE NEWS

By The News Editor

International hypocrisy was rigorously scored by Arthur Brishane in his columns this week. England and France are now trying to prevent Italy from doing what they both have done in the past, the famous columnist declares.

All of which makes us wonder if Brishane shouldn't be called Arturo Brishanini, so strong is his sympathy toward Italy.

The sad part is that Brishane is right for the most part. One look at the map of Africa will reveal that what Italy wants is just a cap pistol beside a cannon to what other countries have already seized in the Dark Continent.

Sentimental Humanitarians

The only logical aggression against Italy, in view of these facts, is from a humanitarian standpoint. We try to kid ourselves into believing that civilization has reached the point where gain by aggressive conquest can no longer be tolerated.

That, however, is an ideal that won't stand up as long as power-mad men rule nations, as long as the populace allows itself to be swayed by mass hypnotism inflicted upon them purely for the promotion of the selfish ambitions of the hypnotist.

Left only is sentiment as the reason for hearing antipathy toward Italy in her Ethiopian conquest. Sentiment for a horde of savages in a desert, thousands of miles away is probably wasted—and why bother?

Sentiment didn't deter this country much in its conquest of the American Indian, probably a more desirable and intelligent man than the desert nomad of Ethiopia.

Adolph Hitler

Add to our list of those who pose as superior beings working with God on their right hand, Herr Adolph Hitler.

It appeared at first that the Christian religion was going to get its long awaited break when Hitler's aides announced this week that Neo-paganism in Nazi-land was going to be squelched. (It has accomplished its purpose of starting religious deterioration).

But no; reading further, we see that Hitler's minister on religion says, "Hitler will lead the party along the path of positive Christianity, and not along the false path of anti-Christian doctrine."

All of which probably means, despite its nice sound, that religion in Germany will no doubt continue much as it has heretofore, with the government warping the teachings of Christianity to suit its own propaganda. Hitler will lead the party along his conception of the path of positive Christianity.

Cuba Gets Freedom of Press

Congratulations to the government of Cuba in getting wise to itself at last and lifting its censorship of the press. Press censorship is always a boomerang that comes back to clip its thrower in the neck.

Almost unlimited press in this country is a boon greatly to be appreciated in these days of hay-wire government. We are informed constantly of what is going on in Washington (though perhaps not truthfully), and editors are free to condemn or praise the New Deal as they see fit.

Advocate Merciful Deaths

Legalized "mercy deaths" are the hope of a group of medical and religious men in England for hopelessly incurables who are dying a slow, painful death.

A group of leading churchmen have declared it is not inconsistent with religious principles.

Noted Educator Predicts Much Success For College

"Wonderful progress has been made here at the junior college in its first semester. With the prospect of a campus and new buildings, it promises to become one of the leading institutions in Northern California."

There were the words of Dr. William Proctor, Professor of Education at Stanford, who was a visitor here last week. Dr. Proctor visited classes and roamed about the various buildings which house the J.C. students throughout the week. Quiet but observant, he lauded the work of the Administration, faculty, and students who have worked to make the organization a success.

Gives Background

While President Cloud was director in charge of curricula for the San Francisco school department, Dr. Proctor assisted him in the capacity of an advisor.

"About 1930 a movement to institute a junior college was started," Dr. Proctor said, when questioned about the origin of the school. "Dr. Edwin A. Lee recommended that a study be made of the junior college situation, and a committee was appointed with James A. Addicott, principal at Polytechnic High School, as chairman. Mr. Gray, head of adult education in this city, took charge of the gathering of material. They found that the initial enrollment would be around 1,500 students, and that a great many would prefer terminal type courses.

Work Culminated

"However, until last year the fight for a junior college wasn't very successful, but continued support by community leaders finally brought action. You have the culmination of five years' work here in the beginning of a new college."

Correction

The Guardsman takes this opportunity to correct an error in the Monarch Typewriter advertisement appearing in an earlier edition. The ad should have read 6 months, $5.

Administrator Issues Notice On New Work

N.Y.A. Time Must Be Completed By November 22

Setting November 22 as the deadline, Miss Edith E. Pence today announced that all work for the N.Y.A. for November must be completed by that date. Although the pay roll period will read from the 28th of October to the 28th of November, time slips will only include hours completed by the 22nd date. This will be made necessary due to the vacation between November 25 and December 2.

Reports for the November period will be called for after the vacation and must be ready by the day the college resumes work.

With a possibility of further openings on the N.Y.A. staff, more students must be added to the pay roll of that group. This was revealed by Miss Pence when scholastic records of several students were below the standard set by the Works Progress Administration who are in charge of the National Youth Administration.

Those in need of employment and possessing sufficient scholastic qualifications are requested to see Miss Pence immediately. A limited number of vacancies will be filled from the list of those eligible for work.

Geology Club Starts Work

Forecasting a program high in both interest and educational value, Mr. George L. Green, geology instructor here, announced his intention this week of forming a geology club in the near future, or at such a time that interest of students warrants it.

The purpose of such an extra-curricular group, according to Mr. Green, would be to present to students interesting sidelights on geology that lack of time keeps from the curricular classes.

A geology club should be possible, Mr. Green pointed out, because the majority of the geology students obviously have interests lying in the same direction.

Activities Outlined

Possible activities outlined by Mr. Green are: Qualified speakers from various fields of geology, field trips for the purpose of studying geological structure in various areas, and films presenting a visual conception of geological factors.

If such a club were formed, it would probably be the first extra-curricular group in the college to boast a mascot, for Mr. Green owns a young monkey which he captured in the jungles of Colombia last summer. Already his regular geology classes have adopted the diminutive, bottle-fed simian as a pet.

Has Nucleus

A nucleus for the proposed geology club lies in the group of students who recently accompanied Mr. Green on a field expedition to study the strata and formation of the sand dunes near Fleishhacker.

PERSONAL—To J. O'Gee. Anyone who would have nerve to sell the name EMANON, needs watching. Name (so-called) indicates that originator must amble about frightening children.

University Dean Talks At Junior College Meeting

Climaxed by a luncheon meeting addressed by Lieut. Gov George Hatfield, the fall meeting of the Northern California Association of Junior Colleges met last Saturday on the University of California campus.

Delegates from 16 junior colleges attended the conclave. President Archibald Cloud, Dean Edwin Browne, Mr. Paul Pitman, and Mr. Philip Mohr represented San Francisco J. C.

Following addresses by prominent educational leaders, election of association officers for the ensuing year was held. Mr. Floyd Bailey of Santa Rosa Junior College was named president, and Mr. I. B. Vandervoort of Menlo J. C., vice-president. Mr. J. Evan Armstrong, president of Armstrong Junior College, was re-elected secretary-treasurer.

Dr. Deutsch Speaks

Dr. Monroe E. Deutsch, vice-president and provost of the University of California, gave an address in which he discussed the junior college, the state teachers' college, and their relationship to the state's university.

"If state teachers' colleges are to be transformed into four-year liberal arts colleges, they should become a part of a unified system of higher education in California," the noted educator claimed. "Experience in other states shows the wisdom of a unified control of higher education.

"As the population of the state indicates the need and the finances of the state warrant," he said, "careful consideration should be given to the possible transformation of certain junior and teachers' colleges into true liberal arts or general colleges, the teacher training function being at the same time completely retained."

Junior colleges represented at the meeting included:

San Francisco, Cogswell Polytechnical, Golden Gate, Lassen Union, Marin, Yuba County, Menlo, Modesto, Polytechnic, Sacramento, Salinas.

News Of The Clubs

College Prepares Music Week Program

The first program of the music department is being planned under the direction of Mr. Donald Sandifur, and will be given on November 10 for Education Week. This performance is being prepared at the request of the supervisor of music of the Board of Education.

Various members of this class are working on solos and also on several ensembles, which will be given either over the radio or before civic organizations.

Piano Ensemble Prepares Numbers

The Piano Ensemble Class is busily preparing several numbers, including Haydn's "Second Symphony in D Major" and Humperdinck's "Hansel and Gretel Overture."

Some of the active members of this class are Jill Hollingberry, Kathline Bratton, Dorothy Roberts, and Bill Moll.

Chess Men Elect Waller

Eldon Waller was selected as temporary secretary of the Chess Club at a meeting of the group held last Friday afternoon under the sponsorship of Mr. Henry Ralston.

The Chess Club now boasts a full team of seven players, according to Mr. Ralston, but more can be accommodated. Requisite for membership to the group consists only of interest in the game, the sponsor says.

Games with local high school chess teams will be scheduled in the near future, followed by active participation in tournaments of the Northern California Chess League, it is reported.

Meetings of the local Chess Club are held on Friday afternoons in room 358, Galileo. Mr. Ralston invites those interested to drop in and see him any time during the afternoon.

THE SUBJECT SPEAKS—

Miss Dorothy Mercer

"Yes, I am a native of San Francisco," said this friendly, interesting English teacher. She is Miss Dorothy Mercer, Doctor of Philosophy and former student of the University of California.

Instead of attending high school, Miss Mercer took night courses at Drew's Coaching School, and during the day was employed in the offices of the American Trust Company. In her spare time she attended the Munson School for Private Secretaries and the American Institute of Banking, the latter of which she is a graduate. Her original intention was to be a lawyer; being interested in this profession, she entered the University of California in 1923.

"I commuted from Forest Hill during my first year at the university," she said, "and I often wished there had been a junior college in the city then. There are other advantages in having a junior college here, for it enables the students to help themselves attain an education by securing part-time employment."

Won Scholarship

Miss Mercer was awarded the Phoebe Hearst Memorial Scholarship during her undergraduate days, and she was employed by the Professors of Maritime Law and Criminology. When asked if she was prominent in school affairs, her reply was, "I was on the staff of the Daily Californian, but I was too busy to be interested in campus affairs."

In 1927, she graduated with an A.B. degree and was promptly awarded a Teaching Fellowship in English, which she held for four years. This honor caused her to discover her interest in English, thus diverting her from her original intention. She was a substitute English teacher at Chico State Teachers College for several years, and before coming to San Francisco Junior College was an English teacher at San Mateo Junior College. In 1929, Miss Mercer was awarded her M.A. degree and won her Ph.D. in 1933. Because of the fact that she worked her way through high school and college, she feels that she has a better understanding of students' problems, and she stated the fact that the primary aim of education should be to teach students to earn their own living.

An Author

In answer to several questions, she confessed that she is the author of a book to be published in the spring by the University of California Press. It is a critical study of Walt Whitman, who is the author of her favorite book, "Leaves of Grass."

Her hobby is teaching, and her favorite studies, English and Philosophy. She dislikes jazz and movies, but loves classical music and opera (especially the opera "Carmen"). She added that she enjoys one sport, which is horseback riding.

In closing the interview, I asked Miss Mercer what her reaction was concerning the college. She said that she hoped a literary club would be started, for the benefit of all would-be writers.

Ask Action On Ex-Council A. W. S. Plans First Affair

New Delays Halt Work On Charter

Student Association Constitution Held Up By Club Problems

Expect Completion Soon; Puts Gov't on New Basis

Work on the permanent constitution for the Associated Students has been delayed until later in the semester Although the document is practically completed at this time, submission will not be made till several important questions have been adjusted in the student government This was announced by Mr Lloyd Luckmann and Mr Frank Colligan, who are heading the committee preparing the constitution

Three chief obstacles stand in the way of finishing the document and its presentation to the students for adoption The indecision as to the place of the Associated Women Students and the Associated Men students in the student administration has made the task of the preparation group difficult The general thought is that the two clubs will call for an entirely new set-up in the constitution than was originally planned.

Added Burdens

Added burdens have been placed in the way of the political science 53 class, the group working under Mr Luckmann and Mr Colligan due to the indecision as to the extra curricular activities in the college On top of this, the group had to contend with the delays in organizing the student government of the college and the failure of the executive council to function

Although the constitution is fairly complete, few details of the set-up of the new government have been worked out One of the features of the student administration will be the president's cabinet This will be composed of student officers and will be a general an advisory board to that officer

President's Cabinet

The cabinet will work in conjunction with an assembly or executive council This body will have the general powers usually found in a representative student group This council or assembly will be composed of representatives from all organizations in the college and from the various classes

Present plans call for the student association to function under the new constitution with the opening of the new term in January

Much credit is being given the political science 53 group for their work on the document

Club Donates Sum to College Library

One hundred dollars was donated to the college in order to purchase books for the library by the Filipino Students Association of the San Francisco Junior College.

The money was raised by a benefit dance given on November 2 at Franklin Hall under the direction of Larry Nepomaceno, president of the group, and A. L. Madamba.

NOTICE

A meeting of the entire news staff is called for this afternoon at 1:30 in room 203. It is VERY important that you be there.

The Guardsman announces that editions will be published on the following dates: Friday, November 22, and Friday, December 13.

Six committees with approximately 150 members will run the affair under the direction of the A.W.S. Executive Council Written invitations are being sent to the faculty and wives of administration officers while the telephoning committee headed by Miss Pam Spaulding, secretary, are making some 500 telephone calls to the parents and guardians of the women students

Student Hostesses

Men's Club Plans First Ring Meets

Semi-Annual Boxing Matches Set For Governor Club, Wednesday

Champions Get Belt Buckle Awards from Group

Booming into prominence, although only a week old, the Men's Association today announced plans for a monster boxing tournament to be held at the Governor Club on Wednesday night, November 20, at 8 o'clock

The event will be the first in a series of semi-annual meets that will decide the fistic champions of the junior college. Awards will be made to contestants in each of the eight divisions. Belt buckles, emblematic of their championship, will be presented to the winners of each class Runners-up will be given medal

The affair will be open to any men wishing to participate Maury Schwartz, newly-elected president of the Men's Association, Joe Amori and Jack Gaddy are handling the details of the event. Entries in the eight classes, starting with the 112, through the 118, 126, 135, 147, 160, 175 and heavyweight, will be accepted by the committee. A final meeting and weighing in of all candidates will be held at the Galileo gym on Tuesday afternoon

FLASH!

Due to an unavoidable change at the last minute, the boxing tournament will be held at the Verdi Club instead of at the Governor Club as had been previously announced.

The Verdi Club is located at Mariposa and Potrero avenue, with the "H" and 25 cars direct.

The tournament, first in a series of activities planned by this group, will be held in the Governor Club, Page and Stanyan streets. The funds raised by this event will be used to stage a smoker in January Prices for the boxing bouts have been set at 15 cents to student card holders, 25 cents general admission, and 40 cents ringside.

Although plans are as yet indefinite, the proposed smoker will be one of the major events of the year for the men. Unlike the boxing tournament that will be open to everybody in the college to watch, the smoker will be strictly for the male students of the college

At the first organization meeting of the group over 100 turned out The election of officers, main business of the gathering, found Maury Schwartz elected president by a unanimous vote Paul Merrill was elected vice-president. Jack Welch received the highest vote for secretary and Tyler McHugh was named treasurer.

The tentative constitution was read and accepted by the association and Mr. Amori gave a short talk outlining the purposes of the group.

A tentative social program was laid out. Along with the boxing tourney and the smoker the club will hold a dance at the Galileo gymnasium.

Holds Drive

In an endeavor to increase its membership by 10,000, the San Francisco Public Library is putting on a drive in the schools and colleges throughout the city. Cards have been sent to the junior college, and those wishing to join can secure applications in the main office at the Galileo building.

Claim Better Control Under Representatives

Group Seeks Efficient Administration of Student Affairs with Check by Assembly

By William Buchan and Jean Coplestone

With a demand for a voice in student affairs, the question of the non-existence of the student association executive council is holding the spotlight of interest. With the control of the affairs of the Associated Students in the hands of a few, the thought being expressed by some on the matter is that a more capable and efficient student organization would be effected if the Council was given a voice in the control of activities.

To date the functions have been under the guiding hand of the faculty With the college growing beyond the formulative stages and with new clubs and groups functioning, the general opinion is that a more representative government should step into control This would mean a more rigid check upon those planning functions that would be included under the limited budget needs necessary by the failure to support the Associated Student by purchase of the A.S.S.F.U. cards

No Blame Laid

No direct blame is being laid to the failure of the card sales. On some sides it is felt that the student Administration has been too lax, and that if a tentative constitution and a definite plan of activities had been mapped out the situation might have been altogether different. In other quarters it was felt that the card holders were not receiving the full dollar for dollar value that they should receive. Several incidents as to this statement were noticed when people not having student cards were given the lowered rates to the Semi-Formal.

The question of the Executive Council is one that has many points. The administration felt that with a new code and a new student body that it should rightly take the lead in forwarding student affairs. The unfortunate part of the situation is the fact that student leaders never did ask for complete control and let the wrongs and plans for different functions be with the faculty. One of the student leaders who refused

Unusual! Co-eds Dominate Next College Affair

Women Do Dating, Pay Costs at Dance Set For Friday, Nov. 22

Announcement of a Co-Ed dance to be given in the Galileo gym on Friday evening, November 22, as the second all-college dance of the fall semester, was made today The unusual feature of this dance is the fact that the girls ask the boys for the date and trade all their dances. The co-eds of the college will call for their date and treat them in the same manner as they are treated when they are escorted to a dance

New Committee

A new social committee has been named for this dance with Joy Panas as chairman, assisted by Jean Coplestone, Billie Girdes, Helen Hall, Donna McPherson and Jeanne Neal The committee plans to use the same decorations for the dance as used for the A.W.S. tea that is to be held in the afternoon

Free bids are to be given to this dance in the way of photographs that is, Miss Joy Panas will take a number of snapshots around the college of groups of people and the pictures will be put on the bulletin board. The student whose picture is encircled will receive a free bid to the dance.

Free Bid

It is proposed that a free bid to the dance will be given as a door prize at the Associated Men's Boxing Tournament that is to be held next Wednesday evening. The winner will choose his own date, however

An all-junior college band will play for the dance It was undecided at the time the Guardsman went to press as to what band would play. Definite announcement of the orchestra will be made at a later date

Admission for the dance will be 40 cents per couple and no stags admitted. Features of the evening will be all girl tags. The male members of the college student body will be the guests and not hosts

Freshmen Set For First Hop

Class Checks Feature Dance in Afternoon

Featuring the music of the Continentals, the first dance sponsored by the freshmen students of San Francisco Junior College will take place in the Galileo gymnasium on December 6.

In charge of the affair will be a committee consisting of Helen Hall, Jack Martin and Bob Neil, with Mr Joseph Amori as faculty advisor.

At a meeting of the committee it was agreed that numerous "tag" dances will be held during the program, while many solo performances will be given at the intermissions.

Some of the soloists expected to perform are Margie Silk, the "personality gal"; Jack Martin and his banjo, and Aaron Galant, who may croon a lullaby or two.

The dance will take place during the afternoon, probably between the hours of 1:30 to 4:30. Return checks will be issued to students having afternoon classes, so they can return to the dance at the close of the periods.

State Leader Of Education Sees College

Education Leaders Attend Luncheon Meet of Faculty

Eleven noted educators were guests of the college on October 9 at a luncheon held in the Galileo cafeteria. Mrs. Eugenie Leonard, dean of women, presided at the meeting and introduced members of the faculty, while President Cloud introduced the guests.

Dr. Paul Cadman, of the economic department at University of California, gave a short talk in behalf of the guests, and Dr. Edwin Lee, superintendent of school in San Francisco, replied for the faculty

The feature of the meeting was the short talks given by members of the college faculty explaining their departments and plans for them Those who spoke were Mr Arousti, Dr Camp, Mr Greene Mr Jacobi, Dr Marsh, Dr Ralston and Dr Williams.

Vierling Kersey, State Superintendent of Public Education, stated in an exclusive interview to The Guardsman, "I am impressed by the spirit of the faculty The reports indicate a variety offered that surpasses anything from other junior colleges The spread of educational offerings here is one that will appeal to all I can clearly see that San Francisco Junior College does serve their needs."

Presidents from the seven state teachers' colleges were also guests at the luncheon They were Mr Arthur Gist of Humboldt Dr A J Hamilton of Chico Mr Walter Heppner of San Diego Dr Thomas McQuarrie of San Jose, Mr Clarence Phelps of Santa Barbara, Dr Alexander Roberts of San Francisco, and Dr. Frank Thomas of Fresno The presidents were in San Francisco for a meeting with Mr. Kersey at the time of the luncheon

Dr Burkman of the State Department of Education and Dr. Paul Cadman of the University of California were also guests.

Sophs Outline Future Plans

Neil Martin, president of the sophomore class, headed the meeting held recently to lay plans for future soph activities. An entertainment committee was appointed consisting of Eleanor Schaub, Enid Collins, Helene Bowman, Howard Markuse, Russ Rhodes, and Neil Martin.

The next meeting has been called for November 19 and at that time further plans for the weinie roast to be held in Sigmund Stern grove on December 9 will be made.

President Martin requests that all high sophs be present at the next meeting.

Facts Versus Opinions

Elsewhere in this issue of The Guardsman, there is an article stating the existing conditions regarding the Executive Council and the relation of that body to the Administration and to the Associated Students.

Any statements made by The Guardsman are merely statements of fact. The articles on this topic are aimed at no one, and are meant to offend no one. The Guardsman's position is that of purveyor of news and college topics to the Associated Students. In fulfilling this objective the paper attempts to present unbiased facts—not viewpoints. Thus in all stories except features and editorials, whether the stories carry a by-line or not, they are not to be construed as being inferential or opinionative.

Any member of the Associated Students who wishes to voice his or her opinions may use The Guardsman as the means to make such expressions public.

No Crowded Quarters

Our attention has been called to the following: Public opinion seems to be that junior college students have no place to spend their time during their free periods. There has been criticism to the effect that the students have only Union Square and drug store fountains to utilize for either social or study purposes. These unfounded statements are creating wrong impressions in the minds of students' parents. The college has a large, warm, well-lighted study hall on the lower floor where quiet is maintained and school work stressed. No smoking is allowed in the Extension Building.

In addition to the facilities in the Extension Building, space has been donated by the S.F.J.C. Student Store, a few doors down Powell Street. In this building there is a well-appointed lower floor for boys only. Smoking and talking are permitted. There is also a mezzanine floor for men and women with the same free rein prevailing. Thus the Student Store is used as a social gathering place as well as a study hall.

Beside the above-mentioned places, the Women's City Club at Post and Mason streets has arranged with the college to provide a place for the women students to go when they so desire. Extensive club features are available there. In view of such a broad range of facilities, there is hardly any reason for any remarks such as have recently been overheard. Students of the college should do their part to correct such statements.

Nation Starts Will Rogers Memorial Drive

A national campaign for funds to construct a memorial to the late Will Rogers was opened recently when the second of two memorial programs was aired by the networks of the nation. The drive is being carried on in individual cities and is being correlated by a central committee in New York. All classes and creeds are uniting in the campaign to honor the memory of the actor.

A lot of praise and oratory have marked the memorial programs up to this date. Without doubt it is all sincere, coming from the friends of Will Rogers. However, I think that the highest compliment we can pay to Will Rogers is simply "He was human."

Paramount Lists "Tom Sawyer, Detective"

Paramount recently announced the filming of one of Mark Twain's best books. "Tom Sawyer, Detective," rated as the best of the Tom Sawyer series will be made with a newcomer, Benny Bartlett in the title role of Tom Sawyer. The role of Huck Finn is yet to be cast.

Some of the best of the screen stars played the role of Tom Sawyer at some time or other. Among these were Jack Pickford and Jackie Coogan. Coogan made the talkie version with Junior Durkin as Huck Finn. The work on the film resulted in a lasting friendship that was broken only on the death of Durkin in the same accident that took the life of Robert Coogan, the father of Jackie Coogan.

R.K.O. Refilms Earle Biggers "Baldpate" Mystery

Radio will film the spine tingler, "Seven Keys to Baldpate." The cast as yet is unfamiliar to this missing from the title role, one that made him famous. McLean is now a producer on the Paramount staff. The story, by the author of the Charlie Chan series, is laid in an old inn on Baldpate mountain. Visitors have been kept off the set, and with very good reasons too. The opening sets show the inn covered with dust and cobwebs and it was felt that visitors would disturb the effects.

Harriet Hillard Deserts Hubby For Place in "Follow the Fleet"

Harriet Hillard, formerly vocalist with husband Ozzy Nelson's band rates a cheer or two on the way she's climbing the success ladder in Hollywood. Originally scheduled for a small part in one of Radio's pictures, she was assigned the role of Ginger Rogers' sister in the new Astaire-Rogers opus "Follow the Fleet." She was given the part after rushes from her first picture showed that she had the "It" that makes a screen star.

There or Thereabouts—Many fans missed a swell picture when they skipped Hands Across the Table. The natural acting of the two principals, Fred MacMurray and Carole Lombard plus some real witty dialogue made this a second It Happened One Night. Fans are acclaiming Fred Allen (of Town Hall fame) as a better movie star than radio artist. His first picture "Thanks a Million" was premiered at the Warfield recently. The new Jan Kiepura-Gladys Swarthout picture should catch the fancy of music lovers. According to reports practically one-third of the shooting schedule is being turned over to the recording of the songs and music. Incidentally, Miss Swarthout's first the Rose of the Rancho should

LOUDSPEAKER LOWDOWN

By Jay O'Gee

In keeping with this colyum's policy of giving credit when and where same is due, we take pleasure in devoting the better part of the following to one of our fellow students who is a radio artist in his own right.

We present herewith a few notes on Robert Mort Werner, better known by his middle name than his first name. Mort, who is no mean crooner himself, was started on the path to fame by none other than Harry Lillis Crosby (known to everyone as "Bing"). Mort became acquainted with Crosby when the latter was one of the Three Rhythm Boys with Gus Arnheim at the Cocoanut Grove. The other two Rhythm Boys were Harry Barris and Alton Rinker, as you probably know. But back to our notes on Mort. He attended Lowell and Galileo high schools and more recently San Mateo Junior College.

Three years' experience on the air have given him a thorough knowledge of showmanship and the finesse of a veteran trouper. An ingenious person is this Werner fellow—he devised a system of singing to the accompaniment of previously recorded music—"dubbing" it is called professionally. He was the first to use this method. Bing Crosby used this system in his picture "Here Is My Heart"—you may remember how he sang a duet with himself.

Mort Werner did his first broadcasting from the former KTAB, from there he went to KGGC, a leave of absence from that station saw him on KFRC's Happy-Go-Lucky program. From the Don Lee station he traipsed over to NBC where he did a series of broadcasts just last summer. He now conducts a nightly program from KGGC known as Mort Werner's Open House. It's on from 10 to 11 P. M. Besides these nightly broadcasts he vocalizes to his own piano accompaniment over NBC at various times—needless to say, he's quite a busy fellow.

It has been Mort's idea to "give everybody a chance." If you've attended any of his Open House programs you know what we mean. This idea has been carried out in the Football Rally broadcasts which Mort has recently conducted. He generously contributed the facilities of his program and the station for the recent Radio Rally which preceded the game between L. A. Jaysee and our own Rams. Incidentally, that program proved what a real master of ceremonies should sound like. Major Bowes and Deems Taylor had better look to their laurels for Dean Edwin C. Browne can really put a radio program over in fine fashion. Likewise, Crosby and Werner had better watch out for Crooner Aaron Harry Galant, who croons a pretty hot "b-b-h-boo."

More recently Mort conducted a Lowell-Poly Radio Rally which went over with quite a bang. Terrific, as a matter of fact, for it was the first time since the writer sat on the knee of Big Brother Paul Pitman and sheepishly told his name that yours truly has had a chance to do a "Beetle" and bother the listeners. Some fun!

If you happened to hear that program last Friday you might have heard the large and overly generous "commercial plug" which Mort Werner gave to "Loudspeaker Lowdown" and its writer and also to Esseff Jaysee and The Guardsman. This col'm takes this means to officially and publicly thank Mort Werner and wish him the best of luck on what is merely the start of a long and successful career.

S. F. Junior College people are taking the ether waves by storm. Last Friday the president of the Associated Students and the editor of The Guardsman were on the air. Last Tuesday Miss Rachel "Bonnie" Studebaker gave a very competent rendition of "Only a Rose" on KFRC's Opportunity Parade, and this afternoon President A. J. Cloud, Mr. Paul Pitman, and Mr. Harold Sandifur will broadcast over KYA in behalf of National Education Week.

The hottest news at present seems to be that KFRC will carry the Big Game broadcast this year. It has been aired by NBC previously.

Jane Froman, charming warbler of the networks, gave such a brilliant account of herself in Warner Brothers' pic, "Stars Over Broadway" (yet to be released), that she has been signed on a long-term contract.

After Cab Calloway's personal appearance tour he returns to the Southland to replace Les Hite at Frank Sebastian's Cotton Club. While in the south Calloway will work with Harry Richman on "Georgiana."

Incidentally, Hite, who has been broadcasting over the Don Lee chain in the late evenings, has a very smooth outfit. To devotees of the "black and tan" orchestras Hite sounds like a cross between Duke Ellington and Earl Hines.

Anson Weeks is the uncle of Scotty Beckett, a juvenile Our Ganger. Young Scotty recently played with Spencer Tracy in "Dante's Inferno."

Fred Astaire, nimble-footed star, plays the piano for his own amusement between scenes at the studio. Recently, just for fun, he dashed off an original tune. The tune came to the attention of some big-shot who thought it would be a sure-fire hit; so Johnny Mercer, one of Paul Whiteman's henchmen (known for his "Christmas Night in Harlem"), has been asked to write the lyrics for Mr. Astaire's song. The title is: "I'm Building Up An Awful Letdown" and it will be published by Irving Berlin.

COLLEGE CLIPPINGS

The Profs Just Can't Win Anymore

It would seem that the professors in modern colleges are getting the bad end of the deal these days. The latest to worry the feelings of the savants is the new idea introduced on the campus at the University of California. A student, for the sum of five cents, can insure himself against being called on in class when unprepared. The policy pays the sum of twenty-five cents in case the student is caught short. So far no report has been made upon the claims paid by the persons running the insurance business.

Premiums for "A" Grades Gladden California Students

Further incentive to the industrious student at California has been provided with the announcement that those receiving "A" grades in all of their subjects would get a five dollar remittance of their tuition fee. Wonder how many five dollars the director of admissions has repaid to the students. Doesn't it break your heart when you think you're going to get something for practically nothing and they tie a lot of strings to it? Here we thought they said an "A" in any study.

More Truth Than Poetry In This Word to the Wise

The Yale Record comes through with a bit of homespun philosophy in the following:

God created the universe and then rested.

God created man and then rested.

God created woman and since then neither God nor man has rested.

The Farmer From Modesto Takes National Award

Ray Sisk, Modesto Junior College student, was recently awarded the degree of American Farmer, believe it or not. The award was one of four Californians to be honored. The American farmer plans to finish his education at the California Agricultural College at Davis.

Little Rock Stops the Cigarette Moochers

According to the College Chatter, from Little Rock Junior College, a new system has been adopted to stop the feminine cigarette moocher. An unidentified woman student was the first victim. Gayly she tripped up to a male, more gayly she mooched the cigarette, much more gayly she started smoking it. Unfortunately she didn't get very far. After several puffs the cigarette went off in her face with a loud pop. Several minutes later the co-ed was sufficiently recovered to give vent to her feelings.

State Listens To Tale of Bridge Building

One of the best, according to reports, in a series of lectures was given recently at S. F. State when Robert Elliot, a newspaper man, told of the construction of the two bridges here in San Francisco. Elliot, a special feature writer of one of the largest afternoon papers, recently made the hazardous trip across the cat-

A. W. S. President Holds Many Honors

New Student Leader Graduates From Galileo High School

Helen Hall, the college's new A.W.S. president, thinks San Francisco Junior College is just grand, and undoubtedly the college thinks the same of her. However, being president of the A.W.S is by far not the only office Helen has held during her years of attendance at school.

To start at the beginning it was found that she was born a long ways from here—Manila in the Philippines, on June 13, 1917, to be exact—and did not come to the U. S. until 1923. Since then Helen has lived in Kansas City, Missouri; Minneapolis, Minnesota; Rock Island, Illinois; and in 1928 she finally arrived in San Francisco. Immediately she entered the fifth grade of the George Peabody grammar school, and after finishing there went to Roosevelt Junior high. June 13, 1935, saw her gradaute from Galileo. In all of these schools she distinguished herself.

Leads Operetta

In grammar school she had the lead in an operetta, if you please; in junior high she not only belonged to the Honor Society, but was president of it; in high school she was elected vice-president of her class four times, president of the "Little Theater Club" twice, president of the "Footlights Club" once, and president of the Glee Club twice. She had the leads in "Daddies" and "The Bird's Christmas Carol," besides playing in many skits. She was on the dance committee, too. Last of all, and her crowning achievement, she says, was the rendering of the salutatory address at her graduation.

Helen's Hobbies

Helen's hobbies are dramatics, swimming, tennis and horseback riding. Because of her ability in dramatics she has had the opportunity to be in several plays over the radio. Her vocational ambition is personnel work, principally because she likes to meet and talk with people, and her avocation will continue to be dramatics.

MISS KELLER ENTERTAINS

Miss Bertha Keller, head of the women's physical education department, was hostess to eleven Jaysee women at a very delightful social tea held at her home Sunday afternoon, November 3.

The college women attending the social meeting were Junerose Bilen, Helen Davis, Dorothy Howell, Ruth Johnson, Caroline Kuffner, Agnes Kusumine, Henrietta Leonard, Anita McKay, Gladys Popp, Alice Starrett and Jeanne Anderson.

SPORTS BRIEFS

Medical examinations for women students are being continued this week with Dr. Alice Potter of the San Francisco Board of Health, as the women's physician. Approximately one-half of the women students have not yet had the required examination, and they are urged to make an appointment during their physical education class hour with the instructor. As so many girls are yet to be examined, a penalty will be placed on anyone breaking an appointment.

Mr. Paul Pitman announces that charters are being printed and prepared for all organizations.

CO-EDITORIAL

They are literally the "cream of the crop," these teachers of ours. The days of presenting our favorite teachers with red, shiny apples and bunches of mother's fragrant sweet peas are all over for us, so our appreciation must be shown by verbal orchids. (We hope these written words will mean as much to our faculty as material presentations, for we certainly mean what we're writing.)

The teachers of our college suffer many more inconveniences than must be borne by similar instructors in more established institutions. They are deprived of regular teaching rooms and private offices. They must conduct classes under trying circumstances and at all hours of the day. We fuss and grumble because of irregular hours, crowded rooms and early classes, but the faculty takes it all with a smile. Most of the teaching staff left good positions in other colleges and universities to come to this still unorganized and very new junior college, and it is our responsibility to show them every consideration.

We are really ashamed to confess this, but many of our faculty have had to make excuses for the thoughtlessness of our students. Such things as smoking in restrooms, littering the halls with papers and being very noisy outside of classrooms have been pardoned by them. Wouldn't it help if we remembered to stop these petty things?

Women Table Charter Vote

Deciding to hold the A. W. S. constitution drawn up by Miss Ethel Clarkson and her committee, it was tabled until the next meeting of the women students. The disputes caused were mainly from point of whether the officers' terms should expire after six months or terminate after one year.

The constitution states that all women shall automatically be a member of the A.W.S., and are entitled to vote on all subjects that arise. The officers shall include president, vice-president, secretary and treasurer. Committee heads shall be selected by the officers and with their aid choose the committee.

Women's editor of The Guardsman and other club representatives will have a vote in the executive council. Dean Leonard shall approve all activities of the A.W.S.

All women's activities will automatically come under the direct supervision of the organization.

An invitation is being extended to all women members of the faculty, and all wives of men professors to join the riding classes held at the San Francisco Riding Academy.

W. A. A. Takes Final Step To Organize Club

Ten Named to Constitution Committee As Group Lays Plans

Final plans towards organization of the Women's Athletic Association are being made with ten prominent sports enthusiasts acting as the temporary constitutional committee. With Miss Vera Spencer as faculty advisor, the girls have chosen to draft a constitution for the new college A.A., using those of Stanford, California and San Mateo Junior College as a basis for the technical work. When the preliminaries are completed and the constitution accepted by the girls interested in sports, officers will be elected and the W.A.A. will become a functional organization. Members will include those girls who are qualified to join under the ruling of the new constitution.

It is the plan of the organizers of the W.A.A. to work co-operatively with the A.W.S. and in this way promote all women's activities in San Francisco Junior College. Girls acting as the temporary constitutional committee are Alma Bracken, Louise Corica, Marjorie Delhi, Arlene Freziares, Marion Gardner, Helen Mann, Marie McKnight, Eleanor Newman, Geraldine Roberts and Martha Salonen.

Reporter Says Guardsman Needs 'Culture'; Turns In Story of Opera and Stars

By Patty de Roulf

Trespassing the forbidden stage door of the Opera House bright and early one morning last week your fair reporter managed to nab a few celebrities and pin them down in hasty interviews.

The first to be accosted was the famous conductor, Arthur Bodanzky. "Why is it," he asked "that students don't know Verdi, Wagner, or Puccini? . . . I will tell you. They study languages, art, history, Shakespeare . . . but not opera, not composers. Why? Why? Excuse me, please. The rehearsal!" And so the conductor dashed away, coat tails flying in the breeze.

Merola Enters

Suddenly, a tremor ran through the house, a strange undertone, then a hush. The stage door opened. A distinguished looking gentleman entered. Unmistakably it was Gaetano Merola, the great Merola, general director, impressario, maestro (and "boss" to you). He was victim No. 2. But all the interviewer got was a big smile, a promise, and Merola was gone.

The busiest, most indispensable man in the entire opera company is Armando Agnini, stage and technical director. Full of lovable humor, Mr. Agnini kindly yielded to an interview. "The way I became a stage director," Agnini explained, "was that the director of the company I was with, went insane! Seriously, though," he continued, "I have been working to get three seasons of opera . . . one at very low prices for San Francisco students. If students want to hear great operas and singers, they must fight for them: They have my one thousand per cent backing! . . . Lights!" And Agnini, the dynamic, shot across the stage, shouting his echoing orders.

Galilean Makes Debut

Adolph Bolm, the ballet master, stepped gracefully through the entrance. Josephine Tumminia, the young girl who attended Galileo and makes her debut in "The Barber of Seville," followed.

Then, with his springy step, approached the famous and beloved Italian tenor, Giovanni Martinelli. In a conversation frequently interrupted by peals of joyous laughter from the renowned singer, Mr. Martinelli stated, "My favorite opera is 'Aida,' although I have no favorite role. I have sung in 62 operas. I eat everything . . . Fruits, vegetables, and I like very much thick, black coffee that you can cut with a knife!"

Heart Smasher

The heart and headline smasher, Basso Ezio Pinza swaggered in. With an air of politeness, which is a Pinza trademark, the tall Latin granted an interview: "My favorite opera? . . . 'Boris Godounow.' I like to ride horseback and drive a car. My favorite color? . . . Gold!"

Another whirlwind of opera celebrities breezed through the door. Among them were Friedrich Schoor, Tito Schipa, Richard Lert, Emily Hardy, Meisle, Gandolfi, and Windheim. Your reporter, finally daunted, struggled for the stage door, and as the cool air met her face, she realised she had truly spent "A Day at the Opera House."

Los Angeles Swims To Score First Win Over San Francisco

Weather Man Turns On Spout, Forgets 'Big' Big Game at Seals

Cubs Take Victory and Roos Trophy to South

By Tim Guiney
Guardsman Sports Editor

For the entire month of October the city of San Francisco was bathed in sunshine. Even the 31st of October was a perfect day. The Los Angeles J.C. football team arrived to do battle with San Francisco on November 1. Result: rain, and a headache for the Ram financial department. Post mortem: Los Angeles 7, San Francisco 0.

It was some night for football. The members of the Los Angeles squad looked at us in their best imitation of a sneer, and said: "What kind of a town is this, anyway?" And alas and alack, all we could do was hang our heads and say sheepishly: "Honest, fellows, this is the first time it's rained up here in months."

Weather Forgets, This Is Our Night

And with that magnanimous answer we would drag ourselves over to the window, look at the sky, and mutter: "Don't worry, boys; why, this kind of weather can't keep up—not here in San Francisco."

But the old weather man wasn't so good to us. It not only kept on raining, but winds came up to intermingle with the downpour, and we had a sho' nuff Texas storm.

The Cubs from L. A., however, decided to prove that they weren't just fair weather players. And prove it they did. When the game (?) was over, the Southerners were on the long end of the 7-0 score.

Fumble, Fumble, Who's Got the Ball?

It was all a case of fumble . . . fumble, or, better still, ball, ball, who's got the ball? The only time each team felt safe was when the other side had the pigskin. The offensive team had to do all the worrying. The defensive men just wallowed around in the mud and laughed at the plight of their opponents. Most of the time the teams were punting on second downs. Sometimes the ball would even travel as far as 12 or 15 yards. But that was on rare occasions. The general average was much lower than this.

Los Angeles got its break in the third period, and this won the game for them. On an end-run play, the Rams decided it was their turn to fumble. This they obligingly did, the pigskin flying through the air, and landing in the arms of the much surprised Lavant Perrin, L. A. end, who managed to swim 35 yards for a touchdown. Clyde Poppleman, the ex-Marine, put the situation well in hand by smashing over left guard for the extra point.

Olberg Intercepts, Almost Scores

San Francisco's only real threat of the game came in the third quarter, when Olberg intercepted a Los Angeles pass in midfield, and scooted down to the 15-yard line where he was thrown out of bounds. Here the Cub line held like the proverbial stone wall, and a fourth down pass fell alone in a far-off corner of the field, to once and for all end the Rams' scoring opportunity.

Gerry De Haag, playing the left-half job on the Southern team, was the outstanding back on the field as he gained yardage with beautiful cutbacks despite the sloppy condition of the field.

For San Francisco the entire line showed up well with Tom Mauer, at fullback, looking strong on power plays in the first half of the skirmish.

The game itself proved little or nothing regarding the relative merits of the two teams, and a replay, although unlikely, would be the only method of establishing superiority one way or the other.

But the worst part of the entire affair was the fact that those Southerners had to take our silverware home with them, too. In other words, they become the initial holders of the Roos Bros. perpetual trophy.

SPORTS COMMENT

By TIM GUINEY

It begins to look like our very good friend, San Mateo Jaysee, is going a bit "snooty" on us. Or so we gathered, after finding out that the peninsula institution is "unable" to meet us in our game scheduled for November 22.

The Mateans, suddenly discovering that they have a team of potential champions, have decided not to take any chances with our San Franciscans, so they found out that the date of play was unsuitable. Oh well, we remember U.S.C. a few years ago, too.

It seems that the old song about "not snubbing people when you're up, because you'll meet them when you're on the way down," will be carried out effectively once more. And along with that, the Rams will be in the conference next year, so maybe Coach McFadden had better start planning for the 1936 skirmish now.

For the benefit of those who were unable to attend the Los Angeles-San Francisco game, and read about it in the city papers, we wish to make one correction. The papers carried the statement that the fumble resulting in the Los Angeles touchdown was made by Tom Mauer. We can prove this statement to be false because it so happens that at the time the fumble was made, Tom Mauer was an interested spectator from the third-base dugout of Seals Stadium.

Bill Leiser of the San Francisco Chronicle ought to be given some kind of a token of appreciation for the splendid work he has done in fostering the improvement of modern football on the Pacific Coast. Or maybe the fact that at his early age he is associate sports editor of the Chronicle is ample proof of the fact that his ability is also recognized by others.

For a long time Bill has been battling to make things a little easier for the football players who, after all, are mainly responsible for the large amount of money now coming into the coffers of many of our large colleges and universities. At other times he has given constructive suggestions which have been adopted by many of these institutions.

Now he comes out in what we think is his best idea to date. In brief, that of insuring football players for full coverage of any injuries they receive.

In the method now employed, all hospital expenses are paid. But some of the gridders have not been so lucky. Many have had injuries which stayed with them after they were released from the hospital.

An insurance policy, such as Mr. Leiser suggests, would do away with this system, and all of the athletes would be guaranteed full protection until they are once again charted as being "physically fit."

Another point that he has been fighting for is a "Varsity Club." This would be a lodging on the campus of each of the various colleges which would give the players free room and board, and to which members of the alumni could belong through the medium of small contributions.

We wish to take this opportunity to add this column's thanks to those already given to Roos Brothers for that swell football trophy, which unfortunately, got into the hands of some of the Los Angeles representatives, who carted it away. But don't worry. We'll try and have it back in San Francisco next year.

FROM THE SIDELINES

An English lad is given credit for introducing the counterpart of the modern running attack in football. . . . Football was originally a kicking game until the bright lad got the idea to run with the ball. . . . Unfortunately he was censured by his captain who apologized to the other team . . . Acclaim of the fans resulted in inclusion of the scrum in Rugby . . . Percy Haughton of Harvard is credited as godfather of the modern kicking game . . .

Cal. Aggies' Conversion Stops Rams

Belated Drive Falls Short of Win As Gridders Fail to Convert

Scafani Spark Plugs Team; Fumbles Still Bane of Squad

By George Dunne

A belated fourth-quarter drive which traveled 98 yards to a touchdown just failed to pull the game out of the fire for San Francisco as the Rams dropped a close 7-6 decision to the California Aggies at Davis last Saturday.

A lackadaisical first quarter was the direct cause of the Red and White gridders' downfall. With the Rams demonstrating a listless brand of ball far below their capabilities the Aggies sent Payne crashing into the end zone for a score late in the first period. The Davis eleven's touchdown resulted after a Ram fumble had given them possession of the ball on the 40-yard line. A sustained drive featuring passes, Payne to Smith and off-tackle smashes by Payne carried the ball to the two-yard line where the latter plunged over for the score. A perfect place kick added the deciding point.

Scafani Starts Team Rolling

Scafani entered the game at this stage and proved the spark that started the Rams moving although fumbles kept them from seriously threatening during the first half.

The two squads played on fairly even terms throughout the third and part of the fourth quarter. With but five minutes of play left in the game Forest Morrison, sensational new backfield discovery, entered the game for the Jaysees.

Handicapped by two 15-yard penalties and a fumble the Jaysee gridders displayed championship ball as they drove relentlessly to a touchdown. The motivating force behind the best offensive drive that the Red and White have shown all season was Forest Morrison, whose passes to Clarke and Pedrin and smashes through the center of the Aggie line caused California's defense to wilt and go to pieces.

Although Morrison was the hero of the game the actual score resulted from a five-yard pass, Guisti to Pedrin. It was a beautifully executed play with Pedrin leaping high in the air to take the ball away from three Aggie backs in the end zone.

Sweet Gives Everybody a Break

Coach Sweet used practically every man on the team and discovered at least two first-class backs in Morrison and Scafani.

Clarke and Mauer looked well in the Jaysee backfield while Olberg's daring tactics caused the Rams to move in the last period. Cassino provided the Rams with good kicking throughout the game.

The line showed up fine after the first quarter with Pedrin, Telesmanic, McHugh and Allen playing outstanding ball.

The Jaysees showed their best offense of the season combining tricky reverses, passes and laterals with straight power plays to outgain their opponents almost three to one in total yardage.

Collapsible goal posts is the latest "brain storm" of the people who are always trying to stop victorious students from taking home souvenirs of the football games.

Bulldog, Ram Big Game Off, States Coach

San Mateans Take Record Of San Francisco With Grain of Salt

By George Dunne

Difficulties of schedulings and finance have forced the cancellation of San Francisco's Big Game with San Mateo on November 22.

The Rams have been pointing for this game all season and were prepared to demonstrate to the Bulldogs just how football should be played.

Too Much To Play 3 in Row!

San Mateans offer the excuse of a too heavy schedule as the chief reason for the cancellation of the game. This as an excuse is all right, but the main fault to be found with it is the fact that it is an excuse and as such seems to be merely an evasion.

At the same period that the mighty Mateans meet such laudable opponents as to make the cancelling of our game a necessity the Rams face a schedule fully as difficult as that of our peninsula rivals and intend to play it out.

No Championship Claims—Rams

We from San Francisco can lay no claims to a football championship but we do believe that a champion should be able to take it as well as dish it out. San Mateo will probably win the Northern California J. C. Conference championship and will be recognized almost universally as the best team in Northern California. Paradoxically, however, we San Franciscans are from Missouri and would like the Blue and White gridders to try and prove their claims to us.

Coach Russ Sweet's Menlo gridders defeated the San Mateans 32-0 last year. Copying Tom Laird's famous saying—"The inference is obvious."

At any rate San Mateo's attitude remains as the best compliment paid to our gridders this year and partly compensates for the loss of the opportunity to down the Bulldogs.

Matean Track Stars Bolster Ram Chances

Dunne, McKenzie Give Strength in Jumps

By Lou Bertolucci

It was indeed a sorry day for San Mateo, athletically speaking, when it was decided to create a new San Francisco Junior College. For the creation of S. F. Jaysee meant the loss of two fine tracksters from the Bulldog squad. But what is their loss is our gain and we aren't in a position to deny the Ram team "cinch" points in the Jaysee Conference. Possibly those so-called cinch points will be made by George Dunne, who tasted competition in the Conference meet during the 1935 season and emerged with a fifth place. It is another one of those sport miracles that can't be answered when you consider that George, being a mere 5 feet 5 inches in height can get out past the 22-foot mark in the broadjump with the greatest of ease.

The 1936 season will find the Jaysees without an outstanding broadjumper, graduation claiming the best of the previous year. So, taking into consideration his past performances, George Dunne may well be among the leading broadjumpers of the Junior College Conference. Dunne's prep career was spent at Commerce.

The other Bulldog transfer is Robert McKenzie, a hurdler of no mean ability. Bob tops both the high and low hurdles and can clear the barriers in very fast time. He has done the highs in 15.9 seconds and has shown continuous improvement which should find him bettering his best time. The spring may find these two San Mateo Junior College transfers in Red and White suits and we can just say "keep your eye on them and watch them go places" because they have the makings of real stars.

MORRISON SHINES

In the game against the California Aggies, Forest Morrison demonstrated that besides being an excellent passer, he does nicely on running attacks, too.

Old Man Hard Luck Plagues Soccer Squad

Menlo, San Mateo Take Two From Booters Over Holidays

Hard luck doubled up on the San Francisco Junior College soccer team last week as they lost to both San Mateo Junior College, 5 to 2, and to Menlo Junior College by a score of 6 to 4.

Up to this time the team has generally played but one game on weekends, but as Monday was a holiday they played two.

San Mateo Takes First Measure

On Saturday they took on San Mateo for a return engagement and lost a hard-fought game. A rally near the end of the third quarter fell short after the Bulldog reserves were removed in favor of the regulars. Although knocked unconscious in the first quarter, Bob Nelson, fullback for the Rams, came back to play a great defensive game, time after time kicking the ball out of San Francisco territory.

Carlos Irahita, left wing of San Mateo, was high point man of the game kicking three of his team's goals. Fahn and Zegura made the goals for San Francisco.

No Armistice, Says Menlo

On Armistice Day the team journeyed to Menlo Park to play the Menlo Junior College on Menlo's field. Here the Rams lost a hard-fought game. The principal reason for the defeat was the absence of Don Leeds, regular goalie for San Francisco. Two of Menlo's goals rolled by the San Francisco substitute. At the outset the Rams looked hopeless, but after little Bob Vinson dribbled through the opposition to make the first goal the team started to move.

Six Teams Meet On Gridiron to Swell Fund for the Needy

Five Contests to Pit Team Against Team

Six mighty San Francisco high school football teams in action! That's what will be offered to bay area gridiron fans when the San Francisco prep teams will participate in a gala football day to be sponsored by the Parent-Teacher Association this afternoon at 1 o'clock, with Kezar Stadium as the scene of battle.

Admission to the field will be 15 cents to students and 50 cents to adults. All of the proceeds will go to the P.-T.A. clothing fund, which is used to benefit school children in dire circumstances.

The program for the day will include five games, each one consisting of 33 minutes, with 16-minute halves. The teams will start competition according to their A.A.A. rating. Thus: Poly vs. Balboa, Galileo vs. Mission, Lowell vs. Commerce. The winners of these games will then vie among themselves, with the contest being an elimination affair.

Heading the committee in charge of the affair will be Mrs. L. J. Brown, who will be assisted by members of the various P.-T.A. chapters throughout the city.

LATE BULLETINS FROM THE ADMINISTRATION
NEWS OF IMPORTANCE

Institute Plans

Plans have been completed for an interesting and inspirational institute for San Francisco's teachers. The three-day session will be held on November 25, 26 and 27.

The afternoon program of November 25 has been built around music. Mrs. Maude Fay Symington, assisted by artists of the San Francisco Opera Association, will present "A Century of Opera." She will trace the development of the opera during the last hundred years and her talk will be illustrated with arias from the great compositions written during that time. The numbers will be sung by outstanding operatic stars.

The morning program will offer two contrasting presentations. Elie C. Edson, director of Globe Theater Productions, Inc., will present "The Theater and Modern Life." He will be assisted by artists of the Globe Theater who recently completed a successful engagement at the San Diego Exposition with their presentation of Shakespearean plays. According to present plans, excerpts from several plays will be given to illustrate Mr. Edson's theme.

The second speaker on the program will be James A. Johnston, warden of the United States Penitentiary on Alcatraz Island. Warden Johnston will speak on "The First Line of Defense" and from personal observation will emphasize how the schools are the greatest moral factor in the life of a nation.

Section meetings will be held on November 26 and 27 and arrangements have been completed for outstanding speakers to address the various groups. Several sections have made arrangements to hold joint sessions in the East Bay for teachers from all cities and counties. Permission has been granted for these teachers to spend the entire day in the East Bay and attend the general session in the Oakland Civic Auditorium.

General sessions of the San Francisco Institute will be held in the Civic Auditorium starting at 9:15 a.m. and 2:00 p.m.

Special sections for the junior college staff will be arranged.

Entrance tests to be given to high school seniors on November 25 and 26 at 8:30 a.m. in the Galileo girls' gym are announced in the following order: Monday, November 25, English A and Strong Vocational Interest Test; Tuesday, November 26, Thurstone and Iowa Content Tests.

Will all those who intend to graduate at the close of this, the Fall semester, please see Mr. Mohr, Registrar, to file their petitions for graduation.

Executive Council Holds Interest Of College Students

Buchan and Coplestone's Story

to divulge his identity said: "We made no attempts to call an Executive Council meeting. I didn't think that the students had progressed far enough along that an Executive Council would function as it should. Although the budget is limited I still think that the instructors should have the guiding hand in student affairs."

Two Hold Control

As near as observers can make out the control of any affair lies in the hands of two student body officers and the rest have been selected as mere figureheads. With the formation of the student council all officers would be present at the meetings and would be fulfilling some duties.

The present student administration seems to make a haphazard affair of the whole thing. The student body president never asked for and never received a copy of the tentative budget for this term. The vice-president stated that several attempts were made to call an Executive Council meeting and that he and the president decided the policies of the student body along with a social committee. Further, when he was questioned on the dance, he declared that the class representatives to the council were not elected when the dance was planned. According to The Guardsman of Friday, October 18, the representatives were elected on Thursday, October 10. First public plans for the dance were made in a news story carried by the Guardsman of the Oct. 18 date.

A feeling has begun to spread that the social committee was going over its head in planning various affairs. The expenditure of over $100 on an orchestra from Stanford was felt to be a little out of reason. As one of the persons spoken to has aptly put it, the students have a "champagne appetite and a beer purse."

A close check on the finances of the social committee by an Executive Council might have made the deficit incurred less than it was. That admission must be granted. But to say that the social committee had the power to put on such a dance without some student check seems a little far-fetched. The faculty were advisors of the Semi-Formal, but with the impetus given the affair by the dreams of the committee it seems as if they were outvoted. Another point in the affair is the fact that the faculty advisors might not have been cognizant of the extravagance being made in the hiring of the orchestra and allowed themselves to be guided by those who were possibly supposed to be acquainted with the situation.

The Guardsman is undertaking to bring this matter to light as a service to the student body and not with the idea that it is directed at any one person or persons.

To return to the class representatives. Elected on Thursday, Oct. 10, they never have been informed of, or invited to, a council meeting. When questioned, several declared they had made inquiries but nothing had ever resulted in them. On the other hand Bennett McGuire, Associated Student president, seemed to think that they were elected to honorary posts, and without a constitution, tentative or permanent, had no official status. This much he made clear in several class elections before the voting was held.

Seek Report

In most junior colleges a weekly treasurer's report is given to the Executive Council and published to the students. The seriousness of the situation at San Francisco might have been lessened if the students realized the predicament of the Associated Students as to the shortage of funds. Generally the plea for the sale of student body cards is ignored unless concrete evidence is given that the student is going to lose something of value.

So far the treasurer has been working alone with Mr. Nichols and the other faculty members that have taken their time to devote to the student affairs. To a few the conditions of the budget are known, to a great many more there are numerous stories, mostly fanciful, as to how much the college is in debt.

Groups Clash

Since there has been no Executive Council to arrange things many activities are being planned that have conflicts in nature and dates. Mr. Pitman's office is the administration clearing house for any student function. Unfortunately the functions are planned for the most part before they are taken to Mr. Pitman for his official sanction. The best example of this is the Co-Eds' dance planned by the A.W.S. for Friday, Dec. 13. Plans were made for this early last week. On last Friday the social committee started to complete plans for a Co-Eds' dance to be held on Friday, November 22. As the matter stands now a faculty man will probably have to act as arbitrator and decide who had the prior rights to this type of dance.

With an efficient Executive Council in session the matter could be taken up as routine business. The preference given, and nobody would feel that they had been taken advantage of over the dispute.

Dorothy Franchi, San Francisco Junior College co-ed, had her day in court recently. She got smacked, but not the way you think. Some body forgot his car had brakes and let it run into car number two. Number two hit number three. Aw! Anyway it finally ended up by Miss Franchi being the final victim. It all happened in that subway at the Ferry building.

Writers List Problems Of Student Group

Ex. Council Faces Variety Of Matters in Running Administration

By William Buchan and Jean Coplestone

Student governments at various colleges and junior colleges have either one or two groups that act as the representatives of the students. In some junior colleges these are called the executive council, the president's cabinet, or the student control board.

Mainly, these boards are concerned with the government of the college. They allot the funds received from various sources. They plan the social calendar of the college and allot dates for different functions. They decide the major questions concerning athletic awards.

Assume Burden

To date at San Francisco, the faculty have taken the burden of duties upon their shoulders. This was due mainly to the fact that the college was just founded. No means for student administration were provided till after several very necessary questions were decided. The allotment for athletic equipment was a major issue that had to be decided very abruptly by the college. The funds for the student publication also had to be requisitioned in a short space of time.

Letter Question

Final designs for the block letters will be a big question. The faculty are at present working in conjunction with the art department on a suitable emblem for award to those eligible. With a possible delay in the constitution until the opening of next term, the question as to who would be eligible to a block should be settled.

Males Stand No Chance At Co-eds' Dance

Fair Sex May Get More Than They Bargained For at Event

Friday evening, November 22, is the one evening in Miss College Co-ed's social calendar when she can really show the gallant Romeos HOW she would like to be treated on a date. If she prefers one-arm driving to the regulation kind with two, it is her privilege or if she is hungry after the dance she can waltz him out to the nearest hamburger stand and eat!

Carrot Corsages

And speculation is running high as to how many of the gentleman friends will receive a bunch of carrots instead of orchids to wear on their lapels.

The male sex of the college is also planning to get even—many a dainty purse will contain a comb, shaving brush or razor along with the necessities of a lady's complexion.

It is also rumored that a number of the fairer sex will cool their heels in the parlor of the boy friend while he puts on the finishing touches. Some may go so far as to see that SHE plays checkers with grandpa in the meantime or discusses the war situation with the Gov'nor.

News Of The Clubs

Robinson Heads Pi Mu Gammas

Art Robinson, prominent college student, was elected president of Pi Mu Gamma, pre-medical society, at their first official meeting on November 1. Other officers elected were Frank Circili, vice-president; Hans Klepe, secretary; Pete Ruaake, treasurer, and Bill Painter, publicity manager.

Pi Mu Gamma has planned many interesting events for the school year at the bi-monthly social gatherings in the club rooms at 1450 Union street. Interesting field trips, such as visits to the U. C. Pathology museum, and S. F. morgue and hospital are already under way.

The club is for pre-medical and pre-dental students exclusively, all eligible candidates being required to pay $1.50 initiation fee. December 1 has been set as the last possible date that entrance to the club can be made.

The regular weekly meeting will be held today at 1:45 in room 303 at Galileo.

Consulting Engineer Guest of Club

Mr. Chew, prominent San Francisco consulting engineer, addressed 30 members of the college Engineers Club last Tuesday on "The Problems of the Young Engineer." Dean Brown, Mr. Agosti and Mr. Jacobs also gave short talks to the group.

Plans are being made to hold a joint dinner with the San Mateo Engineers Club. This is to be the outstanding event on the calendar for the club this term.

It is also planned that the college club will join the National Engineers Society.

The next meeting will be held November 19 in room 552 at 1:30 at Galileo High School.

Art Club Elects Today

Election of officers and adoption of the constitution will be the main features of the Art Club luncheon to be held today noon, at the Wilshire Hotel, corner of Stockton and Sutter streets.

Under the supervision of Miss Helene Murphy, a 35-cent luncheon has been obtained. All members and those taking art and those interested are invited to attend.

Economics Club Begins Activities

Sociology students are forming an Economics Club, under the direction of Mr. Zarchin. Enthusiasts hope to have the club open to all students interested in economics.

Noted economists will be asked to address the group at various times; in addition, the club will probably conduct seminars for students in the college who have difficulty with the subject.

Chinese Students Form Club

The purpose of the San Francisco Junior College Chinese Students' Club is to unite the Chinese students of the college into a social club.

The Executive Council will set the time for the next meeting. Notices will be posted on the bulletin board. Mr. Edward Sandys is the faculty advisor. To date seven Chinese students have joined. The purchase of the club membership card makes any Chinese student eligible. The sale of these cards will finance the club.

Music Club Schedules Events

The Music Club so far has been very prominent in the major activities of the college. They are continuing their work by entertaining at many affairs in the future. On Friday, November 15, at four o'clock, the A Cappella Choir will sing over station KYA for Education Week under the direction of Miss Badger. Two highlights of the program will be the instrumental music directed by Mr. Sandifur and a duet given by Miss Rosella Retallic and Miss Jane Knight. During Institute Week the choir will also entertain the college division.

The Men's Glee Club will give a performance on Father's Night, November 21, for the P.-T.A. at Cleveland school.

Chess Men Buy Sets

The Chess Club, which now boasts ten members, is already thinking of actual competition.

At the last regular meeting it was decided that each member be assessed a nominal sum to pay for chess sets.

In order to get in practice, tournaments with high school chess teams will soon be in progress. Later members of the club hope to have some real stiff competition with more experienced players.

The next meeting of the Chess Club is to be held Friday, November 15.

Philatelists Call Meeting for Nov. 18

An official meeting of the Stamp Club will be held Monday, November 18 at 1:25 p. m., in room 203 in the Galileo building. All those who have stamp collections and are interested in this hobby are invited to attend. The meeting is said to be important.

Donald McPherson and Jack Neuman are active in the founding of this new club. The purpose of the club is to increase the interest of students in stamp collecting and will also teach the students the financial value of the stamps.

The sponsor of the club has not been named. McPherson and Neuman say that all students are welcome to join.

Philosophy Club Sets Meet Date

A meeting of the Philosophy Club has been set for November 20, at 2964 Jackson street. This is their first meeting.

Press Asks Journalism Conference

Tentative Plans Set by Group Heading Committee on Convention

Northern State To Be Territory For Delegates

With tentative plans nearing completion, members of the staff of The Guardsman were working on details incidental to holding a Northern California Junior College Press Conference in San Francisco in the near future. The conference will include representatives from fourteen colleges in the northern part of the state. Invitation will go to such schools as San Mateo, Bakersfield, Sacramento, Taft, Marysville and Salinas.

Need Seen

The affair will be based on the need for a press conference of the junior college group. The apparent lack of a junior college press association in the northern part of the state was seen when representatives from San Francisco, San Mateo, Marin and Santa Rosa, and Modesto were at the Bay Region Press Day held by the University of California. The convention at Berkeley was aimed primarily for high school journalists.

No actual plan for the business of the convention has been approved by those planning the affair. It is thought, however, that prominent newspapermen from the metropolitan papers in San Francisco will act as guest speakers at many of the sessions of the meeting.

Low Fee

A tentative financial budget, prepared by the group, slates the convention fee at a nominal figure. Those who have attended other conventions were amazed at the lowness of the proposed delegate fee.

Interspersed with the business of the meeting, many side trips are being arranged for the delegates. Trips to the bridges and other points of interest are high on the list.

Rally Honors Co-ed Affair

Student Leaders Talk For Tonight's Affair

Giving impetus to the co-ed dance tonight, a rally was held yesterday at Galileo. Principal speakers were various student leaders who supported the affair.

Jim Neal, vice-president and social committee head, was master of ceremonies at the affair. Helen Hall, A.W.S. head, spoke briefly about the co-ed's side of the dance and asked the women of the college to support the social committee. The idea was originally put forth by the women's organization, and their dance was to be held on the 13th of December.

Maury Schwartz of the Men's Club was also a speaker.

Hey! Hey! It's Rumors Again

It is rumored! Heh, heh! These fellows will have their little rumors. The latest news items concerning just where the orphan junior college will be located next semester is interesting if true.

Undetermined sources have it that the junior college will take over the Lowell High School building. The students of that school will be portioned out to the rest of the high schools—at least that is what the rumor says.

Lowell High School has been undergoing extensive earthquake-proof repairs and was to be opened this semester. Delays, due to fire and other causes, prevented the opening. Now it might be the temporary home of San Francisco Junior College.

Marina Junior High School has also been considered as a site.

CO-EDS LOOK FOR DANCE DATE ... MALES SIT BACK ANTICIPATING ... FEATURE MARKUSE ORCHESTRA

While the fellows relax, heave a sigh, and declare that at last they are getting a break, college co-eds timorously ask their dates for the Co-Ed Prom tonight.

The entire evening will be at the disposal of the fairer sex. It is they who will arrange the programs and ask for dances. Also all tag dances and feature dances of the evening will be staged by the women students.

Markuse Plays

Howard Markuse's band will provide the dance music. Markuse's orchestra are well known about the bay region as they have played for dances at Stanford University, California, San Mateo and Menlo Junior College as well as many private club parties in San Francisco. Miss Marge Silk, talent quest winner, and Aaron Gallant, who sang on the rally program several weeks ago, will be featured soloists with the orchestra. The entire band is made up of college students.

The Women's Service Club have been conducting a date bureau for the dance. Their office is located in The Guardsman editorial office on the mezzanine floor of the extension building.

Photo Contest

Miss Joy Panas, chairman of the dance, has been conducting a photographic contest. The lucky winners will have their pictures on the bulletin board at Powell street. Those people whose pictures are taken and also encircled, will receive a free bid to the dance.

Dancing will begin at 8 o'clock and many feature tags will be the events of the evening. For those who are late in obtaining bids, they will be on sale at the gym door under the direction of Jimmie Neal, vice-president of the student body. The tickets will be 40 cents and no allowance will be made for student body cards.

Plan Student Program Talks

Personal Interviews Slated for Four-Week Period

NOTICE

All students must make program changes through official forms secured at the Registrar's office. To secure credit for any course, the student must have that course listed on official study lists with the Registrar. Many students have not followed the official forms of making program changes. These will lose the work of the semester if they do not apply at the office for a change in program card. If any student is in doubt as to his presence in a course he should check with the Registrar immediately.

At the rally Thursday, Mr. J. Paul Mohr, Registrar, spoke briefly on the plans for the next semester at San Francisco Junior College. Students will be given personal interviews by the Registrar and his assistant, Miss Leonard, during the period of time between Thanksgiving and Christmas holidays. The interviews are being arranged at definite times and it is important that the students keep the appointment with Mr. Mohr.

In these talks with the students, the Registrar will work with the student in making a tentative program and suggest certain curricula types to the student. This is being done to ease the burden of registration and to get the members of the student body to thinking of the program that they will follow during the coming year.

No definite announcement as to new courses will be made, according to Mr. Mohr, until the question of where the college will be located next semester is finally settled. Mid-term reports will again be mailed to the homes of the students of the college.

Aviation Frat Founded Here

Honor Society Has Origin At Southern California

Alpha Eta Rho, international honor aviation fraternity, held its first meeting Wednesday, November 20. The meeting was the culmination of efforts of several students to organize such a group. The fraternity will not function officially till next semester.

The national organization had its origin at the University of Southern California in 1929. The chapter at San Francisco will be known as the Beta chapter.

Alex Pillett is the president of the group. James Gibson, secretary, and Sidney Farley, treasurer, are the other officials. It is planned to seek official recognition from the administration of the college. A faculty advisor will be sought in the near future.

Students Get Holiday News

Teachers Institute Will Be Held During Vacation

With two short vacations before final examination week, the profs wonder if it will give the students a chance to catch up in any back work or have the effect that summer vacations so often do—make the scholars forget all knowledge!

The first one, beginning Monday, will be the Thanksgiving holiday week, November 25 to 29, during which Teachers Institute will be held.

The second welcome (?) holiday interruption will be Christmas vacation commencing two days before Christmas, December 23, and ending January 3, 1936.

Final examinations will come the week of January 20 to 24 inclusive, according to the registrar's office. This gives those students planning to go to U.C. the opportunity of registering at the beginning of the semester.

Club Donates Banner Fund

With funds realized from a benefit dance, the Filipino Students Association are donating to the college a felt banner to be used at athletic contests and other functions of the institution.

Students of the art classes under the direction of Mr. Allman, are working on a design for the banner, which will be interpreted in the college colors, red and white.

The remainder of the $100 fund will probably be donated to the Junior College Library, though definite action has not as yet been taken on the matter. For the Thanksgiving holidays, the club is planning a banquet to be held either at the Palace or Fairmont hotel.

A.W.S. Plan Tea Change At Galileo

Function Moved To Cafeteria When Gym Becomes Unavailable

Roos Fashion Show on Program For Today's Event

By Elizabeth Yates

Galileo cafeteria, instead of the girls' gym, will be the scene of the Associated Women Students' tea this afternoon, due to the fact that it is Senior Day at Galileo and the high school is holding a dance until five o'clock in the gyms. The cafeteria will be decorated with greens and flowers provided by the committee in charge.

Style Show

In spite of these inconveniences, a splendid program is planned, headed by a style show showing Roos Brothers clothes. Birnelyn Seymour, Betty McNeil, Helen Coadon and Janet George will be the models in this fashion revue planned to show clothes especially suited for a San Francisco Junior College woman.

Musical entertainment will be provided by a duet by Ruth Peterson and Phillis Devaney and a trio by Marygail Konkel, Helene Wright and Ruth Peterson. Ben Deanne will sing a solo while a novelty number will consist of Miss Phillis Devaney in a whistling act.

Miss Pence Acts

Due to the illness of Dean Leonard, faculty sponsor of the A.W.S., the receiving line will be headed by Miss Edith Pence, the Assistant Dean of Women, followed by Miss Helen Hall, president; Miss Helene Wright, vice-president; Miss Pam Spalding, secretary, and Miss Elizabeth Yates, treasurer of the A.W.S., and Miss Sibyl Hurning, the women's editor of The Guardsman. Miss Jean Coplestone will greet the guests at the door.

College Hostesses

Hostesses under the leadership of Miss Donna McPherson will introduce the mothers and fathers to the various instructors. They will also take them on a tour of the classrooms.

Refreshments will be served and about 500 girls are expected to attend and to bring their parents. There is no charge.

Guardsman Plans Literary Edition

The staff of The Guardsman wish to announce that the January 10 issue will be a literary edition. English instructors are asked to begin selection of material that they think suited to the edition.

All types of work will be accepted. Stories, however, will be on the short short story type due to limitation of space. Poetry, word sketches, or characterizations will be more than suitable for publication by the paper.

Two Sessions Begin Action For Student Association Control

Ex-Council Proposals Culminate in Board of Directors to Handle Routine Executive Business

Action was finally granted on numerous requests for a central representative body to control student association affairs. The matter of an executive council or board of directors, as the group has been titled, was brought to a head through the efforts of The Guardsman. First meetings of the new board were held on Tuesday and Thursday at 1:45.

Considered a real step forward in establishing the student administration, the board will be active for the remainder of the term. The exact status will be established when a permanent constitution is presented to the student association. Some feeling has been aroused among the members of the board that they should draw up such a document without presentation to the student card holders for a vote on the question.

16 Attend

Sixteen representatives and officers were at the first meeting held on Tuesday. Although little business was transacted, the board spent much time in discussing affairs of the college and the policies it would decide upon to conduct the business of the student association.

Members of the group thought that they should have a chance to quietly go ahead and run the student association functions. The general idea of the body was expressed by Maury Schwartz, Men's Club president, when he said, "The press should give us a break. If we fail, then indict us."

With the board of directors starting to move in full swing, much of the load of planning student affairs will be lightened for the faculty. Two members of the instructors' group will act as advisors to the body, and will assist the group in deciding policies affecting the college students association. Russ Sweet and Joseph Amori will act as the faculty representatives to the council.

Ban Outsiders

At future meetings only recognized members of the group will be allowed a voice in the proceedings. This was made clear when the board decided the policy upon which it would conduct its meetings. Thus only officers of the student association or class representatives will carry on the business of the college. Outsiders may attend all meetings, but will not be allowed to voice any opinions unless done through their representative.

First official business was the granting of the request for a requisition on the college for the A.W.S. tea to be held today. Permission was granted to Miss Helen Hall to incur a debt of twenty dollars, if needed, this to be repaid later.

A report from the social committee head, James Neal, gave detailed account of the expenses and income expected of the Co-Eds' dance tonight. According to the vice-president, the affair will be held without a chance of the college assuming any financial responsibility.

List Names

Those attending the meeting were Helen Bowman, Mimi Colton, Vivian Fisher, Inez St. Ledger, Dorothy Vincent, and Clysta Wilkinson, Carl Hillspich, Bill Kennedy, Alvin Kobilck, Jimmie Neal, Clyde Polland, Bob Sisco, Maury Schwartz, Bennett McGuire and Bill Buchan. Buchan represented The Guardsman in the absence of Joe Goodell, the editor. Eddie Cassino and Goodell were the only two absent from the group.

Propose New Control Over Student Fund

Finance Committee to Pass on All Requests For Financial Aid

Proposing the establishment of a central financial committee, action has been taken by various members of the student administration to further a means of checking on student funds and affairs.

Eight persons will be eligible for membership under the proposal as set forth by various leaders. Included in the group will be four faculty members. The two financial advisors to the student association, Dean Edwin Browne, and Coach Russ Sweet will be the four selected. The student association president, the vice-president, treasurer, and athletic manager will be the student members of the board.

If the plan is sanctioned by the board of directors and the faculty administration, all proposed requests for finances will be considered by this group and granted according to the merit of the request.

Meetings would be held every week with the treasurer acting as chairman. Any student body organization could appear at these meetings to discuss activities and funds.

To further ease the financial obligations of the college student association, the committee will ask for tentative budgets for the coming semester from each group that seeks student association funds. Only recognized associations will be given the privilege of submitting budgets and requests for financial aid. These groups will have to be represented by a large majority of card holders, and funds will probably be apportioned according to the number of student association members in the group.

Each group seeking funds will have to present a valid case for the need of such funds.

Bay Section Instructors In Conclave

Joint Sessions For Conference Make Constitutional Revisions

College Heads Talk at San Francisco Meetings

Starting Monday and continuing for a duration of three days, the bay section of the California Teachers' Association will hold their annual convention. The joint sessions will meet in both San Francisco and Oakland where they will modernize their constitution and discuss future plans for the organization.

San Francisco Junior College will be represented by President A. J. Cloud and Mr. Paul Pitman, assistant to the president, and members of the faculty. President Cloud will introduce the college into the Junior College section meeting to be held by the West Division on Wednesday at the Commerce High.

Mr. Pitman is to be the leader of round table discussion of panel problems in the meeting of the Social Studies section. Mr. Pitman is also vice-chairman of this group.

A State Law

"The state law requires an annual meeting of the California Teachers' Association, which is composed of all faculty members of the combined public school systems, or in this instance, the Bay District. This does not include private colleges, universities, the two universities of California, namely U.C.L.A. and U.C. itself, or the state colleges, who have an organization of their own," stated Dean Cloud.

Present officers of the C.T.A. Bay Section, are Elmer L. Cave, superintendent of schools at Vallejo, president; Ada V. Withrew, classroom teacher of Los Gatos elementary school in Santa Clara county, vice-president; Earl G. Gridley, manager of the placement division of the C.T.A., Berkeley, secretary-treasurer. An election of new officers is one of the principal parts of the program, and the theme of the institute "The Outlook for Education" will be carried on by the successors.

10,000 Members

At this time the Bay Section has 10,337 members. There are about 40,000 full-time teachers in the state, of which 90 per cent belong to the association. One representative to every hundred members in the bay group and one representative to 300 members are permitted respectively in the local and state councils.

Last year the meeting of the joint institutes co-operating in the San Francisco Bay region convened during the middle of December. Compared to last year's program, the speakers are fewer

Allen Steals Show At Verdi

Glen Allen proved the sensation of the Men's Club fights held Wednesday night at the Verdi Club. In a stirring battle with Charley Olberg, Allen showed plenty of form to take the decision.

Close to fifteen fights made up the card for the first semi-annual boxing tournament at the college. Under the leadership of the Men's Club, the affair should be the first in a long series of such events.

The Guardsman is pleased to announce that as usual the sports staff was covering every detail. Full results, highlight stories, and details will be found on page 3.

NOTICE

Any club or organization that wishes to submit articles on their doings and events should contact Miss Jean Coplestone, news editor of The Guardsman in Room 150 at Galileo or leave the details at The Guardsman office on the mezzanine at Extension Building.

Reporters will be assigned to the beats as soon as such information is conveyed to Miss Coplestone. Deadline for club news is Monday preceding publication.

FRESHMEN ANNOUNCE NOVEL 'FROSH SPRAWL' DANCE FOR DECEMBER 6

"Frosh Sprawl" has been the official title given to the coming freshman dance to be held in the Galileo gym on December 6.

Mr. Joseph Amori, faculty advisor to the frosh social committee, has already pleaded guilty to the charge of being the instigator of this title, and it has been agreed that punishment will be reserved until the date of the dance.

Committee Named

Besides Mr. Amori, the committee includes Helen Hall, chairman, Jack Martin, and Bob Nell. These people have been working diligently to present an entertaining program that will be worthy of the college name.

The orchestra selected has been the Continentals, smart ten-piece affair that is a credit to the judgment of the committee in charge. Various entertainers have been selected, although the talent scouts are still on the lookout for more.

The dance will be an afternoon affair, going on continuously between the hours of 1:30 and 4:30 o'clock. Another novel idea in the "Sprawl" will be the method of returning to the dance in the event that a person has to attend a class.

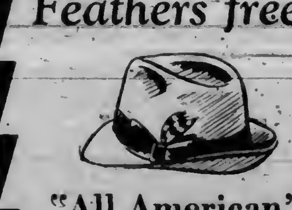
New Rain Checks

Rather than issue return checks in the old commonly accepted style, a rubber stamp will be used, and a mark impressed on the band of each paying person. This will be done to abolish the "borrowing" of return checks over a period of time.

Some of the entertainers expected to be present are Margie Silk, Jack Martin, the effervescent banjoist, and Aaron Galant. It has also been reported that a girls' trio is expected to make its debut at the affair.

Various types of dances will be held, with "tag" the most prominent. A public address system will be installed for the occasion, so that no one will have any worries about whether or not he will be able to hear the entertainers during the intermissions.

Admission to the dance will be 15 cents.



No Financial Return

The social committee has emphasized the fact that the dance is not intended to be a money-making proposition, but rather is being presented with the sole reason of bringing the members of the student body into closer harmony with each other.

Pedersen Injured

Frank Pedersen was slightly injured Wednesday afternoon in a freak accident at Galileo. Standing on the running board of a parked car, Pedersen was in the way of a runaway truck whose brakes did not hold on the Francisco Street hill. The truck smashed into the parked car, gashing the arm of Pedersen, who also twisted his ankle in the accident. Damage to the second car was slight.

Americanism, or Bigotry?

Let us turn from our own school topics this week to consider a question of national import, a question that has caused discussions in schools all over the country. Recently a small article was hidden away in one of the inner pages of a local newspaper. It stated that under a recently instituted "communism oath," teachers in the District of Columbia schools may have to refrain from teaching some phases of the geography and history of Russia.

Comptroller Gen. John R. McCarl has ruled that no teacher in the capital's schools may draw a salary unless he signs an oath that he has not taught or advocated communism, in the classroom or out of it. Mrs. Roosevelt ironically suggested that the geography teacher might have to skip over the section about Russia, merely telling the students that it is a very large country inhabited by people called Russians.

It is perfectly all right to prohibit teachers from advocating communism, but the order should end there. Why a teacher should be prohibited from discussing with the class certain phases of the communistic regime is beyond all reason. If such points in the communistic program were explained and discussed in our schools, it is reasonably safe to predict that level-headed students would readily see the superiority of a democratic system of government over communism. So, if we may add our little bit, we would suggest that the presentation of various sides of the question would prove the soundness of American Government.

A Student's Opinion

EDITOR'S NOTE: As has been stated several times, The Guardsman is open to everyone connected with the college. A conscientious student has taken advantage of this offer by handing in the following observations which he wrote in an editorial manner.

"That a great many of our students do not know why they are going to college, or don't care about deriving much from their education, was revealed recently when cinch notices were distributed.

"A certain number of cinch notices are customary in every college. The number distributed here was alarmingly impressive. The fault cannot be placed with the instructors. Sensible students gave that superstition up when they left grammar school.

"The blame lies with the students themselves. Either they are too lazy or have not yet learned how to study. We are convinced that there is nothing wrong with the top-side mechanism.

"The organizers of this college fondly hoped that their brainchild would achieve a high scholastic standard. Is that too much to expect? After all, the chief reason for going to college should be to get an academic education.

"Rigorous, all-engrossing book-digging has never been stressed, but common sense study is. College occupies the best years of our lives; these years should not be wasted."

Congratulations In Order

We feel that we should congratulate the Men's Club on the manner in which they staged the first Semi-Annual Boxing Tournament at the Verdi Club on Wednesday night. A capacity house was the reward given Maury Schwartz and his aides who put on the bouts.

It is unfortunate that the football men should have had to forfeit the majority of their bouts. If the program had been carried through as originally planned it would have been a real success.

The affair was a success financially as well as physically. The proceeds will be devoted to the smoker in January. We think that the Men's Club should be given a great deal of credit.

The College Reads—

Golden Apples

Marjorie K. Rawlings

Marjorie K. Rawlings needs no introduction for she is well known for short stories which have appeared in Scribner's, Cosmopolitan and other equally known magazines. Lately she has devoted her time to full length novels of the scrub country of Florida. The first of these novels was "South Under the Moon."

Marjorie K. Rawlings was born in Washington, D. C., and was educated in the preparatory schools near the capitol. Her degree was received from the University of Wisconsin. Immediately following her graduation, she returned to Washington, D. C., where she became associated with various newspapers during her stay in the capital. In between her various assignments with the newspapers, she spent several summers in Florida. The trips were so delightful that she decided to spend the rest of her life in Florida.

The foundations for her novels are gathered from the people of their joys, their sorrows, their loves, their hates and from the social conditions of the people who are struggling under the severe handicap of living from the soil. Crude people who in a way form the backbone of the American civilization. Men and women who have devoted their entire lives through generations just barely existing under the circumstances. Hardships encountered by these pioneers who have struggled for generations form the basis for her latest novel "Golden Apples."

A vivid picture is shown of the hardships of two young children, a boy and his sister, when their lives were interrupted time and again by conditions under which they had no control.

In this book "Golden Apples" we have the actual conditions under which such characters as Luke, Allie, Claude, Dr. Albury, Tordell and Widow Rainey and others are laboring. Luke and Allie began their life for existence as had their father and his father struggling to overcome the conditions faced by all pioneers. Luke was a very apt pupil though his education was limited to a few years in the country school near their home. He was very considerate of other people and always tried to do the thing that seemed to be the best.—Reviewed by Bill Jackson.

Incidentally, Werner asked Prof. Amori to kindly say hello to the listeners, and what do you think? Prof. Amori calmly walked up to the microphone and naively said, "Hello."

A radio adaptation of "Stars Over Broadway," the new motion picture starring James Melton and Jane Froman, will be produced on the air for the first time at the Palmolive Beauty Box Theatre broadcast on Friday, November 22, at 8:30 p. m., over KPO, with Melton and Miss Froman in their original screen roles.

New song hits created and featured in the broadcast will include "You Let Me Down," "Where Am I?" and "At Your Service, Madame." The radio presentation will be under the musical direction of Al Goodman.

The story of "Stars Over Broadway" concerns the struggle of two talented young singers to reach the heights in the show business. Jack Dempsey's midtown restaurant and other familiar Manhattan night life scenes form the setting for the plot.

Les Quailey, sports analyst, and Red Nichols' College Prom orchestra will go on the air from NBC's Radio City studios as usual.

Stewart Sterling, who as author of NBC's Eno Crime Clues has dramatized many a thrilling story, has himself met exciting adventure on the high seas, with the Coast Guard coming to the rescue. Bound for Miami in his fifty-foot motor cruiser Scotty, Skipper Sterling came to grief off Cape May, N. J., when the boat hanged across shoals. A Coast Guard cutter towed Scotty back to Baltimore. Author Sterling is now back in New York.

THE SOCIAL SWIRL

Miss Patty Wells has taken leave of absence from her college studies until after the Christmas holidays because of ill health.

Miss Barbara Root and Miss Jewell Wessenger motored to Los Angeles last week-end.

Miss Marilyn Pinner was a hostess at a party last Saturday night, November 16, at her home. Some of the guests were Beth Hillyard, Phyllis Kaiser, Jim McKann, Charlotte Zier, Jean Havens, Frank Johnson and Bill Weinstock.

A costume party was held last Friday, November 15, at the home of Pat Dotterrer.

A few of the girls who attended from the San Francisco Junior College were Misses Marie McKnight, Vera Vaughn, Charlotte Zier, Inez St. Ledger, Dorothy Roberts, Geraldine Roberts and Annabelle Tyler. The men were ably represented by Messrs. Jimmy Neal, Jack Welch, Bob Neal, Bill Kennedy, Byron Warner, Al Pallett, Bill Weinstock, Frank Johnson and Alvin Hipshman.

The Junior College students that were at the Hotel Mark Hopkins last Friday night were Misses Helene Bowman, Kay Kassidy, Pat Nell, Lois Toso and Patsy Walker. Their escorts included Budge Brookman, Benny McGuire and Pat O'Looney. The party occupied the alcove in back of the orchestra for the evening.

There's a Date Bureau, Son!

Dear Editor:

This looks like a sad week-end coming up for me. Here it is almost time for the co-ed dance and nobody has asked me yet.

The trouble is these girls are all asking fellows from outside of school. I think we have just as many good looking boys right here in school. Maybe I'm wrong, that is, I mean the girls might just be too bashful to ask us men but they could at least try.—Country Boy.

WE ALL WONDER

Dear Editor:

Am I wrong, or is it customary for members not elected to the executive council to go to the meetings and do nothing but voice their opinions? I have always been under the impression that the various representatives were there for that purpose.

Shouldn't there be a sergeant-at-arms to remove such pests?—J.C.L.

THE CO-EDS CORNER

Poetry Holds Miss Cooper's Main Interest

English Instructor Authors Volumes for Use in High Schools

Today as I walked into room 355 at Galileo, I met one of the most charming women on the faculty. Dr. Alice Cecilia Cooper is the kind of person you can listen to for hours. She has kind blue eyes and a pleasing low voice.

Dr. Cooper's chief weakness is poetry. Besides having much of her own published in many large magazines, she has edited several books of poems and other literature used extensively in high schools and junior high schools.

She is the first to have her name linked with that of the S.F.J.C. in a published book, "The March of a Nation." It is a history of the United States, told with short stories, poems and extracts from plays, and is to be a high school text. Her other high school texts are "Poems of Today," "America's Message" (prose selections), and "Adventures of English Literature."

Dr. Mercer and Mr. Sandys were among her students when she had charge of the Student Teachers at the University of Cal. Ruth and Frank Taylor were also her students and have become quite famous for their magazine articles.

Dr. Cooper is a lover of nature. She started in Stanford as a botany major and then shifted her interests to English. She received her Bachelor's, Master's, and Doctor's degrees at Stanford.

Dr. Cooper was born in Canada but considers herself a native of Los Angeles because she attended Los Angeles High School.

Service Group Holds Bridge

Elizabeth Yates Hostess To Club Members

Another dessert bridge was given by the Service Club at the home of Miss Elizabeth Yates, Thursday night, November 14. Eight girls from the school and Miss Weber, their sponsor, attended the bridge. A certain number from these eight and from those who attended the last bridge, will be selected to join the club.

Dessert bridges are rather a new idea in the way of entertainment. The refreshments are served early in the evening and those who attend are supposed to have omitted their dessert at dinner time. The novelty of the idea was really appreciated by the co-eds. They were: Elizabeth Yates, Miss Weber, Hermiae King, Helen Davis, Dorothy Fitzsimmons, Barbara Root, Marion Gardiner, Eloyas Cagle, Lillian Conkling, Jean Coplestone, Pam Spalding, Ethel Clarkson and Donna McPherson.

Form Volley Team

A volley ball club is going to be formed. All girls interested will please see Helen Lauer to be signed up for the team. If there are enough for two teams we can have regular games among ourselves. Miss Cune has kindly consented to be advisor of the group.

It Dawns at Last; Editor's Guilty Of Etiquette Queries

Dear Ed.:

Is there a new book on etiquette out that says that a formal invitation may be answered by phone, word of mouth or if the person is so inclined, not at all?
—E. Post.

Dear E. P.

Don't tell me that you don't know the college custom! Now I am surprised. R.S.V.P. (repondez s'il vous plait to those uneducated people who have not attended San Francisco's newest) has some new meaning here. Unfortunately your editor is amongst those children who are not informed . . . so concludes that those who do not answer in a reasonable amount of time are not coming and has many surprises.—Ed.

Dear Ed.:

Where do these questions answered in this column originate?
—Editor.

Dear Ed.:

Why you old two-timer! You know you write them yourself. Just as well as you know you are running out of ideas and would appreciate a few.—Ed.

CO-EDITORIAL

The "Honor System!" We hear of it every day—its slogan is on the cover of the blue books we use for tests—but what does it actually mean? When we look up the word "Honor" in the dictionary we find a definition such as "nobleness in mind" which is a good point to argue upon but not very practical for our use. If Webster or other compilers of words were to "come down to earth" with some of their terms and express honor as we hear of it, they would be doing a favor to college students, who need the word "honor" impressed in their minds.

Mid-terms have occupied most of our school time the past week, and we had been expecting them, so they were no terrible shock. We were given plenty of time to prepare for what we knew would come—and it was wholly our own fault if we went to classes unprepared. What difference should it make if a "brain-storm" does sit in the next seat, the tests are to be done individually, which incidentally, is just where honor comes in. If we are able to say truthfully after the mid-terms are over, that we didn't peek in books or over shoulders during our examinations then we are living up to the college code of honor. We are college students and we are trusted, so it is up to us to stand back of that trust and mean it when we say, "Dishonesty is not tolerated by the students of S.F.J.C."

Tea Sets Co-ed To Thoughts Of Latest Clothes

By LOUISE CORICA

Friday, November 22, is the day of the first A.W.S. tea, and careful planning of outfits to wear will help make the tea a success.

Here is your chance, girls, to don your new fall "dressier" clothes for school.

Wool and silks, simple, often tailored, but not actually sportsy in character, otherwise known as Sunday dresses, are just the right thing for this affair. Plain-colored soft woolens in subtle shades that make them a bit formal, but nothing with too many frills, make good tea dresses. A knit wool frock with a dressy appearance or a nice sweater with a good-looking skirt rank almost even with the less sports outfit.

A good silk dress to wear is one with plain lines placing its emphasis on the belt. For instance, a belt is made of metal links, or another attractive creation is of corded leather. Worn with contrasting frocks, they add a touch of distinction making a very pleasing outfit to wear.

Gym Director Sponsors New Majors Group

Physical Education Women Form Club to Further Educational Work

Members of the Women's Physical Education Majors Club announce that Miss Bertha Keller, head of the physical education department, has accepted their invitation to act as faculty advisor for the new organization.

A meeting of those girls planning to select a major or minor in any type of women's physical education activities was held Friday, November 8, at which Jeanne Anderson acted as temporary chairman of the group. A report of the progress of the constitutional committee was given by Henrietta Leonard and committee members Helen Davis, Anita McKay, Eunice Skerreth, and Gladys Popp. The group is planning to complete the draft of the constitution in the early part of next week in order to present it for official recognition. It is the aim of the club to function as a professional and social organization in the women's P.E. field, gaining all the experience possible that will help any one of the group in the line of work which she intends to follow.

Girls attending the meeting were Jeanne Anderson, Junerose Billew, Helen Davis, Dorothy Howell, Ruth Johnson, Agnes Kusumine, Henrietta Leonard, Anita McKay, Gladys Popp, Eunice Skerreth, Alice Starreth and Faustena Uribe.

Busy Co-ed Is Group Leader

Ethel Clarkson Has Varied Interests in College

Even though she appears at college on Friday morning clad in riding clothes, without a horse, you know instinctively that she can handle one. She is Miss Ethel Clarkson, president of the Women's Service Club and chairman of the Constitutional Committee of the A.W.S. She was formerly a student of Castelleja School in Palo Alto and graduated from Lowell High with the June class of '35. While at Lowell she was president of the Debating Society.

Ethel prefers very tailored clothes and her favorite colors are red and white (that's school spirit for you!). For sports she enjoys riding and swimming. Miss Clarkson has participated in riding shows at St. Francis Riding School and is in the riding class at the college.

Ethel's hobby is opera, which she is studying under a well-known teacher. She also collects programs of recitals and opera and her collection numbers approximately 250 of such souvenirs.

She blushed when asked her preference in men, and said she didn't have any (preference, that is).

Paper Still Bears Brunt Of Reporter's Search For 'Culture' and Opera Stars

By Patty de Roulf

The average heart beat is supposed to be about 65 to 75 beats per minute, but when a co-ed has appointments with Giovanni Martinelli, Ezio Pinza and Tito Schipa all in the same morning, what then, doctor? To those readers who don't know these three romantic heroes of the Metropolitan (tch, tch), Mr. Martinelli is the greatest Italian dramatic tenor in the world; Tito Schipa, the greatest lyric, and Ezio Pinza, the greatest bass. There you are, and here's the Wednesday morning date book: 10:30, Giovanni Martinelli; 11:30, Schipa; 12:00, Pinza.

Everything—Even Spaghetti

All fear leaves a nervous reporter when Martinelli sticks his curly locks out his door and smiles, "Come in!" Once seated in a plush chair in the tenor's suite, the reporter is then put into stitches of laughter by the famous singer's antics and happy disposition. In a conversation full of nonsense, we, the great artist and Miss Insignificance, discussed everything from light bulbs, yachts, apples, swimming, piano stools to telephones, and finally wound up with spaghetti.

"It isn't true," stated Mr. Martinelli, "that Italians eat lots of spaghetti. I bet you eat more spaghetti than I!" He's right.

It was then time to leave the jovial dramatic tenor and venture forth to the suite of the lyric tenor.

Schipa Gracious

Tito Schipa graciously answered the sometimes baffling questions of the Junior College student.

"I think a lyric tenor can put just as much expression in his passages as a dramatic tenor. All the operas I am singing in here this season, I like very much."

The dark-eyed singer spoke proudly of his two daughters and his native Italy. But the interview with this celebrity was brought to a close by the ringing of noon-day chimes from a nearby church.

Next was Mr. Pinza, tall, dark and handsome, who is described by society women as "the flirt."

"What do you want to know about me, eh?" questioned the basso as he squinted his eyes and puffed on a cigarette neatly cut in half.

"Why do you smoke only half a cigarette?"

"Well, I don't smoke very much and half a cigarette is all I need."

Those who have seen Pinza in concert or opera often wonder if the ruby ring he wears on the middle finger of his right hand is a lucky charm.

"No," he answered. "One day, in a window, I saw it. I liked it. I bought it. And now I wear it."

The interview was ended when the famous basso had to go to lunch.

Forty-five minutes with Pinza; thirty minutes with Tito Schipa, dream hero of a thousand feminine hearts; and a whole hour with the most human and lovable of all singers, Giovanni Martinelli.

Important Questions Bother Verdi Club Fans As Gridders Withdraw

Wee Willie Weinstock Missing in New Sensational Campus Mystery as Caine Waits

It seems that many people left Wednesday night's boxing show at the Verdi Club with just two questions bothering them. The first and most important was: "Where was Wee Willie Weinstock?" The second: "Why did Russ Sweet insist that some of his gridders stop fighting while he continued to let some of his other stars do so?"

In our own quaint way we will attempt to answer the first one as best we can. This was about the mysterious disappearance of Wee Willie. Well, Wee Willie, according to Wee Willie, was over in Oakland to bid bon voyage to an aunt taking an Eastern trip. As one contributor so aptly put it: "Maybe Willie had 'aunts' in the pants."

Opponent Disappointed at Willie's Absence

Well, about that we don't know. But we do know that Carlyle Caine was quite a disappointed looking fellow when it was found that Willie had not put in his appearance. But, ennyhoo, before we get the willies, maybe we had better change the subject and go on to the second question.

That's the one about the football business. Here we must admit we're a little stumped, too. Somehow, we can't manage to see the angle. Why were some of the gridders allowed to fight while the others were told to hang up the gloves for the night? Well, perhaps the coaching staff has its own explanations. At any rate, we hope so.

Sensational Bouts Please Fans

All of the bouts on the program were real humdingers—especially the finals. Wow! Not one of these final bouts lasted more than a round. Generally two or three punches and then the next bout was ready to go on.

The first in the final selection was Jim Fahn and Tony Tutatsuki. Tutatsuki, a fast puncher, tired quickly and Fahn's hand was raised after about 90 seconds of fighting. This battle was followed by the shortest bout of the night. Namely, the one between Gene Sullivan and Leon Callmus. Sullivan came out of his corner, hit Callmus three times, and the fight was over. Callmus just staggered to the four corners of the ring and fell through the ropes, a badly outclassed boy.

In the 135-pound class, Charley Greenlaugh tagged Emil Feree in the initial stanza, after an exciting minute of punching and counter-punching. Carlyle Caine took the welterweight title by a forfeit over Dick Brown.

Kremesec Outstanding, Emulates Joe Louis

Then another default. Glenn Allen won by forfeit over Odero Guisti—one of the big question marks of the night. In the 175-pound class, Charley Kremesec tangled with Bill Kelly. Kremesec, a grid star, looked like a veritable stone wall, as he shuffled in with an odd sort of hop that belongs to him exclusively.

From the start of the bout he was the aggressor, keeping his chin protected with right held closely to his face, and constantly jabbing with a fast overhand left that had Kelly staggering around in circles. The kill came after approximately one minute and a half of action.

Heavyweight Champ Crowned in Feature Bout

Then came the long awaited bout of the evening! John Finnegan and Jack Brigham. Finnegan, the heavier by about 20 pounds. Brigham the faster of the two. And that speed won the bout for him. Finnegan, possibly a little over-confident, came in fast shooting rights and lefts to Brigham's body. Brigham, still circling warily, took it without retaliating.

Then Finnegan came in fast to repeat, and that was his finish. As he stepped back to swing a right, Brigham stepped in, arms working back and forth with super-charged piston-like motion. In a split second Finnegan was on the floor and the battle was nearing the end.

Finnegan came back into the fight but soon went down again. He took a nine-count before getting to his feet. Slowly, a dazed look spreading over his face, he staggered back into the battle, only to go down again for the third and last time from a short series of hooks and right-crosses that was his finish. Referee Joe Amori raised Brigham's hand as heavyweight champion of the college. And he earned it.

In the preliminary bouts, the closest battle of the evening was the one between Maury Schwarz and Odero Guisti. After three rounds of intensive battling the fight was called a draw and an initial heat was added. Here Guisti's superior condition spoke for itself and the end of the bout saw the gridder's big hand raised in token of victory.

Perhaps the biggest surprise of the evening was Glenn Allen, Negro boxer, who decisioned Charley Olberg in the middleweight class. Allen, an end on the football team, showed an unexpected amount of speed and footwork to easily earn the nod.

The bouts took place before a capacity crowd, and both Joe Amori, faculty advisor and referee, and Maury Schwarz, president of the Men's Association, expressed immense satisfaction at the unexpected turnout.

Rifle, Pistol Group Elects New Officers

President Cloud Honored By Club with Membership in Organization

At the monthly meeting of the Pistol and Rifle Club, held on Tuesday, November 5, President A. J. Cloud, Mr. Paul Pitman, and Colonel Hardy of the 250th Coast Artillery, California National Guard, were elected honorary members.

Mr. Hughes and Mr. Stough were recognized as faculty advisors, and 41 men and women of the college were duly sworn in as charter members.

An election of officers was held, with the following results: President, T. Gordon Solomon; vice-president, Diana Duncan; secretary, Ethel Jones; treasurer, Bradley Schwarz; range officer, William Hancock.

The club is now a recognized organization for the increase of interest in rifle and pistol marksmanship and the handling of arms. The club is also a member of the National Rifle Association.

In joining the association they are eligible to participation in the national match to be held at Camp Perry. Preliminary matches are being prepared to offer the members competitive practice.

Fall Practice Lags In Track

Rivals Steal March on Rams, Practice Early

Track enthusiasts at the Junior College are wondering just when or "if" the fall track season is going to be held this year.

If practice is called now the team will still be months behind the other Jaysees in practice and this factor alone is bound to prove a definite handicap in developing the raw material that appears in all new schools.

San Mateo Junior College, potential conference champions, have been practicing for at least two months and have already engaged in several track meets. How the team is going to defeat them would be a definite problem under any circumstances. How the team is going to defeat them without practice makes the problem take on a very serious aspect. The possibilities for the development of next year's stars depend to a great extent on what can be accomplished in the fall season and the new Jaysee will surely need a few stars next year.

Disaster Strikes

Sub Question

When we get down to facts and stop padding stories we find that our athletic teams, generally speaking, have had a rather disastrous season. When we say "athletic teams" we refer chiefly, of course, to football and soccer. Especially the latter.

The poor old soccerites just took it and took it. Practically every team they met knocked them over. But somehow we don't think that Coach Bass and his players will ever regret those defeats—for it's banded that team together. Made out of them a solid wedge—yes, almost a clan.

Coach Bass knows well the old theme: "Practice makes perfect." So do the players on the squad—everyone of them. And they have the spirit to go out there and practice. They'll keep on practicing—and they're bound to click. One season is almost over. But—wait until the next one begins. We think our hunch will work out right.

One fellow tells us that the reason we don't have a crew here is because nobody in the J.C. knows anything about coaching it. Horsefeathers!

If worse came to worse we could drag Lee Elsan out to the bay about four times a week and in a couple of years he'd be a real "sea dog" maybe.

Just a word of acknowledgment to three of the men who have been quietly running social and sports events from behind the scenes all year. Namely, Paul Pitman, Edwin Browne, and Joseph Amori.

And now the tennis team is getting warmed up! Tentative basketball schedules are being formulated. Lee Elsan is beginning to think in terms of balls and strikes. Swimming teams will soon be under way. And football is going out . . . just one more game . . . then it's all over but the shouting.

There should have been two more games, but—well, why go into details? A champion can do no wrong.

Jimmy Neil, president of the tennis club, tells us that tentative games are being scheduled with the University of San Francisco, San Mateo J.C., and a few other bay area colleges.

All right, Jim; now let's see what you can do with the team.

The rumor is going around that Jack Gaddy's fighters battle along the John L. Sullivan lines. That is, both arms shoved rigidly outward, bent at the elbow, and a terrific scowl on the "killer's" face as he comes out to spill blood.

We don't know how correct these rumors are, but John L. was a champ. Maybe these boys are potential ones.

With all due apologies to Tom Laird, we'd like to run this weekly short story:

"The only difference between boxing and wrestling is that in boxing you do your slugging with gloves on."—Maury Schwarz.

It seems that a few of the members of the football coaching staff were a little burnt about the letter in the November 1 issue of The Guardsman in which the author claimed that the coaches weren't making enough substitutions.

Whether or not that was the cause of all the subs in the Cal. Aggies game, we don't know. But we do know that there was plenty of substituting in the game, although even that didn't make much difference. The game was lost, but only by one point.

WOMEN'S SPORTS

Women enrolled in J.C. tennis classes will have the opportunity to show their ability in the inter-class doubles tournament, which is starting under way early next week. Any girl interested in participating in this elimination tourney for advanced and intermediate players is requested to sign up in the Galileo girls' gymnasium, stating her name and telephone number, and also the name and telephone number of the girl with whom she wishes to play. It is expected that the results of this tournament will bring some unknown tennis stars from under cover.

Because Ol' Jack Frost is making his annual visit, women's swimming classes are being discontinued for the remainder of the semester. In order to receive W.A.A. course credit every woman previously enrolled in one of the swimming classes may have a choice of either returning to her physical education class at Galileo, or joining the 1:00 o'clock tennis class at the lower Funston courts on Thursdays.

Jaysee Tennis Squad Chosen; Meet Champs

First San Francisco Tennis Team to Battle U.S.F. in First Match

San Francisco J. C. has its first tennis team! This was revealed recently when Jim Neal, president of the Tennis Club, announced the following persons as members of the men's final team: Bill Kennedy, Milton Durfee, Mel Hodes, George Novocoff, Bill Pavloff, and Bob Wiadhorst.

These men were chosen because of the superior type of play which they have been steadily showing.

Tentative matches have been scheduled with teams from San Mateo and the University of San Francisco. The Mateans, coached by "Sy" Bashor, were the conference champions last year, and a good battle should result when these two aggregations clash.

The women's tennis team will be an entirely different affair, the two groups having been separated because of the large group of candidates originally out for the team.

The match with the University of San Francisco will probably be the first one on the racqueteers' schedules, and the coaches should be able to get a fairly good idea as to the potentialities of the team during this encounter.

Card Holders Get Low Rate

Fairmont Plunge Gives New Price Schedule

A special feature exclusively to Associated Student card holders of San Francisco Junior College has been announced by the Fairmont Hotel relative to price rates for the use of their swimming facilities.

Reduced rates of 30 cents for the afternoon use of the Terrace Plunge, and 40 cents for night swimming, are the latest offer to the J.C. students. This attractive offer is open to the students every day of the week, Sundays and holidays included.

It is hoped that the card-holders in the student body will take advantage of this and make use of the plunge whenever the occasion arises.

Coach Faced With Task Of Moulding Basketball Squad

Large Turnout Greets Conlan as Plans For Conference Championship Get Under Way

"They're all unknowns, so we haven't much way of telling just how strong we really are," stated Louis "Dutch" Conlan, newly appointed coach of the San Francisco J.C. basketball team.

Conlan went on to express his surprise at the overwhelming turnout of candidates for the squad. Already approximately 45 players have become official candidates for the team, and still more are expected.

List Some of Large Sign-up

Some of the more prominent of those already signed up are: Wallace Sharp, Felix Anido, Wayne Wilsanen, Warren Egan, Carlyle Caine, George McGuire, Robert Lee, Wayne Gaskin, Paul Green, Tom Connolly, Ralph Hillsman, Bob Lowans, Bill Reichert, Elbert Oppio, Paul Rippon, Tracy Slattery, Gerald Kennedy, Jack Butler, Ed McSweeney, Bill Kennedy, Lawrence Wilgus, Ed Talavera, Ernie Loustalot, and Don Young.

Of this group, three hail from outside of the city, namely, Wayne Gaskin, from McClymonds High in Oakland; Bob Lowans from Fremont High, also in Oakland, and Don Young, from University High in Berkeley.

Enters Conference at Season Start

The team has definitely decided to enter the J.C. Conference at the start of the season. However, besides the league games, tentative schedules are being drawn up naming the U.S.F. frosh, the University of California frosh, the San Francisco State College, the St. Mary's frosh and the University of Santa Clara frosh.

Other plans for schedules are rapidly being consummated, and the team will be fast getting under way. Coach Conlan also stated that a lightweight team under his supervision was soon to be formed, with Tom Wilson as the probable coach. This aggregation will average about a 145-pound weight, and candidates are asked to see either Mr. Conlan or Mr. Wilson as soon as possible.

Daily Workouts Are Programmed for Varsity

The varsity squad is now taking daily workouts in the gym in preparation for the coming season. At present the athletic department is buying uniforms, and the first "cut" on the team is to be expected soon.

Here again Coach Conlan suggested that any of the lighter men who fail to make the varsity squad should turn out for the "45's." The first match, which will probably be with the University of San Francisco frosh, is expected to be scheduled soon.

For some time yet the coach will have to use various means of experimenting to find out just which of the players on the team will be the most valuable to keep, and which should be dropped.

Most of the players on the squad hail from San Francisco high schools, although many of them were not on their prep school varsity teams. Conlan, formerly a coach at Commerce High, will know the value of one or two of the players who hail from that institution. The rest will be just mysteries.

Gridmen To End Season Next Week

Sacramento Battle Is Rated Toss-up in Opinion of Writer

Still Hoping Tha[t] Team Will Pick a Winner

By George Dunne

With prospects of turning i[n] their first victory over a confe[r]ence team as the incentive, gri[d]ders of San Francisco Junior Co[l]lege will spend the first three day[s] of next week's vacation polishin[g] up their offense for the Big Gam[e] with Sacramento Jaysee on Thank[s]giving Day.

Using the California Aggies as basis of comparison, one comes [to] the conclusion that the teams a[re] evenly matched. San Francis[co] dropped a close 7-6 decision to t[he] Davis eleven while Sacramento ma[n]aged to fight them to a 7-7 tie.

Sacramento Has Power Attack

Sacramento undoubtedly will off[er] a power attack featuring off-tack[le] smashes by Littlefield and Alle[n]. When occasion demands they c[an] take to the air with extreme effe[c]tiveness. Francis Wai, new-fou[nd] passing threat, is sure to be in the aiming at the Rams' greatest wea[k]ness—passes.

We are confident that San Fra[n]cisco, paced by that sensational ne[w] backfield discovery, Forrest Morriso[n] will hang up its first victory over [a] conference team this year. Knowi[ng] the eccentricities of the Rams, it['s] difficult to exactly predict the resu[lt] but we can say "by at least [t]wo points."

On the basis of comparati[ve] scores, such a prediction would see[m] illogical, but this writer watched t[he] Rams demonstrate an irresistible [at]tack in the closing minutes of t[he] last game, showing the Cal. Agg[ies] all over the field, and feels that th[ey] are about to really play the typ[e of] game they can.

Find New Offensive Plays

The California Aggie game fou[nd] the Rams opening up with a n[ew] wide variety of tricky reverses, l[at]erals and forward passes that rea[lly] worked. Playing a wide-open ga[me] the Rams are liable to run wild a[nd] have a chance of running up at le[ast] two touchdowns.

A score of over 13 points would [be] especially pleasing to Coach R[uss] Sweet's men as the Bulldogs from S[an] Mateo won 13-0 over Sacramen[to] two weeks ago.

Chances of a game with the Bu[ll]dogs are unlikely to say the lea[st] but a score of San Francisco 19, S[ac]ramento 0, would be one way [of] practically forcing the issue.

NOTICE

There will be a regular meeti[ng] of the staff of The Guardsman [in] Room 203 tomorrow at 1:30. I[m]portant questions as to work n[ext] semester will be discussed.

November 22—

Suggestion! As our team is not California's schedule and cannot rminate their colorful season in the se Bowl, it seems as if they are ing the next best thing—celebrat-g their victories in the Rose Room. b Eltringham (he says it was a nging door) is as conspicuous en dancing with Rose Luggin to e sophisticated music of Paul Pen-rvis as he is on the football field.

ll Lavender, ys Bud

Getting back to Bud Mayer's pur-G (pardon me, I mean lavender) rt; I wonder if that is the only e worn by his dad. From all indi-tions, Rita Ryan doesn't seem to nd the color. Maybe she's color nd.

Johnny Montez, that polite south-n lad, seems to be enjoying our lifornia hospitality. Ruth Johnson, her sophisticated black crepe for-l, seems to be doing all right as r as showing Johnny the town is ncerned. Johnny says that Paul ndarvis is almost as good as the ys down home in Texas.

John O'Looney is as conspicuous figure as the Rhythm Boys. From indications, he has taken a lease a table to the right of the or-estra. The attractive blues singer ist disagree with his eyesight. Oh, e is he!

Charlie "Artist" March, who seems prefer the Latin-American type, is seen with Florice de Maestri—arlie claims that Florice is one tin who is not from Manhattan.

A prominent double-dating combi-tion are Jack "I'll take Vanilla" rron and a very attractive off-mpus date, Edna Pinnila. Helene aloney in white lace, and Dick eilley as usual lend their presence complete the lively foursome.

Really, diary, we are quite bub-ing over with more news about the lace. Leo Manning was the first arrive with an off-campus date. e fellows are all wondering at ich date bureau his application is d. Heleno Bowman had a perfect anford ——— as did Betty ay. Earl Wilms was with his steady m San Mateo—seems as if they go different schools together. Paul chtence had a swell new date onder how he does it.

diron Hero ek and Mild

Mal Fiese, that great St. Mary's ker, may have run wild against ta Clara but Sembra Stevens cer-nly had him well in tow at the lace last Sunday night.

By the way, did you ever hear one sing as well as Eddie Scope? he soon will be on his way to llywood I think that we should ar him sing while the opportunity presents itself. Don't you?

Did we have a perfect time tea ncing at the Palace last Saturday! st loads and loads of people from . were there. Rita Ryan and Mar-la O'Conner, Agnes Glover and rbara Swanton were among those o did their part in representing women of the school. Everyone nt for Eddie Scope's interpretation "I'm in the Mood for Love." Do u think he was referring to any-e in particular?

Say, that reminds me: Will Irene rch's steady be frustrated when learns that there will be no tea ncing Saturday! From all indica-ns this will be quite disappointing ce football players must do their ious dancing in the afternoon. n't you glad that Big Game day the only Saturday afternoon that re is no dancing? I am.

Well diary, I'll be seeing you next ek and tell you who took who and at they wore. Bye now—I'll be ing you in the Rose Room.—Advt.

Time Reports Due To N.Y.A. Administrator

First Pay Checks Given To College Workers on November 18

BULLETIN

Time reports for November N.Y.A. work must be turned in to Miss Edith Pence, administrator, by today. This statement was released by Miss Pence to a Guardsman reporter late yesterday. The shortening of the time for work reports is due to the Thanksgiving vacation week and the desire to have the time slips to the N.Y.A. on schedule.

Work for this month should end today, according to Miss Pence. However, the slips should be dated for the 28th, to conform with the N.Y.A. regulations.

Johnny and Mary are in funds again. First checks of the National Youth Administration were given out through Miss Edith Pence on Monday, November 18. The pay slips were the first received by the workers and were for work completed during the month of September. Checks for October are being prepared by the local office of the N.Y.A.

Johnny and Mary were sporting new shoes and a new book or two. The biggest portion of the checks probably went to pay off some of the debt incurred by Johnny and Mary in coming to school.

Although no definite time has been scheduled, checks for the October period are expected to arrive in the near future. These will not be as large as the first payments, due to the necessary cut in the appropriation received by the college.

Reclaim Land

They are reclaiming the "Bad Lands" near the Scripps Institution of Oceanography at La Jolla, in order to prevent their destruction by erosion. The work, a federal WPA project, calls for the installation of concrete pipe lines, ditch excavation and the building of bulkheads and dam barriers.

Plan Fund Drive

BERKELEY.—The Tavernetti Memorial Loan Fund, to provide short-term loans for needy students of the College of Agriculture, is planned by Alpha Zeta, agricultural honor society at the University of California. Thomas Dawson Pomeroy, of Sunnyvale, senior student in the College of Agriculture, is in charge of the plans.

New Library Cards Ready at College

"College students will not have to call for their new library cards at the public library," stated Miss Edith Pence. "They will be delivered to me here at school and I will give them to the new subscribers."

Under the library drive, now under way, all the students have to do is fill out the application slips. Special attention is being given to college students.

The drive is still on and these slips may be obtained from Miss Pence.

Participate in Program

Eight S.F.J.C. girls participated in a dance program Thursday evening, November 14, given for American Education Week, which was carried out in all San Francisco public schools. The girls presented a novel modernization of a popular nineteenth century dance, the Virginia Reel. Dressed to suit the occasion, eight pairs of tripping feet tapped the Virginia Reel in a modern and pleasing manner, witnessed by a large number of interested parents of San Francisco school children.

The League has again asked permission to broadcast the 12-episode series, this time over the Milwaukee Journal's short wave station W9XAZ.

The first museum of modern American music, to be established at Williams College, Williamstown, Mass., has been endowed by Paul Whiteman, America's foremost orchestra leader and interpreter of music in the modern idiom. In an effort to supply talented youth with a central institution devoted to the art of arranging, radio broadcasting, composing and playing jazz, Whiteman has turned over to the New England college a comprehensive collection of scripts, arrangements, orchestrations, records and instruments illustrative of the development of American music.

A condition of the gift is that it shall be of access without charge to every qualified person interested in the study of American music—from the Negro's combining form of English ballad and jungle rhythm, through the eras of ragtime, foxtrot and "hot brass," to the blue notes and suavity of today's dance tunes.

Whiteman, in the belief that modern American music will become increasingly allied with electricity, has also included in the collection many of the finely wrought orchestrations for radio presentation which have been heard over National Broadcasting Company networks on his Thursday night Music Hall broadcasts.

A concert by the Whiteman orchestra, with special contributions by the Williams Glee Club, will be given in February or March to raise funds for a new wing to the Lawrence Art Museum at Williams. The wing will house the collection.

Staff Attends Berkeley Meet

California Host to Bay Area Journalism Students

San Francisco Junior College was represented at the recent Bay Region Press Day held at the University of California. The two hundred attendants represented most of the junior colleges and high schools in this territory.

An interesting program of talks and round-table discussions was given by the officials of the Bureau of Publications. At U.C. a large, modern building, known as Eshelman Hall, is devoted to all student publications, including the Daily Californian, the Blue and Gold, the Pelican, and press notices from the university.

Phil Ray, associate sports editor of the Oakland Tribune, gave a not too inspiring talk on the life of an average reporter. Luncheon was served in the famed International House. After luncheon Charles Raymond, journalism instructor at U.C., addressed the group. Free admission to the U.C.-Pacific game climaxed the day's activities. S.F.J.C. was represented by Jean Coplestone, news editor; Elizabeth Yates, feature writer; Bill Buchan, managing editor, and J. O. Goodell, editor-in-chief.

Colleges Get Rate at Dream Picture

The Geary Theater, where "A Midsummer Night's Dream" is now playing, has announced that during the run of this feature, student rates will prevail at the matinees. The gallery seats which sell for 55 cents will remain at that price. But, to the students giving the proper identification (student body or registration card), the balcony seats which regularly sell for $1.10 will be sold for 55 cents. These reduced rate seats CAN NOT be purchased in advance. They must be bought after 1:30 p.m. for the same day's matinee. The Geary has also announced that special rates will be given to groups or classes.

High School Record Made On Dexigraph

Under the direction of Mr. Mohr, the registrar's office is busy making photostatic copies of records of all high school students who have signified a desire to enter the college next semester. The machine used for this method is called a Dexigraph, and simply takes pictures of the record, thereby reducing the record's size to about half. The paper used is stiff black-print paper, and the writing is reprinted as white.

These records are very convenient, easy to keep, and are filed away permanently. Though this machine is not used widely because of its expense, it is employed in several other institutions, including State College and Stanford. These colleges make reprints of students' report cards.

"This method of copying records," said Miss Mary Jane Leanard, assistant to the registrar, "saves much time, and, above all, it eliminates opportunity for error."

Short Limbs No Longer A Handicap, Say Doctors

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 19.—If a child is born with one short leg or if it later becomes shortened as a result of disease or fracture, modern surgery can correct the fault by cutting and lengthening the bones. Shortened legs can be extended as much as five inches when necessary.

This is stated in a report made to the twenty-fifth annual clinical congress of the American College of Surgeons, just concluded here, by Dr. LeRoy C. Abbott, Dr. Frederick C. Bost and Dr. Frank West of the University of California Medical School. Motion pictures detailing the operation were shown at one of the clinics of the Congress.

In the report Dr. Abbott stated that in the ten years that have elapsed since he developed this technique of lengthening leg bones, some seventy-five individuals, chiefly children, have been given relief. The purpose of the report was to point out refinements in the technique that have been developed since Dr. Abbott first performed the operation in St. Louis ten years ago.

A maximum lengthening of two inches in the bones below, and three inches in those above the knee, or a total of five inches for the leg, has been achieved in these operations, Dr. Abbott said. The operation has been mastered by a number of surgeons, and is now being performed at orthopedic clinics throughout the country.

Clarence Brown Finishes "Ah, Wilderness"

Clarence Brown, ace director at M.G.M., has finished Eugene O'Neill's "Ah, Wilderness." After the previews it will go back to the cutting room for a final checkup. Strange as it may seem, critics are saying that Eric Linden will steal the picture from two veteran actors, Lionel Barrymore and Wallace Beery. Their recommendations were made after seeing the first preview. Incidentally, this will be one of those few pictures in which Wallace Beery will be guilty of overacting. The biggest portion of his role as the perennial spouse, Uncle Sid, will probably find its way to the floor of the cutting room.

"The Bride Comes Home," Rates Praise of Critics

Claudette Colbert has another "natural" part in her latest Paramount picture, "The Bride Comes Home." Supported by two natural actors in Robert Young and Fred MacMurray the star has another role that shows her as one of the best comediennes in Hollywood. Wesley Ruggles is directing this one. If Fred MacMurray can turn in a performance such as he put across in "Hands Across the Table" the picture should rate close to four stars.

Victor McLaglen Given Twentieth-Fox Contract

For his fine work in R.K.O.'s "Informer," Victor McLaglen was recently signed to a new contract by Darryl Zanuck of Twentieth Century-Fox Productions. The star will be featured with Freddie Bartholomew in "Professional Soldier," under Tay Garnett.

"The Informer," declared by critics to be one of the finest films of the year, failed to profit to any great extent at the box offices in the nation.

Solitary Beam of Light Makes Dream Scene Uncanny

Director Henry Hathaway has barrowed from the Russian style in lighting the prison scene in "Peter Ibbetson." One solitary beam of light on the straw pallet of Gary Cooper is all the illumination Hathaway gave to this "dream" scene, as it has been called. To those watching, the pantomime acting and the mesmeric effect of the scene held the bystanders spellbound.

There or Thereabouts

We give our vote to Paramount for producing some mighty interesting shorts. It is a wonder that more aren't included on these bills that are shown by the theaters. Particularly good are those Grantland Rice Sportlights. Not everyday sports shots, but interesting sidelights of sports . . . Gene Raymond will play the lead in the R.K.O. remake of Seven Keys to Baldpate. . . . C. B. DeMille is looking for a lead to play Delilah. . . . she must be a beautiful brute . . . C. Aubrey Smith gets the first role cast in Little Lord Fauntleroy; Jan Kiepura starts work on Give Us This Night for Paramount. . . . That company has seven units either on, or about to leave for location assignments . . . The longest location trip is that of the DeMille unit making the life of Buffalo Bill. . . . They go to Alberta, Canada.

They will see that the guests have hotel accommodations and aid in any sight-seeing the visitors may wish to do.

Conflicting dates of other club meetings have made it imperative that the Engineers Club change their meeting to bi-monthly affairs.

CALL JOURNALISM CONVENTION

Vote Hinges On Sanction Of Charter

Ballots Held Up By Work on Drafts of Association Constitution

Group Backs Maury Schwarz in Race for President

By WILLIAM BUCHAN
Managing Editor, The Guardsman

Holding plans for student association elections in abeyance until the permanent constitution is presented to the Associated Students, Dean Edwin Browne and student leaders declared that such elections will be scheduled before the semester ends. This decision was given to a Guardsman reporter late yesterday.

Start Election Thought

With the semester drawing to a close, students are beginning to think of student administration posts. This term the biggest majority of the responsible positions in the student body have been filled by members of the low freshman class.

Two political factions will probably spring up in the college, according to those close to the situation. One will probably base its campaign on the need for experience in student affairs. The probable candidate for the presidency from this group will be Maury Schwarz, head of the Men's Club. Schwarz has been the leader in the attempts to bring the Men's Club to the fore. So far, that organization has staged one of the most successful events of the term, the first Ring Tournament of the Junior College. They plan another show for Tuesday night.

Weinstock a Candidate

One of the surprise candidates for the post of president will be William Weinstock. "Wee Willie" as he has been called, made known his ambitions in an interview to a Guardsman reporter.

Jimmy Neal, vice-president this semester, will be another likely candidate for president. Neal has been the head of the social committee and has staged several dances this term.

Interest in the support of the athletes of the college has been aroused by the candidacy of Schwarz. So far they have not indicated how their faction will vote.

Discard Plan On Marina Use

The controversy over suggested use of Marina Junior High School for temporary junior college purposes was settled last week following a Board of Education meeting in which school commissioners opposed the suggestion and Superintendent Edwin A. Lee withdrew it.

Protests by Marina district residents was made at a special board meeting and the plan discarded.

No attempt will be made to formulate a new plan for housing the junior college temporarily until after December 23, date of a public hearing at which permanent sites for the junior college will be considered.

Important Notice

The next edition of The Guardsman will carry important news about: Examination schedule, regular class schedule for the spring term, advisory schedule, and date of entrance examinations for new students, along with other important Administrative notices.

Second Men's Club Bouts Have Boxers In 'I'll Win' Moods

Finnegan, Brigham, Cain, Kurtz, Confident of Taking Decisions; Mat Artists Added to Program

By TIM GUINEY

Want to see Jack Brigham and John Finnegan tangle again? Or Maury Schwarz and "Killer" Kremesec trading lefts and rights? Or, better still, Bob Kurtz and Red Brickley grappling, with the winner taking on Tom Mauer for the college heavyweight wrestling crown? Well, all of these events and plenty more will take place next Tuesday night at the Verdi Club, in the second great show to be sponsored by the Men's Association of San Francisco Junior College.

There will be even better competition this time than in the previous encounter. The majority of the losers in the first set of bouts seem to feel that things will turn out differently this time. Everyone is confident of speedy victories. Too bad everyone can't win.

Different Story

To quote John Finnegan, who suffered a K. O. at the hands of Jack Brigham in their first encounter, "It will be a different story this time." And Brigham says, "I'll stop him again." There, now. What are you going to do in a case like that?

SPORTS—K.G.G.C.—MONDAY NIGHT

Maury Schwarz, president of the Men's Association, will be the guest of Mort Werner on Monday Night's Open House, K.G.G.C. at 10 o'clock.

Maury will be interviewed on the subject of the gala boxing and wrestling show to be held Tuesday night at the Verdi Club.

Glenn Allen decisioned Charley Olberg in their previous battle. Says Allen: "I'll repeat." Says Olberg: "I've changed my attack and I don't think I can miss."

I'll Take Him—Schwarz

The light-heavyweight bouts will feature two well-known persons, namely, Maury Schwarz and Charley Kremesec. Schwarz, as always, speaks for himself: "I'll outbox him." And Kremesec: "It looks like another kayoe to me."

Carlyle Caine looked disappointed when informed that Wee Willie probably wouldn't be there, but brightened up considerably when he found he was to trade punches with Chester Cade, and drooled: "Aha! My chance has finally arrived." Cade

Stock Leader Accents Need Of Education

Cameron Beck, Institute Head, Talks on Requirements of Business

Mr. Cameron Beck, director of the New York Stock Exchange Institute, was introduced to the students yesterday by President Cloud at the first college assembly. Mr. Beck is in direct charge of the Institute's young personnel, consisting of two thousand high school graduates in the United States. Having visited every state in the Union except two, Mr. Beck speaks to high school and junior college students on the character and educational requirements of young people in business.

Known Here

President Cloud and Mr. Pitman have been friends of long standing with Mr. Beck. Mr. Pitman first met him when he was in radio work. Cancelling a vacation trip, some years ago, Beck came to San Francisco to give his first San Francisco talk on the radio. He did this for the youth that were listening in and whom he is vitally interested.

The following year, Beck returned once more, and stayed for a time visiting as many as four high schools a day in one month. He spoke before small and large assemblies alike.

Institute Speaker

This year Mr. Beck came out here for the teachers' institute where he

Call Guardsman Staff Meeting for Today

A meeting of the entire staff of The Guardsman is scheduled for Room 203 at 1:30 today. Reporters on all staffs, news, sports and woman's, must attend.

SERVICE CLUBS COMBINE TO WELCOME FRESHMEN

In order to welcome the new students for next semester, plans are now under way for a Freshman Reception, sponsored by the Women's Service Society and the Skull and Blades, the men's service society.

Plans include a two hour entertainment in the Galileo auditorium followed by a dance in the gymnasium. Setting for the entertainment will be a cabaret idea. A fast moving floor show will introduce many popular and talented students of the college.

Eight representatives from both societies are scouring the campus for a typical night club master of ceremonies. They are also writing the skits and arranging the program. The co-chairmen of the committee are Miss Ethel Clarkson, president of the Women's Society, and Alvin Hipshman, Skull and Blades president. They are assisted by Mrs. Jean Coplestone, Miss Helen Hall and Miss Bernalyn Seymour, Alvin Koblik, and Benny McGuire.

Members of both clubs will be hosts and hostesses at the dance and will introduce freshmen to other members of their class. No other upper semester students will be admitted to this affair.

Any student wishing to try out for parts in the cabaret scene are asked to see either Miss Clarkson or Alvin Hipshman as soon as possible. At the time the Guardsman went to press, the results for the tryouts held for the M. C. were not made public.

Adopt Plan To Control New Budget

Finance Committee Given Approval of Board of Directors

Grant Membership to Service Clubs of College

—BULLETIN—

All budget requests from clubs and organizations must be made to Treasurer Alvin Koblick before January 5. The amounts granted will be appraised on a basis of representation by student association card and by the apparent need for the funds.

Steps towards a better control over student finances were taken when the Board of Directors adopted the proposed finance committee. The plan, submitted by Alvin Koblick, will provide a committee consisting of the student association leaders and four faculty members.

All requests for funds will be referred to this body and action on the requests will be made according to the recommendations of the committee. Emergency expenditures not to exceed five dollars will be granted by the approval of a committee composed of two faculty advisors, the treasurer, and one student member.

The action was taken as another step in the plan to place the student association on a working basis. The campaign was started by The Guardsman to start active meetings of the Ex-Council or Board of Directors.

Service clubs at San Francisco were given representation by the action of the Board in allowing them a place on that organization. The clubs include such groups as the Skull and Blades, men's service club, and the Women's Service Club.

N.Y.A. Returns To Full Time

Expect November's Checks Before Holidays

N. Y. A. workers will return to the full amount of $15 for 38 hours work beginning the month of December, Miss Pence stated yesterday. For the past three months the students doing this work have been receiving half this amount. About $2600 will be given out in December and a little over that amount was paid in the two months of September and October.

Time reports for November were turned in last week and Miss Pence hopes to distribute the checks for the work before the Christmas holidays. The December period closes on the twenty-eighth. However, for students whose work cannot be carried on during the Christmas vacation, their hours must be completed by the twentieth of this month.

Time reports for December must be turned in to Miss Pence on January 6. Applications for positions under the N. Y. A. for next term may be filed early in January.

Skull and Blades Sell San Francisco Stickers

Emblematic stickers will soon grace the windshields and binders of the students of San Francisco Junior College. Bids are being asked on the printing of the stickers designed by Arthur Fazio. They will be sold through the Skull and Blades Society.

NEWSMEN SPEAK AT ROUNDTABLES

First North State Confab of Press Representatives of Colleges

When delegates from a majority of the larger junior colleges meet in San Francisco tomorrow for the Northern California Junior College Press Convention, it will be the first meeting of such a group from the Northern California colleges.

Plans call for the start of a permanent north state press organization. Conventions for the discussion of problems confronting the junior college editors and staffs will be discussed at such conclaves.

Last-Minute Convention News

Stub Stollery, Call - Bulletin sports writer, will speak at the sports session. The time is 11:20 to 12:10.

A special room for women delegates staying for the dinner-dance and not staying over night will be provided. Information can be had at the registration desk.

Formerly the journalists met at state conventions and were part of the California Junior College Press Association. Since the cost of holding conventions alternately in the north and south was deemed too much for individual delegations, the association was disbanded.

At the present time junior colleges in Southern California are members in a group that is located in the territory south of the Tehachapi.

Colleges expected at the convention include San Mateo, Marin, Santa Rosa, Modesto, Hollister, Salinas, Taft, and Sacramento.

Sophomores Have Very Secret Plans

Before the Christmas holidays begin, the sophomore class is to stage a big performance in the Galileo auditorium in the form of Soph Vovil.

Miss Helene Bowman, recording secretary of the student body, said the admission will be 10 cents with a student body card and 15 cents to those without cards.

New Masthead Nears Completion by Art Staff

With the next issue, The Guardsman will appear in new garb. Work has been completed on the new masthead and it will replace the present one in future issues. The design was done by Artist Centanni and the work of preparation was directed by Mr. Richard Allman of the art department.

Debate Team Loses Match To S. F. State

Close Decision Goes Against Hancock and Ross in First Appearance

The Junior College Varsity Debate Squad were guests of Delta Sigma, lower division forensics society of San Francisco State College, last Wednesday evening. The question debated was, Resolved: "That the decisions of the Supreme Court of the United States on the constitutionality of legislation should be subject to approval by three-fourths vote of Congress." Despite the inclemency of the weather, an interested group greeted the contestants. Mr. E. W. Bischoff, manager of debate for State, was chairman of the contest.

The college team, composed of Miss Mildred Ross and Mr. William Hancock, supported the negative case, while the affirmative was upheld by Messrs. William Rose and Burtram Johnson. The debate was conducted in formal style with the usual constructive speeches and rebuttals for each speaker.

Affirmative Strong

In the opinion of the judge, Mr. David Barker, member of the Mission High School faculty, the affirmative team was slightly stronger, in evidence and more vivid and forceful in stating their ideas. With these advantages, plus the fact that Mr. William Rose was adjudged the best speaker of the evening, the State team was awarded the decision in what was, in the opinion of the audience, a closely contested debate.

In his decision, Judge Barker was impressed by the fact that the college team was much more resourceful and more extemporaneous in answering the arguments of the affirmative. To Miss Mildred Ross he awarded the distinction of being the second best speaker. Miss Ross was most fluent and confident in her refutation of the affirmative's case, and her delivery and English style, clearness and vividness, were commended by Mr. Kenneth M. King, director of forensics for the State College.

Compliments Team

Mr. Lloyd D. Luckmann, instructor of debate, offered the highest compliments to his team for their generous work and successful efforts in this, the first intercollegiate debate for San Francisco Junior College.

Prominent Speakers Talk at Civic Auditorium Meet

Newspaper problems, discussed by prominent bay journalists, and followed by roundtable discussions of immediate junior college questions will comprise the largest part of the Northern California Press Convention to be held tomorrow in the Civic Auditorium with the local college acting as host.

J. O. Goodell, editor of The Guardsman, will open the convention with a few words of welcome at the general assembly. Dr. Eugenie Leonard, vice-president of the college, on behalf of the faculty will greet the visitors.

Publicity Man Speaks

After the assembly, four roundtable sessions will be held. Publicity section, with Bob Robb, prominent San Francisco publicity man, as guest speaker, will run concurrently with the general convention business section, with Goodell as session chairman.

Following these meetings a sport section and a news section will be held. At the time The Guardsman went to press, the speakers had not been decided upon.

Luncheon will be served to the entire convention at the Maison-Paul Grill. The speaker for the luncheon will be a prominent radio reporter, giving the delegates radio reporting side of the news.

Starting at 1:45 and continuing to 3:05, four more sessions of roundtable discussions will be held. Miss Ethel Bogardus, of the San Francisco News, will conduct an informal discussion of women's problems in news work. At the same time Charles Alexander will discuss the makeup of a newspaper.

The last two sessions will be devoted to features and problems of an editor. Ernest Lenn of the San Francisco News will talk on "News Features and Construction."

The editorial section speaker has not yet been determined.

Tours to Papers

During the remainder of the afternoon, tours will be conducted through the leading metropolitan newspapers, National Broadcasting studios, and other points of interest in the city. The service clubs of the college will act as hosts on these tours.

The convention will be concluded with a dinner-dance to be held at the Verdi Cafe in North Beach.

A.W.S. PLAYS SANTA TO POOR; NEEDS YOUR HELP

By BIG SISTER

Perhaps Santa Claus has never failed to pay his annual visit to your fireplace, filling your stocking and loading your tree with gifts. Santa does miss a few, and those that he does, find heartbroken children staring at an empty room.

It may be impossible to realize such a Christmas in your home. No turkey, cranberry sauce, plum pudding, or any of the delicacies that are taken for granted.

One may remember the thrill that small brothers and sisters get from the toy displays in the stores. The excitement of helping them write a letter to Santa Claus and the superb climax comes Christmas morning when all the long wanted toys are under the tree. Could anything be more pitiful than telling a child that Santa will miss him this year? Not being able to understand the economic situation of the family, there doesn't seem to be any reason for the lack of toys or food.

With thoughts like this in mind, the Associated Women Students have taken over the responsibility of providing a Christmas for a family of eight, who otherwise would have no Christmas. There are six small children, all under the age of 14 years.

Donations are being solicited by the A. W. S. for this Christmas basket. Any type of clothing, canned food, or money contributions will be most welcome. These things may be left at Dean Leonard's office at Galileo.

Miss Bernalyn Seymour is chairman of the committee and is assisted by Miss Corrinne Lynnwood and Miss Ruth Peterson.

Welcome, Press Delegates!

Welcome to the Junior College Press Convention! It has been our aim to institute a convention to discuss the needs and problems of junior college publications. For, contrary to general belief, junior college problems are different than those of either high school or university publications. It is our aim, too, that this convention develop into a bi-annual affair, with conventions held in different northern California locations each time.

We want the delegates to feel at home in San Francisco. We have prepared a rather extensive program for the delegates in hopes that they will like this convention well enough to hold them regularly. This convention is to be the melting pot of all jaysee press troubles. Let everyone speak! The more opinions that are proffered the better the convention will be.

Ex-Council vs. the Paper

Lately the Ex-Council has taken it upon itself to make certain cracks about some features which run regularly in The Guardsman. Now if the Ex-Council were doing their job of guiding the destinies of the school in a competent manner, if they had concerned themselves about a temporary constitution, instead of being socially inclined and promoting dances which ran the school into debt, and if they were working at their positions in a businesslike manner instead of acting like a lot of rah-rah boys still wet behind the ears, then, and then only, could they possibly attempt to criticize the paper. At it is, the duties of the student body officers haven't even been carried out in a slip-shod manner, for they haven't been carried out.

A certain FEW members of the editorial and business staffs of The Guardsman have been working very, very diligently this term in order to get a good paper started and working properly. These certain few have spared no effort, working both nights and vacation days, and during all free periods. The staff has done all in its power to give the readers the things they wanted, the staff has tried to please the readers. Time after time the paper has asked for contributions in the form of poetry or prose, and not even the Ex-Council has come through with a contribution. No one ever hands any news into the paper, our reporters have to go around like a bunch of sleuths trying to extract little items of interest here and there.

Los Angeles Junior College has 5000 students. Their paper is issued three times a week. They have a complete newspaper plant which would do justice to many a full-fledged newspaper. Nevertheless, L.A.J.C. is the only jaysee in the state which gets out a paper which can be called better than The Guardsman. The Guardsman has been said to be superior to every jaysee paper in the state, with the exception of the aforementioned paper. BUT, members of the L.A.J.C football team said that our paper was better than theirs, so draw your own conclusions.

We don't mind saying that we think the features that are run in The Guardsman are popular with the readers, in spite of what members of the Ex-Council, who have had no school paper experience, have said.

The football team's record is certainly nothing to brag about. The basketball team seems to be following in the footsteps of the football team. The student body leaders are a bunch of colossal buck-passers with social ambitions, so what has the student body to be proud of? Only The Guardsman. Our students can "point with pride" to our school paper. So let any would-be critics look to their own laurels and start cleaning house in their own department before attacking the school paper which so far, has proved that it can handle itself pretty well.

Thank you.

Let's Have Experience

While we're on the subject we wish to bring another item to the attention of the Associated Students. All of the leading staff positions on The Guardsman are held by sophomores. Experience proved that even in minor positions sophomores did the best work. The Guardsman believes that the reason its own record has been so good has been due to the fact that sophomores were at the helm. Even at the beginning of the term we maintained that the leading student body officers should be picked from the sophomore roster. We still maintain this to be true. Therefore, in order to eliminate another term of inexperienced meddling by the student leaders The Guardsman suggests that the students nominate sophomores for the responsible student body positions.

OFF THE RECORD

*Co-eds at the Los Angeles Junior College are not modest when it comes to praise of their paper. The executive editor, Isabel Holderman, calls it the "world's greatest college newspaper." The Collegian holds to the belief that it is the "world's greatest junior college newspaper".

*Marriage on the campus has been made the question lately. Surprising results were gained in a national survey of college leaders on the question. The largest portion of the educators were for the idea.

*The Men's Club are going to town again Tuesday night. The Wandering Bard, "Wee Willie" Weinstock, has even promised that he "might" be there. So, all in all, drop around. The event is being held to raise money for a monster high-jinks. Everyone is invited too!

The College Reads—

Hands

Charles G. Norris

Charles G. Norris needs no introduction, for he ranks highly among fiction writers today as one of the best in America. Norris, a native of California, who lives near the Stanford University Campus, devotes his time to writing fiction recounting the history of the early California pioneers. Hands follows a series of books written by Mr. Norris, which have all shared well for the countless memories they have reproduced.

Mr. Norris brings familiar landmarks of early San Francisco and of the peninsula, bringing to the reader the pictures of San Francisco's historic cable cars with their slow and jerky rides. The cable car is the one means of transportation in San Francisco that has survived the onslaught of modern civilization. Even with the high-speed, comfortable trolley cars, trams, buses, and automobiles, the cable cars have held their own and are a part of San Francisco.

The Baker family through three generations suffered untold hardships, but they were builders and they were rewarded for their faithfulness by getting ahead in the end. Three men with their action dominate the events of the entire story. The action begins with Michael, the grandfather, the constructing carpenter for B. F. Walker. Everyone called Mr. Walker, Ole B. F.

The women encountered by the Bakers were of strong character and capable of untiring work and great love. Miles, through efforts of his own, struggled vainly to recapture the social and financial freedom he once enjoyed. It seemed that he was just one of the crowd of forgotten men when seeking employment. Miles thought it so silly when he had to answer questions asked by managers, foremen, and superintendents. His pride took a beating when he finally found a job and had to work as a common laborer.—Reviewed by Bill Jackson.

COLLEGE CLIPPINGS

Stamp, Stamp, Stamp, Marks the U.S.C. Cheater

U. S. C. has a new way to stop cheating and cribbing—in exams. When a man discovers another cheating, he begins to stamp his feet. The whole class takes up the stamping, until the offending member has stopped or changed his tactics. If we may suggest, it seems a good way to stamp out cheating, in exams. (Ouch!)

Illinois Prof Puts Columnists in Place

An unknown professor of the University of Illinois has a definite classification for columnists. He calls them members of the "moron school of writing". Take it or leave it, we wonder if the readers belong to the "moron school of reading" (and again an Ouch!).

Los Angeles Junior College Urges Safe School Support

In a recent city election for a school bond issue, Los Angeles Junior College men and women were urged to get "Six Yes Votes" for safe schools. Out of the bond issue, Los Angeles J. C. would probably receive, if indications are correct, a new auditorium, cafeteria lunch room, and a new science room.

Modestans Burned Up, Claim San Mateo Ignites Fire

Modesto Junior College students were slightly "burnt" when their big game bonfire was set off prematurely. The fire, climax to the pre-game celebration of the San Mateo-Modesto football game, was ignited two days ahead of time. Modestans claim that the raid was carried off by several San Mateo students.

Believe It or Not! Women Outeat Grid Stars

Women at Modesto Junior College are better eaters than the grid stars at that institution. This fact was revealed when a survey of the college lunchroom showed that the women stopped, not at one lunch, but often three or four. To say nothing of innumerable hamburgers, cokes, etc.

THE CO-EDS CORNER

Undergrad Marriages Create Stir

Opinions Vary Greatly As to Advisability of Weddings

(EDITOR'S NOTE: The following is based on an article appearing in Red Book Magazine.)

College men and women are altar-bound these days! The question of allowing the undergraduates of modern colleges the privilege of marriage and the pursuit of an education at the same time has raised a storm of opinion among the heads of various universities and colleges.

Foremost among those favoring college marriages are Dean George B. Culver, of Stanford University. He says: "I have no reason to believe that any other motives than that ordinarily lead to marriage among typical young Americans are the causes of Stanford weddings. I am glad to say that in a vast majority of cases such marriages not only give promise of developing into permanent happy alliances, but they have actually done that."

Reluctant At Amherst

Amherst allows—but reluctantly. Says Dean C. Scott Porter: "We do not encourage undergraduates marrying, but if they do, each case is considered on its own merits."

Locally, students seem to favor college marriages. Co-eds whose opinions were sought and who gave their opinions are:

Jean Coplestone, Guardsman news editor: "Personally, I feel that marriage and college are a perfect combination. I have found that my marriage in no way interferes with my school work; the latter doesn't interfere with my home. Being married and going to college makes my life complete; could anyone ask for more?

Agrees in Principle

Birdeena Gowan (who wears a ring on "the" finger) agreed with Mrs. Coplestone, and stated that she could find no argument against undergraduate marriages.

An adverse opinion, however, came from Jane King, who said that she believed a successful marriage and a college schedule just didn't go together, and contrary to the popular idea that it was a man who said, "Woman's place is in the home," this co-ed used that as her argument.

Woman Writer At Press Meet

Co-ed Staffs Gather at First Journalism Convention

By SIBYL HURNING, Women's Editor, The Guardsman

Women staff members and other interested women students will be given a chance to meet co-ed staffs from other junior colleges at the first Northern California Junior College Press Convention tomorrow at the Civic Auditorium.

Of particular interest will be the appearance at the women's session of Miss Ethel Bogardus of the San Francisco News. Miss Bogardus is one of the ace feature writers of the News and conducts a daily column titled "The Woman's Angle".

There will be other noted speakers at the roundtable discussions. Ideas in makeup, news writing, and other topics will be handled by experts in the various fields.

Present plans call for a permanent organization among the newspapers of the junior colleges.

CO-EDITORIALS

Need Cooperation

This college needs the support of every student enrolled and within its jurisdiction. Such cooperation will be the only way in which a success can be made of the student association, the men's and women's societies, the various clubs and associations and the college newspaper. The politics which are a menace to any institution are already prevalent in this one. The selfish interests expressed by a few are always a drawback to the majority, and unless these few will change their principles, there must be action on the part of the others who realize the severity of the situation.

Working together is a good idea; all the students of this college have to do is to put it into practice. It would be a simple matter to conduct student affairs and activities if there were enough interest expressed by the students to make a success of the ventures. However, the various factions into which this college is divided have demonstrated no desire to cooperate with each other. If every student would forget his private animosities and political ambitions and give his whole-hearted support to affairs which are conducted for the benefit of all the students, this college would be a financial, educational and social success.

Famous Man Talks on Art Of Sculpture

'Culture' Reporter Turns To Haig Patigian in New Class Campaign

By PATTY de ROULF

With fingers of steel, a silent man works in his studio. His strong yet artistic hands have moulded and sculptured the tiny crevices and numerous planes of many famous faces. Is there one who has not seen the statue of Lincoln, the great emancipator, who sits pensively in front of the City Hall? Or General Pershing, standing proudly and with a military air in Golden Gate Park? As you've walked through the Main Public Library you have certainly noticed the bronze of Dr. Taylor, one time mayor of San Francisco. These statues are internationally known. Equally famous is their creator, Haig Patigian.

Self-Educated in Art

In his studio on Webster Street, surrounded by reproductions of his renowned works, Mr. Patigian granted an interview. An Armenian by birth, the celebrated sculptor made his way to Paris and finally to the United States. He is self-educated in art.

After touching on his life, Mr. Patigian turned to the actual technique of sculpturing. "A man's face is usually less difficult to do than a woman's", the artist stated. "The features are coarser and more clearly defined. A woman's face is more intricate. In doing a bust one must always notice the characteristic factors. Now, here's a nose," and he slapped Helen Wills Moody gently between the eyes, "here's a nose that is very unusual. You can see how extremely broad it is at the bridge. Then there are ears. . ." Mr. Patigian let a smile slip through his dark features. "There are no things so widely varied as ears. And no two ears look alike. These ears . ." the artist fondled the ears of some dignified looking gentleman, "this man's ears were so thin. I was obliged to make them out of wax."

Gracious Personality

As all interviews must, this interview drew to a close. With an invitation to return, your tale-bearer left the great leader in American art, pride of San Francisco, and very gracious personality, Haig Patigian.

A.W.S. Officer Forgets Home Town Desires

Prefers San Francisco Over Return to Former City in Oregon

Miss Helene Wright, the A. W. S. vice-president, likes San Francisco so much that she does not even want to go back to her home town, Hillsboro, Oregon, for a visit, although she lived in Oregon and Washington from the time she was born until she came here just in time to start this semester at San Francisco Junior College. Helene was born on April 1, 1916 in Hillsboro, and three years later moved to Portland, Oregon.

Active in Affairs

During Helen's four years of high school she was president of the freshman class, editor of the school paper, vice-president of the sophomore class, chairman of the publicity department of the school news at Madeline Convent, treasurer and president of the Art Club at Immaculata Academy. Finally, in her low senior year, she was vice-president of the student body. While Helene was holding these offices she was participating in different committee activities, also in dramatics. Here in S. F. J. C. she is in the Service Society, as well as being an officer of the A. W. S.

Singing and dancing are the things she likes to do most. She is a member of the Portland Symphony Chorus and has also sung over the radio in Portland. Her favorite sports are tennis, swimming, and horseback riding.

Law is Goal

Law practice is Helene's goal and she plans to go to California soon, working her way through university as she has done through high school and is doing through junior college.

I SAW THEM—

"Tres chic" is the phrase one would use to describe a black dress worn by one of the hostesses at the A. W. S. Tea. A black crepe skirt joined with a very high waistline to a bodice of satin, which had a straight neckline trimmed with a ruffle and shirring, but with no color, emphasizing the richness of the black. There was a jacket of the crepe, with wide satin lapels. This striking ensemble was worn with all black accessories, a small, veiled hat, black suede pumps and purse, and kid gloves.

Sixty inches of pep, vim and vigor (the blond variety) all done up in bright red corduroy spells San Francisco Junior College in a BIG way. Presenting the best dressed girl at the Frosh Sprawl.

The dress was cut in the popular shirtmaker fashion with a square yoke and had a gathered fullness in front with a Clark Gable back. A full gored skirt gave it a free and easy, yet trim appearance, while the cut-out neck joined by a red pin was a touch of individuality. As for the color, well, it just exactly expressed the festive mood of the affair—that flaming red was the poet's silver lining to a rainy Friday afternoon.

Service Clubs Plan Welcome

Working in conjunction with the Skull and Blades society, the Women's Service Club will stage a reception for incoming freshmen during the opening week of the new semester in January. Plans for the affair are in the formative stage. The committees in charge are arranging a program of entertainment to be followed by a dance in the gymnasium at Galileo.

The committee for the reception will consist of the following:

Ethel Clarkson, Jean Coplestone, Helen Hall, Birnalyn Seymour, Ray Bruhn, Jim Fahn, Alvin Hirschman, and Allen Koblick.

Women Tennis Players Start First Tourney

With play already started in two brackets, champion women tennis players will be named before Christmas. This indication was made today as thirty-eight racquet wielders prepared to continue their march to the crown of champion of the San Francisco Junior College, in the first women's doubles tourney.

A final match may be arranged between the winner of the novice bracket and the advanced class.

Card of Thanks

The chairmen of the various committees wish to extend their thanks to all the girls who so graciously gave their time and assistance to make the A. W. S. Tea a success.

College Starts Plan To Aid Service Applicants

Any junior college students who wish to prepare for civil service examinations for government employment are asked to let Miss Pence know as soon as possible. They must also state in what fields of study they are interested.

As soon as this information is received, the State Personnel Board, in charge of civil service, will be notified and the dates of the examinations will be announced.

could not be reached for a statement, but he probably would have said: "Heh! Heh! I'll dust him off in a round."

This will be the first attempt on the part of the Men's Association to intersperse wrestling with boxing, and the show is expected to be a financial and social success, just as was its predecessor, the boxing program.

Receipts to Hi-Jinks Fund

All of the receipts netted from the ticket sales will be turned over to the fund for the Hi-Jinks to be held later on in the term. The Finnegan-Brigham bout will be listed as the main event of the evening, and should be one of the top battles on the card.

Finnegan now feels that he has Brigham's number, and says that he is going to prove it Tuesday night. Brigham says that he will win by a kayoe again. The rivalry between these two will be settled to the benefit of the spectators when the two heavies tangle.

The special event of the wrestling card will be an exhibition match between Maury Schwarz, former champion of San Mateo J. C., and Sam Goldstein, a San Franciscan, who grunts and groans for his living.

Doudiet Meets Mr. X Opponent

Another event on the wrestling card will be the match between Ernie Doudiet, also a former San Matean, whose opponent has not yet been named. It is expected that Joe Amori will again act as referee.

The flyweight boxing matches will feature a bout between Jim Fahn and Gene Sullivan. In the recent matches, Fahn kayoed Tony Tutatsuki, a fast little fighter but in bad condition, and Sullivan won the fastest bout of the night by hitting Leon Callmus three times and having his hand raised in token of victory. Again both of the fighters are confident of winning. Sullivan saying: "I'll turn my deadly right hand loose again." And Fahn: "It only takes one right on the chin to do the job."

Admission to the affair will be 15 cents to students, 25 cents general admission, and 40 cents ringside, with the starting time listed at 8 o'clock.

Everyone seems confident of victory; there should be plenty of fast fights and wrestling matches, and we shall see what we shall see.

ENGINEERS MEET

At a meeting of the Engineers' Club, held Tuesday at the Galileo Building, motion pictures of Boulder Dam were shown to all of those in attendance.

SPORTS COMMENT

By TIM GUINEY

MOANS AND GROANS ABOUT THIS AND THAT: Our football season is finally over . . . thank goodness! . . . but here's some more bad news . . . the basketball team has started in playing . . . and already taken two terrific beatings . . . from the Y. M. I. and the Evening High School of Commerce. . . .

Our footballers wound up a disastrous season by taking a 27 to 6 shellacking at the hands of Sacramento J. C. . . . Fall track practice is just being started in the college. . . . The tennis team is still waiting to meet an opponent. . . . The soccer team's record for the season might be compared to the Knox College varsity team of last year. . . .

There is no getting away from the fact that the support given the athletic teams by the student body . . . has been nothing short of lackadaisical all year . . . but so has the support from most of the coaching staffs. . . . We ought to give a medal to Coach Bass who stayed with and showed interest in his team during the entire season . . . which is a lot more than some of the others have done. . . .

Our track team . . . (or what there is of it) . . . is months behind every junior college in the conference as far as practice is concerned . . . and we humbly ask you . . . what chance can a team in this condition possibly have . . . against such strong aggregations as San Mateo . . . Modesto . . . Sacramento . . . and others equally as powerful? . . . You know the answer as well as we do. . . .

We want you to understand . . . we are not kicking about any of the teams' records . . . no one demands winning teams in a new college . . . but we do expect to have TRYING teams and INTERESTED coaches . . . and a SPIRITED student body . . .

Elsewhere in this issue of The Guardsman a letter has been published . . . stating . . . that the football players had no interest in winning their games . . . we find it difficult to agree with the writer . . . for the majority of the players did work hard . . . in an endeavor to snag a couple of victories . . . and, incidentally, win themselves a block letter . . . .

And while we're on the subject of blocks . . . we may as well say . . . that the demand of 135 minutes of playing time seems just a little bit high for a first term institution. . . .

And if we wanted to do a little wondering . . . we might wonder how true the rumors are . . . that in a recent football game one of our line coaches asked another coach four times to put in a certain player and was each time refused . . . but we're not the only ones that are wondering . . . for it seems that many of the football players on the team are wondering about this little incident, too . . . and we hasten to explain that this fellow who has been playing the position all year long was never able to get over the third string in high school days . . . while the fellow on the bench is considered a top-notch football player by all his teammates. . . .

As you know, we have five (5) athletic coaches here in the J. C. . . . well, what we want to know is . . . why can't the different sports be spread more evenly among them? . . . It's certain that one coach . . . taking care of two or three teams . . . can't do full justice to any of them . . . whereas, if each mentor was given some definite assignment . . . more interest would be shown on the part of everyone concerned. . . .

Coach Aims At Speed In Hoop Squad

Lowans, Loustalot Show Edge for First String

By TONY SCAFANI

Speed and good ball handling, until "pot" shots at the basket can be secured, are going to be the main requisites of the Ram cassba tossers in their quest for their first conference basketball title.

The above qualities were brought out in scrimmages against the Y. M. I., Commerce and Galileo High quints. The Rams looked good in these scrimmages, but of course, they had their bad moments.

Lack of height in some positions will be offset, in a measure, by speed. Practically every man on the squad shakes a fast "hoof" on the hardwood floor.

Probable Starting Combination Listed

When the first practice encounter rolls around, Coach "Dutch" Conlan's starting five will likely comprise red-headed Bob Lowans and either Ernie Loustalot or Carlyle Caine at the forward spots; Nick Meyer at center; Ralph Hillsman and Ed McSweeney at the guards.

Following is the basketball schedule:

- Jan. 24 and 25—Marin at Kentfield.
- Jan. 31 and Feb. 1—Yuba at Yuba City.
- Feb. 7 and 8—Sacramento at Sacramento.
- Feb. 14 and 15—Modesto at Home.
- Feb. 21 and 22—Santa Rosa at Home.
- Feb. 28 and 29—San Mateo at Home.
- Mar. 6 and 7—Menlo at Menlo.

This is the way the team has been shaping up to date, but there may be a change or so in this line up.

At least five other forwards are of equal ability and any two of them can be paired off with good results. Besides the three forwards mentioned above, Coach Conlan can select from Paul Rippon, Felix Anido, Bob Lee, Lawrence Wilgcus and Elbert Opple.

For alternative centers Conlan has "Bottle" Glynn and Jack Butler, and either one can hold his own on the "spot".

Guard Material Shows Strong

Guido Nicco, George Pantages, John Guinee, Leonard Leahy, Warren Eagen and Adolph Pedrin are putting in a determined bid for the first string guard assignments.

Before this article goes to press it is entirely possible that any of these lads may break into the select five, for they all show potential ability to do so.

Tentative games have been scheduled with Glendale Junior College at Galileo gym on December 21, and California Frosh at Berkeley on February 4.

Two games are to be played with each conference rival. Fridays and Saturdays are the nights selected for these contests. All home games have been tentatively set for Kezar pavilion.

Wreckage All That Remains Of Grid Wars

Two Victories Out of Season Make Record of First Ram Varsity

San Francisco looks mournfully on the wreckage of what was to have been one of the most successful of any first-season football campaigns. The mothballs have enveloped the moleskins and the pigskin has been reverently put away 'til next year. But the memory lingers on.

Open with Win Over Salinas

The Ram gridders opened their season against Salinas and took the Cowboys into camp, 12 to 0. Against U.S.F. they showed spurts of power and looked ready to go places. The Don babes swept down the field in their only march of the game to score the winning touchdown.

Against Marin the Rams fared no better. Eighteen points were rolled up against the Red and White while the gridders were getting back only six of them. Fumbleitis reared its ugly head and couldn't be kept back during the entire season.

The team won their smashing victory of the year when they took San Francisco State. The score was 32 to 0. Guisti, Clarke and Mauer were the fair-headed boys of this one.

Disaster Stalks Grid Squad

Disaster couldn't be chased away after that, and the season dragged on without another victory. Los Angeles came to town in the rain and took home the Roos Trophy and the victory. Seven points on a fumble was their margin of victory. Even Cal Aggies were victors over the Rams. To crown it all, Sacramento took the big Red and White machine by 27 to 6.

LIST BLOCK TIME

At a meeting of the committee, held for the purpose of ascertaining which of the players on the football team were to obtain blocks, it was decided that all of those men who had engaged in approximately 135 minutes or more of playing time would be eligible for these awards.

The soccer team, which was not officially recognized by the college, was declared ineligible to obtain these awards for the past season, but would be recognized during the next term.

Russ Dreams Of Trackmen Being Champs

Team Set to Conquer World for Glory of Rams and Sweet

By Bill Buchan

BULLETIN

Coach Russ Sweet issued a call late yesterday for track managers. Those interested should see Mr. Sweet immediately. Men interested in track should sign up with Coach Sweet as soon as possible.

Ol Massa Sweet is dreaming again. This time he has visions of a track team that will go the championship route. He can even see Jimmy Fahn skimming over the hurdles ahead of the Kirkpatricks and other conference stars. The old optimist!

He's even got Jack Segurson putting the shot for new world's records. We give Jack credit, though, he's gone places since his high school days. Add Perc Towell to Sweet's dreams and Sweet may even have visions of taking the I. C. A. A. A. A. now that the coast colleges will be unable to defend their laurels.

Still dreaming, Sweet has made arrangements with U. S. F. for the team to work out on the Don field. Those with lab. classes will practice on free days. The whole team will be together on Friday and Saturday afternoons.

Sacramento Tastes Ram Steaks 27-6

'Call of the Wild' Brings Sadness to Sweet

By DEMING SMITH

Sacramento Stadium and Coach Russ Sweet heard the "Call of the Wild" on Thanksgiving Day when the Panthers of Sacramento Junior College feasted on the rare meat of San Francisco's Rams. The score, by the way, was only 27 to 6. Figures are deceiving though, and the Rams deserve a little credit for holding the more experienced Sacramentans to a 13 to 6 half time score.

Storm Clouds For the Rams

Storm clouds arose for the Wandering Rams when giant Vernon Alley, negro fullback, was sent into the game for Sacramento. Alley, formerly of Commerce High School, was the spark plug for the Sacramento team. With his entrance into the game, Alley started the Panthers on a march down the field that was stopped by the Rams close to their own goal line. From that point the Rams woke up to the fact that they could also march and proceeded to do so with much gusto and aplomb. Guisti finally carried the ball over the last white stripe after Bob Gorman placed a beautiful block on Vernon Alley.

Sacramento played for the breaks and won the game. Two of their touchdowns were pushed over by power plays and two more were added when an intercepted lateral was converted into another six points.

Tennis Team Sits 'N' Waits

Jimmy Neal Still Trying To Arrange Matches

While the tennis team waits, and waits, and waits, the attempt is still being made to contact various jaysees and colleges in the bay area for the purpose of scheduling matches as soon as possible.

Jim Neal, president of the club, is endeavoring to arrange a game with San Francisco State College, and expects the match to take place in the very near future.

Lightweights Start Season

145-Pounders Practice For Basketball Frays

With Tom Wilson acting in the capacity of head coach, the S.F.J.C. 145-pound basketball team is rapidly forming into a fast-breaking, sharp-shooting quintet that promises trouble to all of the opponents that it will meet this season.

Approximately 25 players have turned out for the squad so far, with Coach Wilson still expecting a large amount of candidates to sign up. "I am sure that there is plenty of lightweight talent here in the college, and we want these people to know that no definite first team has as yet been formed," he stated.

A tentative first team has, however, been arranged by him, comprising: Mitzman and Gaskin, forwards; Kennedy, center; Nelson and Britton, guards. Besides this, tentative games have been arranged with the Jewish Community Center, Galileo High School, and many of the other city high schools.

• • TIME OUT • •

This Coast Conference mess is interesting . . . They're talking of making a four year college out of Sacramento . . . that is they've resumed talking about it . . . Probably would include some other junior colleges in that category . . . Wonder how the mess will finally be settled . . . Must have broken Bill Monohan's heart to cancel the Santa Clara game . . . imagine turning down a money maker like that. . .

It looks like all of the blame for the mess goes to Al Masters, graduate manager of Stanford . . . As it looks now, the new ruling is nothing but an evident attempt to freeze out the smaller colleges . . . St. Mary's, Santa Clara, U. S. F., Pacific, and others. . .

It seems that the Northwestern teams can't draw flies up on their own fields . . . so what do they do? . . . they bring them down here where the coast fans are always ready to supply the sheckels . . . Washington, Washington State, Oregon, and the rest . . . a crowd of 25,000 would be record breaking in a Northwestern Stadium.

And besides that, these Northern outfits will fold up in the extra tough competition on the coast . . . so all the Rose Bowl gravy will go to California or Stanford . . . Masters thinks it will MAKE the Coast Conference . . . It will probably BREAK it. . .

The smaller colleges on the coast have been taking it on the chin from these big boys long enough . . . Now's their chance to get up and kick back . . . to organize a conference of their own or bring in popular intersectional teams . . . and to find out which is the stronger, Public Opinion, or Graduate Manager's opinions. . .

It does seem rather funny . . . that the teams that have been the backbone of football on the coast . . . should now have to take a sock like that without a moment's notice . . . but the one that will probably feel the blow most of all is old Amos Alonzo Stagg and his College of the Pacific team. . .

At any rate this move may be responsible for the forming of another conference that may turn out to be Frankenstein to the men that were really responsible for its starting. . .

Wee Willie Weinstock has wooed the muse and turned poet on us . . . his extra choice (?) sonnets are too precious to print . . . Wonder if he will have to go to Los Angeles this time to meet that aunt . . . To get back to the poetry of our wandering bard . . . there's some about a Rassler . . . choice bits . . . we quote . . . "As a first class rassler, you think that you . . . could teach a strangler a thing or two" . . . need we go farther? . . . But the secret of it all . . . we should really keep it a secret . . . is that Wee Willie is a "Wanderer," no less . . . oh well.

Committee Rushes To Complete Final Constitution Draft

Plan Presentation to College by December 20

Final plans for the proposed constitution for the Associated Students are being rushed under the direction of Dean Edwin Browne, Mr. Lloyd Luckmann and Mr. Francis Colligan in conjunction with officers of the student organization. Members of the committee first made a trial draft and presented it to the faculty members for suggestions and criticisms.

Provides Organization

While no definite announcement has as yet been made, it is understood that the faculty committee's suggestions include separate and autonomous men's and women's general associations, and provisions for a Cabinet, Congress, and Supreme Court, which definitely reflect the organization of state and federal government. Such an organization, the committee feels, will be practical and, at the same time, prove a valuable instrument of education for citizenship.

Mr. Colligan's suggestions are the result of several years active interest in student government. As an undergraduate, he conducted a survey of student organizations in American colleges and aided in reorganizing the Student Association of the University of San Francisco where he was student-body president in 1929. As an instructor he has acted as advisor to several student groups. Last spring, at the University of California, he made a survey of student organizations in California, on which many of his present suggestions are based.

Interested in Government

Mr. Lloyd D. Luckmann, the other member of the committee, adds to a wide experience in student affairs both as an undergraduate and as instructor, an interest in governmental procedure as part of his special studies in political science and jurisprudence. As an undergraduate, he was active in student affairs, founder of the local chapter of his fraternity, and, as an instructor, he has acted as advisor to several student organizations. He is especially interested in student organization as offering laboratory experience in political science, and believes that a Cabinet-Congress-Court organization will be educationally valuable.

It is planned to rush work on the constitution so that it will be ready for adoption by the student body before the Christmas holidays.

HOLD AWARD TESTS

Tests for the John Henry Nash journalism scholarship will be held at San Francisco State College, Saturday, December 14, from 2 to 5 p. m. Outstanding journalists from one hundred high schools in California have been invited to participate.

Interesting Men? Here's—Jacques De La Montanya

BY BETTY DEMING

Who would ever guess that the owner of this interesting foreign name would have light hair, blue eyes, and an English accent? Your humble interviewer was all set for a dark-eyed Frenchman with a beret and possibly a mustache!

Although Jacques has spent much of these past seven years living in France, England, and Spain, he is a native of this city, and his family have probably been here longer than most of ours. His grandfather, "Tin Plate" Montanya, was the secretary of the vigilance committee in the rough days of San Francisco, and his uncle, "Pay Day" Montanya, was an equally important personage.

Admires Beauty

His happy-go-lucky philosophy is that life is made to be lived and enjoyed.

Jacques gives his opinion on American women: "I think that American women are more intelligent than foreign women, but that the latter are much more beautiful."

He aspires to graduate from Hastings and to be a first class lawyer, though his hobby, which is sleeping, might seem a bit contradictory.

His family lives abroad most of the time, visiting London and Cornwall in summer, then spending a few weeks in Paris every season on their way to Barcelona for the winter. Consequently, Jacques has not attended school very much. Incidentally, Barcelona, and not his home town, attracts him most. He thinks San Francisco is a pretty city, but rather too conservative; the night life has no appeal for him.

A Linguist

Jacques is of French, Spanish, English, and Dutch descent; nothing like a little variety. Besides speaking excellent English, he can "get by" with French and Spanish. He likes to paint, and he modestly admitted that he is a good cook.

"The varieties of liqueurs impressed me most in foreign countries," was the statement he made.

Philosophers Hear Paper on Naturalism

At a regular meeting of the Philosophy Club held in Miss Elisa Maimi's home at 8 o'clock Wednesday, December 4, the following officers were elected: president, Jacques De La Montanya; vice-president and treasurer, Tom S. Gjonovich, and secretary, Miss Elisa Maimi. Mr. Donald Goldshur accepted the office of honorary president.

During this assembly, Mr. Rushdooty read a paper entitled "Naturalism, a Philosophy of Decadence." Spontaneous criticism and discussion followed this exceptionally enjoyable paper. It was also announced that any students and faculty interested in this club are invited to attend the meetings. The date of the next meeting will be posted later.

"Tale of Two Cities" Nears Completion at Metro

Metro Goldwyn Mayer's second film version of one of Charles Dickens' classics will soon reach the screens of picture houses in the nation. Ronald Colman has the lead in the "Tale of Two Cities", and is ably supported by Elisabeth Allen as Lucie Manette.

After spending months in preparing the script and the film itself, doubt assails the studio executives as to its profits. One critic who saw the preview declared that it was a fine piece of film art but that it was too gruesome in its often repeated scenes of the guillotine and other ghastly killings. The critic, by the way, is one of the most outspoken of the corps in Hollywood.

"Wooden Crosses" Shows Another Side of World War

"Wooden Crosses", a dramatic story of Americans in the French army during the World War, is being prepared for production by Twentieth Century-Fox. Nunally Johnson will have active charge of the production and Joel Sayre will write the screen adaption.

The picture should be interesting in the fact that it will probably be the first to give the French side of that vast conflict. Several outstanding pictures have vividly portrayed the American phase of the war. One of the most famous of these was the Paramount production of John Monk Saunders' "Wings".

Marc Connelly Adds to "Green Pastures" Story

Preparing the famous negro play by Roark Bradford, Marc Connelly will present many additional scenes in the screen version. These were left out of the stage play when the vehicle was running too long in time.

Warner's raised a regular hue and cry when they suggested Al Jolson for the lead in this drama of "De Lawd". So great was the protest that the Bros. Warner were forced to return to the original plans for an all negro cast.

"Collegiate" Third in Paramount Series of College Pictures

Joe Penner's new film, "Collegiate", will be the third in a series of such films as produced by Paramount. The first, "College Humor", had an all star cast, including Jack Oakie, Bing Crosby, Richard Arlen, and Mary Carlisle. Some of the hits, made famous by Crosby in that picture were "Learn to Croon" and "Down the Old Ox Road".

The second in the series was "College Rhythm". Starring Lanny Ross, Jack Oakie, Joe Penner, and Mary Brian, the film carried the idea of the collegiate atmosphere over into business. Some of the hit tunes from this one were, "Stay as Sweet as You Are" and "Take a Number From One to Ten".

The latest will star Penner and will see two leading ladies in Betty Grable and Frances Langford.

Eighteen Sophs at First Social Affair

Eighteen high sophomore students attended a wienie roast held Wednesday night, December 4, in Sigmund Stern Grove at Twentieth Avenue and Sloat Boulevard.

The faculty was represented at the occasion by Mr. Alfred Agosti and Mr. and Mrs. Ward Nichols.

The picnic was a Dutch treat affair. Following the wienie roast, the group adjourned to the lodge for card-playing and dancing.

Donald McPherson Heads Philatelists

Donald McPherson was elected president at the last meeting of the Stamp Club, Tuesday, December 3. Raymond Keast was elected to the office of secretary-treasurer. There were eight members present.

The purpose of the club is to keep the students informed of the new stamp issues, and to interest the students in the trading of stamps. The club is subscribing to a monthly and a weekly stamp magazine. The initiation fees are 35 cents.

Frosh Affair Reaps Praise For Program

Variety of Entertainers At First Successful Dance Causes Comment

A large percentage of the college helped the Frosh Sprawl last Friday in the Galileo gym. The dance was the first afternoon dance to be held by the school. During the dance intermissions, members of the student body entertained with a variety of numbers.

Miss Phyllis Devaney whistled "Life is a Song" and "Roll Along Prairie Moon"; Miss Corinne Lynwood gave imitations of Greta Garbo, Zasu Pitts and Mae West, singing the song "Double Trouble", and as an encore she sang "From the Top of Your Head to the Tip of Your Toes". Joe Benedetti of Lowell gave an impromptu act on the song "Annie's Cousin Fanny". Dot Coletti's Continentals provided the music for the dance. Jack Martin, prominent entertainer of the college, is a member of this band.

"It was the first really successful dance, both socially and financially, in the history of the college," stated Mr. Joseph Amorl, freshman advisor.

Miss Ruth Peterson was in charge of the entertainment and Bob Neal, low freshmen president, was general chairman of the affair.

Chinese Club Names First Leaders

Under the leadership of Mr. Edward Sandys, 36 members of the Chinese Club spent an enjoyable evening at the International Institute on Washington Street, Friday evening, November 29. There were refreshments, dancing, and outside entertainment.

The officers that were elected are: Wallace Mark, president; Gladys Chin, vice-president; George Chin, secretary, and Steve Pond, treasurer. Plans for future meetings were discussed; the meetings will probably be held at an interval of two weeks.

Roos Style Parade Climaxes First Tea Of A.W.S. Society

Conclave Dress To Be Colorful At Press Meet

The next big event of the San Francisco Junior College is the Press Convention ending up with a dinner dance on Saturday, December 14. The smart new metallic blouses worn over white, gray, blue, black, and dubonnet, make striking clothes for the dinner dance.

One style is particularly good-looking. It features the very popular full sleeves. The neckline is shirred in a deep V and a rhinestone clip is worn over the shirred part. A simple, square buckle on the belt finishes the blouse.

Here's something new and different. Fringe on dinner gowns is being featured in some of the better shops. Fringes are worn to accent shoulder and sleeve lines. Also an entire dress of fringe, if carefully made, looks charming.

The best bets on materials would be velvets, metallics, chiffons, crepes and satins in black, which is the predominating color, or the new bright colors which follow closely after black.

A double-duty dress that can be worn as a bar dress, a dinner dress, or a formal gown that can be changed around for different occasions is both practical and appropriate.

Will be seeing you Saturday at the convention. Your time will be well spent as it promises to be a "big day."

Miss Badger Stars in Rendition of Opera Solo

Climaxed by the Roos Bros. fashion show, the first A. W. S. tea was held on Friday, November 22, at the Galileo cafeteria. Featured with the style revue were many stellar entertainers from the A. W. S. organization.

Outstanding Soloist

Heading the outstanding performances was the rendition of "One Fine Day" from Madame Butterfly, by Miss Flossita Badger of the college faculty. Miss Badger was formerly a member of the San Francisco Opera Company and has had leading parts in a majority of the opera productions in the city during the five years she spent with that organization.

The A Capella Choir was another feature on the afternoon's program. Under the direction of Miss Badger, they presented several numbers.

Acts As Hostess

Miss Edith Pence was hostess to some four hundred mothers and daughters that attended the function. Heading the receiving line was Jean Coplestone. Various officers and members of the A. W. S. acted as committee chairmen.

The tea was made possible through the co-operation of local merchants and the H. and J. society.

Choristers At College Meet

Sing for Session of Teachers Institute Conclave

Many compliments were bestowed on the A Cappella Choir at their recent appearance at the Teachers' Institute. The attending faculty body declared the entertainment by the singers from San Francisco Junior College was outstanding, considering the short length of time the group had been trained, stated Mr. Paul Pitman, who was one of the leaders of the group.

President A. J. Cloud introduced the speakers representing San Francisco Junior College on the program. The topic, "What San Francisco Junior College Is Trying To Do For the Non-University or College Students", was the idealistic subject of the following speakers: Mr. Joseph E. Williams, Science; Mr. Edward E. Sandys, English; Miss Veril A. Weber, Girls' Physical Education; Mr. Franklin C. Sewell, Political Science; Mr. Francis G. Marsh, Mathematics.

Majors Club Meets to Pass on Charter

An important meeting of the Majors Club will be held in the Galileo Girls B gymnasium this afternoon at 2:00 o'clock. The presence of all concerned is requested. The purpose of the meeting is to draw up the constitution which has been drafted by a committee of five, headed by Henrietta Leonard and Helen Davis. When officially recognized, officers will be elected under the ruling of the new constitution, and the club will become a functional organization. Miss Bertha Keller is the faculty sponsor.

Astronomers Honor Berman

Praise Instructor for Star Research Work

Dr. Louis Berman, instructor of Astronomy at the San Francisco Junior College, who has engaged in research in Astronomy and Astrophysical problems for the past ten years, has been highly complimented for his work by Professor Henry Russell in the November issue of the Scientific American.

Professor Russell, well known astronomer of the Princeton Observatory, discussed, with a great deal of enthusiasm, the results of an investigation carried on by Dr. Berman on the physical and chemical constitution of the hot carbon star, R. Coronae Borealis. Professor Russell believes that these discoveries will lead to a more thorough understanding of the chemical compositions of stellar atmospheres.

Many articles, describing his results, have been published in national and international technical journals.

Rally Story

was asked by President Cloud to speak before the college assembly. After speaking at Martinez High School yesterday morning, Mr. Beck came directly to the San Francisco Junior College and gave an exceptionally interesting talk on just what an employer is after when he is interviewing a young person for a job. His talk was intensely human, and was made more vital by numerous illustrations, which had been gathered from his varied experiences.

The faculty members of the college were assembled on the stage during Mr. Beck's talk, and the students were entertained by the Galileo High School orchestra, and the A Cappella Choir and the Men's Glee Club of the college.

CAMPUS OPINIONS

(EDITOR'S NOTE: The following letters are being presented in line with the policy of The Guardsman to open its columns to any member of the student body. Hereafter, however, all communications must be signed or identified to the satisfaction of The Guardsman. Because of the special interest of the following letters, we are presenting them, although they are anonymous.)

Sounds Like Somebody's Defending Himself!

Editor, The Guardsman,
Dear Sir:

This college is going to be set down in the minds of everyone who knows anything about it as a "complete washout" unless a big change in the spirit of the students is made. Or rather until some spirit is developed. This school is practically minus that essential.

The dances for one thing—how many of the girls said, "Oh, I'd feel funny if I asked a fellow," and let it go at that? How many of the fellows deliberately made other plans to go to a show, or a party, or another dance? Out of 1400 students there were only a little more than a hundred there at the most. What is the matter with this college? Being that it is just starting up, and everyone has a chance to show what he can do, I should think there would be twice as much spirit as in any other J. C.

About the games, too—I feel sorry for that team. The turnouts were simply fierce. Some of the students say that the average members of the student body cannot afford to go all the way to the games—sure, but listen to those very students tell about the shows they saw over the week-end. If they had one iota of spirit at all, they would save that money and go, not only to the games, but to all the school functions in addition.

Maybe the dances haven't been so wonderful and elaborate—but what do you expect? If you think you can do any better with the treasury as it is, why don't you come ahead and try — there's plenty of room for ability—instead of sitting around and talking about how you don't think the dance will be very good, so you are going to the show.

Maybe I'm wrong—maybe there's still hope. Okay, show some spirit, and let's have one grand turnout for the next school function—whatever it is and wherever it is.

DIS-SPIRITED.

Coach or Team? Cause of Football Question

Editor, The Guardsman
Dear Sir:

Why is it that with the football material we have in San Francisco Junior College that we only managed to win two games out of nine?

Was it because the boys weren't sincere enough in their playing, or because most of them weren't in condition?

It seems to me that with the wonderful coaches we have that something better should have come out of the season.

All term long the students have been asked to support the team. But did the team support the coaching staff and the school's name?

I am wondering if this playful attitude the team has taken this season will continue to next fall when we hope to become conference members.

With sincere hopes for a better year I remain,

Your anonymous friend.

Vote Talk Spurs Drives For Student Association Officers

Koblick, Schwarz Mentioned as Possible Candidates for President; Definite Election Date Awaited

By William Buchan

Although confirmation as to the exact date as to the student body elections was unavailable, it is believed that they will be held before the end of finals week. This was indicated in a statement from Dean Edwin Browne, who declared that they would be held before the end of the present semester.

Candidates for office for the spring semester will be limited by provisions in the new constitution, if that document is adopted before election time. According to reports reaching the office of The Guardsman, the constitution provides that the president and vice-president be from the high sophomore class. The document goes on to state that the vice-president must be a co-ed.

Possible Candidates

With this limitation the likely candidates for office will be narrowed down to a few people. Outstanding as possible entries in the race to head the student body are Maury Schwarz and Al Koblick.

Koblick is a former student body officer from one of the local high schools. During the present semester he has acted as treasurer of the student association. Although his work has not reached the public eye to any great extent, he has been a guiding factor in student body affairs.

Schwarz is head of the Associated Men Students and has been active in promoting the affairs of that organization. To date he has been the guiding factor in the two boxing tournaments staged by the club and has played a major part in assuring the success of the Hi-Jinks to be staged tonight.

At the present moment there appear to be no other outstanding candidates. A surprise entrant may be William Weinstock, low sophomore president during this term. Weinstock has declared his intention to a Guardsman reporter, but never was in a serious vein.

Drouth of Material

A serious drouth of possible vice-president material may be the result of the constitutional clauses. Three possible candidates may enter the race. Mimi Colton, Helene Bowman, and Hermine King have been mentioned by students in the college as choices for this post. The first two mentioned hold office in the student body at present. Miss King is a probationary member of the Women's Service Club.

Observers are looking for several very interesting developments during the brief campaigns for office. Some members of the student body believe that the Men's Club and the Women's Service Club will unite to put a group of candidates up for approval by the student body. Although no definite confirmation of this fact could be gained by The Guardsman, the information was divulged by reliable sources.

If the constitutional clauses are adhered to, the present student body leaders will not be eligible for the offices they now hold. Bennett MacGuire and James Neal have been the president and vice-president during the first six months.

College May Be Settled In Own Building

Temporary Structures May House Students on New Site

San Francisco Junior College may cease being an orphan, given a home by various institutions, when it opens for the fall term next August.

The Board of Education contemplates construction of temporary buildings with funds now available and to be made available in the 1936-37 school department budget, according to reports.

Cost $100,000

These buildings would cost about $100,000 and could be used for about 10 years. Permanent buildings under this plan would be erected from year to year from tax monies.

The Board of Education considers the present arrangement unsatisfactory from many standpoints. The functions of the school interfere with high school activities whose facilities are used, and provide an unfavorable down-town environment for the college students.

Favor Ingleside

A few weeks ago a public hearing was held on 13 city-owned proposed sites for buildings. The most favorably looked upon is that incorporating the old Ingleside Jail site in Balboa Park. It is owned by the playgrounds department, which has expressed willingness to cooperate with the junior college.

There are some legal technicalities involved in the site—one is that it was presented to the city of San Francisco for jail purposes. This is not expected to interfere seriously with the plans of the junior college, but if it should the Abraham Lincoln site in the Sunset-Parkside district may receive favorable consideration.

Last Issue of Guardsman For Present Semester

This will be the last issue of The Guardsman for the semester. A special class time schedule will probably be issued before Registration Week.

The first issue of Volume 2 will be issued early in the spring semester. No publication date has been announced yet. With the new issue The Guardsman will be under the guidance of a new staff.

LATE BULLETINS

ANNOUNCE ELECTION DATE

Student Association elections will be held throughout finals week. This information was relayed to The Guardsman late yesterday by Dean Edwin Browne. Ballots will be distributed during the final examinations.

Petitions for office must be in the hands of Dean Browne by Friday. This deadline was set in order to give the present student administration time to print ballots and arrange details of the polling and counting of the votes.

It is believed in some quarters that the officers will be subject to the limits place on the posts by the new constitution that has not as yet been presented to the student body.

PLAN EXTRA PERIOD

Reports from a reliable source indicate that an extra class will be added to the schedule of classes in the Extension Building during the coming semester. Intermission between classes would be cut to five minutes. The morning classes would terminate at 1:20, approximately, instead of 1:00 p.m.

REPORTERS WARNED!

All students who have worked on The Guardsman staff for credit in journalism must report in person to Mr. Francis J. Colligan before the end of the semester. Scrapbooks should be turned in at that time.

VALUABLE!

Save this issue of The Guardsman. It contains valuable information concerning final examinations and general information concerning registration for next semester.

On page four of this issue will be found the complete finals schedule as released by the Registrar's office. Also on page four will be found complete information on plans for registering of old and new students.

News! Allow N.Y.A. Staffs January Time

Workers Again on Regular Schedule as Quota Released

Workers on the college NYA staff will be allowed to complete their full-time allowance of thirty-seven and one-half hours during January. This fact was made known when advices from Washington indicated that the college would be granted its full quota from the National Youth Administration to carry on the January program.

Regular Schedule

Commenting on the facts, Miss Edith E. Pence, NYA administrator, declared: "Students may work on regular schedule during the coming month. I would like to make one fact clear. Those people who will be leaving college must hand their time slips in to me before the end of the semester on January 24. This is important. However, they may turn their work records in before that date.

"As yet we have received no official advice from the National Youth Administration as to the status of the college during the coming semester. As soon as we have official confirmation, the information will be relayed to the students.

Warns Graduates

"To those students leaving San Francisco at the close of the semester I would like to issue a word of advice. Try to arrange with some returning student for notification as to the arrival of January pay checks. Workers must sign the pay roll and get their checks in person."

Students at San Francisco Junior College were made eligible for the National Youth funds through efforts of state and city officials.

Santa Comes Early

Santa Claus paid an early visit to the college when approximately $1,400 was distributed in NYA checks to the students. The checks were for work completed during November. The pay slips were distributed to all of the workers in college at the time.

First Of New Stickers Sold

600 Buy Official Emblems in Opening Sale

Six hundred students have purchased stickers in the first issue placed on sale by the Skull and Blade Society. Money derived from this sale is being turned over to the student body.

The stickers are red and white with the head of a Ram as the central motif. The letters SFJC and the word "Rams" appear on the emblems.

Sale and production of the emblems were undertaken by the Skull and Blade Society in answer to the many requests for an official sticker to represent the college. To date the club has netted all expenses and the money now coming in is going directly to the student association.

Hereafter the stickers will be on sale at the student body finance office at Room 260, Galileo.

Pi Mu Gamma Meet

There will be a meeting of the Pi Mu Gamma, medical fraternity of the San Francisco Junior College, in Room 303 of the Galileo building on Friday, January 10. All members are urged to respond, as the gathering concerns activities that will take place in the club during the next semester.

Greet New Class With Rally, Ball

Service Clubs Join In Staging Day For New Students of College

None But Freshmen Admitted; Eng. A Cards for Ducats

"Final plans for the Freshman Reception Day, to be held January 23, have been completed," stated Miss Ethel Clarkson, president of the Women's Service Society, and Al Hipsman, head of the Skull and Blade Society, when interviewed yesterday. This reception is given in order to acquaint the incoming students with the college and its activities.

The entertainment will be given by the Women's Service Society, and the Skull and Blade will take direct charge of the dance that will follow. The program will be presented in the Galileo auditorium and the dancing will take place in the girls' gym.

Start Rehearsals

Rehersals for the entertainment, which will be given in cabaret style, will start this week. Among the talent from the college selected to perform are Misses Corrine Lynwood, Margery Silk, who will sing; Miss Doris Chavez will present a Spanish dance, and Rosie and Josie will give a song and dance act.

Several skits will be given, using the dramatic talent of the college. Raymond Keast, baritone; will sing several numbers. Howard Markuse, well-known orchestra leader, will present some piano selections, and Jack Warner, versatile banjoist, will strum a piece or two.

Presidents of the prominent clubs will give very short talks on their particular activities. In addition, short speeches will be given by President Cloud, Dean Leonard, Dean Browne and Mr. Pitman. This will be the only time the incoming students will have a chance to meet and see the executive officers of the college.

Plan Refreshments

At the close of the program, refreshments will also be served in the gymnasium at the same time as the dancing is held.

Admission will only be given to the new students and the English A cards will serve as means of identification. Students from Berkeley, Oakland, and others who have not received their cards, may get them by calling at the registrar's office. Members of both service clubs will be at the door to see that only those qualified attend the reception.

The committees appointed from the Women's Service Club are as follows: Dance — Helene Bowman, chairman; Mimi Colton and Marion Gardner. Program—Ethel Clarkson, chairman; Jean Coplestone, and Burnylin Seymore. Door—Eloays Cagle, chairman; Agnes Glover, Helen Davis and Hermine King. Refreshments—Hermine King, chairman; Helene Bowman, Helen Davis, Pam Spalding, and Agnes Glover. Property—Elizabeth Yates, chairman; Donna McPherson, Ruth Peterson and Lillian Conkling.

SPOILING FUN

Withhold Grades

TILL JAN. 21

Now they're spoiling our fun!

Along with registration difficulties the Administration will distribute a handsome little present in the form of grades for the fall semester. They will be given out when the returning students enter Room 260 to start enrolling for another six months.

No grades will be given out before that time, by either the instructors or the Registrar's office. This statement was made by Mr. J. Paul Mohr, registrar.

Grades will be based on semester work and the final examinations to be held next week.

Stage Hi-Jinks Tonight

Mammoth 3-Hour Show

Event Is Planned To Climax Activities of Associated Men Students

Ask All Students To Affair Timed For 8:00 o'Clock

When the College Hi-Jinks takes the stage tonight at the Verdi Club, it will be the culmination of a term of activity of the men students of the college. The affair will be staged with funds raised by two successful boxing and wrestling tournaments sponsored by the group.

The Hi-Jinks is being limited to members of the college student body. Holders of Associated Student cards may bring a guest, not necessarily from the college. Other students will be asked to show some means of identification at the door.

Gives Thanks

Maury Schwarz, president of the Men's Club, when interviewed concerning the Hi-Jinks, said: "I would like to take this opportunity to thank the many friends of the Men's Club who have contributed both time and services to insure the success of our various activities.

"I feel that the success of the activities of the Men's Club has been due greatly to the work of several members of the college newspaper staff—Tim Guiney, sports editor, and Bill Buchan, managing editor, in particular.

"At the same time, I want to thank Bob Sisco and Uke Gras for the time they spent in arranging details for the various activities."

Final Rally

The Hi-Jinks will probably be the final rally and get-together of the college semester. All students have been invited by the sponsors of the three-hour show.

"We want to make it plain that this show is for the college, not the

Mort Werner and Joe Gardenfield, who will be featured guests tonight at the Verdi Club. Werner is a radio star from Station KGGC and is noted for his "Open House" program. Gardenfield is one of the best known wrestling referees on the Coast.

Professionals Added To Gala Event At the Verdi Club

Two Floor Shows, Ten-Piece Band Featured

Packed with professional entertainers and interspersed with talent from the junior college, a three-hour variety show will be presented at the College Hi-Jinks tonight at the Verdi Club.

Starred on the bill will be a ten-piece orchestra, two floor shows and numerous specialty acts. From the Benton Wigney Studios of Dancing will come the first floor show of more than ten numbers. In the featured spot will be Benton Wigney, who will present several oddity tap dance numbers. Along with Wigney's solo work will be singers, dancers and specialty numbers.

Two Floor Shows

The second major unit of the straight entertainment variety will be the presentation of Howard Markuso's orchestra and entertainers. Starred with the ten-piece band will be two singers who have gained a reputation at junior college and college functions. Aaron Gallant and Margo Silk, singing stars of the Los Angeles radio party staged by the college, will be the two vocalists. One of the best numbers presented by Miss Silk on the radio program was "Truckin'." As a feature of the Hi-Jinks show she will probably repeat this solo.

Instrumental novelties and acts by members of the orchestra will complete this part of the show. The orchestra will play popular dance selections throughout the intermissions on the program.

One of the brightest stars on the all-star show will be Mort Werner of the Open House program of Station KGGC. Mort has gained fame for his novel program and his method of singing with records,—"dubbing" as it is called. He has been presented in broadcasts from several of the city's major radio stations. Three years of air experience have given him a thorough knowledge of showmanship and he should be one of the real "hits" of the night.

Sports Given Place

Sports will gain a spotlighted place on the show. The Men's Club have lined up one of the West's best-known wrestling referees as a guest on the program. Joe Gardenfield, who has acted in every major bout in the city, will have with him the intercollegiate wrestling champ from the University of California—Don Morrison. One of the highlights of this portion of the program will be an exhibition bout between Sam Goldstein and Merrison.

Eight experts in the art of jui-jitsui will present an exhibition of their bout during the show. Jui-jitsui is an art of defense that has been practiced by the oriental races for centuries.

The exhibitionists will be dressed in native costume and will probably present one of the most picturesque acts of the show.

Two acts round out the program. Paul Lanning will stage a whistling and impersonation act that has been acclaimed at smokers and programs throughout the state. Comedy, ventriloquism, imitations and impersonations make up Lanning's contribution to the program.

Playing dance selections and other numbers, Leon Gras will bring his accordion to star on the program. Gras, a high school student, has made several professional appearances in the city.

Outline Plans For Enrolling Student Body

Registration by Major Study Adopted by College Administration

Bulletin

Students failing to follow the registration procedure as outlined in this issue of The Guardsman will be liable to a late registration fee of $1.00 and an additional late filing fee of $1.00.

Revealing details of the plan to be used in enrolling students next semester, Mr. J. Paul Mohr, Registrar, asked the cooperation of the student body to make the registration as simple as possible for both the students and the faculty.

The new proposal will have the members of the junior college registering according to the pre-registration choice of majors or curriculum. Elsewhere in The Guardsman will be found a complete list of the various groups. Times and dates of registration are also listed.

Commenting on the procedure to be followed during the opening week of the semester, Mr. Mohr said: "It is absolutely vital to every student that they register according to their grouping. Those who are in doubt as to the major they are following should call in at our office to check with our records.

"Another thing that I would like to bring home to the students is the fact that unless their name is on the official sign-up sheet, they will not be allowed to enter classes after registration week.

"No changes will be allowed in programs until February 1, 1936. After this date, changes may be made on Change of Program forms available in our office."

The Extension Building will not be used this year for registration purposes. All activities in this line will be conducted at Room 260, Galileo, and the Galileo cafeteria.

Midnight Oil Burns Bright

Specter of Finals Starts Last-Minute Cramming

Midnight oil will again get another workout, as many of the would-be Rhodes scholars get in and study for the final examinations to be held next week.

In spite of age-old resolutions that never again will they let things slide and always keep up on their work, in the last week of school one may see many a worried face and studious look. The libraries are doing a rushing business on books that should have been taken out last October (and also read at that time).

Some of the scholars are making elaborate plans as to what they will do next semester in case that a passing grade isn't received from all this extraordinary hard labor. Some feel that catching the first freight train would be preferable to facing the family at the dinner table after the grades go home—others feel the Orient would make a nice landing spot.

For those people interested enough to wonder when the slaying will take place—a complete final schedule will be found on the last page of The Guardsman. Don't tear the paper in an effort to see who'll be first, kiddies!

Classes Start Jan. 27

Classes will begin Monday, January 27. This announcement was made as The Guardsman went to press with the special Final Examination and Registration Week schedules. With the opening of college, a new issue of the catalogue will be available to all students and instructors.

New Log-o-type Graces Page of The Guardsman

With this issue we present The Guardsman in a new dress. Recently completed by C. Centanni, the new log-o-type or masthead is being used for the first time. He designed the log-o-type under the supervision of Mr. Richard Allman of the art department.

We Turn a Page

With the assistance of ol' Pappy Time, we have just turned the first page in the volume entitled "The History of San Francisco Junior College." One semester is behind us, another is before us; let us make the best of the opportunities at hand. With evidence to the effect that our enrollment will almost be doubled, it is needless to further emphasize how the college is growing. It is our belief that students of the jaysee neither realize nor appreciate the opportunities that are being figuratively "placed in their laps." It is not the duty of an editorial writer to preach a sermon, but by more earnest application and more diligent study we can improve our standards, and certainly, after only one term, we must not be content to rest on our laurels.

The beginning of the new term! Those words should bring joy to every student, for they mean for each of us a fresh start, a chance to improve our past performances, whether in studies, activities, or athletics. There are some who did not quite give their best this last term, lagging behind perhaps just a trifle. To those we would say, "Become more interested in the progress of your school. Resolve to bend every effort to contribute to its advancement."

Welcome, Freshmen!

Welcome, freshmen! Due to our situation and environment, your initiation into the ranks of S.F. Jaysee will not be as thorough as that treatment meted out at other nearby campi, but nevertheless our welcome is as hearty. You will find that the hours spent in college seem to go quickly, so make the most of them. Take part in and support our activities and be an active member of the student body by working for our new school and our new ambitions. You, by entering now, join in the honor of being charter members in this new institution. You have the opportunity to make a greater name for S.F.J.C. by your whole-hearted cooperation in all its activities.

Regarding Coming Elections

Student elections are a vital function in the organization of student government. Upon the coming election of officers depends the strength or weakness, the growth or retarding of the college during the spring semester. It is up to the student body, if they are anxious for a progressive semester, to seriously think on the problem of whom to vote for, and to go to the polls and cast their ballot for the welfare of the junior college. Make it your business to find out all you can about the ability and capacity of the candidates so that you can vote wisely.

We Prescribe: ACTIVITIES!

Upon being questioned, every member of our student body would undoubtedly assert that he or she is willing to give all possible assistance in the creating of a successful term at S.F.J.C.

Yet, quite a number of students will remain passive members of our college this ensuing term, plodding along with no appealing interests to add pep and vigor to their studies.

With the large field of activities available, there is no reason for such a condition. Each of these activities works in some way toward the betterment of our school, and if every student participated in at least one of these organizations, the inevitable result would be a far greater junior college.

Our Appreciation

Upon the close of the first semester of San Francisco Junior College we also bring to a close Volume One of The Guardsman. It therefore seems entirely fitting and proper that the editor make acknowledgments to those people who so willingly and wholeheartedly cooperated to make this paper an organ worthy of the student body.

First, our sincere thanks to our advisors, Mr. F. J. Colligan and Mr. L. D. Luckmann. Next it is necessary to mention our immediate assistants, whose invaluable work would be a credit to any paper. They are: Miss Jean Coplestone, news editor; Tim Guiney, sports editor; and William Buchan, managing editor.

Without further formality we will mention the names of those who graciously aided by "doing their part": Barbara Latz, Sybil Hurning, William Rawson, Paul Green, Gerald Heinrich, and Aaron Galant.

IT'S A FACT

Women students of the University of California have been the subject of study on the part of the college administration. It was found that a sorority house made no difference in the grade point average when compared with that of women living in approved boarding houses. It would be interesting to note the averages of the various co-eds on our own campus.

The University of California ranks first with the University of Wisconsin in regard to the number of adequately staffed departments, each having 31, according to reports. For a junior college, San Francisco has been declared one of the best-equipped of any, when it comes to regular faculty members.

They've started to take the poor voter apart. In a recent book, the study of the habits of voters in key sections was commented upon by the author. It would be another interesting fact if we could determine just how the vote was going in our own elections. They're due next week.

LOUDSPEAKER LOWDOWN

By JAY O'GEE

About this time of the year everybody starts to pick their favorite this and their favorite that, so we'll do a bit of our own pickin'.

The five "swingiest" bands in the land are: Benny Goodman, Glen Gray, Joe Venuti, Leon Mojica, and Ellis Kimball. If you don't believe us, ask any good musician. Goodman may be heard from the Congress Hotel in the Windy City—Chicago to you—on Tuesdays, Wednesdays, Thursdays and Fridays at 2:45 p.m. over KGO. Gray may be heard on the Camel Caravan on Tuesdays and Thursdays at 8:30 p.m. over KFRC. Venuti may be heard during the late hours over KFRC; that goes for Mojica, too, whose schedule is varied. Mojica may be tuned over KYA.

Our compliments for consistently good shows go to the following: Burns and Allen, Walter O'Keefe, Rudy Vallee, Jack Benny, the Lux Radio Theatre, Fred Allen, and the Magic Key of RCA.

The leather medal for monotony goes to: Eddy Cantor, Al Jolson, Major Bowes, Manhattan Merry-Go-Round, and Death Valley Days.

Honorable mention goes to the: Paul Whiteman shows, the Ozzie Nelson shows, the Ray Perkins shows, the Real-Silk and Bayer Aspirin programs, and the Ray Noble-Coca Cola program.

Very special mention goes to the Chesterfield program with Andre Kostelanetz and his orchestra. We maintain that Kostelanetz has the best orchestra to be heard on the air, barring none.

One of our stooges sez that the choon "Santa Claus Came in the Spring" sounds like the old one "Is I In Love, I Is." Remember?

Tom Coakley opened at the St. Francis last night, but that's probably old news to most of you.

The inauguration of the new western network brings a lot of good dance bands to Pacific Coast dialers. KGO is the bay area outlet of the Blue network.

And now back to our usual line of drivel:

Schlepperman, the one and only, has returned to the Jack Benny shows. Incidentally, this part is NOT taken by Louis Sorin, who does the McGillicuddy part on Walter O'Keefe's Caravan.

The skilled dialectician has been absent from the Benny programs since last April. He was unable to accompany Jack and Mary to Hollywood at that time because of other contracts. These have now been fulfilled and he has made the transcontinental trip from New York to appear with the troupe.

In private life Schlepperman is Sam Hearn, whose language butchering has been featured in vaudeville and musical comedy for twenty years. Like Benny, he began his entertainment career as a violinist. Later he combined comedy with music.

His first engagement on the Benny program came as the result of his portrayal of Schlepperman in the 1933 edition of the Friars Club Frolic. Jack was among the spectators. He thought Hearn was so funny that he signed him up right after the show for a guest spot on his broadcast. "Schlepp" made an immediate hit with the listeners and Benny recalled him. Subsequently he became a more or less-regular member of the cast. His two entrance lines, "Hello, Stranger," and "Jake sent me," have become national catch-phrases.

Move over, Clark Gable, Gary Cooper and Dick Powell—make room for James Melton! Long one of radio's most popular tenors, Melton is being hailed as the screen "find" of the year by the New York motion picture critics who reviewed his first starring picture, "Stars Over Broadway."

"The femme fans henceforth are going to divvy their attentions among Gable, Tone, Montgomery, Marshall, March, and James Melton." . . . "Headed for Stardom" . . . "A new screen lover who sings like nobody's business" . . . "Radio celebrity sings his way to film success" . . . "Melton has a vivid, colorful voice with an appealing picture personality." These were some of the pleasant things written about the screen debut of the handsome young tenor.

Recluse Allen Smashes Myth That Comedians Are Comical

"If I were writing publicity on Fred Allen," says Fred Allen, razor-witted star of the "Town Hall Tonight" broadcasts over an NBC coast-to-coast network Wednesday evenings at 9 p.m., P.S.T., "I would break down and give editors an eyeful.

"For instance," continued the Yankee, "who cares whether I take a two-minute egg boiled in vinegar, walk pigeon-toed all day Wednesday, comb my hair straight back so nobody can see the scar made by a moody kangaroo, or read the radio column each morning while hanging from a trapeze bar swung over the breakfast table?

"Why not give facts of significance—if any? For example, I never go anywhere and never do anything. If I walked into a night club, they would draft me into the floorshow as Rip Van Winkle. I'm just a shadow, the Microphone Myth, a jokebook wired for sound. Only a few catch even glimpses of me. Portland sees my elbows working as I tear up bills at the first of the month; the elevator boy sees my long nose lifted to catch the scent of bouquets hurled in my direction; taxi drivers detect my left ear peeking out from under my cap to pick up Bronx cheers, and autograph hunters see my trembling digits as I prolong the legend that X marks the spot.

"Every comedian is supposed to be a hail-fellow-well-met. I am Luke Long-puss. There is nothing funny about being funny. It is the toughest game in the world. It is like doing a Fred Astaire on thin eggs. If you slip, you get the bird."

SINEMA SLEUTH SAYS—

"Picking the best of the last year seems to be the style. So in accordance with the dictates of custom I present my six best pictures for 1935, say what you will."

Sinema Sleuth's 6 Best List

Lives of a Bengal Lancer

Give tops to this masterpiece. Little or no feminine angle, a hard story to prepare for the screen. Was ably directed, splendid cast, and above all was interesting.

Ruggles of Red Gap

My idea of a perfect actor, the inimitable Charles Laughton. Not a costly production but full of plain, homespun humor.

Naughty Marietta

A perfect musical, perfectly cast. My bonnet is off to the fine singing of Nelson Eddy. P. S.—He can act, too.

Annapolis Farewell

Maybe this one wasn't a million dollar production. However, out of this quiet story came one of the best pieces of acting of the year. Sir Guy Standing's characterization of Commander Fitzhugh was perfect. (At least in my estimation.)

Ah Wilderness

Another one that rates the six best list on the strength of one actor. This time it is none other than Lionel Barrymore.

Dark Angel

Put three grand actors together in a good story with proper direction and you have a "best" picture. Even if it is a remake.

COLLEGE CLIPPINGS

Los Angeles Plays Host To Newspaper Editors

Los Angeles Junior College played host to newspaper editors from the Los Angeles area. The men were guests at a luncheon tendered by the journalism department of the college. It was a get-together gathering to foster Los Angeles Junior College. If we may comment, we wonder if the bond election for schools in the southern city had anything to do with it.

Santa Rosa Honored With Editorship of Poetry Volume

Santa Rosa Junior College was signally honored when the English Club of that institution was awarded the editorship of "First the Blade." The publication is a yearbook of California Intercollegiate verse. This is the first time that the sponsorship has gone to a Northern California college.

One for Robert L. Ripley Of Believe It or Not

The faculty of Toronto University recently barred students from bringing their stenographers to class. Hereafter lecture notes will be taken in longhand by the long-suffering(?) students. Imagine what untold hardship and suffering that this will cause!

Poor Instructor Suffers From Lack of Students

At Milwaukee State there is one class of only two people. Imagine the chagrin of the instructor, who has to apply the normal grade curve rule. This is a swell example of what could be termed strength in the lack of numbers.

Fire Fails as Railroad Sends Bills for Ties

A homecoming bonfire of the Colorado College was recently rudely disrupted when the participants received a bill for railroad ties, borrowed "accidentally." The $200 bill was the direct cause of the pyre being torn down and rebuilt. (The ties were returned safely.)

Groups Form Active Portion Of Activities

List Clubs on Campus As Aid to Selection by Entering Freshman Students

(EDITOR'S NOTE: The following clubs are being listed for those entering students that are interested in some particular one of them.)

Associated Men Students. This club comprises the men students of the college. Admission is automatically granted to this organization. This term their activities included two boxing shows and a monster Hi-Jinks. Maury Schwarz is president and Mr. Joe Amori is faculty advisor.

Associated Women Students. This club comprises the women students of the college. Their activities included a Mother and Daughter tea and a special Christmas activity. The president of the A.W.S. is Helen Hall. The faculty advisor is Dean Eugenie Leonard.

The Skull and Blade Society. This group is one of the service clubs of the college. Membership is granted through vote of the club. They have had charge of the sale of the San Francisco Junior College stickers as one of their many activities. Alvin Hipachman is president. Mr. Lloyd D. Luckmann is faculty advisor.

The Women's Service Club. This is the service club for the women students. Members are admitted only through a probationary system and final approval of old members. Ethel Clarkson is president. Miss Bertha Keller is faculty advisor.

Pi Mu Gamma. This is the medical club of the college. One of the most active in planning trips to coincide with medical studies. They were hosts at a very successful dance staged Big Game night.

Camera or Photography Club. This group is starting under the direction of Mr. George Green of the faculty. A special showing of prints is one of the features of the term for this organization.

Philosophy Club. This club is maintained for those interested in the study of philosophy. Information may be obtained through any of the philosophy instructors.

A.W.S. Aids Santa; Helps One Family to Celebrate

Through the splendid cooperation of the student body, Miss Burnlyn Seymour and Ruth Johnson were able to deliver to the needy family selected by the A.W.S. a nicely filled Christmas box.

A large box of canned food was given, as were many useful clothes and a box of toys to the children. There were six children in the family, beside the mother and father.

THE SOCIAL SWIRL

Miss Helene Wright, vice-president of the A.W.S., returned Sunday from Portland, Oregon, where she spent the Christmas holidays. Miss Mary Wright, Helen's sister, returned with her and plans to enter college in the spring semester.

Miss Betty Hyde entertained at her home with a New Year's Eve party. Among those present from Junior College were: Misses Parnel Brown, Helen Hall, Ruth Peterson, Rhoda Sheppard and Bill Weinstock.

Miss Marge Silk, blues singer, returned Sunday morning from her home in Eureka, where she spent the holidays.

Miss Pat Dotterer was hostess to an after-Christmas party at her home on Dolores Street for a number of college students. Among those who were present were: Misses Pat Corcoran, Alice Power, Vera Vaughn and Clista Wilkinson and Sid Gibson, Jack Martin and Byron Warner.

Among those that traveled to Pasadena to witness the Rose Bowl game on New Year's day were: Misses Alice Power and Dorothy Vincent, and Sid Atwell. While down in the southern part of the state Miss Vincent attended the party given the football players at the Biltmore Bowl and during the course of the evening her engagement to a prominent Stanford football man was announced.

Miss Dorothy Fitzsimmon, probationary member of the Women's Service Club, surprised her many friends when it was learned here today that during the holidays she flew to New York to be married.

• • •

Another marriage that took place among the junior college students was that of Ray Hussey, associate news editor of The Guardsman, and an off the campus girl. They were married Christmas Eve at 8 o'clock at a church ceremony. Hussey will continue his work at college.

Debate Squad Starts Plans For Semester

Negotiations for Matches With Other Colleges Under Way

Laying the foundation for an active semester in debating, Lloyd D. Luckmann, varsity coach, today announced that the teams from the college would probably meet many of the schools and colleges around the bay area. Dates for the most part are tentative and will not be revealed until negotiations have been completed.

Late Start Hampers

Although hampered by a late start during the fall term, the forensic squad developed into a rather strong combination. In their first encounter with the debate team from San Francisco State they were complimented on their fine presentation of their side of the question, although the judges felt the arguments of the State team to be a little stronger.

Courses in debating have been added as an essential part of the college curricula. Students enrolling in Public Speaking 53a (debating) are eligible for credit towards the completion of their college work.

Members of Team

William Hancock and Mildred Rose were the members of the first forensic team from the college. Commenting on their appearance in the State match, Mr. David Barker declared he was impressed by the fact that the college team was more resourceful and extemporaneous in answering the arguments of the opposition.

Miss Rose was declared to be the second best speaker. Her masterful control and effective delivery were the main points in gaining for her this honor.

News Of The Clubs

Camera Men Plan Exhibition Today

An exhibition of prints by members of the Photography Club will be put on display today. As The Guardsman went to press final details were unavailable. Notice of time and place will be posted on the Extension Building bulletin board.

This will be the first activity of the newly organized group. Plans for several luncheons and regular meetings for the coming term are being worked out on the direction of the president, Robert Wenburg, and Mr. Green, faculty advisor.

Regular meetings of the organization are held on Wednesdays at 10 a. m. in the Extension Building. A charter for the new group will be drawn up and presented in the near future.

Twenty Attend Philosophy Meeting

Over twenty students attended the meeting of the Philosophy Club of December 18, at the home of Vice-President Tom Gjonovich. The topic debated that evening was "Economic Interpretation of Ethics," and it was followed by a very lively discussion.

The next meeting will be held at the home of the honorary president, Mr. David Goldshur, 1805 Vicente Street.

Hold Meet To Form Econ Club

As a preliminary step towards organizing an economics club, fifteen students met at luncheon December 19 at the Tick Tock Tavern. Faculty members present included Miss Boulton, guest of honor; Mr. Michael Zarchin, Miss Jeanette Henderson, and Mr. Goss. Application for a charter for the club is being made by Wallace Fowler, student head of the organization.

men alone. Although it is being staged by the Men's Club, we want the co-eds to feel that they are more than welcome."

Prominent San Francisco firms will have a major part in making the affair a success. Contributors of food and cigarettes, such companies as Peter Paul Candy Co., makers of the famous Peter Paul Mounds; the Sterling Mint Company; the J. N. Collins Co.; Bunte Candy Co.; Euclid Candy Co.; Wrigley's Gum and the American Chicle Co. have given their products for the show.

Some of the best-known names in candy will be given to the spectators of the Hi-Jinks: Love Nests from the Euclid company, gum from Wrigley's, Gold Tip gum from the Sterling Mint Company, and candy from J. C. Collins and bars from the Bunte factory, are a small part of the "eats."

DIARY OF A CO-ED

Dear Diary:

You must be a very despondent diary by now. But gee, I've been so busy, what with Christmas and all, I just haven't been able to spend a little time with you.

Diary, I met the swellest fellow New Year's Eve at the Palace. Honestly, I'm afraid it's love. He's tall and blond, blue eyed. An ideal dream man. He's going to phone me tonight. I'll have lots to tell you on him.

New Year's Eve And I Met HIM!

The party New Year's Eve was simply grand. We went to the Rose Room Bowl. Later on we slipped into the Palm Court to listen to Carvel Craig. Now I am in a mess! My allegiance to Paul Pendarvis is weakened since I saw Craig. He's got black hair and one of the swingiest hands I know (outside of the Rose Room Bowl bunch).

I wonder if I were dreaming, or did I see Bob Eltringham and Stutz McNear dancing in the Rose Room? There were so many people I knew that I've forgotten almost all of them.

Diary, I'm so excited about the new B.F. that I can't write any more. Guess I'll turn the pages and see what went on during the term. It has been a swell semester, hasn't it?

College Night! Can I ever forget it? It was a grand party that they staged that night. I don't think the bunch could have had a better time. At least Lois Toso was in Heaven with that Stanford date and Helen Mann was thrilled, or looked it, with Bob Kahn. Bill Weinstock trying to recite poetry to Nancy Spaulding in the corner was just divine. Diary, I almost forgot that Helen Lauer and Dick Reilly were there. Then Bill Devlin walked in with adorable Betty McIntyre. I was almost jealous.

Semi-Formal Was Perfect, Even for Me

College Night was swell. But when the college staged the Semi-Formal at the Palace in the Gold Room, it was perfect. The dance was swell and Freddie Nagel was grand, too. (I still think I like Paul Pendarvis.)

They introduced the A.W.S. officers, remember, diary? I told you about Helen Hall looking so charming when they turned the spotlight on her. Diary, I am disappointed. They said she was there with a big railroad man and I didn't even meet him. I think that was cruel.

Remember the time Rubino had trying to take photographs? He did get Patty Wells and Inez St. Ledger to pose for as pretty a shot as you could see in the newspapers.

Those two orchids that Betty McNeill rated still have me on pins and needles.

I almost wish they could hold a Semi-Formal like that every night in the week. Even if they couldn't get the Rose Room Bowl all the time, I'd be glad to dance in the Palm Court or the Rose Room.

Diary, why didn't you tell me that Parnll Brown gave up the Modesto trip to go to the dance with Johnny Finn? And why didn't you say something about Jean Coplestone and her husband? I think I'll have to get ambidextrous (that'll hold you, diary) and try to get one. She's lucky she saw him first.

There's the phone! I hope it's who I think, diary. If I'm lucky I'll tell you lots of things. We are going to the Palace tomorrow night. I'm just too thrilled.

P.S.: Diary, can you keep a secret? HE is a former All-American basketball player. I think I'll be adding a little souvenir to my collection tonight. It's a little gold basketball, and will I be proud to wear it!

Women's City Club Will Continue Guest Cards

Cards given to the women students of the college for guest privileges at the Women's City Club will continue next semester, it was announced today.

The guest cards entitle the co-eds to go to the club any time during the day in order to rest or study. While the Northern California Press Convention was being held last December the club rooms were available to women attending the conclave.

Anyone desiring these cards may obtain them by making application to Miss Pence.

THANKS CLUB

The Co-Ed's Corner wishes to thank the Women's City Club for use of their club rooms during the Northern California Press Convention held December 9.

CO-ED'S CORNER RETURNS

When The Guardsman resumes publication during the coming semester the Co-Ed's Corner will be found in its usual place on page 2. Due to the added Registration and Final Schedule Information, the Corner was discontinued temporarily.

Customers Get Action With Bouts

Football Men Save Schwarz—or Try To—at Fights

By Bill Buchan

Even if they almost forgot "Wee Willie," the fans went home from the second Men's Club ring circus with the smug satisfaction that they "got their money's worth." Add four or five fast boxing matches to the same number of grunt and groan struggles and top them with an exhibition match between a "Sad Sam" Goldstein and an "Iron Man" Schwarz and you should have contented fans. Throw in a little action when the football men invaded the ring to save Maury Schwarz from the clutches of the sedulous Mr. Samuel Goldstein and you have a near riot. All in all it was bigger and better than ever.

K.O.'s Missing From Second Show

Devoid of the knockouts that featured the first ring bouts of the club, the battles were won more or less on merit and boxing skill. Gene Sullivan pulled a nice rally in the third stanza of his bout with Jimmy Fahn to share in the decision. It was a fast bout with Fahn holding a slight edge in the first rounds. Sullivan shook off several hard rights and caught the eye of the judges with his nicely timed comeback.

In the one forty-seven class Chester Cade and Carlyle Cain hooked up. Cain was awarded the verdict, although several ringside observers called the match a draw. Cain was the disappointed opponent of the now famous "Wee Willie," so called bard of the college.

Tom Connelly scored a technical knockout over Marlin Jefferson in the first round of their scheduled three round bout. Connelly forced the fighting and caught Jefferson with several hard blows. After several minutes of the fight Jefferson was unable to continue and the bout was stopped.

Schwarz May Get Break Yet

In the first of the two feature boxing bouts of the show, Maury Schwarz was given a draw with the "Killer" Kremesec. Kremesec failed to show the form seen in the first ring show. A concensus of opinion among ringside spectators gave the verdict to Schwarz, who held the aggressive throughout most of the battle. Kremesec was able to land few punches that did damage and failed to hold the Men's Club president with any of his blows.

In their return match, Jack Brigham floored John Finnegan for the count early in the first round of their scheduled three round heavyweight bout. Finnegan only hit the canvas twice in this match, Brigham flooring him three times in their first encounter.

As an added attraction the grunt and groan artists of the college were added to the bill. The wrestling exhibition between "Sad Sam" Goldstein and Schwarz climaxed this half of the program. Incidentally, the eleventh renewal of the Goldstein-Schwarz feud was called a draw. Even with the help of the referee and football players the judges decided it was the better part of discretion to call the match even.

Hillspich Takes Decision In Fast Time

In the best of the wrestling bouts, Charles Hillspich took one fall and the decision from Bill Moll in three minutes and twenty-five seconds with a crotch hold. Frank Knowlton made quick work of Charles Blumenthal, winning with one fall in one minute and thirty seconds.

In the other bouts Charles Brickley, former city high school champ, took two decisions from his football teammates. In the first bout he took on Bob Kurtz and won the fall in three minutes. He defeated Tom Maner in three minutes and twenty seconds. Ernie Doudet defeated Louis Mazer in four minutes and fifty seconds.

The proceeds of the fights will be used for the Hi-Jinks to be staged at the Verdi Club tonight.

IT SEEMS THAT—

It seems that the College of the Pacific frosh are anxious to meet our Ram varsity in a basketball game, and they don't particularly care where it is played. Wonder if they will want to meet them when they hear how the Rams won their last few games?

SPORTS COMMENT

By TIM GUINEY

Sports Editor,
The Guardsman
Dear Sir:

In the December 13 issue of The Guardsman you created the impression that the basketball team was a poor one because of its "two terrific beatings" from the Y.M.I. and the Evening High School of Commerce. The team need not feel any shame for these losses.

The Y.M.I. are Northern California champions, defeating such strong quintets as the Olympic Club and the University of San Francisco, and went east to the national finals to represent California. The Evening High School of Commerce is almost as strong as the "Y" and sports such formidable players as Cy West, former Y.M.I. ace, and Jack Happoldt, Y.M.C.A. star.

I believe that The Guardsman should show what the team is going against—at least give us the scores of the games even if they are "terrific," and give all the teams a break by boosting them once in a while.

O.B.

Comment: Well, O. B., if you remember, we wrote our column as follows: "The basketball team has already taken two terrific beatings . . . from the Y.M.I. and the Evening High School of Commerce." Just that—no more, no less.

There were no comments made either slamming or praising the team. You suggested that we "boost" our teams once in a while. Check back on the old issues of our paper and you'll see that we've done quite a bit of "boosting," and we'll continue to praise the team athletes every time the opportunity affords itself.

We Get a Letter

Sports Editor,
The Guardsman,
Dear Sir:

Now that the brickbats have been thrown and that you have taken all that you would have to take from trying to present an unbiased picture of the athletic situation at San Francisco, may I sneak in with a word of praise. I have been connected with, and have seen other junior college papers. I have never seen one that has been able to openly discuss and present the facts on controversial issues of the college as The Guardsman did in the recent issue. My hat is off to you and your staff. It took more than courage to write about a mess that is as bad as was painted. But somehow I believe that you only touched the surface.

While I am writing this, I'm going to say a few words about one of the organizations in the college. The Men's Club deserve more than their share of praise for the creditable bouts they staged at the Verdi Club. Thanks for letting me in on your column.

W. H. R.

Comment: Thanks for those kind words, W. H. R. However, here's where we would like to clear up something that has been brought to our attention concerning "signed" articles appearing in this and other publications.

We have been complimented by many for the fact that we were willing to sign our name to the column appearing in the last issue of The Guardsman. In the same breath many people condemned the writer of the editorial also appearing in the same issue concerning the student body affairs, charging that he was "afraid" to write it under his own name.

We can only tell you that editorials written by members of newspaper staffs are never signed. A sports column, carrying a by-line in every issue, must continue to carry the name of the writer despite the nature of any of the comments in it. All that we can do is ask you to see the matter from the journalistic point of view and bear with the editorial writer who is merely presenting the views and policies of the publication.

Still Seeking a Crew!

Louder and louder becomes the demand for a crew here in the Jaysee. Former crewmen from San Francisco high schools and other junior colleges are openly disappointed in the fact that our San Francisco College is not yet represented by a group of oar-benders.

As we have explained time and again, the cost of a crew here in the college would be very nominal, the only expenses being the output for oars. Whaleboats, or cutters, if you prefer, are furnished free by the U. S. Navy.

The material in the college is excellent. The majority of the championship crew of San Mateo is now here in the J. C., right down to their captain, Neil Martin. Members of the high school crews of last year are still wandering around the college in an attitude of "watchful waiting."

All in all, there is plenty of good reason why we should have one.

Lightweights Announce New Schedule, Open Season

After having successfully competed in a series of short practice tilts, the 145-pound basketball team of San Francisco Junior College now moves into the ranks of some heavier competition.

The first of the series of games under the "new deal" has been tentatively scheduled for Friday, to be followed by a preliminary game with the Golden Gate J.C. lightweights in the latter part of the following week.

Then, on Wednesday, January 22, the team will tangle with the Jewish Community Center's B's, and will follow this tussle by playing two games against the San Francisco State lightweights.

Other games with various jaysees, high schools and club lightweight teams are being formulated.

The team was successful in its initial encounter with the High School of Commerce, although it was beaten in its second encounter with the Evening Division of the Commerce school.

Especially brilliant play has been turned in so far by Mitzman and Gaskin at forward; Kennedy, center; and by Nelson and Britton at guard.

San Francisco State Gets Long-Needed Sports Field

San Francisco State recently won a five-year battle to acquire the old Recreation Park site on Valencia street for a sports field. The college will take the land on a five-year lease with the option to purchase in 1941. Money for improvements and for rental will come out of the budget of the college. Improvements planned include bleachers, tennis courts, football field, dressing rooms, and a soccer field.

Youngsters Challenged By Faculty

Arnica Needed As Teams Indulge in Soft Ball

Did you ever see a dream walking? Well, for that matter, did you ever see a ball team made up of the faculty of a college? That's what is going to be seen on the Galileo field Friday afternoon, January 17.

The instructors of the college have all handed together and decided to show the youngsters the gentle art of how to play soft ball; and they will tangle with a team composed of the student body of S. F. J. C.

Faculty Posts Perpetual Trophy

There's even a trophy for the winner. This will be put up by the members of the college faculty, and will be used as a perpetual prize. This will be the inaugural tilt in the start of a game to take place between these two factions annually.

Lee Eisan has been named as the manager of the faculty team, although that won't interfere with his taking care of the keystone corner. Bennett MacGuire will probably be named as organizer and manager of the student body representatives.

Those attending this game will also probably witness the debut of Russ Sweet as a hurler. Calling signals for him will be Joe Amori, a rugby player of some note.

Faculty Lineup Looks Good

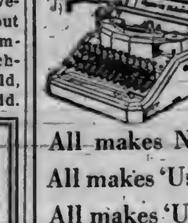
A sign-up list for the students of the college who wish to join the "youngsters" team will be posted in the Galileo Gym tomorrow.

And—Psst—it's even being whispered around the campus that in the event Russ Sweet should lose control of the situation, Archie Cloud, the fireball artist, may go in as the relief chucker.



Wilson Plans Net Tourney

Champion of College Will Come from Matches

It has been announced that a tournament will soon be held to determine the tennis championship of the college, with everyone eligible to participate. A sign-up board is expected to be posted shortly. This tournament is to consist of both singles and doubles matches.

A noticeable feature of the new semester for tennis enthusiasts will be the class lessons to be taught by Mr. Wilson as regular physical education periods. Classes will probably be held twice a week.

Basketball Team Starts String Of Hoop Victories

By Tim Guiney
Guardsman Sports Editor

It would seem that the Ram basketball team are beginning to come into their own. Or so I gather, after watching them take their third consecutive victory in their last three starts. Their latest victim was the Olympic Club Cardinals, or 145's, if you prefer.

The "Unknowns," as they have been called, started in their victorious drive by going in to work on the barnstorming Glendale J.C. quintet and taking them for a buggy ride to the tune of 52 to 31, a decisive enough score in any man's ball game.

The Rams followed this by taking a close one over the powerful U.S.F. to extend a welcome to you and to offer the benefit of all services t[o] J.C., one of the conference teams that San Francisco will tangle with later on in the year.

Then came last Monday night's skirmish with the Olympic Cardinals, and again the Rams finished on the long end of the score, this time it being 26 to 19. Starring in this game for the victors were Ernie Lonstalot and "Red" Dowans.

Coach Louis "Dutch" Conlan is still none too optimistic about the team's chances in the conference race, although when backed against the wall he will admit that their chances are what you might call "fair to middlin'."

The conference race will probably start its inaugural tilt on January 25, or thereabouts. Prior to that time, however, the "Unknowns" will tangle with a few more of the non-conference teams.

The tentative first-string team as selected by Coach Conlan so far this season has been: Hillsman and McSweeney at forwards; Glynn at center, and Lonstalot and Rippon handling the two guard positions.

TIME OUT

Interesting repercussions of the recent issue of The Guardsman . . . one team took the message to heart apparently . . . they trounced a barn-storming squad . . . forget the score right now . . . and then they went out and took a fairly good U.S.F. frosh team . . . beat 'em by three points . . . . . . ah well . . . one person in particular said . . . about statements in the recent issue . . . "It's all a bunch of lies" . . . although that particular person wasn't mentioned . . . proof was gathered from several sources . . . ah well . . . The student body president and our managing ed had a good cry together . . . wonder why? . . . But that's not sports news . . . So the Stanfords are national heroes . . . and the sports staff is going camping for a week or two . . . at least 'til the game is forgotten . . . looks like the third time was a charm . . . it was about time Stanford took it in its head to win in the Rose Bowl . . . The California basketball team are having an up-and-down time of it on their tour . . . still I bet the Easterners are going for the Price style of play . . . it's colorful to say the least . . . Speaking about basketball, we have a good forty-fives . . . whether you know it or not . . . too bad they aren't entered in the city tournament . . . Lee Eisan should be dusting off the baseball rule book . . . it's almost time . . . which reminds us . . . it'll be spring fever time as well . . . the sports editor picked SMU, much to the disgust of a certain person . . . ah well!

*That authorities look for San Francisco Junior College to surpass the record of Los Angeles. When the college reaches its full growth, close to six thousand will be students. That is according to present estimates.

*That the college colors are red and white. The college symbol is the ram.

Campus Heads Introduced To New Students

Sketches Give Brief Facts on Leaders in College Government

(EDITOR'S NOTE: The following story on various personalities of the college is being presented for the benefit of the new students that will enroll in the coming term.)

Bennett MacGuire, President of the Associated Students during the fall semester. Ben MacGuire came to San Francisco from Lowell High School. He had the difficult task of steering the student government through the mixup of the first semester.

Maury Schwarz, President of the Men's Club. Maury Schwarz is a transfer from San Mateo. He has been more than active in the affairs of the college. His organization staged two successful boxing and wrestling programs and a Hi-Jinks. ing of Nelson Eddy. P. S.—He can act, too.

Dean Browne took upon his shoulders the task of arranging for the affairs of the student association. He is noted as a piano player and as being the friend of every member of the student body and those who are the friends of San Francisco Junior College.

Paul M. Pittman, Assistant to the President. "Pitt" was formerly Big Brother of Station KPO. He is one person that every newcomer to the college should meet.

Joe Goodell, Editor of The Guardsman. He is a transfer from San Mateo and has been more than active in the stand of The Guardsman in attempting to straighten out the policies of the student association.

Helen Hall, President of the Associated Women Students. Helen Hall came from Galileo and has gained fame for her work in the interests of the women students. Her organization gave the first Mother and Daughter tea in the history of the college.

OFF THE RECORD

*We've got one we can call a real typographical error. Somehow someone slipped up in the last issue. The seasonal total in the football team's record should read something like 62 points instead of 56. Still nobody put in a word to the Campus Opinion or Vox Pop department. Maybe we should have let it go by unnoticed.

*The "tall and handsomes" of Loyola have a new fairy godmother, according to movie "clip" sheets. It seems Mae West presented the football team with a new water wagon. Maybe we could get Mae to intercede (?) while our football team goes to work on Los Angeles to bring the Roos trophy home next fall.

*Ambitious promoters have organized a date bureau at Occidental. Wise or otherwise, they use "agents" to arrange the dates. Maybe those who tried to found such an institution at San Francisco would be wise to take a page from the book of the southern promoters.

*This is the last number of the first series of The Guardsman. We are going into this a little shamefacedly, but here it is: While Los Angeles says they have the greatest junior college paper in the world, we'll stick our head out the window and say The Guardsman is the finest in the State of California, and from all reports Los Angeles is still in California!

We Introduce—

Archibald J. Cloud, President of San Francisco Junior College, and Dr. Eugenie A. Leonard, Vice-president and Dean of Women of San Francisco Junior College, are the administrative leaders of the college. Mr. Cloud was formerly the stern instructor of a fair-haired girl, who has become our own Dean of Women.

PLAIN FACTS

*The first junior college was established in 1848 in Illinois. The first California junior college was established at Fresno in 1917.

*Junior colleges are not limited to the two-year course or curricula. There are several types of junior colleges: two-year institutions, such as San Francisco; four-year institutions such as Pasadena and Ventura; six-year colleges and colleges connected with universities, such as Pittsburgh and Minnesota.

*Junior colleges have been established in every state of the Union except Nevada. At the present time there are probably more than 500 institutions of this nature in the United States.

*The two-year type of junior college has proven the most popular throughout the country. Graduates from the junior college can enter practically every college or university in America.

*The junior college is not limited to preparing students for entrance to higher institutions of learning. It provides adult education for those desiring to improve their background or make use of leisure time in learning a trade or profession.

*Students desiring to take all the courses offered by the San Francisco Junior College would spend eighteen years at the college. This is a general average based on an ordinary program of 16 units of work a semester.

*San Francisco Junior College carries on a complete program of activities. This semester the first football team of the college played a regular schedule of games. The team was outfitted and financed through Student Association funds. The Guardsman is another activity that is supported through such aid.

*The big Big Game of the football year is the encounter with Los Angeles. This year the Cubs beat San Francisco. The teams play for a perpetual trophy donated by Roos Bros.

Basketballers Are Off to A Good Season

Cast a Ballot to Decide Upon Location

Schwarz Wins Race For Prexy; Neal Is Elected Treasurer

Betty Hyde and Donna MacPherson Take Posts as Secretaries; Mimi Colton and Jimmy Fahn Unopposed

Coming through with a substantial lead over his four opponents, Maury Schwarz was elected president of the Associated Students in the elections held last week. Mimi Colton, unopposed for her office, was named vice-president.

Yell leader for the spring semester will be Jimmy Fahn, whose election was taken as a matter of course. Betty Hyde received the most votes for the corresponding secretary's position, while Donna MacPherson was a close race for the job of recording secretary. Bob Neal, former freshman president, won the treasurer's post vacated by Allan Koblick.

NO FINALS

With the large number of presidential candidates, it was expected that a final election would be run off between the two highest candidates. However, Schwarz' lead was so heavy that he was declared elected on the primary ballot. Defeated candidates were Allan Koblick, James Neal, Pete Jambruno, and Bill Weinstock.

Other candidates included the following: Treasurer, Ben Deane and Frank Pedersen; corresponding secretary, Joseph Kissell; and recording secretary, Peggy Mahoney.

Only about 20 per cent of the student body voted, the average proportion in most junior colleges.

ACTIVITIES PLANNED

Promising an energetic tenure in office, Schwarz advocates immediate presentation and adoption of the constitution as the first accomplishment of the semester. An extensive program of student body activities is also planned.

Miss Colton, who will be in charge of social functions for the semester, said she hoped to arrange a social calendar which will meet with the approval of the entire student body. Long active in women's and social activities, the new vice-president is well known to the student body.

New Students Welcomed By Dean Of Men

Definite Challenge to Youth Cited by Edwin Browne; Offers Services

To those students coming for the first time to our San Francisco Junior College, I want to extend my personal welcome.

To the returning students, may I say in all sincerity, I am glad to see you back.

All of us have a very definite challenge in that we have the opportunity to accommodate ourselves to a system that is somewhat disrupted because of the lack of an independent junior college plant. The real test of our citizenship will prove itself by the manner in which we accept this challenge.

A few years from now we can look back upon the experimental beginnings as one of the happiest experiences of our lives. The more difficult our job becomes, the more pride we should take in accomplishing it. The leaders of tomorrow are those who participate in the activities of today. We shall need you to guide us in later years, and to that end we want to be of whatever service we can to you during the present. My hope is that each one of you will affiliate himself with some organization that will permit of service to the community. Whether it be athletics, service clubs, or any of the various extra-curricular activities, it will be of invaluable assistance to you that you do what you can to build up character through services rendered and friendships made.

Please keep in mind that the office of the Dean of Men is always open to you, and if I can be of any assistance in any problems that come up in your life experiences, I am only too happy to offer my services.

We want the public to be proud of our institution, and by working together in our various capacities, we can establish San Francisco Junior College in the hearts of our people.

Success to you in your new undertaking, and may your college experience be such that you will always have pleasant memories of the times spent with us.

Sincerely,

E. C. BROWNE,
Assistant Dean of Men.

New Assembly Schedule Is Adopted

Planning to install an organized system of assemblies and activity opportunities, the Administration has adopted a schedule for these functions which will be in effect throughout the next semester.

The schedule will provide for one college assembly and one business meeting of the Associated Students each month. These affairs will occur on alternate Thursdays, according to Paul Pitman, assistant to President A. J. Cloud, in the Galileo auditorium between the hours of 1:45 and 2:30 p.m.

The use of the auditorium at this hour—one which will not interfere with curricular functions—was made possible through the courtesy of authorities of the Galileo High School. Previously, group meetings were held at the sacrifice of ordinary class hours.

In order to make the new system a success and to avoid congestion, students are asked to enter the auditorium through the inner court doors.

The first of these assemblies will be held on Thursday afternoon, January 30.

DAVIS HEADS CHEMISTS

The college Chemistry Club had its first meeting last term, at which Willis Hester of the Galileo faculty gave a liquid air demonstration.

After the demonstration, the following officers were unanimously elected: President, Allen Davis; vice-president, Ethel Ogden; and secretary-treasurer, Francis Barbara.

Complete with a "big top" measuring 300 by 150 feet, the Big "C" Sirkus of the University of California will be on the campus soon. The Sirkus, held on February 29 of each leap year, will open its doors on Edwards Field next to the men's gymnasium.

Students Ask For New Greek Course

Anxious to develop college study of classical languages, thirteen students have requested organization of a course in elementary Greek.

Pleasurably impressed by the interest shown by the group of students, the administration will give immediate consideration to the facilities and the actual number of students signing for the course. Whether the course will be offered in the spring semester will depend largely on the size of classes in the classical language department. Should it be possible to present the course in elementary Greek at this time, it would be under the direction of Henry D. Soule, instructor in Latin.

PIPE-FISH FOSSILS STUDIED

One of the only known five of its kind, a collection of fossil pipe-fish received by the University of California paleontology museum recently is now the subject of intensive study, according to C. J. Hesse of the museum staff.

College Gets Full Quotas From NYA

Jobs Now Available For 176 Students at $15 Monthly

Work Is Under Miss Pence; Office in 260, Galileo

NYA time reports for the month of January must be handed in to Miss Edith Pence, college NYA administrator, by Monday, January 27, according to the works director. Although the period technically ends on the 28th, reports will be handed in one day earlier in order to clear up fall semester accounts before the spring semester begins.

Advice from the state director of the National Youth Administration indicates that the San Francisco Junior College will be allowed a full quota of the government money for the months of February, March, April and May. This will enable 176 students to be employed for an average of 37½ hours each per month, earning an average of fifteen dollars apiece per month.

The figures for the spring semester are based on a percentage of the total enrollment in the college during the past term.

In order to obtain work, students must comply with the following rules:

(a) The NYA is intended only for those students who will be financially unable to attend college without assistance.

(b) NYA workers must enroll for at least 12 units of college work and maintain a satisfactory scholarship average.

(c) Students who have worked under the NYA during the fall semester, and who find it imperative to continue the work, will fill out forms applying to be relisted for the coming semester. These forms may be obtained at Room 260, Galileo, daily from 2 to 4 p.m.

(d) Those students who have not heretofore been employed under the NYA in this college, and who must obtain work in order to continue their education, may apply for positions by writing a letter to Miss Pence, care of the junior college, stating their need of aid and the kinds of work they are able to do.

Employment may be secured in the following departments: Typing, stencil and mimeograph, charts and maps, correction of papers, laboratories, physical education, office, and library.

PART-TIME JOBS

Occasional openings for women students to do housework or care for children are available, according to Edith Pence, for room and board or financial compensation.

Women planning such employment should plan programs to leave their afternoons free, and should leave application with Miss Pence as soon as possible.

WINNER!

Mimi Colton, above, was unanimously elected vice-president of the Associated Students at the recent election. Miss Colton has been active in co-ed affairs since her entry into the college last August.

Service Clubs Greet Frosh With Music

Gridmen Do Spring Dance in Program Starring Hagens as M.C.

Freshman Reception Day, sponsored by the Women's Service Society in collaboration with the Skull and Blades, men's organization, was celebrated in the Galileo auditorium Thursday afternoon when the two groups presented an entertainment and dance for the benefit of enrolling frosh.

After an opening address by President Maury Schwarz, President Cloud, Paul Pitman, Dean of Men Browne, and Dean of Women Eugenie Leonard were presented to the audience along with representatives of the five leading student organizations.

SHOW 25 ACTS

A stage show featuring more than 25 acts was presented, with George Hagens as master of ceremonies. Vic Walter's orchestra was featured with Marge Silk and Corinne Lynwood as vocalists.

Other acts included Doris Chavez in a Spanish dance; a girls' trio composed of Helene Wright, Ruth Peterson, and Marygail Konkel; songs by Jack Welsh and Ethel Clarkson; instrumental numbers by Jack Martin and members of the orchestra; dances by Ida, Dorothy and Josephine Jones, and Rosie Le Doux.

The feature attraction of the afternoon was a spring dance done in the vein of the Cambodian Ball by several football players under the personal direction of Dean Browne.

500 ATTEND

The dance was held in the women's gymnasium, where refreshments were served along with Walter's music. Subject A cards were used as means of admission to prevent upperclassmen from "crashing."

Upwards of 500 freshmen attended the function, which was headed by Ethel Clarkson, W.S.S. president, and Al Hipsbman, head of Skull and Blades.

Block SF Society Is Planned From Remains of H&J Group

Formation of a Block SF Society out of the jumbles of the now defunct H & J Club is now the problem which confronts football men, idle at the conclusion of the grid season.

Some twenty members of the Ram varsity received their letters recently and they plan to obtain Russ Sweet as advisor, drawing up a constitution and putting the block organization on a running basis.

Especially active in the movement are Pete Jambruno, center on the grid outfit, and Tom Murphy, captain of the first S.F.J.C. varsity.

Information as to a probable meeting to formulate definite plans will be found in these columns in a future issue. Following is the list of those eligible for the society by virtue of their possessing the first letters issued by the college: Tom Murphy, Vasco Vanelli, George Pedrin, Charles Kremesec, Jack Telesmanic, Tyler McHugh, Pete Jambruno, Bob Kurtz, Charles Brickley, Russ Clarke, Adolph Pedrin, Glenn Allen, George Warren, Bob Lee, Charles Olberg, Eddie Cassino, Odero Guisti, Tony Scafani, George Clarke, George Pantages, Tom Mauer, Forrest Morrison, and Bob Eltringham.

Inasmuch as a block organization is an integral part of every college, it is expected that developments will arise in the next few days. The membership will be considerably enlarged by the end of the semester, when participants in basketball, track and baseball receive their awards.

Subjects which are taught at Mission are Business 63 (Subject A), Miss Helen Reveal, instructor; hygiene, Miss Bertha Keller; business typing, Mr. Joseph Amori; business ethics, Mr. Lloyd Luckmann; business mathematics, Mr. Amori; and stenography, Miss Reveal.

This arrangement obviates many women students' having to come to the Extension Building in the mornings, the college office has advised.

Executives Greet With Best Wishes

College Can Give Aid in Reaching Goals, Says President

The first semester has drawn to a close. The college is no longer merely a scheme on paper; it is a running concern. It has given demonstration to the people of San Francisco that a real need exists for an institution of its kind—for a college to form an integral part of the public school system, supported by tax moneys.

Both instructors and students during the organization period have met many inconveniences with unfailing strength and cheerfulness. They have shown good will and helpfulness one toward another. Such qualities may be regarded as constants even in a "changing world." They represent valuable elements in the art of co-operative living, so necessary to individual and group in the society of today and tomorrow.

To incoming students: I am glad to extend a welcome to you and to offer the benefit of all services the college is in a position to render. Many among you will doubtless go through periods of adjustment (some longer, some shorter), for you have now arrived, in a sense, at the cross-roads of life.

Relatively soon you must arrive at decisions bound to influence greatly the careers upon which you will embark. The college can aid you in many ways in developing your plans and in enabling you to advance toward a successful realization of them.

Best wishes; and, again, greetings!

ARCHIBALD J. CLOUD,
President.

Dean Leonard Terms Youth Fortunate in Welcome

"Two More Years To Grow, Develop"

A word of welcome, a hearty handclasp, the jostle and rush of signing up for classes and lo! you're initiated. You are a full-fledged college student. Congratulations! and good luck! Two years more to learn, two years more to grow and develop before you face the world of competition and struggle for a livelihood. Fortunate youth of San Francisco—1936!

Are you really among the fortunate who know the prize within your reach? Are you mature enough really to stretch your mind, encompass new knowledge, strain at old careless habits until they change to vigorous, clear thinking? It takes more than a desk, a test-tube and a teacher to make a college. They are immobile without the alchemy of your young, curious minds. Fortunate youth, welcome and congratulations!

EUGENIE A. LEONARD.

Music Department Looks for Talent

Attention, students!

The Music Department can frequently afford opportunities to students for radio performances and other types of entertainment experience, and in order to discover all possible talent, a census will be taken next week.

Anyone who sings or plays any kind of instrument is requested to register with Miss Flossita Badger or Mr. Donald Sandifur, and arrange for a hearing.

Perhaps if you are not a soloist, you would like to make one of a small group.

It is not necessary to be registered in the Music Department if you have had some performing experience, or are ready for it.

As a farewell to one and a welcome to the other, a party for the old and new executive committee members was held recently at the home of Assistant Dean Edwin C. Browne. Among faculty members present were Mr. and Mrs. Agosti, Patricia Ricciardi, Milton Ecke and the Brownes.

Rumor Of $100,000 For Housing Of J.C.; Site Not Yet Selected

Board of Education Intensely Interested In Welfare of College; Rapid Action Expected After Decision

Forced to resign themselves to at least one more semester as "a college sans a campus," student and administrative heads are still looking hopefully towards the San Francisco Board of Education for the selection of a site whereon the San Francisco Junior College can be built.

"Hopes that steps towards this realization will be taken soon were evident when it was pointed out that the college, compelled to add an extra lecture hour to the curricula in order to accommodate the influx of freshmen, is now enrolled to the capacity of its present temporary facilities.

MARINA, LOWELL OUT

That the board is aware of the conditions was evinced when it recently proposed two plans in an attempt to relieve difficulties. Both were found unsatisfactory. One plan called for part-time occupation of the new Marina Junior High School Building, which is nearing completion; this suggestion was withdrawn. Another unverified report mentioned the Lowell High School grounds as a college campus. This was an impossibility, according to officials.

Late in December the board met to consider the relative values of more than thirteen sites which had been proposed for the college, but no decision was made, the matter being taken under advisement.

Considerable attention has been given two areas now owned by the city: the Ingleside jail grounds and the Abraham Lincoln school site in the Sunset district.

TEMPORARY FUND

Rumors circulated last week said the board was considering a plan whereby $100,000 would be appropriated to construct temporary buildings on a site yet to be selected. The report said this set-up would be effective for about ten years.

The Board of Education has definitely decided to restrict the selection of a site to city-owned property or property which might be exchanged for real estate now held by the board for this district.

Knowledge that the present arrangement is unsuitable to Extension and Galileo students as well as junior college members will probably bring action in the near future, it is believed.

In line with The Guardsman's policy of fostering junior college movements, a ballot is being taken to determine which of the suggested sites is most desirable to the college students, who, after all, are the ones most interested. Students are asked to fill out the blanks, cut the ballot form from the paper, and deposit it in one of the boxes which will be provided in the mezzanine ticket booth at Powell Street and at the south gate of Galileo. Everyone is urged to vote. The opinion of the students may have a grave bearing on the site selected.

Late Entrance Schedule Given By Registrar

Students Are Urged to Use Care in Arranging Proper Courses

Late registration will be held from January 27 to January 31, inclusive, at Galileo Building from 3:30 o'clock to 5:30 in the afternoons, according to Registrar Paul Mohr.

For the benefit of those who may enter late, the registrar has announced the procedure to be followed:

1. Fill out residence card and pay incidental Associated Students fee ($6.00), late registration fee ($1.00), and late filing fee ($1.00) in Room 260. Receive registration book.
2. New students have pictures taken in Room 401.
3. Report to program advisors in cafeteria and make out semester's program.
4. Sign up for courses in cafeteria.
5. File registration book and make out attendance card in cafeteria. Official certificate of registration will be stamped and registration completed.

While making out the programs, students should bear in mind that, although the faculty will do all it possibly can in the selection of courses, the final responsibility for taking the proper courses to meet the desired requirements rests in the hands of the students themselves, Mohr has stressed.

Kersey Re-elected National President

Vierling Kersey, state superintendent of public instruction of California, was re-elected president of the National Council of State Superintendents and Commissioners of Education at their annual meeting in Washington recently.

By unanimous action, the state superintendents reaffirmed their belief in "the policy that all education problems started by the Federal Government should clear through the United States office of Education and the departments of education in the several states."

Students' Ballot for Selection of Junior College Campus Site

1. Abraham Lincoln School Site..........
4 blocks, 22nd Avenue and Quintara Street.

2. Ingleside Jail Site..........
38 acres, off Ocean Avenue.

Above are the two outstanding sites proposed for the campus of the San Francisco Junior College.

INSTRUCTIONS: Signify first and second choice by placing number in space at right. Use Number 1 for first choice and Number 2 for second.

Fill out blanks below, and then cut ballot from paper and deposit in box at mezzanine ticket booth, Powell Street, or at south gate, Galileo.

Good Hosts, Good Guests

As this, the second college semester, opens, faculty and students alike again appreciatingly realize the particular courtesy extended by the administrators of the Extension, Galileo, and Mission buildings.

The college appreciates the fact that once more the hospitality of the hosts is opened to receive it as a welcome guest. The hosts may rest assured that the students and faculty of the college will abide by their rules, and do nothing to violate that sacred relationship between host and guest.

Use of Ears Lessens Tongue's

The tongue of a fool is the key of his counsel, which, in a wise man, wisdom hath in keeping.—SOCRATES.

Every organization has its chronic complainants. They are always relatively few in number, but, because of the qualities of their voices, and the frequency with which they use their tongues, they sometimes seem disproportionately many.

If an organization were free from complaints, however, it would soon feel that, despite its human composition, it was perfect. It must still be considered, though, that some people are like the proverbial soldier—there must be something wrong with them if they are not complaining.

The approach to the happy medium lies first to determine by logical thinking whether or not the complaint seems just; second, regardless of the conclusion reached to "keep the key of the counsel in keeping"; third, if the complaint seems a just one, to carry it honorably to the one responsible, for explanation; and fourth, upon receiving the explanation, to consider it sensibly, and then act, or not, as the wisdom seems to counsel.

Most complaints, in truth, arise not from intent or wrongdoing on the part of any concerned, but from misunderstanding that can be rectified.

College History, Chapter II

Yesterday with its happiness and sorrows, its successes and errors, is gone; today with its realities, and tomorrow with its possibilities, are now with us.

January 17 closed the covers on the first chapter of the History of this college; last week opened the covers and started the filling of the blank pages of Chapter II.

Enclosed in Chapter I are the happinesses and successes of the foundation of this institution; along with them are some sorrows and a few errors. Thus far, Chapter II has had to record only the optimistic of these four accompaniments of time. The number of red marks that will have colored the white pages of the History by next June will depend upon the extent of the good will of the old students who are returning, the new ones who are entering, and, since they too are only human, the individual members of the faculty.

Congratulations, Sympathies, Thanks

The following, written by Hon. C. Harold Caulfield, president of the San Francisco Board of Education, is the board's letter of acceptance of the resignation of Dr. Edwin A. Lee, superintendent of San Francisco public schools, taken from the San Francisco Public School Bulletin:

The Board of Education has received with regret the announcement of your intention to resign as superintendent of the San Francisco public schools.

During your incumbency as superintendent, the board has learned to admire and respect you and your ability as an educator and school executive. We feel that our schools have been bettered by your administration.

Your resignation is therefore reluctantly accepted to be effective as of June 30, 1936.

Every member of the board wishes you continued success in your chosen career, especially in your new position as director of the National Occupational Conference.

The majority of the members of the college do not know Dr. Lee personally; many are not acquainted with the extent of the immeasurable good he has accomplished in the interest of education in San Francisco. All know, however, that he has been a loyal campaigner for this college, both before its establishment and after, and that this college was brought into reality under his superintendency.

The college, therefore, joins in extending sympathy to San Francisco for its loss, congratulations to New York for its gain, best wishes to Dr. Lee in his new position, and many thanks to him for what he has done.

The Old Out, The New In

Elections are over. The old order gives way to the new. Enthusiastic, hard-working Bennett McGuire and James Neal have turned the reins of Associated Student government over to equally conscientious and zealous Mauris Schwarz and Mimi Colton.

The fault-finders have criticized the past administration. Accomplishments verified by facts, however, reveal the achievements of the McGuire-Neal regime.

Facts, also, bear out the accomplishments of Mr. Schwarz as head of the Men's Club last semester, and of Miss Colton as a worker active in co-ed affairs.

With the experiences of the first semester successful but difficult, combined with their natural ability and desire to do great things in the interest of the college, there is every reason to believe that they will arrive at a still higher milestone of success.

Mr. Schwarz' accomplishing aggressiveness is a quality to be desired in any leader of government. Miss Colton would do credit to any group.

Here's wishing the new student administration all the success in the world, and here's promising them full cooperation from the Associated Students' weekly publication.

Seeking Culture

That a group of students is interested in the establishment of a Greek course in the regular curriculum should be a pleasant observation for the founders of this college to make.

It was the fond hope of the founders that this institution would achieve great academic and scholastic success. Any who would study Greek certainly must be a scholar interested in the obtaining of a cultural education through the study of the ancients, a desirable research that is too frequently neglected in these days of rapid, mass education.

By JAY O'GEE

Hello again, jaysee listeners—greetings for the new term! The row between The American Society of Authors, Composers, and Publishers and Warner Brothers certainly is causing an uproar in radio music circles. Rather ironical, too, when you consider that Ray Noble isn't even allowed to broadcast a piece that he wrote. . . . Mike Riley and Eddie Farley are busy writing other tunes which they hope will become best-sellers. . . . Jack Benny will return to the New York studios early in February. . . . Fred Allen likes to be known as "a jokebook wired for sound." . . . Victor Young has a collection of violins and bows which have been used by famous concert violinists all over the world. . . . Helen Hayes recently received the following fan letter: "We listen to your broadcasts every week; please make another movie soon, if it is not too much trouble." . . . Tom Coakley's broadcasts have moved from the Columbia chain over to NBC. . . . Having recently returned from a vacation in Hawaii, Ruth Etting is going to Chicago where she will resume broadcasting on February 17 over NBC. . . . Right now Don Wilson is announcing the programs of Jack Benny, Grace Moore, Bing Crosby and Jimmy Fidler, making him about the most important microphoner at the Hollywood studios.

Since opening its new Hollywood studios on December 7, NBC has counted some 20,000 spectators. . . . Morey Amsterdam's hobby is taking movies of Al Pierce and the gang; he has over 5,000 ft. of them, mostly in color. . . . Johnny Green, the versatile maestro of the Jack Benny shows, has written another tune which promises to be a hit; it is entitled "The Night Is Beginning" and was sung by Kenny Baker on Sunday, January 26. The lyrics were written by Gus Kahn. Green is the author of such song hits as "Body and Soul," "I Cover the Waterfront," "You're Mine, You," "Easy Come, Easy Go," "Out of Nowhere," and "Rain, Rain, Go Away." . . . Irene "Bee" Beasley has returned to radio after a year of musical comedy and vaudeville. She will be heard with Clyde Lucas on Rendezvous on NBC Wednesdays at 8:30 p.m. . . . Swing band addicts should get hep to the new Mildred Bailey records; remember, she's famous for "Ol' Rockin' Chair." . . . Decca has recently released some records by Joe Venuti and his Blue Four; we recommend them. . . . Victor has just released the Benny Goodman record of "Good-bye," Goodman's theme song. On the reverse is "Sandman." . . . Red Norvo and his Swing Octet have a rather good number called "Blues in E Flat"—it's on a Columbia disc. . . . Lew Stone, Ambrose, Jack Jackson & Jack Hylton, all Britishers, should get some kind of a boost for turning out consistently good records. . . . Have you ever heard the pipe organ solos recorded by Thomas Waller? "Fats" to you. If you haven't, you should hear them. They're quite a treat.

Fall Semester PROGRESS SHOWN Is Reviewed

When the doors at 540 Powell opened this morning, January 27, to mark the beginning of the spring semester, it was the second lap in the evolution of San Francisco Junior College.

Organized only five short months ago, the institution has made remarkable progress. Sixteen hundred students, unacquainted, in a new atmosphere that was at first bewildering, have combined and cooperated with the efforts of Administration and Faculty to put over a successful semester. Problems confronted them, but most of them were eliminated—now the path ahead lies clear.

Early History Made

A unified student association was formed and is now complete except for the formal adoption of a written constitution. Various clubs and social groups have grown into functioning bodies with plans for eventful futures. The class groups have organized into separate units so that each individual might participate in the school activities. A hurriedly organized football team goes down in history as the first athletic team to represent the college on the field of combat, with a few victories and a reputation for a fighting sportsmanship. This team will be the first S.F.J.C. aggregation to invade the Northern California Junior College Conference, and is expected to be near the top, if not at the peak, when the league race is ended.

New Worlds Sought

So with the main topic, that of organization, now well in hand, college heads seek new worlds to conquer. The plans for the future include the following: Orientation of 800 freshmen enrolled in the college for the semester; a drive to speed up the construction of a modern campus; participation in further conference enterprises; a schedule of activities that will reach every person connected with the school; an intramural sports program which invites efforts of all individuals; and a calendar of social events drawn up in the interests of the student body as a whole.

Providing the motivating force for these issues will be President Archibald Cloud, his assistant, Paul Pitman, Dean of Women Eugenie Leonard, Assistant Dean of Men Edwin Browne, and a host of professors and instructors of proved merit, besides the newly elected student body officers. These people are counting on the wholehearted support of the student body members. With that assurance, the new semester must be a success.

Paper Talk

By Paul Green

With the hurry and scurry of registration taking up the main part of everybody's time, thought, and energy, it is appropriate that we tackle a problem which has bothered educators down through the ages.

The big idea seems to be, "How to make students do more studying." The savants have done remarkably well (for savants) to provide ways and means of encouraging study, first by attempting to make courses interesting, and second, by attempting to make college life enjoyable. We feel that they can go a step farther.

Under the present set-up, there is little premium for those who spend the hulk of the day in the pursuit of knowledge. That is, not until Commencement Day, when the bookworm finds his habits may lead him to greater heights than others who studied less.

Quizzes Advocated

But in order to install the new system successfully, a few necessities arise. First, all professors must wear hats, for reasons which will be explained later.

The plan calls for a quiz in each class once a week. That's where the hats come in. At the beginning of each test session (assuming that all instructors possess the necessary headgear), the prof will place his chapeau in an inverted position on the floor directly inside the entrance to the room. Then, as the scholar enters the room, he drops four bits in the hat and hollers, "In your hat, prof" (the fee would only be a quarter for math or language courses). The hatful of halves is taken to the front of the room after roll is called, so the classmates can attack the quiz with an open mind.

Winner Takes All

Next the test is taken and everybody goes home, except the prof, who hides the money under the dictionary so that nobody will find it.

At the next meeting of the group the grades are announced, and the three highest marks selected. Then the dough is taken out from under the dictionary and the winners paid off win, place, and show, like they do at Santa Anita. A small amount might be taken out for taxes if necessary, with the winner getting 70 per cent, 20 for place, and 10 per cent for being in the money—[illegible] would be the only time the percentage would not be with the house.

Chance For All

Of course, after a few weeks some brainstorms might be winning all the gravy, and then it would be necessary to handicap the entries, like they do in golf. This could be done by making the smart guys cut one lecture a week, to give the goofs a chance, like you and me. In this manner everyone would have a chance.

Please understand that this scheme is not connected in any way with the Townsend Revolving Pension Plan. By having all this cash at stake, students would naturally study as hard as they could, the competition would be keener, and the cost of a college education would be very high for some of us. But that is not important—the fact remains that students would study harder and that is the only aim.

It would even be possible for some persons to earn their way through school in this manner.

Coalitions Banned

Of course, there are arguments against this arrangement. One of these is that some of the less scrupulous members of our little institution could form a coalition and manage to control the currency by intimidating the professor or by seating themselves in a circle and allowing the guy in the middle to get his answers out of the book. In this way, the gambler's ring could knock over nearly every jackpot, making education a very profitable business for some people. Another argument would be that there would be many side bets on each test. Betters could build up the odds to 10-7 that McGuirk would cop the chem exams, and then arrange with him to flunk, making a big haul in loose change. But that is against the law.

At any rate, it is a pretty good idea, and may be put into effect in a week or two if everybody can get four bits. If the plan is adopted it might even mean that a guy could earn his way through a university without playing football.

Rack 'em up, Sam!

RESIGNS!

Pictured here is Dr. Edwin A. Lee, who recently handed in his resignation as Superintendent of Public Schools. He will take the position of director of the National Occupational Conference in New York.

SAILING THROUGH THE NEWS

BY THE OBSERVER

Going to a well-deserved resting place, the remains of Rudyard Kipling were placed in the poets' corner of Westminster Abbey in London last Thursday.

In contrast with the big spread given on the front pages to the sickness of Kipling, notice of his burial in the most sacred burial place of the British Empire was relegated to some unnoticed corner of the inside pages. And just because another Englishman, just a little more famous than he, also happened to die this week.

Prince Still Makes Good News

The newsgatherers have certainly not overlooked any opportunity of getting stories out of the death of King George of England, and the subsequent ascension to the throne of the former Prince of Wales, now King Edward VIII.

If the new king falls out of airplanes with the alleged facility with which he is reputed to fall from saddles, perhaps the Duke of York will have to carry on the scepter of the great line of kings.

League of Muttons

The League of Nations might just as well turn in its keys, check out, and go home, for all the good it has done to date. With two chances really to show its worth—the Italo-Ethiopian situation, and the Sino-Japanese question—the league continues its talk with little action.

Even the seasons move with more rapidity than the league. It will soon be the rainy season in Ethiopia, and certainly the rain will be helping Ethiopia long before the League of Nations—and probably do considerably more good.

More Initials Getting Swatted

Initial busting seems to be a favorite pastime of those who are not satisfied with some of the New Deal's measures. The Supreme Court has called the AAA unconstitutional, and now the newspapers are carrying on a just fight to show the WPA unfair and wasteful.

The January 21, 6:00 a.m. edition of the Chronicle carried its verified story of a man who was forced to resort to WPA employment for his sustenance. Anyone without influence, regardless of the need or qualifications, who has tried for WPA employment can, and probably will, swear that the Chronicle's story is very typical.

And Other Things

To get closer home, many East Bay residents are hoping that John Masefield's sore throat will be gone by tonight, so that he will be able to make his scheduled appearance at the University of California.

Observed only by a few printers' organizations that apparently can remember one who did their trade so much good, the 230th anniversary of the birth of Benjamin Franklin, American patriot, printer, and scientist, was last Tuesday. How many know it?

Proposed Document Is Offered Students For Their Criticism

Constitution in No Way Final; Represents Efforts of Colligan, Luckmann, Browne, and Others

The Guardsman takes this opportunity of presenting for the first time the proposed constitution of the Associated Students. As it is offered to the students, it stands as the combined efforts of Mr. Francis J. Colligan, Dean E. C. Browne, Registrar J. Paul Mohr, Comptroller Ward M. Nichols, Mr. A. Agosti, Mr. Lloyd D. Luckmann and the student members of the first executive committee for the 1935 Associated Students.

Readers must bear in mind that this is by no means the final draft of the constitution and that the purpose of presenting the work here is to elicit student comment and criticism. Many plans have been under consideration and the work of the committee has undergone much revision.

The section on Business Administration, Article VII, as here given is not complete in its detail. Comptroller Ward M. Nichols of the faculty will present the plan determined upon for carrying out the details of this article in the next issue of The Guardsman.

THE GUARDSMAN SPORTS

Sport RAMBLINGS

By Tony Scafani

Because this issue of The Guardsman goes to press too soon to enable us to publish the results of the S.F.-Marin basketball game, we hope there will be no reflection on us for this shortcoming. However, from now on the sports department will carry a full coverage of all sports activities for the week.

COURT GAME NEEDS FANS

Due to studies, finals, registration, etc., many students don't seem to realize that we have, representing the school in its first conference venture, a really fine basketball team.

Up to the Marin contests, the Rams have won six consecutive court encounters, scoring 116 field goals and 44 free throws for a total of 270 points as against 116 points for the assorted opponents.

Elsewhere on the page may be found the conference basketball schedule. Find out where games are to be played, and if you like a good fast exhibition of basketball, follow your team in its season's program.

SCHOLARSHIPS RECEIVED BY FOOTBALLERS

Four football men from last year's grid squad have been tendered scholarships by three leading coast universities. Odero Guisti and Tom Murphy have offers from Santa Clara. Russ Clarke from the University of Southern California and Tom Mauer from the University of Oregon. Orin "Chuck" Hiefner, alias Eddie Cassino, may go to Washington State; also Bob Eltringham.

Four tackles will not be back next season. Vasco Vanelli, Bob Kurtz, John Finnegan and "Red" Merrill are the boys who will be among the missing.

BASEBALL PRACTICE GETS UNDER WAY

Aspirants for the baseball team have been loosening up their arms and legs in preparation for the hard workouts, which are due to begin this afternoon. At the present time most of the candidates, who have been out every morning since Tuesday, are taking it easy by getting in their batting, throwing and fielding practice at Funston Playground.

Lee Eisan and Jack Gaddy will be in charge of the team's destiny. Among the outstanding players are: Catcher Felix Anido, First Basemen Ed McSweeney and George McGuire, Third Sacker Odero Guisti and Pitcher Larry Wilgus.

COACHES TO HAVE HANDS FULL

All five coaches in the gym department will have plenty of work to do during the new semester. "Dutch" Conlan has been and will be handling the varsity basketball squad. He will be assisted by Jack Gaddy. Russ Sweet takes over the job of turning out a good track team for the conference meet. As mentioned above, Eisan and Gaddy are to guide the baseball team. Tom Wilson has the 125-pound cagers under his wing for the season. Besides coaching, these men will have to handle gym classes.

PREPSTERS ON TRACK TEAM

Quite a few prominent prep trackmen have turned out for the Ram track team and there are others, occupied with other things at present, who will turn out later on in the spring.

Russ Sweet's squad will be augmented by three cinder artists from Polytechnic's championship team of last year—George Warren, Jr., quarter miler; Bob Towell, half miler; and Pete Jablonsky, shot putter and discus man.

Lowell contributes two men in Jimmy Fahn, hurdler, and Stan Evans, sprinter and broadjumper. George Dunne, a transfer from San Mateo, is a pretty fair broadjumper. He placed fifth in the conference meet last year. Jack Serguson, shot and discus, and Ernie Loustalot, a high jumper, are both from Commerce. Jack McKenzie, a hurdler, is another transfer from San Mateo Junior College.

All incoming students who intend to report for track work should get in touch with Coach Russ Sweet as soon as they are able.

BASKETBALL PERSONALITIES

DO YOU KNOW THAT: Bill Glynn is the tallest man on the basketball team, extending towards the sky some 6 feet 4 inches in his bare feet. . . . Felix Anido is the smallest man on the roster, hitting 5 feet 6 inches and weighing 150 pounds, soaking wet. . . . Captain Ralph Hilleman is very popular amongst his fellow players; besides being an excellent guard, Ralph is considered as being a very handsome gentleman, so step up, girls; line forms at the right. . . . Paul Rippon is dead left-handed. Everything he does is the action of a left hander. . . . Ed McSweeney and Ernie Loustalot are conceded the quietest members of the squad. . . . Guido Nicco and Carlyle Caine are the "Beau Brummels" of the outfit. . . . George Pantages, the perfect model for a sprinter, if you get what I mean, is the comedian. . . . Leonard Leahy is the fellow who looks one way and passes the other—a regular fox.

Sweet, Track Coach, Calls For Material

Several A.A.A. Stars Will Form Nucleus For Cinder Outfit

A new threat in the Northern California Junior College Track Conference, and incidentally a headache to Sacramento Jaysee, present title holders, has arisen in the person of the San Francisco Junior College.

Although getting off to a late start—two months behind contemporary colleges, to be exact—because of a paucity of cinder facilities, the local spikesters bid fair to make a name for themselves in competition.

During the fall semester a few men have been practicing by themselves and with whatever help Track Coach Russ Sweet could give them in the time he could spare from the football team.

Practice sessions are being held at the U.S.F. field on Turk Street, through arrangements with that college.

Sweet expects more than twenty more track aspirants when registration is completed. Those interested in this sport are urged to contact Sweet at the Galileo gymnasium immediately.

Some of the reliables expected to turn out include Jim Fahn, hurdler and holder of the A.A.A. record; Montez and Segurson in the weight events; Gerughty, 440; Loustalot, high jump; Evans, Fitzgerald, Geo. Compas, Jack Perrin, and Bryant, sprinters; Towell, 880; and Dunne, broad jump.

W.A.A. Plans Spring Sports Calendar

Moonlight rides on horseback . . . ice skating parties . . . picnic hikes . . . modern Dianas with the bow and arrow . . . chasing the little white pill with a golf club . . . tumblers building pyramids . . . Badminton, the new social recreation . . . deck tennis, the "shipboard" game . . . basketballers sinking points for goals . . . dancers keeping that girlish figure . . . advanced and novice tennis tournaments . . . all this represents a bit of the pageant of the Women's Athletic Association for the spring semester, 1936.

Planning a complete program of activities for women students, the W.A.A. Outing Club will sponsor an ice skating party, to be held on Saturday afternoon, February 1. Further details will be found on the bulletin board.

MANY CLUBS

The organization has formed a system of clubs through physical education classes which will include every woman student in the college. Some of the clubs, with their sponsors, are:

Archery, Miss Weber
Baseball, Miss Keller
Basketball, Miss Weber
Golf, Miss Kuhn
Dancing (creative), Miss Kuhn
Outing, Miss Spencer
Recreational games, Miss Spencer
Riding, Miss Kuhn
Tennis, Miss Keller
Tumblers, Miss Spencer

The W.A.A. has adopted a resolution which must be taken by all members. It is:

1) Learn a new sport each year.
2) Develop skill in the best-liked sport.
3) Make a place in your program for extra recreation.
4) Be the first to say "Hi" to that new friend you haven't yet met.

Lowans Is Highest Scorer in Games

San Francisco's cagers opened their season by taking the measure of the Heald College five, 61 to 20. Paul Rippon led the scorers with 14 digits, followed by "Red" Lowans with 10.

The second game saw the Rams dimming the hopes of the barnstorming hoopsters from Glendale J.C. with a 51-32 score. Red Lowans was high with 11 points for the evening.

The toughest battle of them all was the melee with the U.S.F. frosh quintet, in which the junior college five overcame an 8-point lead to win, 27 to 24. Lowans again led the scorers, this time accounting for 19 points.

Then came the Olympic Cardinals, which were down by the Red and White casaba artists, 26-19. Ralph Hillsman chalked up 9 points to win honors for the evening.

The Golden Gate J.C. and St. James games are covered elsewhere on the page.

PRESIDENT RESIGNS

LOS ANGELES.—Thomas Lambert, A.S.U.C.L.A. president, resigned his post when Gilbert Harrison, editor of the U.C.L.A. Daily Bruin, was reinstated. The two student officials had been at loggerheads throughout the past semester.

Hoop Mentor

Louis "Dutch" Conlan, who spends his time teaching fellows how to play basketball. "Dutch" has the job of coaching the Ram varsity in the first league venture in which the college has participated. He leads his charges against Yuba J.C. Friday and Saturday nights at Marysville.

Conlan is formerly of Commerce High School, where he guided the destinies of that institution's hoop squads successfully for many years.

Cagers Defeat St. James To Tune of 57-27

By Tony Scafani

After a bad first half, the Ram cagers came back on a scoring spree in the second half to trample over the St. James quintet, 57 to 27, for an easy victory.

San Francisco tallied only twenty points in the first half. Sloppy passing and poor ball handling were prevalent features of the first session. Set-up shots in the hole were being missed repeatedly by the best shots on the squad, which is something seldom seen on the Ram team.

At times the boys flashed their true form and worked the ball into the scoring zone for several pretty baskets. Half-time score was 20 to 16, in favor of the locals.

37 TO 11 AT HALF

Coming out on the floor after the rest period, the basketeers really went to town, chalking up 37 digits, while St. James was getting 11 scores.

Paul Rippon had his left-handed hook shot working to perfection and it seemed as though he couldn't miss. At one stage of the half, Paul shot five times in a row and scored five baskets. Paul's contribution to the total point score was eight baskets for sixteen points.

GLYNN SCORES 11

Bill Glynn, elongated center, looked exceptionally well in the second-half comeback, popping some nice hook shots from out of the foul line. Bill scored 11 digits.

Captain Ralph Hillsman played a fine defensive game as a regular ball hawk, and was all over the floor intercepting passes and feeding the ball in to the forwards for quite a few baskets. "Red" Lowans, as usual, was among the high scorers, hanging up 15 markers. Ed McSweeney, husky guard, and "Blinky" Felix Anido also did their share in the victory.

Poet-Laureate To Speak in Berkeley

John Masefield, poet-laureate of England, will give two lectures tonight and Tuesday night, January 27 and 28, in the Wheeler Auditorium on the University of California campus.

The scheduled appearance of the poet has brought about a complete sell-out, according to Boyd B. Rakestraw, assistant Extension Division director, but because of the insistent demand to hear the lectures, a loudspeaker attachment in an adjoining hall will be arranged. Persons in this room will be introduced to Masefield, and then hear his lecture through the loudspeaker, according to Rakestraw.

Loustalot Is 'Hot' Against Golden Gate

Opening up in the second period to stretch an 18-17 half-time lead, the Ram varsity basketball team took the measure of the Golden Gate J.C. cagers 48 to 39 on the home court Friday, January 17.

Displaying a fast, steady offensive that should carry them far in conference competition, the Rams held the lead almost from the opening whistle, although the Gaters managed to creep up to within one point on several occasions.

High-point man of the night for "Dutch" Conlan's boys was Ernie Loustalot, diminutive forward, who sent the ball spinning through the hoop eight times for a total of 15 points. Loustalot was class itself on the floor, turning in a wonderful defensive and passing game besides leading the scorers.

HILLSMAN IS TOPS

Without having to turn on the pressure in the last half, Conlan used eleven men in the game, all of them turning in a smooth performance and showing the reserve strength of the squad. Particularly impressive was the work of Ralph Hillsman, dark-haired guard, who broke through the Golden Gate defensive to run up 11 points on the scoreboard. Bill Glynn, giant 6 foot 4 center, turned in a good passing game, taking the ball off the backboards with very little trouble and connecting with three beautiful hook shots at the basket near the end of the game.

"Red" Lowans, touted as the best shot on the Ram outfit, managed to collect seven points by virtue of some tricky work under the basket. Besides Hillsman, Leahy and McSweeney looked good at the guard positions, as did Anido and Rippon at forwards.

Mortola and Laberigue each played a full game of sparkling basketball for the Golden Gaters, garnering 11 points apiece.

The box score follows:

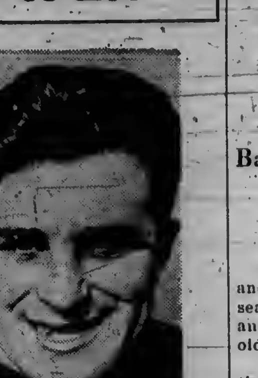
U. C. Prepares To Bust Atom

BERKELEY. — By bombarding atoms with one hundred trillion particles of heavy hydrogen per minute, traveling at a velocity of 12,400 miles per second, University of California scientists, under Prof. E. O. Lawrence of the physics department, this semester hope to be able to disintegrate every kind of atom known.

This tremendous energy will be developed by the 85-ton cyclotron at the radiation laboratories. Improvements being made by Dr. Donald Cooksey, research associate from Yale University, will increase the efficiency of the machine approximately 15 per cent.

USEFUL IN MEDICINE

Last semester it was possible to disintegrate several atoms with the machine. With the new improvements, the scientists expect to effect numerous transmutations of elements, in addition to disintegrating most atoms.



Production of artificially radioactive substances in quantities large enough for medical and biological experiments will be one result of increasing the efficiency of the cyclotron.

NEW RATIOS WORKED

Transmutation of substances is also expected to proceed more rapidly than in the past with the development of the new efficiency ratios. Some elements have been changed into other elements, and some into substances not obtainable naturally on the earth.

These are the radio-active substances which may be used in place of radium, the only difference being in the life of the emanations. Radium emanations last for hundreds of years, while in the artificial substances they may last only for a few seconds, hours, or days.

Golf Team Entered In Conference

With negotiations completed for entrance in the Northern California Junior College Conference, plans for the selection of a golf team to represent the college on the fairways will be formulated soon, according to Jack Welsh, who has been appointed golf manager.

"There will probably be a meeting of golf enthusiasts next week, and I expect a large turnout for this sport. We plan to encourage as many participants as possible, in order to have a college tournament at one of the local clubs to choose the team members. There will be four players on the team," Welsh said.

A petition for a budget to meet expenses has already been submitted to the finance committee for approval. Matches are promised with both the California and Stanford freshmen divot-diggers, besides the assurance of an early date with the San Mateo J.C. golfers.

Some of the notable par chasers in the college are Howard Capps, winner of several junior trophies; Welsh, and Don Grant.

Men's Gym Classes Prefer Football

Revealed for the first time, ballots of 373 men students in the college indicate athletic preferences and inclinations here.

Football, as usual, leads the field, as 341 students indicated their opinion that the college should be represented by a grid team. Basketball follows, with 340 advocates. Others are baseball 291, track 320, tennis 225, soccer 211, crew 244, swimming 280, golf 141, boxing 215, wrestling 176, and handball 109.

Basketball, however, leads the sports for the number of students who expressed interest in turning out for a team, with 82 prospects. Swimming follows, with 60 tallies. Others are football 24, baseball 40, track 54, tennis 55, soccer 41, crew 61, golf 14, boxing 22, wrestling 20, and handball 22.

Basketball was also the activity that received the most votes for a physical education period sport. It received 290 tallies, followed by touchtackle with 266. Horseshoes, volleyball, and speedball brought up the tail end of this aggregation with 63, 57, and 33 recommendations, respectively.

As a proposed intramural sport, basketball still maintained the lead, with 193 aspirants, contrasted to 181 for touchtackle and 121 for indoor baseball.

For a college tournament, tennis, with 137 votes, led handball (92), horseshoes (72), and golf (71).

Baseball Nine Practicing At Funston Field

Ball Tossers Working Out Daily; Eisan Gets Large Turnout

With the advent of spring weather and the conclusion of the football season, sports followers are already anticipating the return of that good old American pastime, baseball.

Coach Lee Eisan, who will handle the tossers from this college, issued a call not long ago for diamond talent and his invitation has already met with a gratifying response. Although the first game is scheduled for the second week of February, practice sessions are already being offered.

PRACTICE AT FUNSTON

In the future Eisan will meet his charges every afternoon at Funston Field. The head man plans no quick organization but will bring the tossers into condition gradually; at present the athletes are taking their workouts in even stride, heeding Eisan's warning that haste makes for sore muscles.

The team will enter the conference championship race late in the season, but arrangements have been made for many early contests.

MANY ASPIRANTS

Among the candidates for the fly-chasers' varsity are the following: Infielders McSweeney, Waters, Lowe, Scafani, Bauer, Martinez, Fanucci, McGuire, Lembi and Guisti; Outfielders Fitzgerald, Egan, Gorman, Jamhruno, and Martin; Pitchers Wilgus, Biggerstaff, Hanley, and Morrison; and Catchers Anido and Profumo.

Science, Religion Shouldn't Quarrel

Science and religion should have no quarrel when an adequate view is taken of both, according to Dr. Arthur Holly Compton, Nobel prize winner and professor of physics at the University of Chicago, who is delivering a series of lectures in Wheeler Hall on the University of California campus for the E. T. Earl Foundation of the Pacific School of Religion.

Ram Quintet Meets Yuba Five Friday

Marysville Outfit Is Unknown Quantity in Conference

By Louie Bertolucci

The San Francisco Junior College basketball team hits the road Friday when it leaves for Marysville to play Yuba Junior College in a two-game series Friday and Saturday nights. Hoping to remain in the conference race, the Rams will try to batter Glenn Patter's Yuba team for two wins.

The Northern California five is quite unknown to Coach "Dutch" Conlan, and to your correspondent as well, so that the team will go into the game without knowledge of the brand of basketball to expect from Yuba. Coach Conlan is putting the men through their paces daily at the Galileo gym in preparation for their second league tussle.

LOWANS IS THREAT

At present, Bob Lowans, that red-headed forward, stands out as the Rams' greatest scoring threat, having scored 70 points in six practice contests, 19 of them coming against the strong University of San Francisco frosh. Paul Rippon will probably play the other forward position because of his sharp-shooting in practice games this season. "Rip" has scored 49 digits to date in six games.

To add to this strong scoring pair of forwards, Coach Conlan will probably start William Glynn at center. Glynn is over six feet tall and is a valuable man under the basket. Ralph Hillsman is a cinch to start at one guard position. His guarding and steady shooting have been a standout all season. In the six practice games in which he has engaged, he has scored 40 points. Ralph has been captain in most games this season and will probably lead the squad in the Yuba contest.

TWO COACHES GO

The other starting guard will probably be big Ed McSweeney, a strong defensive man. Other members of the team who will make the trip are:

Forwards, Ernie Loustalot, Felix Anido, Carlyle Caine; guards, Guido Nicco, Leonard Leahy, Warren Egan; center, Jack Butler. Coaches Dutch Conlan and Jack Gaddy will accompany the team.

145-Lb. Basketeers Lose Fast Contest

Playing a game which was too fast to be efficient, the J.C. 145-pound basketball team lost a one-sided game to the heavier Jewish Community Center hoop five, 49 to 30, on Wednesday night at the J.C.C. court.

The light-weights drew first blood with a field goal by Jensen right after the tipoff, but from then on they trailed. Half-time score was 32-21 for the opponents.

Little Jack Hubbard, flashy forward, led the college team with 10 digits. Dening Smith followed closely with 8. Stein was high with 18 tallies for the winners.

Tom Wilson, coach of the 145's, is working this week attempting to steady the team's offense in preparation for coming battles as preliminaries to varsity games.

Library Rules Outlined For New Students

Hours Are From 11 to 6; Faculty Advisors Available

Located in the Galileo building, the junior college libraries will offer borrowing privileges of approximately 300 new books to students and faculty of the college at the beginning of the spring semester.

Library hours, according to an announcement by Francis J. Colligan, librarian, will be the same as last semester, from 11 o'clock to 6, with clerks on duty during those hours, and members of the faculty in each library to supervise and offer advice to readers.

The following rules are to be observed by students wishing to use the libraries:

1. Students are requested to sign their names and the time whenever they enter the library. Contrary to mistaken rumor, the purpose of this request is by no means to check the actions of individuals, but merely to simplify for the library staff the business of checking the number of students using the library each day, as such information is desired by the San Francisco School Department.

2. Reference and reserve reading room. The south library contains reference material, periodicals, and reserve books. Reference books are on open shelves to be used freely by students and faculty, but may not be taken from the room.

Reserve books are not to be taken from the south reading room except when signed out overnight. To secure a reserve book, the following steps must be covered:

a) Obtain call number of the book from the catalog.

b) Fill out a reserve use slip (properly).

c) Surrender registration card until book is returned.

Reserve books may not be used by any student who does not present his registration card.

Again, as in the request for students to sign names and time when entering the libraries, the procedure to be followed for the use of reserve books is not directed at any check on the individual and his choice of books, but purely resolves itself into a method of checking the circulation of books and thus ordering additional copies where demanded.

Periodicals must be secured in the same manner, but are not to be taken from the south reading room.

3. North reading room. The north reading room contains books that circulate for two-week periods. These books are borrowed by presenting a request slip and registration card. The registration card is not retained by the library in the case of two-week books.

4. Hold-slips. Students who wish books held for them for use at a designated time need only fill out the proper slips provided for that purpose.

5. Fines.

a) On a two-week book that is overdue is imposed a fine of five cents a day.

b) Reserve books which circulate overnight must be returned to the library by 1:30 o'clock the following day. An initial fine of 25 cents is imposed for an overdue reserve book with five cents added for each ensuing two-hour period that the book is overdue.—(Time is usually counted only during library hours.)

c) When an overdue reserve book is returned and the fine not paid, the amount is calculated and the registration card kept in the library until the fine is paid. If the fine is not paid by the end of the semester, the student's record will not be released by the registrar's office, and the student will not be permitted future registration until the fine is paid.

A.W.S. Members Aid Freshman Registration

In an effort to assist freshmen in the business of registration on Friday and Saturday, members of the Associated Women Students served as messengers and guides during freshman registration on Friday and Saturday, under Helene Wright, vice-president of the A.W.S., acting in the absence of President Helen Hall.

This plan replaced the proposed "big sister" group, which was found impractical under present arrangements.

The women acted as guides by instructing bewildered freshmen, and as administrative messengers between faculty members in seeing what courses were filled, dropped, or changed. Guides were posted at various parts of the building besides at headquarters, 260 Galileo.

PRESIDENT

Here is Archibald J. Cloud, president of San Francisco Junior College. His welcome to new students will be found on Page 1.

7. An election shall be valid if it represents plurality vote of the votes cast for the office. A special election shall follow on the second day after announcement of a tie.

8. The Board of Student Control shall supervise all elections, and shall be final authority on questions of eligibility for office except as hereinafter stated.

9. Special elections, when necessitated by resignation of an officer, shall be ordered by the president and held within one week after the announcement of the resignation.

10. Offices from which elected members have resigned during their term, shall be filled by a vote of the Executive Committee at a special meeting called by the president within one week after the announcement of the resignation.

Appointive positions in this association shall be filled as provided by Article IV on the basis of merit.

No student may hold more than one of these offices except as expressly provided by this constitution.

Representatives of the college in intercollegiate activities shall be subject to this eligibility rule above if no intercollegiate conference rules apply. Additional rules regarding participation in activities may be passed by the Executive Committee and approved by the Board of Student Control as provided by Articles VII and IX of this constitution.

IX. Referendum

1. A petition to review an official act of the Executive Committee shall be submitted by the president to members of the association at a regular meeting to be called within two weeks after a signer has presented the petition to the president. X. Meetings

1. Meetings of this association shall take place regularly at least once a semester on a date fixed by Article VIII of this constitution.

2. Special meetings may be called by the president of this association. A general meeting must be called by the president upon receiving a petition signed by one hundred active members and explicitly stating the purpose of such a meeting. Fifty per cent (50%) of the active membership shall constitute a quorum for special meetings.

3. Meetings of this association and its cabinet, councils and executive committee shall be conducted in accordance with Roberts' Rules of Order.

XI. Amendment

1. A proposed amendment to this constitution shall become effective if requested by ten per cent (10%) of the members and approved by a majority vote of the members of this association. The president shall call a meeting of the association for the purpose of considering amendments.

XII. Adoption of This Constitution

Street Car Is Favorite Way Of Travelling

Directions Are Given For Various Routes from Here to There

As S.F.J.C. has succeeded in spreading itself all over the map of San Francisco, the student must, therefore, have transportation to avail himself of the educational facilities. Of the three methods mentioned, the street car is the most widely used. In view of this fact, it seems essential that familiarity with this city-wide system should be encouraged.

The University Extension Building, at 540 Powell, is accessible by several different lines. The Powell Street cable cars pass in front of the building; the Sutter Street cars, 1, 2, 3, 4 of the Market Street Railway Company, run one block below on Sutter; the F car (Municipal) is on Stockton Street, one block east of Powell, and transfers may be made to Municipal cars on Market. Other Municipal cars, the B, C and D, run on Geary Street, two blocks below Sutter.

Galileo High School, wherein the afternoon classes are conducted, is located between Van Ness Avenue and Polk Street, and between Francisco and Bay Streets. It may be reached from the Extension Building by an F car direct, or by transfer from a Geary Street car to an H on Van Ness, and on the Market Street Railway by transfer from a Sutter Street car to a No. 19 on Polk Street.

The shortest route to the Ferry Building from Galileo is by the Municipal F line, transferring at Green Street to the E car.

Mission High School, located at Eighteenth and Church Streets, is reached directly from the Ferry Building on the Municipal J car.

U.C. Expedition Returns From South America

Nearly 2,000 Specimens Of Plants and Tobacco for Gardens

BERKELEY.—Returning to the University of California campus about February 1, the university botanical expedition to the lower Andes Mountains in South America will bring a collection of nearly 2,000 herbarium specimens, equivalent to 7,000 plants, according to word received here last week.

Already in receipt of preliminary surveys of climate and soil conditions in South America, the university's botanical department is making ready for the collection of plants, which will be put in the botanical gardens in Strawberry Canyon.

To provide seeds for distribution to sponsors of the expedition, the many bulbs and ornamental flowers, all foreign to California, will be handled in the university gardens. Experimental work in adaptation of the specimens will be carried on with the variety of tobacco plants that were collected.

Dr. T. H. Goodspeed, professor of botany, headed the expedition that has been collecting plant and tobacco specimens in the Andes and Chilean territory for nearly three months.

Encountering what was regarded as one of the most remarkable temperate rain forests in the world, Prof. Goodspeed expressed himself as fully satisfied with the expedition's success. More than 500 plants foreign to California were collected in Chile alone, according to the botanist.

RE-ELECTED

Hon. C. Harold Caulfield, above, was re-elected president of the San Francisco Board of Education at its meeting last Tuesday.

Guardsman Will Be Organized as Class

Because of the difficulty encountered through the separation of classrooms and administrative offices of calling meetings of student groups, the staff of The Guardsman will be organized this semester as a class, appearing in the college catalogue as English 64b.

Staff selection will be denominated only after those members signing up for the class have demonstrated their ability, dependability, and competency to hold the various responsible positions. Except in unusual cases, students entirely inexperienced in journalism will not be permitted to work on the staff during the first semester. Admission to the class rests with the approval of the instructor.

The St. Louis chief of police claims that college graduates usually do not make good policemen, claiming that they lack a certain amount of "intestinal fortitude."

Enrollment And Graduation Requirements Are Outlined

Because students sometimes have the habit of merely glancing through the college bulletin, and immediately forgetting some of the important items, The Guardsman herewith presents a brief summary of important directions:

There is no registration fee in the college. The Associated Students organization charges an incidental fee of six dollars, payable at registration. Students withdrawing prior to February 1, 1936, will be given a refund of four dollars; prior to March 1, 1936, three dollars.

Fines are assessed as follows: Late enrollment, $1.00; late filing of program cards, $1.00; and late tests, $1.00. No retests will be given in Subject A.

TESTS REQUIRED

Examinations that must be taken by new students are Subject A (English composition), High School Achievement Test, Vocational Interest Test, College Aptitude Test, and physical examination. These must be taken during the first week of the semester.

Every new student must have his picture taken. The photographer is in Room 401, Galileo Building.

A change of program cannot be made until after February 1. After a student's program has been approved and filed, no change is permitted without the approval of the registrar. A student who drops a course without such approval will be marked as having failed in the course.

FEE FOR LATE CHANGE

Credit will not be given for courses taken but not entered on the student's approved program. A clerical fee of 25 cents will be charged for program changes made after February 15.

Candidates for graduation must make provision for the class in American Institutions (two units).

All students who contemplate graduation next June must file a petition for graduation with the registrar not later than January 31. Petition blanks may be obtained at the college office.

Regular students may register for not less than 12 units nor more than 16½ units of work. Any program differing from that of a regular student must have the approval of the registrar.

MUST PASS COURSES

If a regular student receives an "F" in any one of the required courses (American Institutions, Hygiene, Physical Education, or Subject A), he must repeat that required course the following semester.

Students desiring part-time employment should apply to the office of the Dean of Men or the Dean of Women. Mrs. Eugenie A. Leonard is the Dean of Women, with her office the middle one of the set just opposite the college office at Galileo. Edwin C. Browne is Assistant Dean of Men, and his office is WJ, just opposite Room 260, also Galileo. Edith E. Pence, Assistant Dean of Women, is in charge of all NYA work in the college. Students wishing employment under her can find her in the morning in the office to the right of the top of the stairs at the main entrance of the Extension Building, and in Room 260, Galileo, in the afternoon.

The main offices of the college are in the Galileo Building. The office proper is the one just to the right of the west entrance at the south gate of the court. The three offices opposite this are occupied by the registrar, Mrs. Leonard, and President A. J. Cloud and his staff, respectively.

Intermission Cut To Five Minutes

With a list of more than 215 courses available for the enterprising student, Administrative heads found that facilities for the teaching of so many subjects were limited. With more than 800 freshmen expected to enroll in the college, conditions would be even worse, so, after a conference with officials of the University of California, the Administration found they would be able to add an extra fifty-minute period to accommodate the new students.

In order to do this, it was found necessary to cut the intermission between classes from ten minutes to five minutes. The new arrangement calls for six morning classes at 540 Powell instead of five, as was formerly the case.

However, there is really little change except for the fact that intermissions between classes will be shorter. Classes will begin as usual at 8 o'clock.

Edward E. Walker, social and political science instructor, has been granted a leave of absence from the college so that he may enter the commercial world for a while.

Plans Are Announced For Pre-Legal Club Formation

Plans for the formation of a Pre-Legal Club were announced by Lloyd D. Luckmann, instructor in jurisprudence, today.

The purpose of the club will be to stimulate interest in pre-legal work with an eye toward discussions and activities which will be of practical use to the embryonic lawyers, according to Luckmann.

Membership in the new organization will be opened to all students taking pre-legal courses, or who have a particular interest in the work. The group will be formed through Luckmann's advanced elementary law class, Jurisprudence 10-B.

U.C. Library Made Available to J.C.

Through an arrangement made by President A. J. Cloud with the University of California library staff, junior college students are permitted to use the university library on the Berkeley campus.

The plan was originated in order to establish library facilities for junior college commuters in the East Bay, but is also available to San Francisco students who wish to use the university rooms for research work.

Students are allowed to use the university library only if they identify themselves as San Francisco Junior College students. This can be done with an Associated Students or registration card.

This arrangement applies only to study privileges in the library. Book borrowing privileges may be arranged at a cost of 50 cents per month.

Receipt of the first issues of several well-known American periodicals has been announced this week by the library.

The college library has subscribed to nearly all the major publications and the issues that arrived this week mark the first to come on the new subscriptions.

Among the periodicals now on hand are Harper's Bazaar, Theatrical Arts, Scribner's, American Mercury, Atlantic Monthly, and others.

Caulfield Re-elected B. of E. President

Officers of the San Francisco Board of Education for the year 1936 have been elected and installed for their administrative duties. The board, composed of C. Harold Caulfield, Mrs. Edwin R. Sheldon, Mrs. Lloyd W. Dinkelspeil, Wm. F. Benedict, Philip Lee Bush, Charles A. Derry and Richard E. Doyle, have elected for a second time as president and vice-president, respectively, Mr. C. Harold Caulfield and Mrs. Edwin R. Sheldon.

The Board of Education for the school district of the city and county of San Francisco serves without compensation. Members are appointed by the mayor subject to the ratification of the voters. Mr. William F. Benedict was reappointed by the mayor and the people of the city at the November elections.

The year 1936 brings with its many problems for the board, two of major importance. One, the appointment of a superintendent to fill the vacancy which will be left by beloved Superintendent Edwin A. Lee, the other the selection of a permanent site for the ever-growing San Francisco Junior College.

Ingleside Winner In Straw-Ballots Held Last Week, 4 To 1

Pres. Cloud Conveys Results to Board of Education; Influence of Votes Is Not Yet Indicated

That a predominating majority of students prefers the Ingleside jail location for a junior college building over the Abraham Lincoln School site was indicated in The Guardsman's straw poll conducted last week. Out of 118 votes cast, 96 students indicated their preference for the Ingleside location.

President Archibald Cloud has conveyed this information to the San Francisco Board of Education. Whether the straw ballot will influence their decision in any way is not known, but it is expected that it should carry some weight.

CROSS-SECTION SHOWN

Although a very small percentage of the students of the college voted, the results can probably be accepted as an average cross-section of student opinion. Statistics experts have claimed that the majority opinion of even one-twentieth of a group selected at random invariably can be taken as that of the entirety.

To learn further of how students stand on the matter of location, the leanings of students from the various districts of San Francisco that are represented in the college have also been tabulated.

THREE FAVOR LINCOLN

The Marina, North Beach, and Abraham Lincoln districts were the only ones that favored the Twenty-second Ave. and Quintara St. location of the Abraham Lincoln school site.

The Mission district and the East Bay cast the majority of votes, and each went predominantly for the Ingleside location. Mission five to one, and East Bay fourteen to one.

Other strong sections indicating preference for the winning site were down-town, eight to one; Richmond, three to one, and Ingleside, six to one.

PACIFIC HEIGHTS TIED

Even the Abraham Lincoln district cast more than 25 per cent of its votes in favor of Ingleside. Pacific Heights was the only district in which the ballots were tied.

Other districts which were represented in the voting are Crocker Amazon, Parkside, Excelsior, Twin Peaks, Fillmore, Bernal Heights, Portola, St. Francis Woods, Haight, Mt. Davidson Manor, Glen Park, Ashbury Heights, and Ocean View.

INTEREST URGED

Pres. Cloud urges that students take a great interest in the construction of a college building, and that they keep the fact that San Francisco needs one in front of the voters.

The fact that the Board of Education is so vitally interested in the matter may be taken as a favorable indication. Rapid action on the part of the board is expected immediately after the site is definitely chosen.

Committee Is Being Formed By Vice-Pres.

Barn and Leap Year Dances Are Among Those on Social Calendar

Plans for the formation of a committee to handle the social activities of the college were announced last week by Mimi Colton, newly elected vice-president of the Associated Students.

The committee will probably consist of approximately 25 students, both men and women, who will be chosen from those who have shown interest in college affairs and who have proved themselves dependable, according to Miss Colton.

SEMI-MONTHLY DANCES

Division of the Social Committee into five sub-committees to form a division of responsibilities is the further plan of the set-up as outlined by Miss Colton. Sub-committees will probably be ticket, publicity, orchestra, decoration, and hotel committees, she says.

Miss Colton's plans embrace the staging of at least two dances a month, one to be held in a downtown hotel, and the other to be held in the women's gymnasium. A leap year and a barn dance are among those contemplated.

TO START SOON

The social calendar is scheduled to begin about the middle of February and continue throughout the semester.

Faculty sponsors of the Social Committee are Sue Waller, Jennet Henderson, Edward Sandys, and Milton Ecke.

"Any student who has a sincere desire to be an active member of the Social Committee should get in touch with me immediately," said Miss Colton in summing up her plans.

Keep to Left; Do Not Block Traffic; Other Do's, Don'ts

There are traditions, do's and don'ts in every educational institution in the world, including S.F.J.C.

The most outstanding tradition in the S.F.J.C., because of cramped quarters at 540 Powell, is the English system of traffic regulations. The traffic on the stairs is to the left instead of to the right. This is to avoid confusion on coming up the stairs of the mezzanine floor.

The students are also reminded that there is a study hall in the basement of 540 Powell, and it is equipped with encyclopedias. The students are requested to use the study hall instead of the lobbies, because there are always classes in session.

The University of California requests that the front stairs of the building be kept clear, because prospective paying students will be hindered in their progress to the office.

The university also warns the students about smoking on the mezzanine floor, as doing so is regarded as a fire hazard.

RADIOMEN INSPECT KPO

The Radio Club, under the direction of Glen D. Camp, went on a tour of inspection of the NBC studios of KPO. The tour was under the supervision of L. B. Saxton, chief technician at KPO. The club plans to go on similar tours in the near future.

Appreciation Is Sent To Remler, Borden Firms

The use of a microphone, loudspeakers, and other public address equipment for college rallies, and for the freshman rally and dance of January 23 in particular, was made possible through the courtesy of the Remler Radio Manufacturing Company. Calvert Potter and George Hagens helped with the arrangements.

Appreciation is also acknowledged to the Borden's Creamery, which donated a quantity of ice cream for the freshman reception.

Installation Ceremonies Held Jan. 20

'Those Who Are Here Are Here,' Claims Pres. Schwarz

Bill Kennedy Pours It Into Laxity of Students

Scheduled to start at 1:45 o'clock, begun at nearly 2:00, the installation assembly was held last Thursday afternoon in Galileo auditorium. Maury Schwarz, presided.

Starting with an audience of about 100 students, the affair boasted nearly 300 by the time the last group had trickled in to watch the curtain fall at the conclusion of the ceremony.

Bill Kennedy opened the assembly with a yell. Schwarz, newly elected president of the Associated Students, gave a short talk in which he remarked that one thing for which to be thankful was that "those that are here, are here."

ACTIVITIES PLANNED

Last semester's officers introduced the new ones. Jimmy Neal, in introducing his successor in the office of vice-president, Mimi Colton, pledged the support of the previous administration.

Miss Colton thanked those who made possible her election, and promised a semester of interesting social activity. Among her plans, she said, is the formation of a social committee to consist of twenty-five students—"half boys and half girls."

PROFUSELY THANKED

Schwarz introduced the new treasurer, Bob Neal, who thanked the students five different times, and endorsed Miss Colton's social program.

Miss Colton then introduced her successor, Donna MacPherson, the new corresponding secretary, who confessed that she will have to "take another term of typing."

Helene Bowman turned over the minutes of last semester's meetings to her successor, in the office of recording secretary, Betty Hyde, whose speech, as Schwarz commented, marked her as "the kind of secretary we want—little talk, and lots of action."

KENNEDY SCORES

Before introducing Jimmy Fahn, the new yell leader, Bill Kennedy, cheer-man of last semester, literally "poured it into" the students for lack of support.

"Are you going to be like this the whole darned semester?" Kennedy roared. "You've moaned all semester that there weren't enough social affairs, activities, and the like, and when we have them, you won't attend them.

SCHWARZ AGREES

"I've been waiting all semester to get this off my mind. And now I'm doing it! Get out there and support your basketball team—one of the best in the conference—and Jimmy Fahn, who will make the best yell leader this college will ever see, if you'll only get behind him!"

Following that tirade, Schwarz again took the floor, saying that he agreed with Kennedy, but "didn't want to say so myself, because I want to get your support."

Schwarz closed the meeting, following a yell led by Fahn.

COLUMNIST

Maury Schwarz above, president of the Associated Students, in this issue of The Guardsman makes his debut as a journalist. Ever interested in the promotion of student body interest, Schwarz utilizes the columns of the college paper in an effort to reach the greatest number of students possible.

Read what he has to say on page two, under the caption "Your President Says." This will be a weekly feature.—Editor.

Women's Club Will Vote On Constitution

Meeting to Be Held Feb. 12 in Teachers' Cafeteria at Galileo

For the purpose of voting on the proposed constitution of the A.W.S., all co-eds are requested to attend the meeting to be held at 1:45 o'clock p.m., February 12, in the Galileo Teachers' Cafeteria.

The chief business of the meeting will be the adoption of the constitution which was brought before the A.W.S. last Fall and laid upon the table pending further discussion of several major problems.

Among those who worked on the Constitution Committee are Ethel Clarkson, chairman; Donna MacPherson, Elizabeth Yates, Emilie LaRock, and Edelmira Arias.

During the discussion of Art VIII late last semester, the following motion was made and passed: that "the officers elected for the Fall semester of 1935 shall hold office through the Spring term, 1936; thereafter, all officers shall hold office for one semester."

Since Helen Hall withdrew from the college on December 20, Helene Wright automatically became president, leaving the office of vice-president to be filled at the next meeting.

The proposed constitution is as follows:

CONSTITUTION OF THE ASSOCIATED WOMEN STUDENTS OF SAN FRANCISCO JUNIOR COLLEGE

Preamble

We, the women students of San Francisco Junior College, in order to consider the problems and interests of the associated women on this campus, do establish this constitution of the Associated Women Students.

Article I. Name

The name of this organization shall be

Ray Brunn Wins Skull and Blades Executive Office

After advocating a busy semester of club projects, Ray Brunn was elected president of the Skull and Blades, men's honorary service society, last week. The group elected Milton Durfee as secretary and Bill Kennedy as representative of the Ex Council.

Deciding to limit the membership of the club to twenty members, the group welcomed Maury Schwarz and Pete Jambruno as new members. Bill Rhodes will be in charge of an initiation committee which will handle the new members. Besides the two mentioned above, Henry Kearny, Joe Kissel and Edwin Frediani will be subject to entrance festivities, as they were not charter members of the club.

The Skull and Blades, which sponsored the Freshman Reception in collaboration with the women's service group, will be in charge of the same program next semester, Brunn said. Other plans include presentation of a gavel to the outgoing student body president, Bennett McGuire, and placing of S.F.J.C. stickers for sale at the ticket office on the mezzanine floor, Powell Street.

Student's Health Guarded By City Department, Says Doctor

"Health is the most important factor in life," according to Dr. Paul Barrett, child hygiene director of the Department of Public Health.

"The Department of Public Health supervises all the health in the public schools of San Francisco," Dr. Barrett explained, "and gives physical examinations to all San Francisco Junior College students for the purpose of discovering and correcting defects, of which the parents may have no knowledge, and which have a definite bearing on the present and future health of the students.

"This year tuberculosis and skin tests are to be given to the students. As a child grows up, and his contacts with other persons increase, he is likely to get tuberculosis germs into his body. Usually no harm is done, as the number of germs is so small that the body fights back and keeps them from doing any damage," said Dr. Barrett, "but occasionally the germs do win.

"No medical treatment is given," he said. "If we discover any defects, we recommend immediate examination by your physician."

The personnel of the Department of Public Health includes 15 school physicians, 39 school nurses, 13 dentists, two dental hygienists, and four psychologists. Each division has its own special field of activities, the combined efforts resulting in all-around health supervision.

Men's Club Is To Elect Executives

Meeting Will Be Held This Afternoon at Galileo

New Spirit Probably Advocated in Platforms

A meeting of the Men's Club will be held this afternoon in the Galileo cafeteria at 2 o'clock, according to an announcement by Joe Amori, faculty sponsor of the organization. The purpose of the conclave is the election of officers for the Spring semester. All men students are eligible to vote.

Presiding over the gathering will be Maury Schwarz, incumbent president, during whose tenure the club sponsored many college activities.

Because all men are eligible to run for office, a spirited campaign is expected.

Probably the most active junior college organization in the last semester, the Men's Club has sponsored such programs as the two boxing and wrestling matches held at the Verdi Club, and a Hi-Jinks which featured entertainment of all kinds. The new officers will probably carry out the same sort of program for the next semester.

Observers believe that a main point in the campaign will be advocacy of a new spirit in the college. Assistant Dean of Men Edwin Browne states that "an organization of this sort can do much—probably more than any other group—to foster college activities and see that every student takes part in them." Student spirit is expected to reach a high point.

W.A.A. Will Hold Sign-ups During Week of Feb. 10

Sign-ups for the many Women's Athletic Association activities will take place during the week of February 10.

These activities include archery, baseball, basketball, golf, dancing, outing, recreational games, riding, tennis, and other sports, and any woman taking part in one or more of them is eligible for membership in the W.A.A. The main requirement is that each woman signing up be in possession of an Associated Students card.

Managers for the various sports will be elected soon after the W.A.A. activities start, and these managers will serve on the W.A.A. Council, according to Miss Vera Spencer, faculty advisor for the organization.

This semester's W.A.A. officers include Arleen Frezieres, president; Ruth Johnson, vice-president, and Bernelyn Seymour, song leader. Martha Solomon, who was elected secretary, has left college, so a substitute will be elected as soon as possible.

ALUMNAE GROUP PLANNED

Plans for the formation of a women's alumnae association, in conjunction with the Women's Service Club, were announced last week by Mrs. Jean Coplestone. At present, she and Patty Wells are the only alumnae, Mrs. Coplestone said.

Weinstock, Welch, Neal, Khenchelian, Win Class Offices

Sparse Voting Characteristically Features Last Week's Elections; Only One Tie Vote Cast at Polls

Characterized by sparse voting, the class elections held last week put in office as presidents of their respective classes, Bill Weinstock, high sophomore; Jack Welch, low sophomore; Jimmy Neal, high freshman, and Karnig Khenchelian, low freshman.

Other officers who were installed in the high sophomore class are Betty Grey, in the post of secretary, and Alice Schaub in that of women's representative to the Executive Council. Marking the only tie ballot of the elections, Clyde Poland and Neal Martin vied for the honors of the men's representative office. A second election to decide this draw will be held in the near future, according to officials.

POLITICIAN RE-ELECTED

Bill Weinstock, commonly known as the campus politician, is now entering his second term of office as president of his class. Last semester he was elected head of the low sophomores.

Helen Norman won the election for the office of secretary of the low sophomore class, with Alice Lake and Bob Sisco installed in the posts of women's representative and men's representative, respectively.

NEAL EASY VICTOR

Jimmy Neal, who has completed a term as vice-president of the Associated Students, was an easy victor in the race for presidency of his class, the high freshman. Marge Silk took the secretary's position. Mary McKnight, polling a strong vote, defeated her opponents for the office of women's representative, while Tyler McHugh will represent the men of his class on the Executive Council for the semester.

The newest class of the college, the low freshman, chose for its president Karnig Khenchelian, and as its secretary, Betty Hunt. The newly elected representatives from this group are Jane Neal, sister of Bob Neal, Associated Students treasurer, and Eugene Blumenthal.

ACTIVITIES PLANNED

Because of the plans to have each class present a rally before the student body in the near future, in addition to other activities, it is expected that the newly elected officers of the respective classes will have a full semester's program.

It is also rumored that class leaders will take charge of their respective groups with regard to the men's intramural sports programs.

300 Apply For NYA Positions, Pence States

Headquarters Are Shifted to Room 212; Work Found for 176

With three hundred applications for NYA work on file, definite appointments for seventy-five students have been made, according to Miss Edith Pence, NYA administrator for the college. The quota for the college is only 176 workers.

Appointments are being made daily on a basis of merit, Miss Pence stated, and when the 176 positions have been filled, the other applicants will be placed on a waiting list. Additional appointments will be made as vacancies occur.

The administrator particularly stressed that applicants should bear in mind the following requirements:

First, the need of financial assistance.

Second, ability to fill the position.

Third, NYA students must have a creditable scholastic standing.

FIRST COME, SERVED

Students are appointed by priority; that is, those who have applied first are being given the first opportunities.

When the quota is filled, workers will put in an average of 37½ hours per month for an average remuneration of $15. When students have worked long enough to meet their immediate necessities, they should notify the NYA office so that a new appointment can be made from the waiting list of applicants, Miss Pence said.

OFFICE MOVED

Office of the NYA officials, formerly at 260 Galileo, has been moved to Room 212.

Workers are being placed as rapidly as possible in positions as readers, typists, mimeograph, laboratory assistants, clerical positions, graphs and maps, and numerous other fields of work. The work period for February closes on the 28th.

Riflemen to Hold Their Election Today at 1:30

This term's initial meeting of the Rifle and Pistol Club will be held today in Room 203, Galileo, at 1:30 o'clock p.m.

The election of officers for the new semester will take place. James S. Hughes, faculty sponsor, and William Hancock, coach of the rifle and pistol team, welcome all new members, men or women.

Tennis Club Will Meet Next Friday

Election of officers for the Tennis Club will take place February 7 at 1:30 o'clock p.m., James Neal, president of the organization, has announced. Plans for the semester's activities will be discussed, Neal says.

The group, which boasts more than thirty members, has secured the services of Tom Wilson as coach, and plans are being arranged for tennis classes in physical education periods. Through this medium a school tournament is expected, in order to select outstanding players for places on the junior college tennis team, which will engage other colleges in net contests.

FACULTY IS REQUESTED TO LOOK INTO BOXES MORNINGS

Paul Pitman, assistant to Pres. Cloud, requests that all faculty members look in their mail boxes each morning at 540 Powell for notices. The notices are to read to each class at the Extension Building, because some students do not come to school until the third or fourth periods.

Formation Of Orchestra And Band Announced By Sandifur

Formation of a college band and orchestra, through the classes Music 26B and 36B, respectively, was announced last week by Donald Sandifur, instructor.

With work of both classes already under way, Sandifur has announced that there are still some openings. The official announcement from his office is as follows:

26-B BAND. M. W., 2:30-4:20. Open to woodwind, brass, and percussion players by tryout. Affords experience in ensemble playing, and interpretation. A large amount of concert band music, together with some military marches, will be sight-read during the coming semester. The group is now at work on Grieg's "Sigurd Jorsalfar" Suite, Grieg's "Peer Gynt," Massenet's "Phedre" Overture, and some selections by Victor Herbert. Registration in 26B is still open.

36B. ORCHESTRA. T., Th., 2:30-4:20. Open to string, woodwind, brass, and percussion players by tryout. It is estimated that about 35 pieces of orchestral music, selected from overtures, suites, symphonies,

The music department is looking for talent for radio appearances. Those interested should apply to Flossita Badger or Donald Sandifur.

CONSTITUTION PASSES EX COUNCIL SCRUTINY

Approval of the constitution of the Associated Students was granted by the Executive Council yesterday afternoon. The committee met Monday night at the home of Dean Edwin C. Browne to discuss and make certain revisions.

The date for the official presentation of the constitution to the Associated Student Body for ratification has not yet been set, but the document will be officially posted before that time, the Executive Council has announced.

Love Your Family? Better Not!

SAFETY! The newspapers urge it; the pastors preach it; the magazines promote it; the transportation companies boast of it; and everyone agrees it is a good idea.

Last week-end more people were killed directly or indirectly by automobiles than were killed the previous week-end; more people will be killed this year than were killed the previous year through traffic accidents.

Have you two brothers or sisters in your family? Do you like them? Better not get too fond of them. One child out of every three has a depressingly good chance of being killed or seriously injured because of an automobile accident before it reaches maturity. Or, maybe it will be you.

Pleasant, isn't it? Why bring it up? Well, it is the truth, is it not? No, you do not think so? Write to the Department of Motor Vehicles, the police department, or a newspaper, then, and find out for yourself. You are apt to become alarmed when you find that what is said here is, in reality, mild compared to the WHOLE TRUTH!

One cannot stand on the sidewalk in front of the south gate at Galileo long and watch the cars on Bay Street without gasping at the close calls that are so frequent. One cannot ride a street car long before one sees a foolish act that only divine providence prevents from becoming a serious accident. Or, perhaps (very frequently), divine providence is tired of extricating hurry-mad fools from the sharp, unrelenting scythe of the grim reaper.

Useless hurry, incompetent driving and poor judgment, and exhibitionism are the major causes of accidents and near-accidents seen by the college student during a college day.

Slow down a bit; perhaps you do not show up to such good advantage if you do not drive thirty miles an hour up Bay, and skid on two wheels into a parking place; or, if you do not, when starting out, reach thirty in second gear before arriving at Polk or Van Ness.

Perhaps, however, your vain exhibitionism (showoffishness, if you prefer) demands such glorious and awe-inspiring manipulations. Well, that's all right. It probably will not be your brother or sister whom you hit. Somebody else will get her.

In all justice to college students, it must be admitted that they do not constitute the majority of the offenders. High school students do.

Under present conditions, a college cannot feel at liberty to criticize a high school. This is not a criticism of the high school, nor of high school students in general, but of the average man in general, and certain high school students in particular. And when safety of life and limb is at stake, the matter cannot be lightly cast aside.

Any objections? Yes? Well, the next time your speedometer begins to creep over thirty, in town, just slow down a moment while you think of what happy family you are so lethally capable of making unhappy by removing one of its members.

Oh, you have five brothers and sisters? Now that is tough. Oh, well—the good die young, anyhow!

Out With the Chiselers!

One of the commonly supposed purposes of a newspaper is to wage campaigns directed principally against what the editors and publishers consider a too prevalent vice.

Local dailies are doing their part in no uncertain way, waging what most good citizens believe to be a just and timely assault.

Organizations conceived and established by the Federal government have been the objects of many journalistic tirades. Perhaps, in most cases, the fault lies not so much with the organization itself, as with the selfish, one-horse politicians who have wheedled and whangled their ways into the highly paid jobs, and with the equally selfish, chronic relief mongers, who would rather loaf on a Federal aid roll than do an honest day's work; and who, in many cases, consider money received from relief employment as that to be spent on luxuries.

The NYA is a worthy project. Its purpose, however, should be borne in mind. It is to "enable those otherwise unable to continue their college work to have such employment as to help them secure the desired education."

The very purpose, then, of the NYA should exclude those who think it is a very easy way to earn the money for shows, dances, gasoline, and other entirely unnecessary luxuries.

Every man, regardless of his financial condition, is entitled to some diversions and amusements. When, however, a student working under the NYA is seen driving to college every day in what most would consider a fairly good automobile, it would appear that a line should be drawn.

The works directors cannot make an exhaustive research into the condition of every applicant. They must rely, to a great extent, upon the honesty and truthfulness of those seeking employment.

OH DIOGENES, DIOGENES, BRING ME THY LAMP!

Otherwise, Why Are You Here?

What is a man, if his chief mark and merit of his time be but to eat and sleep? A beast; no more.—HAMLET.

If a student were really to make an exhaustive research into any one of his courses, be it only two units, he would find that he had no time left for other studies.

By that is meant that EVERY course is, in reality, nearly a complete education in itself; and hence has some merit, even though sometimes rather obscure to the casual observer.

Under America's system of ordinary college education, sight of true cultural research, for the most part, has been lost. Perhaps not so much lost as purposely neglected. It has been found impractical for the rank and file of American students.

Occasional forays into the cultural subjects, however, can do nobody harm. Diligent work in any course is of decided advantage.

Students, supposedly, come to college to get a well-rounded education. If they were to learn and remember even one-half of what is taught in their courses, they would know more than 99 per cent of the educated adults of this country.

That wouldn't be bad, would it?

Come and Join the Fun!

The 1,100-odd students who were so conspicuously absent from the official assembly last week don't know the fun they missed! Throw your memories in reverse, and recall the awe-inspiring speech delivered by Dutch Conlan a few weeks ago.

Dutch has a prototype—none other than last semester's yell leader, Bill Kennedy. It was a revelation to hear him read the Reefs and Shoals to the disinterested students who should be up at Mast.

Nearly all the student speakers offer entertainment in their speeches, even though not always intentionally.

We do not advocate the heckler's gallery, but there is nothing wrong with clean amusement, whether one laughs AT or WITH the cause of it.

YOUR PRESIDENT SAYS---

By MAURY SCHWARZ

Here goes—my very first column and it begins with an alibi. Writing a coherent column is a task requiring a good deal of practical journalistic experience; so for that reason I humbly ask you readers to bear with me in my debut as a columnist.

Some short time ago it was suggested to me that I write a column. My imagination being, as it is, so limited, I didn't realize what I'd have to go through before I completed a column, and so I agreed, but with this one desire—to see it carried on by future student body presidents until it becomes one of our accepted traditions.

I feel that the school paper is the one means of contact left between the entire student body of the college and the student officers. While I expect there will be a fairly large crowd at our future rallies, because of the entertainment we'll be featuring, there will still be a large percentage of the students with whom we can come in contact only through the paper.

In this column I hope I can give you news of interest. Naturally, there are many events planned for this semester, but I would like to get the attitude of the student body and thus be sure that we can depend on the support of the students. And so—if you have any suggestions, requests, or criticisms, please let me know in written form so that I won't forget them.

Any communications can be left at The Guardsman office on the mezzanine floor of the Powell Street building, or with me.

HERE 'N' THERE: The constitution will soon be ready for your approval, probably in a few days. . . . A gigantic swimming party is being planned at the Fairmont plunge for J.C. students only. . . . More definite news about it next week. . . . And here's something new that we are going to try . . .

Each class, low frosh, high frosh, etc., will be assigned a rally. . . . The respective representatives and officers will be in charge of their own class's affair, and must produce suitable entertainment for the occasion. . . . I hope it will work, but anyway, it's worth trying. . . .

So until next week—I'll be seein' ya'—sliding down Powell Street, or maybe in class. Who knows?

NO CHANCE ON THE STAGE FOR YOUNG TALENT, SAYS ACTOR

"Are you in a hurry?" asked Walter Huston in his dressing room one evening before a performance of "Dodsworth."

"No," answered your scribe.

"Well, I've got to listen to 'Amos and Andy' first, if you don't mind."

So the famous American actor listened to a sputtering portable radio while he commenced to make up. Not being such a fan of "Amos and Andy" as Mr. Huston, your reporter counted the numerous suits hanging on the wall. There were a mere nine! . . . all of which are worn by the actor in "Dodsworth."

"Did you know Amos married Ruby?"

"No." Such ignorance for a S.F. Junior College student!

Continuing the inventory, there were four hats, four pairs of shoes, and two overcoats.

As the radio serial drew to a close, I queried, "What would happen if you missed 'Amos and Andy' sometime?"

The actor grinned, "Well, I had to when we were playing in Chicago. They go on at ten there."

But on with the interview.

"What's your favorite dish, Mr. Huston?"

"Oh, I like hot dishes—chile, and Spanish foods, and curry, and Mexican foods."

"What has been your favorite role?"

"Well, in the movies it's a toss-up between 'Gabriel Over the White House' and 'Lincoln.' On the stage, 'Dodsworth' or 'Othello'."

"Have you any idea how many times you've played 'Dodsworth'?"

Walter Huston reached for a scrap of paper, a pencil, and his glasses, and began to figure. After a few minutes he raised his head. "About 650 times."

"Who are your favorite actor and actress?"

"My favorite actress on the stage and screen both, is Helen Hayes. I like George Cohan, Charles Laughton, and Paul Muni."

"What's your favorite pastime or sport?"

"Golf."

"Are you very good?"

Mr. Huston nodded and smiled, "Umphm! I shoot around eighty or eighty-five."

"Not bad! . . . Have you any children?"

"Yes, a son . . . John."

"What's to be your next role?"

"Othello."

"What has been your most embarrassing moment on the stage?"

Actor Huston grinned again. "It was my first performance . . . in 'Julius Caesar' with Richard Mansfield. I had four lines to speak. I forgot them!"

"As for young, ambitious actors and actresses of today," continued Mr. Huston, "there is little chance for them. There are no stock companies. New York is the only place. Before a young actor should even hope to start out, he should be practically a genius."

Then came the inevitable, "Well, I guess that's about all."

The actor rose. "Yep! I guess that just about knocks it over. Thanks a lot and goodby!"

Loudspeaker • Lowdown •

By JAY O'GEE

There being no particularly newsy morsels this week, we diverse to go over some "pet peeves." Have you been bothered by howling announcers? Do screeching sopranos get in your hair? Do "hit tunes" cause you to break into tantrums? Do off-key crooners disturb your musical equilibrium? Yeah? Well, we've been troubled by the same goatgetters. In order to avoid appearing like a "chronic kicker," we barbored our grievances and meanwhile took a poll of these ethereal nuisances.

Following are some of the "kicks" which disturb the average radio listener: (1) early morning exercises; (2) early morning would-be "comedians" who would help you "start the day right"; (3) those sweet, enunciating, "helpful hints for the home" gals who fairly gush through the loudspeaker; (4) skits which contain "funny" men who only succeed in being extremely unfunny; (5) philosophers who keep reminding you of the cares of the world, and how tough life really is; (6) all sopranos; (7) all crooners; (8) bellowing announcers who think that just because the program originates in New York that they have to yell all the way to San Francisco; (9) announcers who try to add that personal touch by being extremely "original" and sounding awfully stupid; (10) those "hit tunes" that the radio stations persist in beating to death. They ought to ban every tune that succeeds in being played more than five times in one evening.

And so on, far, far into the night. But we don't want to burden you further with these things.

BLIND LISTENERS ARE KEENEST CRITICS

"No one except a blind person knows what a magic carpet radio is. It takes us over the world and back again, and while we are listening, the handicap of sightlessness is gone," declared Miss Kate M. Foley, famous blind teacher of the blind, in a recent interview.

"Radio's blind listeners are its keenest ones," Miss Foley said. "The sense of hearing is so highly developed that shades of meaning which are lost to the average listener are plain to us. The blind listener can tell by a radio speaker's voice exactly how that speaker is feeling; if he is tired, worried, enthusiastic or happy. Sometimes we hear conceit, but oftentimes we hear the sincerity and warmth which makes the broadcast a happy experience.

"Blind listeners are enthusiastic followers of sports broadcasts, following each play with complete understanding. I know a blind girl who never saw a football game in her life but she knows the game thoroughly and it is her favorite sport—through her radio. Baseball is my favorite; I eat my luncheon at a card table in my living room when the world's series is on, and never miss a play.

"The greatest material gift you can bestow upon a blind person is a radio."

Miss Foley, blind for many years, originated a system for teaching men and women blinded after maturity, and despite her own handicap goes all over northern California to teach Braille to her pupils under the auspices of the California State Department of Welfare.

THE FASHION PARADE

To many of you who are planning a new outfit it may seem too late to buy winter clothes and much too early for a spring costume. One solution is to buy a printed silk dress. In January a print looks cheerful, refreshing, and new.

Worn now with dark accessories, a print can be made to look like a winter dress; whereas in summer, worn with a straw hat and summer accessories, it makes an outfit for summer and still looks new.

Wide sleeves or wide soft shoulders to accentuate a straight skirt will look smart and feel cool next summer.

This year braided frogs are worn on prints and the frogs match the important color of the print.

Everybody will wear a suit this year. The suit may have a little fitted jacket or a three-quarter swaggerish coat, or the person who wears capes nicely may wear a cape-and-dress costume.

Bright tweeds for the suits—which means almost any color that creates splash—are the latest.

SAILING THROUGH THE NEWS

BY THE OBSERVER

Two men were killed in a racing car crash at the Ascot Speedway last week. Since 1932, twenty-seven men have been killed on the automobile speedways.

"Legalized murder," the newspapers call it. "Barbarous," say the state senators. Nothing will do now but that we have a law to ban automobile racing.

No one forces men to drive racing cars; they endanger nobody but themselves, and possibly a few fellow racers who are so foolish as to endanger their lives on the track. Yet we must have a law to prevent men from unnecessarily and foolishly risking THEIR OWN lives, entirely of their OWN VOLITION.

Better Ban Stock Dabblers

Those who dabble in stocks risk their lives. If the bottom should suddenly drop out of the market, leaving them holding an empty sack, they run a great risk of committing suicide. We need a law to prevent this.

Eighteen men have been killed to date in the construction of the San Francisco-Oakland Bay Bridge. According to the law of averages that apparently controls such engineering enterprises, more will lose their lives before the project is completed. Better stop building immediately and ban all further bridge construction in the state of California.

Back to the Horse and Buggy

Little need to mention the 37,000 men, women, and children killed by automobiles in this country last year. Ban automobiles immediately! Back to the horse and buggy. But no, horses and mules have been known to kill and injure people by kicking and by running away. We shall have to walk, then. We might, though, trip over a curb and get killed. Banish curbs!

There is, however, one consolation left. The Municipal Railway of San Francisco reports that of the 78,000,000 passengers carried last year, only one was injured fatally. Perhaps that average is low enough so that we do not need a law to ban street cars.

Steamships, Airplanes Out

Thirty-one men perished when the S.S. Iowa fell victim to treacherous Peacock Spit at the entrance of the Columbia River recently. At one crack, four more men lost their lives than have perished in racing accidents in four years. Looks like no more ocean travel can be legal.

Airplanes might replace steamships, except that they must now become illegal; otherwise, riding in them would be "legalized murder," for the last three major airplane accidents within the last two months have delivered to Death's hands six more men than race tracks have claimed since 1932.

Unscrupulous Promoters the Cause

Race track officials attempt to exploit and capitalize reckless and mad driving, claimed one newspaper. So it is such unscrupulous promoting that must be stopped, as well as the death hazard?

If auto race track officials are unscrupulous exploiters, then are horse race officials, and those of dog tracks, be otherwise? It is interesting to look over the list of officers of large corporations, and see how many of them are directors of prominent race tracks. The president of one of the largest corporations in the state, with home offices in San Francisco, who draws a trifling salary of considerably in excess of $100,000 annually, is a prominent director of the Santa Anita race track group.

Must Talk About Ethiopia

Arthur Brisbane is still at it, lending to the cause of Italy whatever moral support his column may boast. Recently, telling of how many hundreds of Ethiopians are being killed, he said: "Ethiopians are helpless against modern Italian machine guns, tanks, and air bombs, as were former rulers of tribes conquered by Abyssinia against powder and bullets."

That well may be true. The only slip-up in Mr. Brisbane's reasoning is that, apparently, he reads nothing but the news reports that come from Italy. Read some probably authentic accounts, and we find that Italian soldiers are helpless against the burning deserts, the torrential rains, the African insects, and the guerrilla warfare, as were the soldiers of Pershing in their little paseo into Mexico two decades ago.

HEALTH COURSES AT U.C.L.A.

The University of California at Los Angeles announces a comprehensive program in the field of public health nursing for its 1936 summer session. Many prominent public health and nursing educators from various parts of the country will instruct at the session, which will be held from June 27 to August 7.

CURTAIN

Duffy Offers Sherwood's Drama

Henry Duffy's presentation of The Petrified Forest, now in its final week at the Geary Theater, offers the playgoer two hours of strange fascination created by a fast-moving drama of another cross-section of life. Conrad Nagel, Lois Moran, and Roger Pryor, each in a noticeable understanding of character, give Robert E. Sherwood's play a complete dramatization, effective and entertaining.

A man seeks faith, a girl wants understanding; how each discovers his ideal in a lonely desert tavern is the basis for Sherwood's story.

Nagel, as the educated wanderer, "possessing brains without purpose," living life without point, carries his mind's turmoil to the audience with an easy assurance of character and naturalness of lines. Often he jumps from the rather acute sarcasm of a cynic to the odd psychology of a philosopher, a contrast accomplished with ease and dexterity through the medium of a voice that shouts and softens in the same breath like a rhythmic chord of music. In truth, the play itself is a contrast—a contrast of stark reality and poignant idealism.

Miss Moran, while at times a bit too sweet for an exacting rendition of profane lines, gives an appealing interpretation. When the play is over and the illusion faded, one is still reminded of the girl, and the balance of her life goes on even though it be off the stage set.

Pryor, as a notorious desperado, makes a shortage of lines work decidedly to his advantage by active use of definite body movements that pronounce his character. It is a surprising change from the series of fast-talking newspapermen and sophisticated playboys he has recently been bringing to the screen.

Headed by Eddie Waller and Frank Milan, the large supporting cast takes every advantage of Sherwood's speedy lines. Staged by Russell Fillmore, a set, perfect in balance and absolute in detail, completes a list of noteworthy attributes that make The Petrified Forest thoroughly enjoyable and, more important, "good theater."

Pulitzer Winner Comes to Curran

Tomorrow evening, the 1935 Pulitzer prize-winning play, The Old Maid, starring the original New York leads, Helen Menken and Judith Anderson, begins a limited engagement at the Curran Theater.

The Old Maid was dramatized from Edith Wharton's novel of the same name by Zoe Akins, remembered most recently for The Greeks Had a Word For It. Brought to San Francisco by Harry Moses, New York producer of The Warrior's Husband and Grand Hotel, this new addition to the list of memorables claims Guthrie McClintic, producer-director husband of Katherine Cornell, as its director. This combination, with the Misses Menken and Anderson to complete the circle of famous ones, caused Burns Mantle to write, "There is no more moving drama on Broadway."

A classic novel, a prize-winning play, and an original cast headed by stars of Strange Interlude and Mary of Scotland—that is The Old Maid.

Irvin Silberstein.

Drama Students In Radio Program

Dramatizing the life of Lincoln, San Francisco Junior College students will be heard in a broadcast February 11 at 1:30 p.m. over KYA.

Ten students, seven men and three women, will be chosen from the various sections in dramatics to enact nine episodes covering many heretofore unstressed phases in Lincoln's life. An outstanding episode will be the scene at Gettysburg, according to Ruth Jensen of the dramatics department.

Tryouts for the cast are being held daily under the direction of Miss Jensen.

All elementary school children will be asked to listen in on the broadcast, which is a program created under the auspices of the publicity department of the Board of Education.

Debating Squad Loses To Sacramento in Meet

Upholding the negative of the question, "Resolved, That a two-thirds majority of Congress shall have the power to override a five-to-four decision of the Supreme Court," Lloyd D. Luckmann's college debating team lost to that of Sacramento at the forensic meet held here recently.

Sacramento's affirmative team consisted of Graham Lund and William Comstock, while San Francisco was represented by Barbara Latz and Mildred Ross.

Pres. Archibald J. Cloud, Assistant Dean Edwin C. Browne, and a number of students attended the debate.

Paper Talk

By Paul Green

SLOGANS BRING CASH

First prize of the week goes to the fellow who, in response to the national slogan campaign conducted by the Lucky Strike cigarette dealers, walked into their office recently.

"What do you want?" they asked.

"I have a slogan. Before I give it to you, tell me this: If you use it will you give me $25,000?"

The man's nuts, they thought. "Sure," they said, "if we use it we'll give you the money."

"Okay," the fellow answered. "Here it is: 'Be Happy—Go Lucky'."

Without a minute's wait they handed him the 25 G's, and now Luckies will come out with a national advertising campaign using that slogan.

That makes the winner one of the highest paid writers of all time, getting $6,250 per word for something that was not even original. There was even a song with that title not so long ago, but because this man was observant and alert he gets a break. Why didn't we think of it!

SOMETHING IN COMMON

Last week, while British royalty rehearsed the funeral of King George, part of the American "royalty" rehearsed, and are still rehearsing, the funeral of Franklin D. Roosevelt. Only this time the corpse may not consent, and will "royalty" be startled if the "funeral" doesn't take place!

LOCAL STUDENTS BLASE

Last week I had the pleasure of conversing with a person who has done extensive traveling in foreign countries. In fact, he has lived abroad for some years during his life. We were discussing things in general and I asked him if there was much difference in students abroad and in America. He replied in the affirmative, saying that the youth of foreign countries seemed much more organized than here.

"In fact," he said, "American students are about the only young people in the world who don't take an active part in the affairs of their nation."

What a come-down! Most college people here can't even take an active interest in their own student body, let alone be active in national affairs.

VOTERS DECREASE YEARLY

The indifference of eligible voters moves in an upward trend, observations disclose.

In 1896, eighty voters out of every hundred in the United States cast ballots in the presidential elections; in 1900, only seventy-three out of every hundred cast their ballots; in 1912, only sixty; in 1920, fifty; and in 1924, less than fifty. (The damned history book was printed in 1924, so can't give you later figures.)

At first this would indicate that there were more people under 21 years of age every year, and the lowering infant mortality rates bear this out. But at the same time the birth rate has dropped considerably, so it looks like more people each year just don't give a hoot.

A GONG, TOO!

Major Bowes, whose success with amateur programs started a national hysteria producing as many ham hours as there used to be miniature golf courses, will soon conduct an Amateur Page to run weekly in Liberty. This is supposed to provide expression to those whose talents, imaginary or otherwise, run more to writing than singing "The Music Goes 'Round," etc. He's supposed to have a gong in this venture, also, but nobody sees yet how he can do it.

EASY FOR FROSH

Everybody notices that the freshmen are not compelled to wear beanies or other means of identification. "You can't tell the frosh from the big-shots any more," states an individual, which statement, if true, is not very complimentary to either group, is it?

BRIDGING THE GAP

Plans are now under way for the college to submit a petition to the builders of the bay bridge asking that the causeway and approach of the bridge be so constructed that it would connect with the cross corridors which relate the east and west buildings at Galileo. By doing this, East Bay students will be able to make better connections on their homeward journeys.

It is suggested that the second floor connection be reserved for those residing in Oakland and the third floor for denizens of Berkeley. The fourth floor will be kept for hitchhikers and the fifth is reserved for Rawson alone. (I know there are only four floors, but this space must be filled.)

Pending complete compilation of the list of open classes, students who were barred from certain desirable sections that were filled at the time of registration should enquire at the college office to determine if there have been any reopenings, Paul Pitman, assistant to Pres. A. J. Cloud, has announced.

RAMS' FIRST HOME SERIES FRIDAY

THE GUARDSMAN SPORTS

Sport RAMBLINGS

By Tony Scafani

Much talk has been going the rounds as to how the male members of the faculty were going to give the students a shellacking in an indoor baseball game, which was supposed to have been played some time ago.

We wonder what has happened to the faculty team. The campus players are still waiting for the game to be played.

How about setting a date for the contest, men? Maybe the rest of the student body would enjoy watching this game.

NEW ATHLETES WIN PLACES

Quite a few new students, notably freshmen, are beginning to find a niche for themselves in the jaysee athletic program.

On the basketball squad there are two freshmen, Monty Mordecai and Doug Maas. Both of these lads are guards and look pretty good. Mordecai is a veritable giant, measuring 6 feet 6 inches, while Maas stretches 5 feet 11; he wears a cage over his glasses when he plays.

Bob Fex, Larry Favor and Jerry Biggerstaff are the newcomers on the baseball team and all three seem to have what it takes. Fex is an outfielder, Biggerstaff a pitcher, and Favor a shortstop. The last is the boy who completes the infield in the proper way.

FACULTY, STUDES HAVE NET MEETS

Within three weeks two separate tournaments will be held under the guiding hand of Tennis Coach Tom Wilson.

Trophies have already been donated for the undergraduate tourney, while negotiations are under way to get a trophy for the faculty winner.

In all probability the faculty racquet-wielders will have a big audience watching them go through their paces. Not many people will want to miss such an affair.

CONLAN GUIDES GOLFERS

Genial "Dutch" Conlan will handle the Ram golf squad during the coming season.

Conlan, who is some golfer himself, should be able to impart plenty of valuable tips to his charges.

At present the divot-diggers are working out mornings at Funston Field "on their own hook."

WILL LETTERMEN MEET SOON?

In the last Guardsman there was mention about the Block SF Society getting organized.

Again I repeat: How about the lettermen getting together to get things started? There are a great many things an organization of that kind can do if it is started right.

How about someone assuming the leadership and seeing Russ Sweet about a conference of all eligible members?

SCHWARZ FAILS IN P.A. TRY

Maury Schwarz, who entered the Pacific Association's junior boxing championships last week, came out on the short end of the decision against Angelo De Marco.

It was a close bout in the 166-pound division. Maury doesn't want sympathy, so this scrivener wishes him luck in his next fistic venture.

Net Men Arrange All-College Meet

Through arrangements with the jaysee Tennis Club, an all-junior college tennis tournament is slated to begin in about three weeks. The tourney will be run off in "ladder" form, with players meeting and eliminating each other until only the champion remains. The matches will be open to men players only.

A handsome trophy for the winner of the singles championship has been donated by Van Wormer & Rodrigues, jewelers at 126 Post Street. A similar award is planned for the doubles winners.

From the ranking netmen will be picked players for the college team which will represent the school in intercollegiate competition, according to Tom Wilson, tennis coach.

Wilson has arranged the following schedule:

Feb. 21—San Mateo J.C.
Feb. 27—Menlo J.C.
*Mar. 5—Marin J.C. (tentative)

Red And White Win Two Games At Yuba

Caine Collects 19 Points As Hoopsters Smear Northern Outfit

By trouncing Yuba Junior College in two games last week, 49-17 and 51-28, the San Francisco cagers moved into possession of third place in the Northern California Junior College standings.

Both games were won easily, especially Saturday's contest, which was turned into a rout by the Ram hoopsters.

NICCO GETS MAD

Yuba held a 4-to-2 lead for three minutes in the latter game, until Glynn and Rippon came through with buckets to bring the score to 7-4. Yuba connected with another basket, which made Guido Nicco, Ram guard, very angry. Whereupon Nicco looks at the basket and bang! bang! bang! three long-range shots found their mark.

Carlyle Caine, playing his first conference game, replaced Glynn at center and proved to be a spark plug which set the team rolling with two pretty hook shots. From then on, everybody collected points. Half-time score was 29-16.

In the second half, Caine rang the bell for four field goals in a minute and a half, while Nicco connected twice to bring his total up to 12 markers for the night. Altogether Caine tallied 19 digits against the Forty-niners.

FIRST GAME EASY

In the first game the locals ran rough-shod over the northern bunch, half-time score being 34 to 5 in favor of the Rams.

"Red" Lowans and Caine peppered the hoop for 10 points apiece, while Paul Rippon accounted for 8.

The second half showed a better tussle, the Rams getting 15 points more, while the Forty-niners collected 14, which, added to their first-half score, gave them 19 measly points.

Tom Wilson's 145's Meet S.F. Staters

Gradually rounding into shape after a sloppy early season, 145-pound hoopsters have developed into a fair to middlin' squad at this writing.

Coached by Tom Wilson, who has drilled the team on offense and ball-handling all last week, the team tackles the crack lightweight outfit of the San Francisco State College tonight in a preliminary to the varsity combat between the two schools at Kezar pavilion.

The hoopsters were considerably strengthened by the return of Mitzman at forward and by two freshman stars, Urga at forward, and O'Neill, who is about the best-looking guard prospect on the roster.

The next tussle comes on Friday, when the 145's meet a club team in a preliminary to the Ram-Sacramento conference basketball tilt at the Galileo gym.

On next Wednesday the varsity and 145's will have a return engagement with the San Francisco State squads at Kezar.

Lightweights Lose To Tip Top Outfit

By the difference of two heart-breaking long shots, the Tip Top Club of the Hayes Valley Recreation Center nosed out the Ram 145-pound basketball squad on Wednesday, 39 to 35.

It was a hard-fought, nip-and-tuck battle all the way, the lead changing from time to time until the final whistle. Urga, new addition to Coach Wilson's charges, took high-point honors for the Red and White, using an effective hook shot to collect a total of 14 points. Hubbard accounted for 10.

Talavera, Tip Top guard, marked up 15 points for his team.

Cagers Split Marin Series At Kentfield

Making their debut in the Northern California Junior College Conference, the San Francisco Junior College cagers split a two-game series with Marin Junior College at Kentfield, January 24, 25.

The Rams put on a fine display of basketball the opening night, easily defeating the Mariners by a score of 32-28. The spectators were few who didn't think the Rams would run up a larger score in the second game, but the Red and Whiters appeared tired Saturday and, not showing their true form, dropped the second contest by a margin of five points, 28-23.

FIRST GAME THRILLING

The Friday night fray was easily the most thrilling of the two games. Coach Conlan's cagers looked and played the part of a well-coached team.

Captain Ralph Hillsman was easily the outstanding ball player on the court, scoring 16 points for high-point honors, intercepting numerous Marin passes, breaking up plays, and directing the Ram attack from his guard position.

The team left the court at the intermission with a 16-10 lead.

Starring in the first half assault was Bill Glynn, elongated S.F.J.C. center, who completely bottled up the opposing center, and Captain Hillsman, who held intact little Charles Petty, Marin ace. "Legs" Glynn put on a pretty display of defensive ability in batting down Reid's goal tries.

HILLSMAN INJURED

Saturday night found a tired looking bunch of boys facing the Yellow and Black. The team ran around the court aimlessly, showing a complete reversal of form, while the Mariners played a steady and better brand of ball than the previous night. The game itself was very close in the opening half, with the lead changing hands numerous times. Never during the session did more than two or three points separate either team.

A great loss to the squad was the injury to Ralph Hillsman, who was taken out of the game early in the opening minutes with a "charley-horse" on his left thigh and was unable to continue. It was the playing and shooting of "Red" Lowans and "Rip" Rippon that kept the Essef cagers in the running and gave them a lead of 13-12 at the half-way mark.

RALLY FALLS SHORT

Burnett, playing a great game at guard for the home team, pushed his side into the lead late in the second period and with five minutes left in the ball game the Mariners held a 25-18 advantage. Here the Yellow and Black-clad boys started to stall, but Lowans and Loustalot managed to get the ball away to bring the team within five digits of Marin. But time cut short their efforts and the Rams found themselves on the short end of a 28-23 count. Lowans, by virtue of some pretty shooting, captured high scoring honors for the evening with 12 markers.

Baseball Nine Looks Good At Funston Field

Wilgus Best Mound Prospect While Fielders Are Attaining Form

In the spring a young man's fancy lightly turns to thoughts of love, or is it BASEBALL?

Headman Lee Eisan, horsehide mentor, is greeted daily at Funston Field by some forty aspirants whose cherished ambitions are to become Di Maggios or Deans. Practice is held at 1 o'clock.

BALBOA SENDS MEN

In looking over the list of prospects, Balboa Hi leads as benefactor, contributing Lawrence Wilgus, Od Guisti and Larry Favor. From Poly come Bob Fex and George (Chase) McGuire, while Galileo sends Ed McSweeney and Blinky Anido. Jack Telesmanic of Mission and "Snuffy" Scafani are also ball players in their own rights.

So far, with very little to choose among the tryouts, the pitching of Wilgus and McGuire's work around the first sack have been the sparks which caught Eisan's eye.

"From the looks of things, we'll win a few ball games during the season," the coach said. "You can quote me to that effect."

CATCHERS STRONG

Telesmanic and Jerome Zavagno are giving Anido something to think about at the backstop position, with Martinez as a likely looking prospect for the first base job by virtue of his hitting prowess. Ferree and Dumisnil are pitchers who haven't had a chance to show much yet.

Pete Jambruno and Forrest Morrison are football players striving for places in the outfield, as is Ed McSweeney, who won't be able to play much until the conference basketball race is ended.

Divided into A and B nines, the squad has been scrimmaging throughout the week, with the box score for the last battle as follows:

USF Frosh Win Return Battle

Don Babes Are Too Much For S.F. in Short Game

Although having defeated them in an earlier contest, the San Francisco varsity found the basketball talents of the U.S.F. frosh team too much for them Wednesday at Kezar pavilion. The score was exactly the reverse of that of the previous game, which the Rams won 27-24.

The game was cut short five minutes in the second half, which found the local hoop outfit fighting desperately to overcome the lead.

Nip and tuck throughout the contest, at no time until the final quarter did more than two points separate the two teams. Half-time score was 16 up, with Lowans and Hillsman coming through with buckets just before the period ended.

Dutch Conlan, using the game as a proving ground for some of his basketball talent, allowed every member on the squad some action, with an eye for future conference tilts. Mordecai and Maas, two freshmen who won squad positions, showed up well in their first competition for the Rams.

Free throws were the bane of the Red and White warriors. The Rams tried 11 foul shots and cashed in on only four, while Bob Kleckner's frosh collected five out of eight free throws.

Ralph Hillsman was high (as usual) for the Ram casabans with eight digits, followed closely by "Red" Lowans, who accounted for six points.

Cinder Stars Limbering Up At USF Field

Track Men Are Strong In Sprints But Need Field Experts

By Mushy McSweeney

Coach Russ Sweet's cinder-pounders have been going 'round and 'round the U.S.F. track since registration, limbering up leg muscles and getting back their wind. Although none of the boys has yet attained anything like his best form, Sweet's critical eye has already sized up some of the candidates as fair material. Some of those who have shaped up well so far are:

SPRINTERS GOOD

In the sprints, Sidney Farley, George Compas, Kent Mason, Bob Merlo and Bill Jackson. Jackson, colored flash from the University of Nevada, ran the sprints for the Wolf Pack frosh last season and appears to be the best prospect so far.

Of the middle-distance men, George Warren, a lad with a good prep school record, is outrunning such performers as Bob Towell, Chuck Geraghty, Wendell Pomares and Ben Deane.

Stanley Evans, who holds the 440 record for 130-pound trackmen, will be unable to compete this year because of illness.

The fair-haired boys who believe in the song "I'd run a mile for one of your smiles" include Jimmy Gibson, Bob Windhorst, Bob Wendburg, and Walt Bertram, a transfer from Golden Gate J.C. who has been showing his heels to the rest of the pack.

Dan Southard, Jim McGruer, Raymond Kaaret, and Jimmy Fahn comprise the timber-topper brigade, and are finding out that the faster you go up the quicker you come down.

NEED WEIGHT MEN

The field events may be a little weak, but not because of a shortage of men. "Jumbo" Jublonsky is the ranking shot-putter and discus tosser of the outfit, while Ed Scott looms as a fair javelin tosser.

In the high jump, John Carrol leads and help is expected when Ernie Loustalot, now playing varsity basketball, turns out.

PLAN INDOOR MEETS

Sweet plans to enter the dash men in indoor meets in the near future, provided they can round into shape quickly enough.

All in all, there are fifty candidates for the track outfit.

The probable cinder schedule is as follows:

March 21—California frosh
April 4—Stanford frosh
April 25—San Mateo J.C.
May 2—J.C. Conference meet
May 9—S.F. State
May 16—Fresno Relays

In addition to these, competition may be arranged with the San Jose State frosh and Santa Rosa J.C.

COMPETE SATURDAY

The first practice meet will be held this Saturday and they will be continued every week-end thereafter until the season formally opens. The gates at the U.S.F. field are always open, and visitors are urged to attend these practice meets on Saturdays free of charge.

SPORTS-WORTS.—Eaves-dropping on a few of the boys in the limelight: Dolph Pedrin, end on the Ram grid team, is baseball manager . . . A-men tell us that he got the job so they could use his ears for hat-bags. . . . Bob Eltringham is meandering at San Jose State . . . George Clarke has that wistful look in his eyes (Oh, no, it isn't the breeze) . . . Maybe you won't believe it, but Maury Schwarz thinks there is a buckle on the corn belt . . . Do you remember "Tiger" McHugh before he cultivated that fern under his nose? . . . Felix Anido and Kremesec are planning a blinking contest—if things don't go on the blink it ought to be good . . . Bob Lee put whiskers on his Ford to make it look like a Lincoln.

Sacramento Invades San Francisco With League-Leading Five

Panthers Meet Rams on Galileo Court After Four Conference Wins, But Conlan's Outfit Fears Nobody

By LOU BERTOLUCCI

The Panthers are coming to town!

But have no fear, dear readers, for the Panthers are only the cagers of the Sacramento Junior College. And then again, maybe I should say "have fear," for the Panthers, showing some of the ferocity of a jungle beast, now lead the conference race, having knocked over Yuba and Menlo in successive weeks to the tune of such scores as 55-19 and 56-26.

However, neither Yuba nor Menlo is rated much in the conference race, so the Sacramento five meets its first formidable opponent in the battering Rams of San Francisco Friday and Saturday evenings at the Galileo gym, 8 o'clock. The game was to be played at Kezar but the pavilion will not be available over the week-end.

RAMS WANT TWO

This being the first home appearance for the Red and White, a large crowd is expected to turn out. The local hoopsters are bent on scoring a double win over the league-leading team in order to be in a spot for the championship themselves.

The Red and Gold invaders have always been high in junior college basketball circles and expect to turn back Coach Conlan's boys, but if they should win—I said "if"—it will not be a rout, as have been the Panthers' first games.

The Sacramentans have shown a fast-breaking offense and a strong, air-tight defense with an ability to cope with any emergency, but if "Red" Lowans, Paul Rippon and Ernie Loustalot can be "hot" when the teams meet, it is doubtful if the northern quintet can withstand the onslaught.

GLYNN THREAT

Sacramento will find no end of trouble from Bill Glynn, rangy Ram center, whose defensive play has been outstanding.

Ralph Hillsman and Ed McSweeney will start at the guard positions. Hillsman is the bulwark of the Ram attack and one of the outstanding conference players. McSweeney has shown a world of defensive ability.

Although Sacramento rates the edge by virtue of experience, Coach Conlan has been drilling the boys in hopes of upsetting the dope bucket.

Coach Tom Wilson's 145-pound quintet will tangle with a local club team in the preliminary on Friday.

Crewmen Have Experience But Need Coxswain

With a list of more than eighty prospective oarsmen on the sign-up list for a varsity crew, there is still room for more men with crew experience. Jack Gaddy, who will coach the oarsmen, announces that practice sessions will be held on Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday at 11:40 a.m. Varsity tryouts will be held at the San Francisco Yacht Harbor.

Whale boats have already been obtained for practice, Gaddy states, and sufficient oars for the numerous candidates will be secured in the near future.

"There is still an opening for a good coxswain," Gaddy said, "and when we get one I plan to give the aspirants a good workout. We'll take them over every available inch of the bay until we get them in trim."

The varsity will enter competition with other junior colleges, college freshmen and high school outfits besides taking part in a league of bay district schools. San Mateo J.C. took the championship of that conference last year and several of its members have transferred to San Francisco.

Some of the notables are Neal Martin, captain of the San Mateo shell-rowers, Aaron Galant, Howard Markuse, Duke Hitchcock, and Burt Gross.

San Francisco Will Be Golfers' Host

Assured by conference officials that the playoffs for the Northern California Junior Conference championships in both golf and tennis will be sponsored by the San Francisco Junior College, managers for those two sports are busy outlining plans for them.

Golf Manager Jack Welch has announced that the golf playoff will definitely take place at the Stanford links, but no arrangements have been made yet in regard to the tennis matches.

Players will qualify for the golf team in a school tournament which will be conducted in conjunction with a class in golf fundamentals given at Funston Field at 9:40 on Tuesdays and Thursdays. Dutch Conlan will direct this class.

Intramural Sports Nearly Completed

Although no definite plans for a men's intramural sports program have as yet been arranged, the schedule of events will be ready in about two weeks, according to Coaches Dutch Conlan and Russ Sweet.

The program calls for interclass events in touch-football, basketball, tennis and golf, with possibly one or two other sports included.

Each class will be represented by a team in each event, with the class winning the most contests receiving some award. It is probable that all regularly enrolled men students will be eligible for participation, with the possible exclusion of varsity players who have won their letters.

Part Of Ice Age Bison Is Found In Bay

Bridge Excavators Locate Jaw-bone 180 Feet Below Surface

A fragment of the lower left jaw of a giant bison, found 180 feet below the surface of San Francisco Bay while excavations were being made for Pier E-3 of the San Francisco-Oakland Bay bridge, has been submitted to the Museum of Palaeontology of the University of California for examination and research. The specimen was picked up in the scoop of the dredger, from a deposit of blue mud which had once been a strata of decayed vegetable matter common to exposed land surfaces.

COMMON IN ICE AGE

R. A. Stirton, curator of the vertebrate section of the museum, explained that these animals were common to all of North America during the Pleistocene or Ice Age of 500,000 years ago, and that at the time the great animal bogged down, the bay must have been more or less exposed marsh land. The find is regarded as important in tracing the migrations of these prehistoric beasts over what is now California. Fossil fragments of the same bison species have been found within the past few years in Shasta County and in the Mount Diablo region.

TEETH INTACT

The fragment found under Pier E-3 still had the teeth intact and otherwise was in fair condition. It came into the possession of Albert W. Whalin, a contractor of 2924 Twenty-second Avenue, Oakland, who submitted it to the university.

According to university records, this and similar finds tend to confirm in part the theory held by Thomas Jefferson, himself a student of palaeontology, that such animals existed in the then unexplored West. He commissioned the Lewis and Clark Expedition to bring some back, if possible, believing that they might still be found alive.

CHANGE OF COURSE PROCESS TOLD BY REGISTRAR P. MOHR

Students who have filed their registration books and want to change their programs must obtain a change of program slip from the office, according to Registrar Paul Mohr.

The process for changing, as outlined by Mohr, is as follows: The student must get the signature of the instructor of the class he is leaving, and of that of the class he is entering. Before an attempt at change is made, the student should see the instructor of the prospective course to ascertain if there is a vacancy. After the change slip is properly signed, it must be filed in the office.

Mohr urges all students to follow this instruction, and if there is any doubt, to go to the office for information.

SEWELL, LUCKMANN DIRECT PRE-LEGALS

Plans are being formulated by the jurisprudence students of the college, under the direction of Lloyd D. Luckmann and Franklin C. Sewell, for the organizing of a Pre-Legal Society.

"The purpose of the society will be to enable the students of law to become better acquainted with the practical application of law through periodical talks by several prominent members of the bar whom we hope to have as honorary members," said Luckmann.

The first meeting of the club was held last Monday afternoon in the office of Assistant Dean Browne. Officers were elected, but as The Guardsman goes to press the results were not available.

A Cappella Is Invited To Attend San Jose Festival

Invitation to attend the annual music festival to be held in San Jose in April has been received by the college A Cappella Choir, directed by Flossita Badger, instructor in singing. All northern California junior colleges are represented at this festival.

SOUND "YARDSTICK" TO MEASURE NOISE AID IN ELIMINATION

LOS ANGELES.—Considered as a definite advancement in the campaign being conducted in many cities in the United States for the reduction or elimination of unnecessary noise, is the action of the American Standards Association in the adoption of standards for the design and construction of meters by which the loudness of sound may be measured. This is the statement of Dr. Vern O. Knudsen, professor of physics in the University of California at Los Angeles, and internationally known acoustician, chairman of the association.

Meters constructed in accordance with the standards will measure the loudness of all sound, whether necessary or otherwise. The standards adopted make possible the building of a "yardstick" by which noise may be measured in various cities, and comparisons may be made upon a standard basis.

Several years ago the committee undertook the task of investigating useless noise in large cities, and making recommendations for its reduction. They were faced with the fact that there was no definite standard for the measurement of these noises, and their first task was to establish a standard that would be universally accepted before they could proceed.

Dr. Knudsen says that many cities, and many corporations, are now "noise conscious" and are endeavoring to eliminate unnecessary noise. The new standards for measurement are expected to be of definite aid to them.

Booblika? Chemists Sell Apples, Also

Since the College Chemistry Club does not charge dues, it has been decided that the club will finance itself by selling apples and "Booblika" (Russian doughnuts to you) at 4:20-4:30 p.m. and 5:20-5:30 p.m. near Room 405. Besides financing the Chemistry Club, it will also tide the students over the lecture from 4:30-6:30 and, on Dr. Polissar's side, remove the distraction of hungry faces.

Tennis Classes For Women Arranged

Women students who are interested in playing tennis at the Palace of Fine Arts on Tuesday and Thursday mornings at 9:50 or 10:20 o'clock, in addition to their regular credit hours in physical education, should sign up in the women's gym by February 11, which is the date the classes start, according to Bertha Keller, tennis coach.

W.A.A. tournaments and instruction for those interested will be organized by Miss Keller.

ENVIOUS EYES TURN TO 450 SUTTER FOR STAIRS ELIMINATION

After prancing up and down four flights of stairs a maximum of twelve times daily at the present two locations of the college, it is no wonder that envious student eyes have been focused upon the regal features of the building at 450 Sutter Street, directly behind the Extension Building, as a fine prospective campus.

The main reason for their enthusiasm is no doubt caused by the building's enticing elevator service. The elevators, the most modern in San Francisco, possess mystifying devices and are equipped for the greatest maximum of safety and comfort.

In thirty days, the cars travel as many miles as it would take to cross the continent, the exact figures being 4,800 miles. During the course of this up-and-down flight, over 52,000 stops are made, allowing over 400,000 passengers to ascend and descend.

Library Is To Get Books on Speaking

Public speaking students under the direction of Paul McKelvey, in order to save the expense of purchasing more than one text, are each contributing a fee of 25 cents in order that the college library may place copies of the book on their shelves.

These books will be used for reference work and will be kept on reserve for those students taking Public Speaking 1b.

As these texts will only be used once or twice in the semester, the instructor saw no need in each individual to purchase separate copies.

ADDITIONAL MEN ARE TAKEN INTO FACULTY

San Francisco Junior College begins the Spring semester with the addition of three new faculty members.

One of these new members, Kenneth L. Hobbs, has recently returned from a long stay in the Philippines and will be a member of the Science Department. The other two are Claude Shull, formerly of the Golden Gate Junior College, who is in the Business Department, and John Boober of the Chemistry Department, who was formerly connected with the University of San Francisco.

The Guardsman, on behalf of the faculty and students, wishes to welcome these newcomers to our portals with the sincere wish that their semesters here be pleasant and successful.

VITAMINS IN BAKED BREAD

Baked bread loses practically none of its vitamin content in the baking process, and the size of the loaf does not appear to make a great deal of difference in this regard, it was found by the department of household science of the University of California.

Museum Atop Mt. Diablo Is Now Planned

Famous Peak Might Become Class in Geology and Palaeontology

BERKELEY, Feb. 2.—Plans for the establishment of a museum atop Mount Diablo, Contra Costa County, which would serve as a classroom of palaeontology and geology for the whole California public in the heart of one of the state's most outstanding geologic fields, are being prepared for submission to the State Park Commission.

The plans are being worked out by Professor Bruce L. Clark, curator of the invertebrate collection in the university's museum of palaeontology, and Harry L. Blaisdell, warden of the Mount Diablo State Park.

BUILDINGS THERE NOW

Much of the district is now a state park, but one unit, which includes the top of the mountain, remains to be taken over. This unit already contains a suitable building for the museum and living quarters for the caretaker, and the university could immediately stock the building with impressive exhibits. In addition, the field is so accessible that all interested persons could make geologic collections on their own account under expert supervision and guidance.

The museum would show the part that geology and palaeontology play in the everyday life of man. The manner in which oil fields are explored and worked through study of the layers of fossil protozoa, and the part the university plays in determining the presence and age of these deposits would be graphically set forth. Other exhibits showing the vital relationship of geology and palaeontology to modern life are also available.

NATURE'S FILING CABINET

The Mount Diablo district is nature's own filing cabinet of the geologic ages. In some distant period the various stratas marking these ages were bent upwards by a series of earth convulsions, and their ends now lie exposed. The Tertiary deposit sections on the south side of the mountain are 17,000 feet thick, the Eocene deposits in this section alone being some 8,000 feet through.

It is Professor Clark's hope that the museum, if established, will be made part of the university's own museum, for field work and other instruction. While no funds are available for the project, both building and exhibits will be available, and it is hoped that civic enterprise will supply the necessary maintenance funds.

State School Wins National High Ratings

Forestry College Is Named Among Four Highest in the Country

BERKELEY.—The University of California Forestry School is one of four which are rated as being distinguished by the Society of American Foresters. What is more important, perhaps, it spends the least of the four schools in the distinguished class, making an outlay of but 19 cents for each dollar spent by the New York State College of Forestry.

These facts were made known to the university administration by the society, composed of 4,000 professional foresters in federal, state and private employ. The society conducted an intensive survey and study of the 24 forestry schools of the United States, covering two years, before announcing the classification.

92 PER CENT SCORE

The four schools to receive this honor are the Forestry School of Yale University, the New York State College of Forestry, the School of Forestry and Conservation of the University of Michigan, and the Division of Forestry of the University of California. An elaborate score card was used in making up the rating. All four of these schools achieved a score of more than 92 per cent. The next highest school was unable to go above a score of 82.

California is substantially in the lead in economy of operation, with the figure already given. Against every dollar spent by the New York school, Yale spends 36 cents and the University of Michigan 33 cents.

20 FACTORS CONSIDERED

Twenty factors were considered in making up the rating, the chief of them being the standing of the faculty, research accomplished, and the record made by alumni. California has the second largest senior class in forestry, including 50 men. New York State College comes first with about 70 seniors.

Moreover, California is the youngest of the four leading schools, it having been established in 1914. The Yale school was established in 1900, the Michigan school in 1903, and the New York school in 1911.

The first word of California's fine showing was received by Professor Walter Mulford, head of the Division of Forestry of the university, who made due acknowledgment to the society.

Guardsman Seeks To Collect Accurate Club Information

With the beginning of a new semester, reorganization will constitute the major consideration of many clubs, according to indications from group members and officers.

Because definite rooms for meeting have not yet been designated by Galileo High School authorities, a complete record of times and places of conclaves is not available, according to Paul Pitman, assistant to Pres. A. J. Cloud.

TABULATION ATTEMPTED

To compile as much information as possible, so that The Guardsman can ensure complete club coverage, the paper, in collaboration with Pitman, requests that club officers or faculty sponsors fill out the questionnaire below and leave it with Joan Nourse, faculty advisor to the editorial staff, in the south library as soon as possible.

Organizations that are officially listed in Pitman's office, and their faculty sponsors, are as follows:

CLUBS LISTED

Women's Athletic Association of S.F.J.C., Vera E. Spencer; S.F.J.C. Philatelic Society, C. F. Stough; Skull and Blades, Lloyd Luckmann; Women's Service Society of S.F.J.C., Verrel Weber; S.F.J.C. Chinese Students' Club, Edward Sandys; Delta Sigma Phi, Franklin Sewell; Associated Women Students, Mrs. Leonard; Hickory and Jeans Society, E. C. Browne.

Any club that wants official recognition from the college must have a constitution to present to the Executive Council for approval, according to Maury Schwarz, Associated Students president.

Schwarz urges that constitutions be turned in to him or to Assistant Dean Browne's office on or before Monday, February 11.

LIBRARY RECEIVES NEW PERIODICALS

The college's rapidly growing library now boasts a varied array of popular magazines, as new additions to the assortment arrive daily. Although literary periodicals have not yet arrived, the latest editions of Vogue, Theatre Arts, Harper's Bazaar, House Beautiful, and others are present, and are rapidly being augmented by new arrivals.

Drama enthusiasts should know about the twentieth anniversary number of Theatre Arts. This edition is twice as thick as the usual issue, profusely illustrated, and crammed with information about successes of the stage and screen.

Many style-wise co-eds may be seen gleaning information from Vogue or Harper's, while the gardening fans are thumbing the pages of House Beautiful's extensive articles about Spring flowers.

AUTHOR WRITES OF THINGS MISSED BY PEOPLE OF TODAY

An expert in the art of collecting tells of the things we ought to save for their future value:

People of today miss some of the most important things, thinks Jake Zeitlin, a collector of rare books and manuscripts, in his article, "Trifles Today, Treasures Tomorrow."

In this article, for example, Zeitlin sets forth that there is no complete file of Upton Sinclair's weekly, The Epic News. He says that he was made a valuable offer for the complete set, but was unable to obtain it.

Read the article in the February issue of The Reader's Digest. See for yourself what you and many others have missed. Copies in our library.

CANNED CHEESE AT U.C. CREAMERY IS NEWEST PRODUCT

DAVIS.—Cheddar cheese in cans is the latest product of the dairy industry division of the University of California on the Davis campus. A thousand cans of the new cheese have been manufactured and will be offered to the trade. After the pioneer work of the university, it is possible the new package may be adopted commercially by dairy products manufacturers of the state.

The canned cheese is being put out under the direction of C. A. Phillips, associate in dairy industry, and will be shown for the first time at the dairy industry short courses, February 3 to 8. The cheese is made without a rind and is cured in the can after they have been sealed. A valve in the top of the can permits the escape of gases that form during the curing. While the product costs more, there is no waste inasmuch as there are no rind and no mold to be trimmed off. Inside the can, the cheese is wrapped in aluminum foil coated on both sides with a preparation to prevent absorption of flavor from the foil. The individual cheeses weigh twelve ounces.

Riding Classes Will Begin Next Friday

There is nothing like a brisk canter in the park, or a swift gallop over the sand dunes—

Horseback riding classes commence Friday, February 7. The beginning class is held at 2:30, and the advanced class at 1 o'clock. To this first meeting each riding student must bring a permit to ride signed by her parents, and a fee of $10 for the lessons.

There will be a bulletin board in the South Library at Galileo for the equestriennes. Each student must sign up for her horse before any Friday that she wishes to ride.

The riding will take place at the Stanyan Street stables. See you on the bridle path—

UNIVERSITY PRESS WINS HONORS FOR FINE BOOK ISSUES

BERKELEY.—Belying the popular belief that state-owned printing offices cannot produce work comparing with that of the best privately owned presses, the University of California Press has just received three awards from the American Institute of Graphic Arts for books published in 1935.

The first two awards, according to word received by Samuel T. Farquhar, manager of the University Press, and University printer, were given to a book titled "The Dancer's Quest," by Elizabeth Selden, and "Byways in Bookland," by Professor James Westfall Thompson, published by the Book Arts Club of the University. These volumes have been selected by a jury of leading American book designers and typographers to be included in the list of "The Fifty Books of the Year." They will be exhibited, beginning February 10, in the public library of New York City.

The third award, also sponsored by the American Institute of Graphic Arts, was given to a new edition of Newton's "Principia," edited and revised by the late Professor Florian Cajori. This volume was selected as an example of the textbook of the future by a jury consisting of Bruce Rogers, Harry M. Lydenberg, and Frederic G. Melcher.

Narcotics Will Be Discussion Subject

Arrangements have been made for F. J. O'Ferrall, connected with the law enforcement division of the State Narcotics Bureau, to present a discussion on "Menaces of Dope" before the junior college class in social problems, Friday, February 7, at 12:35 o'clock in Room 207.

O'Ferrall will display equipment showing apparatus used by smugglers and peddlers.

In his discussion he will treat of the forms of narcotics, sources of supply, methods of entering the United States, means of approaching customers, the cost of narcotics to users, stages through which an addict passes, and the chief stress of narcotics and their menace to American life.

PROSPECTIVE GRADS SHOULD CHECK STATUS

Any student who has made a petition for graduation, and has not been notified of his standing, must notify the office and check up on his standing.

The administration has checked up on all petitions over the previous week-end. "The administration is checking up early this semester in order that the programs may be changed in time to fill the requirements of graduation," said Paul Mohr, registrar.

Classes In P.E. For Women To Start Feb. 10

Examination Is Required Before Enrollment in Courses

Classes in women's physical education will begin during the week of February 10, and before any student will be enrolled in a physical education class she must be examined by the college physician.

Women who were examined during the Fall semester, but who have recently recovered from illness, must have another examination before they can participate in strenuous W.A.A. competition.

The meeting places for the physical education classes are as follows:

PLACES LISTED

Fundamentals (entering students) Gym A (south) or B (north); games, basketball and baseball, Gym A (south); tennis and golf at west end of Funston Playground (club house); archery at the Fort Mason range, corner near Galileo; dancing, tap and modern, in Gym B (south); riding at San Francisco Academy on Haight and Stanyan.

Lockers will be assigned only to those participating at the Galileo gyms, and to get one a student must present her registration receipt, a lock and key and, with the locker partner, apply at the department office (Gym A) during the first meeting of her class. A student may get a locker in the dressing room nearest to the gymnasium to which she has been assigned.

CLOTHES INDICATED

For activities at Galileo gymnasium, co-eds may wear the same type of costume worn in high school, but for all other activities, sports clothes and shoes are recommended. Women students are urged to dress properly for the second meeting of their classes.

Problems of any kind may be reported to the instructor, as she is the department advisor.

Representatives To Association Elected

James S. Hughes, political science instructor, and Thomas A. Gabbert, of the foreign language department, were elected as representatives to the Governing Council of the San Francisco Teachers' Association at the first meeting of the Junior College Faculty Association held at Galileo, January 31.

Disease Is Found Non Contagious to Humans

BERKELEY.—The common dog tick, found throughout the state, has been identified by the University of California as perhaps the most important carrier of anaplasmosis, a baffling and widespread disease of dairy and range cattle, which claims a high mortality toll. Likewise it was reported that deer are largely responsible for the spread of the disease as they are among the foremost hosts of the parasite tick. Deer, however, are not subject to severe infection.

The disease is not contagious, nor can it be contracted by human beings. It is carried solely by the tick, to a much lesser degree by flies, and by careless handling of mechanical appliances and instruments.

BIG BRAWL TOMORROW AFTERNOON

Social Season Starts With 'Baby Dance' To Be Held Feb. 21

Dress of Infants Is Feature of Big Affair; Admission 40 Cents with Cards; Prizes Awarded for Best

Formally inaugurating the Spring social season at San Francisco Junior College, a "Baby Dance" will be held in the Galileo women's gymnasium Friday, February 21, at 9 o'clock p.m.

"Everyone coming to the dance must be dressed like a baby," declared Bill Weinstock, chairman of the program committee. He further said, "Stags will be admitted, but they must be in the proper costume."

PRIZE FOR COSTUME

The feature of the evening will be a grand march to determine the most original costume. A bid to the sophomore formal (value $1.50) will be given by the judges for the most original costume—one to a man, and one to a woman. Judges will be Mimi Colton, Betty Gray, Maury Schwarz and Weinstock.

Music will be furnished by a local orchestra, yet to be chosen. Corrinne Lynwood and Marge Silk, well-known junior college songstresses, will provide the vocal numbers, supplemented by intermission numbers from the orchestra.

ADMISSION 40 CENTS

The price of admission to the dance will be 40 cents per couple with student body cards, and 80 cents per couple without. Only one of a couple needs to have a student body card. Tickets will be sold by publicity salesmen and also at the dance.

The committees for the dance are as follows:

Entertainment: Marge Silk, Ethel Clarkson, Ruth Peterson, Aaron Galant, Ed Schwartz, and George Hagens.

Publicity: Donna McPherson, Shirley Breyer, Weinstock, Neal Martin, and Hagens.

Orchestra committee: Galant, Vivian Fisher, Marge Silk, Ethel Clarkson, and Bernelyn Seymour.

Rally entertainment: Louise Kay, Marge Silk, Diana Duncan, Shirley Barrett and Ed Schwartz.

Program committee: Weinstock and Frank Pedersen.

DATE BUREAU PLANNED

To make it easier on the bashful students, a bureau is being planned to arrange dates before the dance. On the committee to take care of this are Diana Duncan, Annabelle Tyler, Marge Silk, Jimmy Neal, Frank Pedersen and Bob MacArthur.

The date bureau will probably be on the mezzanine floor at the Extension Building, according to Miss Colton. Details will be posted as soon as the plans have been finished, she says.

As this is leap-year, Miss Colton urges that co-eds cast aside their bashfulness and natural modesty, to assert their preference for that "secretly admired one."

ENROLLMENT INCREASES

Enrollment on the Davis campus of the University of California will be more than 560, according to the estimate of the Recorder of the Branch of the College of Agriculture. A registration of more than 1,000 is predicted for next Fall.

EXTENSION BUILDING FORMER ELKS' CLUB, BACHELORS' HOTEL

College students who wearily climb the Powell street hill each morning might be interested to know that the lofty site of the Extension Building was chosen by none other than the Elks Benevolent Association, for this building was formerly the Elks clubhouse.

Built in 1909, the structure served as headquarters for the lodge until 1925, when work on the new Elks' clubhouse, located on Post and Mason Streets, was completed. The establishment was then sold, and for some time housed a bachelor hotel. It was then acquired by the University of California, whose Extension classes are held there.

A.S. Constitution Ready for Final Ratification Soon

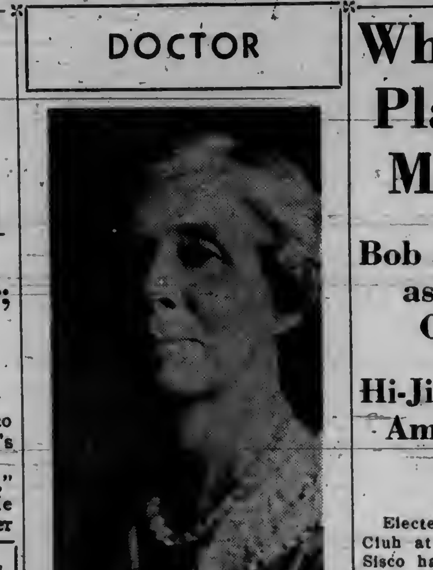
Within three weeks it is expected that the executive committee will have passed on the financial section of the Associated Students' constitution, according to Ward M. Nichols, college comptroller.

The other articles of the constitution have already been approved by the committee, and soon after the passing of the financial section the entire document will be presented to the Associated Students for their ratification, Edwin C. Browne, assistant dean of men, says.

Browne hopes to get the constitution before every student by having it read before them and discussed in classes.

The proposed paper was published in The Guardsman two weeks ago. The financial article, and the slight changes that have since been made in the other articles, will be published in the near future.

12,500 AT U.C.



BERKELEY.—An estimated total of 12,500 undergraduate and graduate students will receive instruction on the Berkeley campus of the University of California this semester.

LAST CHANCES FOR EXAMS FEBRUARY 14

A fee of $1.00, for late examination, will be charged unless those students who have not taken their Subject A examinations or aptitude tests report to Room 458 at Galileo on February 14, at 2:30.

According to Paul Mohr, registrar, this late examination is positively the last free one that will be held and any students having a class that conflicts with this time will be excused from the class.

Rules For $5,000 Eddie Cantor Peace Competition Are Listed

In advocation of world peace and the desire to provide some deserving American boy or girl with a college education, Eddie Cantor, well-known radio, stage and screen star, is offering a $5000 scholarship at any American college or university to the person who submits what the judges consider the best 500-word letter on the subject, "How Can America Stay Out of War?"

The scholarship is sponsored solely by Cantor, and is not affiliated with any commercial enterprise in any way. In announcing his plan on his radio program on January 5, he said: "There are absolutely no strings attached to this offer. All one has to do is to sit down and write a straightforward letter on 'How Can America Stay Out of War?' I never was fortunate enough to have had a college education myself, but I want to provide one for some American boy or girl."

Judges of the competition, four well-known American educators—each the president of a prominent institution—will have their decision ready Sunday, April 5, and the winner will be announced by Cantor on his radio program on that day. The contest closes Saturday, February 22. All letters are to be addressed to Eddie Cantor, General Postoffice, Box 99, New York City.

Whiskerino Planned By Men's Club

Bob Sisco Is Elected as President of Organization

Hi-Jinks, Brawl Are Among Functions Advocated

Elected president of the Men's Club at the polls last week, Bob Sisco has pledged himself to a semester of activity, embracing such events as an interclass brawl and a whiskerino. Sisco defeated Peter Jambruno for the office.

At the same elections, Tyler McHugh was unanimously voted vice-president of the organization, as was Eugene Blumenthal in the post of treasurer. Eddie Ferdiani defeated Frank Pedersen for the secretaryship.

PLANS OUTLINED

Following the election of officers, Maury Schwarz, last semester's head of the club, turned the meeting over to Sisco, who outlined briefly some of his plans.

First on Sisco's program is the staging of another hi-jinks and smoker in the near future. Boxing tournaments will also be held, providing enough men are willing to participate in them, according to Sisco.

PRIZES FOR WHISKERS

The club voted to stage a whiskerino, probably to run for two or three weeks. Prizes would be awarded not only for the most bushy growth, but also for the most futile attempt at producing a manly crop, as well as for top-notchers in other classifications of facial herbage.

Sisco appointed a committee to get plans for the frosh-soph brawl formulated as soon as possible. Those on the committee are Neal Martin, chairman; Tyler McHugh, Aaron Galant, Bob Douglas, and Blumenthal.

You can't afford to lose this opportunity. Only hurry, because there isn't much more time!

A.W.S. WILL DECIDE UPON CONSTITUTION

A meeting of the Associated Women Students, for the purpose of ratifying the constitution and electing a new vice-president, will be held in the Faculty Cafeteria at Galileo on this afternoon, according to Eugenie Leonard, dean of women.

A requisition of $250 has been given to the social committee by the organization, and this money is to be utilized for the proposed social program. This program has been planned so that there will be a social event each month. Two of the scheduled events are a play day for women and a tea for the mothers of new students.

Dean Leonard urges that every co-ed attend this meeting.

Superiority Of Masters Over Moderns, Belief Of Instructor

Although he believes the present modernists of the music world are great in their instrumentation and individualism, Donald Sandifur, instructor in the San Francisco Junior College Department of Music, who offers a course in piano ensemble, feels that the presentation of such old masters as Mozart, Beethoven and Brahms will eventually develop in the minds of his pupils a clearer basic understanding of the music of today and its position in the world.

He derives his opinion from the various works of modernists which he contends are very interesting, but show lack of the form practiced in the works of the masters.

"The technique gained by the music of the Romantic period is far too great for the modernists to grasp," said Sandifur. "At present they are blinded by the struggle for newness and uncharted territories. Eventually they will embody in their scores newer and greater beauties, and the students of Brahms, Beethoven and Mozart will understand the derivation of some of its greatness."

PHILATELISTS MEET

Presided over by Donald McPherson, president, the College Philatelic Society held its first meeting of the spring semester last week. Carl F. Stough is the faculty sponsor.

Rally With Coakley, Werner On Program Thursday's Feature

Dionne Quintuplets Will Prance on Stage; Great Walter Mails Also Speaks; Eggs Busted; Some Fun!

Traditions! The greatest one yet attempted at this college since its foundation will be inaugurated tomorrow, when all afternoon classes will be suspended so that the entire student body can participate in a mammoth frosh-soph brawl.

But before the brawl, an assembly rally, featuring none other than Tom Coakley, two of his singers, Virginia Haig and Karl Ravasso, and part of his well-known orchestra, will be held.

The purpose of the rally will be to instill more pep and spirit into the student body, in order that they may see the advantages that will accrue to them through participation in the two spectacular events so near at hand—one, the brawl, to be held the same afternoon, and the other the Baby Dance, to be held the night of February 21.

BIG LEAGUER COMES

But to get back to the rally. Not only will Coakley's musicians and singers offer entertainment, but also Mort Werner, the man who conducts the amateur hour over radio station KGGC, will be there to offer his brand of hilarity.

To bring in the angle of sports, Walter (The Great) Mails, publicity man for the San Francisco Seals, and formerly a big leaguer, will give a talk on sport highlights.

EVEN QUINTUPLETS!

Not to be outdone entirely by the professionals, some of the college dramatic talent (?) will come forth to advertise the Baby Dance, when, under the direction of Mimi Colton, five little "lassies" will portray the Dionne quintuplets.

Bud Brookman, who measures a scant six foot three, will top the list of the "Quints," as he drops his heretofore role of Flash Gordon. Following in descending order will be Bob Nelson, Bob Neal, Deming Smith and Jim Fahn, the latter boasting the gigantic stature of about five feet four. Who of them are Yvonne, Annette, Cecile, Emilie and Marie, and how come these particular quints seem to have a disparity in size, you can figure out for yourself.

KISS THEM AT DANCE

Because of the danger of infection, the quints cannot be examined closely tomorrow, but will be allowed to romp freely about the stage, bawling, and playing with their bottles, rattles and thumbs, and dressed in ankle-length baby dresses.

With city health authorities present at the dance next Friday, however, the five adorable babies may be hugged, kissed, and danced with on the night of February 21. You mustn't miss the little darlings.

Now, on to the brawl! Immediately following the rally, which will begin at 1:30 o'clock sharp tomorrow afternoon in the Galileo auditorium, the student body will move en masse to the Galileo athletic field, where the low freshmen will take on the three remaining classes in a variety of events.

PAY ROLL FOR NYA WILL AMOUNT TO $1,920; ARRIVES SOON

The January checks for NYA work will probably be issued on February 14, and the January pay roll will amount to $1920, according to Edith Pence, administrator here. Most of the appointments for February are already completed; there have been 176 in all.

Those who are working under the NYA must bear in mind that their scholarship record must be good, and those who have managed to meet this present need are requested to leave their place open for less fortunate students.

Time reports for February will be due on March 2, because the present period closes on February 28.

Miss Pence says there are some opportunities for outside work for women students who have no afternoon classes.

CLASSES THAT WERE CLOSED MAY REOPEN

Paul Pitman, assistant to the president, says that some of the classes formerly closed were reopened due to shifting of class rooms.

Students who find it necessary to change classes should see Pitman at the Powell Street office. Change of program will be officially open until February 15.

Pitman also requested that any student who is unable to find his class due to change of rooms should inquire at the office.

Old Apple in New Wrapping

Can anything change man from his placid, imperturbable habits? If the average student were to see advertised on every street car, blazened forth in print on the front page of every newspaper, hear blatted forth from every street corner by the soap-boxers and newsboys, announced between blocks by portable public address systems, the words "Support Your College in Its Activities," would he follow the exhortation?

It seems improbable. In nearly every assembly a student can remember he has heard the same idea, possibly expressed in different ways. Active students, participating in the college affairs, throughout the country—probably the world—have always had the same complaint: lack of interest on the part of the average student.

After the student leaves college for the commercial world, he will hear the same hue and cry. Employers always preach loyalty and interest. Some even require their workers to make out-of-hours studies of their subject matter.

The assemblies of the commercial world pay dividends in salaries, good cash. Because students cannot see immediate benefit from the rallies of the college, they do not bother to attend.

College activities and interests pay dividends of entertainment, training in leadership, and the pleasure of the knowledge that one is an active, perhaps guiding, part of an organization.

A Cure for Politics

*—To believe is dangerous; to be unbelieving is equally so; the truth, therefore, should be diligently sought after, lest that a foolish opinion should lead you to pronounce an unsound judgment.—*PHAEDRUS.

An unsound judgment, one based upon only one side of a question, will work good for no one. It is well not to pronounce judgment until all the facts are at hand.

The average man is not inclined to go around deliberately seeking to injure others; in most cases, what he does he thinks is right.

Some opinions, based upon a hasty judgment and upon an inadequate knowledge of the matter concerned, would indicate that the unfortunate victim of the unflattering opinion must go around continually devising complicated methods of doing harm; and a great deal of devising and contriving would be necessary, for, as Seneca said, "Truth is simple, requiring neither study nor art."

A common fallacy in judgment is to judge others by one's own standards. In nearly every case where a violent difference of opinion exists, each side is equally sure of its righteousness and correctness.

Each side is correct, according to its own standards; and both may be wrong according to another standard.

Tolerance, understanding and consideration—these three virtues, if strictly observed, would make difficult hard-feelings, heated argument,—and politics.

Truth is confirmed by investigation and delay; falsehood avails itself of haste and uncertainty.—Tacitus.

Put Grippes on Paper!

The editor is supposed to be the mouth-piece of the students. He tries to see all sides, weigh all matters fairly, and then do his best to "blat out his brains" for the benefit of the majority of the students, whose paper, after all, this is.

The editor, then, is the funnel, with the wide, conical mouth (only it is the ears, in this case) that tries to catch the opinions pouring from all sides. When the funnel becomes full, it is covered, shaken around, and emptied through the small end. What comes out of the mess, you read here (we hope you read it).

Like gasoline being poured into a funnel to fill an empty tank at night, however, some of these opinions spill on the outside, and never find their way out through the small end, for the simple reason that they never get in through the big end.

To help the big funnel in its work, a small funnel is being pressed into service. This time, however, it will be a horn, a Ram's horn, instead of a funnel. Students who have anything to say, and feel it must be said, have only to "blat their own brains out" onto a small piece of paper, and leave such blattings in the mezzanine ticket booth, Extension Building, the South Library, or Room 150, Galileo. Strategically located boxes will be placed as soon as possible.

Oh, Rams, go blow your horns!

He Knew How

On this date, in the early part of last century, Abraham Lincoln was born. Today his birthday is commemorated.

In the lower schools the day is usually marked with fitting ceremonies of some sort. In college, with no holiday declared for commemoration of one of the most famous characters of American history, students are too likely to overlook the great reverence that is due Lincoln.

Without any formal education, Lincoln became the President of this country. He was not, however, without any education. He educated himself. Not only did he know how to teach himself, but also he knew how to apply what he learned from books as well as from experience.

Today nearly every young American has the opportunity of gaining a good education through the schools and colleges. But does every young American know how to apply that which he learns?

YOUR PRESIDENT SAYS---

By MAURY SCHWARZ

Rally tomorrow—and brawl! We're not promising you anything as to the quality of the rally. All we'll say is—if you like Tom Coakley, you'll be there; 'nuff said. Here is the entertainment listed for the rally—Walter "the Great" Mails, baseball's most colorful star; Mort Werner, KGGC radio star, in a novelty act of his own, and Tom Coakley, Virginia Haig, Karl Ravasso—there's a trio to beat. This is only the beginning. We're doing our best to have orchestral or outside celebrities at every rally. Better come early if you want seats. Incidentally, we have secured a P. A. (public address to you!) system through the courtesy of Al Young's boxing shows. The rally starts at 1:30 p. m. at Galileo Thursday.

And some more welcome news—Put a red circle around February 21. Our first dance takes place then.

The theme is baby dance and no one will be admitted unless he or she is wearing a baby costume. Mr. Sandys, Miss Henderson, Mr. Joe Amori and Miss Waller are a few of the popular faculty members who will be at the dance in their baby attire. It'll be worth coming just to get a crack at them.

So bring your rattles, ribbons and lolly pops, but leave the "bottles" home and plan to have one hilarious time. Another reason to attend—"Wee Willie" Weinstock, high-soph president, has promised two bids to the Hi-Soph Formal as prizes for costumes, etc.

Here is the data:

Theme—Baby Dance.
Time—9 p. m., Friday Eve., Feb. 21.
Place—Galileo Girls' Gym.
Adm.—40c per couple; and each couple must present a student body card to be admitted.

Say—how's chances of seeing a few more of you, in fact, quite a few more of you, at our basketball games?

Here we have one of the best basketball teams in the junior college conference, and we're just beginning to appreciate them. Last Wednesday evening our team gave S. F. State the first trouncing they have had on their own court for the past two years, and not all of us were there to cheer them. They've done their part; let's do ours by rooting for them in person as well as in spirit. Attend our home games from now on!

INSIDE DOPE—

Plans for the Hi-Soph Formal are under way and the place will be announced now.

A Freshman Brawl, set for Thursday at Galileo field has been announced by Bob Sisco, new Men's Club president. Good work, Bob; one week in office and already we have action. How about the women getting started with some activities soon—very soon?

We're also happy to announce that our first donation for the semi-annual hi-jinks has been received—through Eddie Schwartz's efforts, 300 bottles of Vogue nail polish have been secured. Thanks Eddie, and thanks to the National Beauty Supply Co., also.

The constitution is ready for your ratification. The Ex-Council spent an evening at Dean Browne's home to thrash it out.

There is quite a bit of talent floating around school, but how are we going to discover it if you keep it to yourselves? If you can dance, sing, play musical instruments, let me know. We'll be glad to use you at our rallies. And look at the chances offered an amateur these days!

To the clubs: Please get your constitutions to the Ex-Council if you want to be officially recognized.

And so—I'll see you at the rally tomorrow, then at the brawl, around school between times, and in the column next Wednesday. Until then, think of me as you would want me to think of you.

Where Are They? We Wish We Knew!

(The Michigan Daily, via The Daily Californian)

One of the popular nickel magazines is running a new serial of college romance.

We wouldn't think of saying anything bad about college romances; in fact, we've thought it all over carefully and have come to the conclusion that they're swell. This story, in fact, interests us particularly because it concerns the members of the staff of a college daily.

It's all very interesting, reading about a college town where the atmosphere is so thickly delightful, the people so witty, so perfect—the kind of people we like to think we resemble, sometimes.

Ever since we came to college, we've had our eyes open for some of those men we've read about—those who are handsome, tanned, who carry themselves with a supreme savoir-faire, have plenty of money and a mature, gentle kind of brotherly regard for women which can, under the combined pressure of moonlight, shadows and a dash of rye, be converted into something quite unbrotherly. We've been busy looking, also, for those golden-haired, blue-eyed maidens: beautiful, completely feminine and yet possessed of masculine understanding and intelligence. Sometimes we hunted for one of those bespectacled young professors who, falling in love wth one of the members of his class (who fits the above description for females) suddenly realizes his own potentialities, throws off the horn-rimmed glasses, throws away his chemistry books, throws the girl in his old roadster and beats it for the justice of the peace.

We didn't find any. We don't mind telling you, because your tuition is probably all paid up and we don't suppose you'd leave in the middle of the year like this anyway, but for goodness sake, when you get home between semesters, and the kid sister looks up from her copy of the nickel magazine and gazes off into the distance while she absent-mindedly asks about Ann Arbor and its famous arboretum, please don't give us away.

SAILING THROUGH THE NEWS

BY THE OBSERVER

claiming that there isn't any reason for capital letters, and that news in lower case is more readable, the chicago daily maroon plans to omit them, if the idea proves popular with the students.

it is pointed out that the change may be too much for the public's delicate sensibilities. It would also probably serve as a living proof that journalism is literature in the raw—in the very raw.

Perhaps Rehearsal Is Not For Nothing

Paper Talk last week suggested that the "royalty" of this country might be somewhat nonplussed if the "king's funeral" they have been rehearsing didn't come off, for the simple reason that the "king" might not die.

If money can kill a king, or if the lack and need of it to the tune of a few billion can, then the rehearsals will not have been for naught. When the Treasury-Post Office supply bill and a House appropriation committee report went before Congress last week, it was revealed that a trifling matter of $805,000,000 was needed to meet the interest alone on the public debt, which increases daily by more figures than the taxpayer cares to contemplate.

Back For Post-Graduate Work

The education given in California's prisons certainly does work wonders! The beauty of it is that most courses are so short, yet so conclusive.

A paroled convict captured in Los Angeles recently confessed to the robbery of no less than 250 homes. Nothing short of a good San Quentin education could produce such an efficient alumnus. The police, however, think he can still learn a little more; so they have taken him to Folsom for some post-graduate work. When he comes out in a year or so he should be able to do no less than 500 homes before having to take another course.

Another Writer Gets Real Good

Reading world-comment columns written by other columnists as a rule serves only to show the superiority of the other. To give the readers the benefit of the humor of one such of these, the following, plagiarized directly from James Pool's column in The Pirate Press (Ventura J.C.), is offered:

Modern colleges are going in for schools of political science. What we need worse than that is a school of political silence.

Styles of oratory seem to differ greatly all over the world. Mussolini, when in the throes of a political wrangle, sticks out his jaw and waves his arms like a dying man calling for two more beers.

* * *

President Roosevelt stops in the middle of a speech and won't go on until the crowd cheers. His most embarrassing moments come when the people applaud between stops.

* * *

Governor Gene Talmadge of Georgia wears bright red suspenders when he makes an address. The suspenders have very little political value, but they serve their purpose.

* * *

I've heard of one man who attends every one of Father Coughlin's bombastic speeches. He's almost positive Coughlin will pop a collar button some of these days.

* * *

One of the most heated speakers is Floyd Gibbons, the noted war correspondent. When talking over the radio, he undresses by stages as the speech progresses and as his temperature rises. He'll never be asked to give a two hour lecture for television.

* * *

When in the middle of an important address, Al Smith always reaches automatically for a glass. When he finds there's nothing in it but water, he's almost as surprised as the man who dreamed he was eating shredded wheat and woke up to find his beard gone.

CURTAINI

San Francisco Junior College offered a brief display of its dramatic talent in a half-hour program, dramatizing the life of Abraham Lincoln, over station KYA, yesterday afternoon at 1:30.

Under the direction of Miss Ruth Jensen, dramatics instructor, the group presented a well-balanced sketch consisting of ten episodes covering essential phases of Lincoln's life from birth to the height of his career, to death. While the episodes together had an order of sequence, each by itself stressed a particular point. Some were attempts to reveal personal characteristics; other marked important historical dates and happenings. The lines of the characters, conversational in quality, unified the story, made it interesting and entertaining.

The high point of the dramatization was reached with a very effective rendition of Lincoln's Gettysburg address by a six-man verse choir.

The cast, a majority selected from the Dramatics 1A section, included Betty Geutry, Sonia Lesh, Maucha Dehe, Jack Carter, Charles Buckley, Lucine Garcia, Bernard Kahn, Bob Higgins, Jack McKannay and Tom Buchan.

The Old Maid Is Good Entertainment

Acting, which is artistry at its peak, is being presented by Judith Anderson and Helen Menken, co-starring currently in The Old Maid at the Curran Theater.

So conscious is one of the merit of the acting of the Misses Anderson and Menken that it is almost difficult at times to think of the play. The scene becomes a tool, a mere means of presenting these women to the audience. But the play is also a definite interest in itself, so the result of the combination is an appealing performance—nearly perfect to the letter.

While critics have called it "essentially a women's play," the masculine mind finds itself, not bored with a run of feminine emotion, but truly concerned with the plight of an unfortunate woman. Certainly it is grand entertainment.

Miss Menken is forced to live the life of an "old maid" by a cousin (Judith Anderson) who is jealous of her relation with a former suitor. She attempts to find a measure of happiness in the care of her daughter, supposedly a foundling. But through the influence of the designing cousin, the girl grows up knowing her mother only as an inquisitive, exacting "old maid."

A woman's broken spirit, a mother's broken heart in a vain effort to gain her daughter's affection and still retain her character, are carried into Miss Menken's beautiful work with understanding and reality.

All the arrogance of a nineteenth century aristocrat lives in Miss Anderson's impressing portrayal. Her contrasting moment of tenderness in the final scene is particularly noteworthy.

The New York cast headed by Diana Croye, George Nash, Margaret Dale and Marjorie Lord aids considerably in making Zoe Akins' play (from a novel by Edith Wharton) Pulitzer quality.

The ideal is made complete by the hand of Guthrie McClintic's direction, and the settings and costumes designed by Stewart Chaney. Irvin Silberstein.

IN THE RAM'S HORN

Dear Suh:

I am of the opinion that the so-called "Student Store" is not giving us a square deal on the used book situation.

Books that are only one semester old are certainly worth more than a 40 per cent cash turn-in value or more than a 50 per cent trade-in value. But that is just what our generous book mart offers us.

If the bookstore wants to bear up the title of "Student Store," why can't it operate on a more cooperative basis?

It's about time this college made arrangements for a student co-op, where everyone is given a fair break.

(Signed) H. CAPPS.

P.S.: I feel good since I quit smokin'!

FASHION SPLASHES

Leading the fashion parade this Spring is the popular tailored suit. Many of these suits are made of men's wear flannel and some are accompanied by matching top coats. The most popular colors are grey and navy, and when worn with gay accessories, these suits are suitable for almost any occasion.

In contrast to these suits are the fluffy feminine frocks of printed crepe or plain sheer, with lacy collars and sleeves that feature exaggerated fullness. Many of these frocks have accompanying jackets or coats of plain wool in black or navy.

For campus wear, the two-piece knitted dress is considered just about perfect. These frocks come in many bright colors and some are trimmed with saucy bows or clever clips and buckles. The weight of the material ranges from light lacy boucles to heavy ribbed cottons.

Another popular frock for campus wear, especially on these crisp, snappy, days, is the wool sports frock, which manages to fit slickly in spite of the freedom of the cut. The smartness of these models is improved by bright scarves and unusual belts, and the colors range from rose, copper and gold to the more familiar tan, blue and green.

Paper Talk

By Paul Green

The sign-up list for English 64B (journalism) has drawn a large number of embryo reporters for The Guardsman staff, so, in order to start them off on the right track, Editor Bill Rawson took it upon himself to explain a few points to the tyros.

First he told them how to cover a story, what to include in the lead, laid the usual stress on accuracy, and then began elucidating on the feature story. But before he got very far, one bright femme piped up with, "What is a feature story?"

"It's—er—ulp—," he gulped, "well, I can explain better with an illustration."

"Suppose you see a man walking along the street. That's perfectly normal, isn't it?" The class agreed.

"Suppose the man has on a hat, shirt, tie, vest, coat, shoes, socks, and pants—that's still normal, no?" There were no nays.

"But suppose the man follows that description except that he doesn't wear any pants," Rawson shouted. "That's where the feature angle comes in, see!"

"Oh, yeah?" answered one rightly indignant reporter. "If you think I'm going to remove a guy's pants just to get you a feature story, you're crazy!"

On the Wagon

Lunch time brings many a spectacle to the eyes around this institution. Of course a few students take advantage of the hour and twenty minutes separating the morning and afternoon class sessions by going home to their noon-day repasts. Hosts of others utilize the benches of Union Square to devour their little snacks. Hundreds congregate in the bleachers of Galileo field to partake of their daily sustenance. Many make the rounds of the beaneries and cafeterias.

But one person takes the cake (if he has room for it after what he consumes for luncheon). He is Howard Capps, who usually orders a bowl of soup and a milk-shake with a root beer chaser. Ugh!

Two old women are selling apples. Each has thirty, but one sells three for a nickel, the other two for a nickel.

One day one of the women is sick. She asks the other to sell her apples for her. (30 apples at two for a nickel is 75 cents. 30 apples at three for a nickel is 50 cents. Altogether, $1.25.)

The second woman agrees to sell the apples, but, rather than offer different prices, she sells the 60 apples five for a dime. Then when they are sold she has $1.20—what has happened to the other nickel?

Here and There

Sport RAMBLINGS

Faculty Will Play

A date for the indoor baseball game between the faculty and McGuire's Irishers (?) has finally been set for Baby Dance Day, February 21. The game will be staged on the Galileo field in conjunction with the regular program for the day. Time is set for 2:30; don't miss it.

Ben Needs Shoes

One day last week Ben McGuire, erstwhile student prexy, showed up at the ball field wearing football shoes.

Coach Lee Eisan burst out with, "This is baseball, my fran'; Spring football practice doesn't start until May."

Whereupon Benny retorted, "I wish to try out for the baseball team."

"Have you done much playing? What position, do you play?" queried Mentor Eisan.

"Well," said McGuire, "I'd like to be a pitcher."

There being a shortage of good pitching material, Headman Eisan rushed Benny through a hurried warm-up and then injected him in the intersquad game which was going on. Lo and behold! McGuire wound up and zipped the first one over for a strike. He kept burning the horsehide in to every batter. What a fast ball!

McGuire was touched for very few basehits that day or during the rest of the week. If he comes through all right, the local mound staff will be rounded out very nicely.

Jaysee There, Too

Tonight is the revival of indoor track in San Francisco.

The junior college will be represented in its class by Bill Jackson, and possibly George Compas, in the 60-yard dash. Compas, who is recovering from a leg injury, is a doubtful starter. Jackson has been entered in the open two-mile event against such stars as Norman Bright, Burrows, etc.

Here it is! The battles of the century. "Killer" Kremesec's "Blinkers" versus Tom Wilson's 145-pound basketball team. The games are scheduled for February 28 and 29 as preliminaries to the varsity conference tilts here against San Mateo J.C.

Kremesec has a squad of six men ready for the fray. The team consists of George McGuire, Ben McGuire, Larry Wilgus, Ed Talavera, George Clark and this scrivener.

"The Blinker" (Kremesec) will act as coach, manager, waterboy and general towel-slinger for his outfit.

Olympic Swimmers

In the opinion of Fred Earle, coach of Modesto Junior College, S.F.J.C. has two of the best swimmers on the Pacific Coast.

These men are Waldon Klaffke and Monroe Staley, formerly of Stanislaus County, but who are now attending San Francisco Junior College while waiting for aquatic trials for the Olympic Games at Berlin.

Rams, Sacramento Split Series Here

San Francisco Five Plays Outstanding Ball in Friday's Game But Goes to Pieces Before Panther Attack Saturday

The San Francisco Junior College cagers only managed to divide honors in their tussles with Sacramento over the weekend at Galileo.

In the Friday night game the Rams proved conclusively that possession of the ball is the most important factor in basketball and won with a 35-26 score. However, in the second conflict Sacramento proved the same thing, coming out on the long end of a 54-37 count.

Coach Conlan's charges had the packed gallery jittery in the early minutes of the first contest. The Rams allowed Sacramento to run up a 9 to 2 score and things looked pretty black. But the locals came back fast and forged into the lead by virtue of some pretty shooting by "Red" Lowans and Carlyle Caine.

Half-time score was 26-14 for the Rams.

The second half found the Red and White playing a bang-up defensive game, allowing only 11 markers and taking the ball away from the Panthers off the backboard. Ralph Hillsman and big Monty Mordecai were standouts in this department of the game.

The visitors were aces at foul shots, though, tanking 8 out of 11 free throws, with Hunt making 6 good ones in succession.

Caine was high with 10 markers, while Lowans and Hillsman each accounted for 8.

Playing before another crowd on Saturday, the Rams opened fast, running up an 11 to 4 lead. But the Panthers were a different ball club. Watson and Hunt, tricky forwards, found the range of the Ram basket and started dropping seemingly impossible shots from all over the court to send their team into the lead. Sacramento led at the half, 19 to 15.

The combination of Lowans and Caine shot the S. F. five into a 21-19 lead immediately in the second half, but this was the last time the locals led.

Failing to retrieve the ball off the backboard, missing follow-up shots, and handling the ball miserably in their floor game, the Ram cagers went to pieces as the Sacramentans sent shot after shot spinning through the hoop. Watson and Kerwin were particularly effective.

The Panthers were hot and made good on 13 out of 38 shots at the basket in the second half.

U.C. Frosh Lose To Ram Varsity

Foul Shots Decide Outcome of Fast Contest

The Ram cagers continued on their winning ways last Tuesday by defeating the University of California frosh quintet, 46 to 38, in a torrid contest at the Berkeley campus.

A brilliant last-half spurt in the last eight minutes of play cinched the victory for the jaysee varsity. With S. F. leading 34 to 31, Ralph Hillsman popped a long shot and a free throw to start the Ram attack booming.

"Red" Lowans then scooted past the unsuspecting frosh for two more baskets and Glynn and Caine came through with field goals to put the game on ice.

Free throws were the deciding element. Each team scored 15 field goals, but the Rams made good on 16 out of 21 foul shots, while the Cal babes counted only 8 good throws out of 18 attempts.

The J.C. led 26 to 16 at the half. Hillsman led the scorers with 11 markers. Glynn tallied 9 and Lowans accounted for 8.

Track Coach Holds Unofficial World's Mark in 100 Dash

An unofficial time of 9.4 in the 100-yard dash marks the pinnacle of Coach Russ Sweet's career, this remarkably fast time being achieved at the Pacific Athletic Association meet held at Kezar in 1929. Russ was a contestant of the Olympic Club at the time. While a member of the club he participated in three years of football and five years of track competition. A graduate of the University of Montana, class of 1926, he obtained three letters in track, football and basketball.

In the Pacific Coast Conference championship in 1926, he set the 100-yard record of 9.7 seconds. The conference was abandoned the following year. He was a participant in every national championship from 1927 to 1930, inclusive. At the British-American meet held in Chicago in 1930, he was a member of the team of Sweet, Leland, Simpson and Lolan which set the world's record for the 400-yard dash of 37.5 seconds, or an average of 9.2 per man.

The year 1930 saw Sweet in his first coaching position, that of assistant to Dud De Groot on the Menlo football squad. At the same time, Russ served in the capacity of head track coach. Two years later when De Groot left for San Jose, Sweet took over all sports and served until 1935 when he became head football and track coach of the San Francisco Junior College.

Golfers Practice At Funston Field

With more than thirty men taking instruction from "Dutch" Conlan in the golf fundamental classes, at Funston field, chances for a good team are getting better.

Some of the better divot-diggers are Bob Dumesnil, southpaw ace; Bob McGlashan, Howard Capps and Jack Welch.

Many of those who expect to win places on the college golf team will enter the inter-city amateur tournament, which begins soon.

The junior college tournament will be held at the Stanford links this year.

Lightweights Beat Staters

Hubbard Leads with 16 Pts. As T[illegible]n Hits Stride

Playing a preliminary to the varsity tussle, the S. F. 145-pound cagers took a fast 27-to-23 decision from the San Francisco State lightweights Wednesday at the State court.

Led by Jack Hubbard, who scored six field goals and four free tosses for a total of 16 points for high-point honors, the lightweights hit their best form of the season with both offense and defense clicking smoothly.

State closed fast in the first half to make the score 13-up at the intermission, but Jerry Kennedy and Hubbard went to work in the third quarter to bring the count to 21-13.

With but two minutes to play, the Staters drew up to within three points of the winners but were unable to connect on prayerful long shots.

The work of the Ram guards, Bob Coss and O'Neill, was particularly outstanding, with Kennedy at center giving a good performance also. Regan led the Staters with nine digits.

Hubbard, who has been the only consistent scorer, has accounted for an even 40 points in the last four games, giving him an average of 10 markers per contest.

A return engagement of the two schools is scheduled for tonight at Kezar Pavilion.

INSTRUMENTS TO AID HEARING DEFECTS TO BE BASIS FOR STUDY

LOS ANGELES.—Three million residents of the United States, afflicted with various degrees of deafness, will welcome the announcement that the American Standards Association has named a committee of acousticians to investigate and recommend standards for the manufacture of instruments for the correction of hearing defects.

Such a committee was named at the annual meeting of the association, held in New York, according to announcement of Dr. Vern O. Knudsen, professor of physics, and chairman of the department, on the Los Angeles campus of the University of California. He was named chairman of the committee.

The recommendations of the committee are expected to be an aid in the development of instruments of precision for the diagnosis of hearing ailments, and for the making of standard instruments for hearing aids. At present there are no standard means for the diagnosis, or for prescribing satisfactory treatment for hearing ailments, Dr. Knudsen stated. Corrective treatment which may cure defects of hearing for many people are expected to be made possible following the recommendations of the committee.

Sweet's Cinder Stars Clocked In Good Times

By Bud McSweeney

Speed, power and drive were quite in evidence at Saturday's time trials, the first clocking performance for the junior college spikesters, held Saturday at U.S.F. field. Incidentally, the times were taken by an amateur, so any complaints should be filed at the office.

Festivities started with two 660-yard runs, the first being captured by Allison in 1:35.8 over Gibeau and the second by Bertram with a time of 1:34.8.

JACKSON WINS DASH

In the 70-yard dash, Bill Jackson showed his heels to Shiller and Farley, breaking the tape in 7.6.

"Whizzer" Warren turned on the steam in his 350-yard dash event to beat Shiller with a time of 41.4, which, my friends, is rapid transit in any hamlet.

The timber-topping brigade was commanded by Southered, who captured the 70-yard high hurdles in 9.7, romping in ahead of Barre, Sanderson and McGruer. Southered also took the 120-yard low barrier race, besting Fahn, Cook and Sanderson in 14.7.

In a 70-yard sprint held exclusively for broad-jumpers, Dunne blazed home in 7.7, outrunning Cain and Clarke.

Jackson took the 150-yard dash with a 16.4.

JUBLONSKY SHOT-PUTS

The field events were monopolized by "Jumbo" Jublonsky and Ed Scott. In the shot-put they tossed the iron pellet 38 and 36.3 feet, respectively.

Dunne outleaped Cade in the broad jump by seven inches with a leap of 20.9 feet.

Jublonsky sent the discus spinning 127 feet to best Scott and Hextrum. Scott took the javelin throw with a heave of 147 feet.

Coach Russ Sweet has a few rough spots to be smoothed out but the earnest endeavors of his candidates is easing that problem somewhat.

INVADE AUDITORIUM

Tonight a few of the Ram cinder men invade Civic Auditorium to vie for honors in the indoor meet.

Burham will represent the Red and White in the two-mile event for colleges, which features some of the best runners in the business. Jackson and Carpis are entered in the 60-yard sprint for junior colleges, with Compas unable to compete because of an injury.

The Rams have not yet selected a relay team. It would be worth your while to drop in and see the boys.

NEW DE-SENSITIZER STILL EXPERIMENT, PUBLIC IS ADVISED

SAN FRANCISCO.—Dental patients should not expect too much of the dentine de-sensitizer described recently by Dr. Hartman of Columbia University, it is announced by the Dental College of the University of California. Dr. Hartman, it was announced, has submitted his formula to the Dental College for the purposes of experimentation and study.

"To refer to the remedy as an anesthetic is not entirely correct," the college statement said. "Its desensitizing effect is probably due more to a coagulation of soft tissue contained in the very small dentine tubules. Furthermore, it is without effect on enamel. Until additional experimental data can be gathered it is perhaps unwise to advocate its general application in dental practice.

"The ingredients are thymol, alcohol and ether, all of which have been used by dentists for years. Although the thymol is soluble both in alcohol and ether, the addition of the ether reduces the surface tension of the liquid and thus provides for a deeper penetration of the thymol into the teeth."

Ball Tossers Meet Stanford Nine Thursday

Wilgus to Start on Mound; Eisan's Men Out For Initial Victory

By Dolf Pedrin

"Batteries for today's game!" That old familiar cry of America's favorite pastime will soon ring again in the ears of baseball fans.

The battery—Wilgus and Anido; the time—tomorrow at 2:30; the place—Stanford; the teams Stanford frosh and S.F.J.C.

In the first diamond spree in which Lee Eisan has led his San Francisco ball-hawks, the Rams possess a winning complex; invading the proverbial farm with the confidence of a lion entering a cat's boudoir.

After two weeks of practice, Eisan has selected a tentative first team out of more than thirty aspirants. Starting tomorrow will be Lawrence Wilgus, pitcher; Felix Anido, catcher; George McGuire or Ed McSweeney at first; Tony Scafani, second; Larry Favor, shortstop; Od Guisti, third; and Johnny Fitzgerald, Bruno Lucchesi and Bob Fex in the outfield.

Ben McGuire, speedball artist, Jerry Biggerstaff and Bob Dumesnil will be on hand to do relief duty on the mound if necessary.

Eisan will also take along Jack Telesmanic and Jerome Zavagno, catchers; Martinez, first baseman, and Bud Maher, infielder.

Although conference competition does not begin for more than a month, the Ram tossers are not taking tomorrow's contest as one for experience, but will be out there for blood, trying to win their first tilt.

The list of batting averages in practice follows, with Biggerstaff's .666 per cent leading the column:

Player	AB	R	H	Pct.
Biggerstaff	3	1	2	.666
Scafani	10	5	6	.600
McGuire	6	1	3	.500
Martinez	6	1	3	.500
Mayer	4	1	2	.500
McSweeney	2	1	1	.500
Wilgus	6	4	3	.500
Jerome	8	6	3	.375
Lucchesi	8	4	3	.375
Dumesnil	3	2	1	.333
McGuire	3	1	1	.333
Guisti	9	2	2	.222
Fex	9	2	2	.222
Fitzgerald	5	3	1	.200
Favor	6	2	1	.166

Cagers Upset Dope To Win

San Francisco State Team Falls Before Rams

By LOUIE BERTOLUCCI

Professor Opie-Soss and his pre-game dopesters (yeah, dope-sters) said it couldn't be done, but Coach Conlan put his team on the S. F. State College court last Wednesday with a win in mind. And an auspicious win it was that the Rams took from the Staters. The locals really played them off their feet to romp home with a well-earned 30-25 victory.

The defeat was the first suffered by Dan Farmer's cagers on their home court this season.

Running up an early lead, the jaysee quintet was never in danger, always maintaining at least a six-point lead. Half-time found the victors with an eight point advantage, the score being 18-10.

Carlyle Caine, Ram center, took the situation into his own hands in the second half. Shooting the ball from all angles on the court, Caine tanked 9 of the 12 points scored in the second session by the Ram cagers.

At all stages of the game Coach Conlan's men were superior to the Staters. The Rams intercepted passes, retrieved the ball off the backboard, and, all in all, were regular ball-hogs. Caine won high scoring honors for the night with 11 digits. Acting Captain Ernie Loustalot played a stellar game, accounting for 10 markers besides playing an outstanding defensive game.

Conlan used the second string most of the game, inserting the regulars only for a few minutes. Two guards, Monty Mordecai, a regular giant who scales the heights at 6 feet 6, and Guido Nicco, showed to advantage in the Ram defense.

Free throws were again a weakness in the squad's efforts; they cashed in on only five of the fifteen opportunities offered them.

Intramural Sports

The final draft of the men's interclass sports program is nearing completion, according to the coaching staff.

Intramural activities include touch football, basketball and golf.

Conlan's Hoopsters Travel To Modesto For Crucial Games

Locals Are Tied with Panthers for Second Place in Conference Race; Opponents Favored But Rams Are Hopeful

By Louie Bertolucci

Still entertaining hopes for a top place in the jaysee basketball conference, 14 S.F. cagers will embark for Modesto Friday to engage in a two-game series with the Pirates. Both Modesto and San Francisco are tied for second place in the conference race with four wins and two losses apiece. This week's results will eliminate one of them from the championship circle.

Coach Dutch Conlan's hoopsters are gunning for a two-game win over the valley team but have no soft touch, as the Pirates took two games from the highly touted Santa Rosa outfit last week.

ODDS FAVOR PIRATES

Modesto won from Marin 44-20, as compared with the Rams' 38-28 victory over the same quintet. This, coupled with the appearance of Bill Radunich in the Pirates' lineup, makes the southern team pro-game favorites.

Radunich, former University of Santa Clara ace, is the mainstay of the team, having scored 18 points in the Marin game.

The Modestans have split a series with both San Mateo and Marin, besides routing the Santa Rosans.

After the working-over received at the hands of Sacramento Saturday, the Rams have shown considerable improvement in both offense and defense under Conlan. Conlan will probably start a team averaging 5 feet 11 inches in height, with Monty Mordecai, 6 foot 6 inch giant, bringing up the average.

LOWANS, CAINE START

"Red" Lowans and Carlyle Caine will start at the forward posts. Both of these men are high scorers and if they have their eye the team may overthrow the Pirates. Bill Glynn draws the center assignment for Friday, with Mordecai and Captain Ralph Hillsman holding down the guard positions.

Yours truly will refrain from making any outright predictions, but in spite of the odds, the Red and White looks about right for a win or two.

TENNIS SIGNUP

All men students interested in competing for the tennis singles and doubles championships of the junior college should sign up before February 18. This can be done by dropping names in Mr. Wilson's mail box, registration office, or contacting him personally.

Two trophies are to be awarded the winners.

The tournament will start with a ladder play-off. The top 16 will play off for the championship.

STATE UNIVERSITY PLACES TEACHERS IN MANY COUNTIES

BERKELEY.—The University of California at Berkeley not only trained the largest number of teachers, but exceeded other institutions in number of new teachers placed, according to a recent report released by the California State Department of Education covering the school year 1933-1934.

Of 3,639 persons receiving teaching credentials, 395 were from Berkeley, 360 from San Jose State Teachers' College, 338 from University of Southern California, and 299 from the University of California at Los Angeles. Stanford recommended 56 for credentials.

The University at Berkeley placed 237 of its new teachers, as compared with 116 placed by San Jose State, 196 by Southern California, and 131 by the University at Los Angeles. Stanford secured jobs for 25.

DIVERSIFIED PLACEMENT

Whereas placement by most of the teacher training institutions was regional, the university placed teachers in 48 counties of the state, thus serving the entire state from Del Norte and Modoc in the north to San Diego and Imperial in the south. San Jose was the only other institution whose placement was so diversified. The teachers' college there placed teachers in 33 counties.

The charge has been made that California is overcrowded by teachers from other states. While the report points out that there is no absolute means of determining what constitutes an out-of-state teacher, it calls attention to the fact that of 1,620 new teachers placed in California schools, 1,285 were recommended for credentials by California institutions and as a prerequisite were in attendance for at least half a year.

Wilson's 145-Lb. Five Split Preliminary Hoop Contests

Tiring in the closing quarters of the game, the S. F. 145-pound basketball team dropped a 35 to 26 decision to the Sunset Majors in a preliminary to the varsity game Friday night.

The lightweights came back on Saturday, however, to whip the Tip Top A. C., 43 to 34.

Walt Urga, Ram forward, accounted for 16 points.

Coach Tom Wilson has found his winning combination after a long struggle. Coss, O'Neill, Hubbard, Kennedy and Urga are the starters.

Coxswain Needed

Having obtained a number of additional oars, Jack Gaddy, crew coach, is whipping more than 40 men into condition in preparation for the bay district league.

HEATED ARGUMENTS EXPECTED AT A.W.S. MEETING OF TODAY

All women students should attend the meeting of the Associated Women Students today at 2 o'clock in the Galileo Cafeteria, according to Helene Wright, vice-president of the organization.

A heated discussion is expected when the proposed A.W.S. constitution, printed in last week's Guardsman, is presented to be voted on by the members. Particular controversy is expected on the articles dealing with qualification of officers and appointment of pro tem leaders.

The group has tentative arrangements for a semi-formal dance, and a Women's Play Day in conjunction with other colleges on the schedule of semester activities. The full program will be discussed at the meeting this afternoon.

"All regularly enrolled women students are qualified for membership in this organization," said Miss Wright, "and it is their duty and opportunity to take part in its functions by being present at the meeting today."

RENEWED INTEREST IN ENGINEERING IS TOLD BY M. JACOBS

New interest in engineering has taken hold of the students at this college, according to Manuel Jacobs, head of the Engineering Club. Jacobs says that the students have finally realized the importance of the course. He believes the feeling they had in high school is past, and the students are beginning to take on the atmosphere of college. Jacobs also believes that his purpose, and the aim of the course, have been accepted in earnest by the students.

The engineering course has two main points in view: one, to prepare those students who are going to specialize in engineering; second, to adjust the students to the actual practical side of the subject, Jacobs believes.

Board Looks For Lee's Successor

"In selecting a new superintendent of schools, the Board of Education will rely on the old system of nomination," says Archibald J. Cloud, president of the S.F.J.C.

"The presidents of various colleges and universities will be invited to submit names for the position. From this list of prospective nominees the new superintendent will be chosen."

According to unofficial reports, the Board of Education is taking considerable time to survey the entire field of possible candidates in order to pick one with an outstanding record like that of Dr. Edwin A. Lee, former superintendent.

Dr. Lee recently resigned as the head of the San Francisco schools to accept the position of director of the National Occupational Conference in New York City. His resignation will be effective June 30 of this year.

Pure Democracy Is Feature of Group

Re-organizing in a slightly unorthodox manner, the Economics Club will endeavor to establish itself as an entirely non-political group with an almost pure form of democratic government, according to Donald Fowler, acting head of the group.

Governed only by an executive committee composed of the charter members, the club will have but one officer, a combination of secretary and treasurer, Fowler says. Florence Ravazzano is at present acting in this capacity.

The next meeting of the organization will be held February 13, the place to be announced later. Michael Zarchin is the faculty sponsor of the Economics Club.

Expenses Met By Skull and Blades

At the weekly meeting of the Skull and Blades Society, the organization announced that enough S.F.J.C. student body stickers had been sold to cover all expenses. All funds collected hereafter from the sale of these emblems will be turned over to the student body of the college.

President Ray Brunn said that the membership of the society was up to its quota, and that the budget of the Skull and Blades will be turned in to the comptroller's offices in the near future.

The leaders of the organization are now working on matters of service to the college, according to Brunn.

Egg Fight Is Feature Of Festivities

Men's Club May Have Other Events on Program

Co-eds Will Organize Rooting Section in Bleachers

about him his committeemen, rolled up his sleeves, and planned a program that should leave the participants tired, egg-soaked remnants by the end of the day.

First will come the proverbial tie-up. Next will come a tire fight, in which the participants will rassel around with moving, gyrating, rubber hoops.

And now the event in which bald men will have the advantage—a nice, clean little egg fight. An egg will be taped to the top of each contestant's head, he will be blindfolded, and then lie down, grasping his opponent's left hand with his. Then, with towels in the right hands, they will go at it, endeavoring to swat the other fellow on the bean, to smear juicy hen-fruit all over the old cocoanut.

CLASSES SUSPENDED

A good old-fashioned tug-of-war, of course, will also be featured, with water from the fire-hoses playing continually on both sides. To complete the day, the good old hack-breaker, long-horse (also known as sink the ship) will be played, as well as seven-legged races.

Sisco and his colleagues may have even more events before the day is over. No telling what atrocious schemes the Men's Club may be hatching!

Although the men of the college will be the active participants, the women can be there to scream their heads off from the bleachers. Mimi Colton is planning a co-eds' rooting section for this purpose.

As before mentioned, all classes for Thursday afternoon have been ordered suspended by none other than President Archibald Cloud, who enthusiastically endorses the rally as a "splendid idea."

On to the fun!

REGISTRAR TELLS OF LAST PETITION TIME

Paul Mohr, registrar, announces "This is the last call for petitions for all prospective graduates."

"All students expecting to graduate this June must check up at the office and file their petitions this week."

No more announcements will be published concerning graduation, so all prospective graduates take heed, and check up at once.

'I Came to Have Fun,' Says Honest Student

"I came to have fun," stated a student of Lloyd D. Luckmann's public-speaking class, when asked to give a two-minute speech on "Why I Came to College."

The answer was to be the honest opinion of the students, in the opening speeches of the classes.

The members of the classes as a whole said that they "came to college to acquire knowledge" so as to hold responsible positions when they graduated.

Manager Elections Will Be Held During Next Week

Elections of managers for the different clubs of the Women's Athletic Association will be held during the week of February 17.

The council, which consists of these managers, will hold its meetings every Wednesday at 1:45 o'clock in the faculty room of the Galileo Cafeteria.

SKULL AND BLADES MEETS

Skull and Blades will meet today in Room 203, Galileo, at 1:45 p.m., according to Ray Brunn, president. The semester's program will be outlined at the meeting.

It was perhaps through the strength of the spirit-urging speech delivered by Bill Kennedy, above, at the last rally that the basketball game with Sacramento J.C. boasted the largest audience of any court event thus far this semester.

Leuenberger Writes Magazine Article

Harold W. Leuenberger, instructor in psychology, is the author of an article appearing in the February issue of "The Junior College Journal." His contribution shows the amount of articles on various subjects that have appeared in the Journal since the beginning of its publication.

Leuenberger made the analysis last summer at the request of the editorial board of the periodical. The article, he said, will be of value especially to those interested in contributing to the Journal, since it shows the subjects that have thus far been neglected.

Art Class Pays Visit To Lovet-Lorski Exhibit

"Cretan Dancers," "Edward G. Robinson," and "Night" are a few of the attractions of the Boris Lovet-Lorski exhibit at the Gump's Art Gallery which was visited by Richard M. Allman's Art Appreciation class recently with the idea of writing a practice composition on one of Lorski's sculptured figures.

JOBS FOR COLLEGE GRADS ON INCREASE, SAYS MISS CHRISTIE

BERKELEY, Feb. 10.—An increase of more than 100 per cent in job placements for alumni through the University of California's Bureau of Occupations for the past year over 1934 was today noted by Miss Vera Christie, manager of the bureau.

Giving direct evidence of improved business conditions, Miss Christie revealed that 680 graduate students of the university had been placed in 1935 as compared to 335 in 1934. She sees a direct correlation between "prosperous times" and her graph on placements. Immediately following the Fall of 1929, employment opportunities fell off with placements in 1931 and 1932 being the lowest in the bureau's history.

The number of student jobs filled, 5,668, shows an increase for the past year of approximately 20 per cent. This increase does not include Federal appointments made through the bureau which have totaled almost 1,500 each semester, beginning with the Spring 1934. It is pointed out that registration at the university has increased during the past few years and the demands made upon the bureau have correspondingly multiplied.

"Although business has obviously picked up, it is not implied that conditions are 100 per cent better than in 1934," states Miss Christie. "The Bureau of Occupations is beginning to capitalize on the persistent contacting of employers and reaping the rewards of conscientious placement work."

FLOSSITA BADGER SINGS AT ST. FRANCIS DRAMATIC PROGRAM

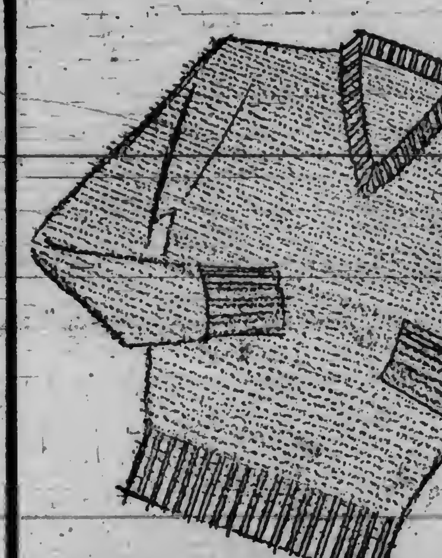
Flossita Badger, a member of the San Francisco Junior College faculty, contributed the musical half of a music-drama program, consisting of songs and one-act plays, held in the Hotel St. Francis Colonial ballroom Sunday, February 9.

Miss Badger sang a group of modern German songs and Spanish folk songs in costume with Gladys Steele at the piano. Her songs were as follows:

"Verborgenheit" (Hugo Wolf); "Schlummerleid" (Erich Wolff); "Zueignung" (Richard Strauss); "El Pano" (arr. by Kurt Schindler); "Una Pajarita" (arr. by Gertrude Ross); and "Marinella" (Serrano).

The plays were staged by Ronald Telfer and included one by James Barrie and one by Telfer, which centered in the streets of San Francisco.

Sallman Is Elected As President of Rifle Club



Gordon Sallman was elected president at the opening meeting of the S.F.J.C. Rifle & Pistol Club, held February 5 in Room 203, Galileo.

Other officers elected were: Vivian Duncan, vice-president; Ethel Jones, secretary, and Bradley Schwarz, treasurer. William Hancock is the range officer.

The next meeting of the club will be held February 19 in Room 203, Galileo, at 1:30 o'clock p.m. All students interested in marksmanship are still invited to join.

The establishment of an international park on the United States-Mexican boundary has been recommended to President Roosevelt by Secretary of the Interior Harold L. Ickes.

Distribution Of Guardsman Rules Outlined

Students Are Asked Not To Bother Wrong Places for Their Copies

Under the new organization of The Guardsman, the distribution has taken a definite form, according to Paul Fechtner, new circulation manager.

Every Wednesday morning The Guardsman may be obtained at the following places: Extension Building, mezzanine ticket booth, between the hours of 10 a. m. and 1:30 p. m.; S.F.J.C. offices at the Galileo High School, 1:30 p. m. to 2:15 p. m. only.

To receive an issue of The Guardsman after 2:15 p. m. students should go to Room 150, Fechtner says.

Under this new method, The Guardsman will not be issued to any one except at the above stated places and appointed time, Fechtner stresses.

Evils of Narcotics Is Subject of Talk

"Narcotics are the greatest menace to mankind," said Mr. Lewis Cames, formerly of the S. F. Police Department, and now with the State Narcotic Bureau, at a lecture delivered February 7 for the benefit of the Economics 54 class.

Cames outlined the progress of narcotics up to the present day, and stated that the exact number of addicts is not known. "The cost of one ounce of dope is from $125 to $135," he said. "For the daily user the cost is from $10 to $20."

Cames brought with him the different equipment used by smugglers and users of narcotics. Along with this equipment, he brought samples of raw opium and marihuana, and explained how they are used in conjunction with pipes, needles, and other implements.

He also stressed the fact that 75 per cent of the crimes today are due directly to narcotics; 90 per cent of the beggars and prostitutes are addicts. He advised against giving money to pan-handlers.

Stanford Students Lose Time-Honored Privilege

Stanford students lost a time-honored privilege when the student executive committee recently passed a rule against smoking during final examinations.

Smoking has been forbidden in the Stanford quad, according to a wish of one of its founders, Mrs. Leland Stanford, but it has been traditional for students to enjoy cigarettes while they were taking examinations.

CLASSES IN AMERICANISM

Classes in Americanism and literacy are now being organized in various centers throughout the city under the Emergency Education Program. This was recently announced by Robert F. Grey, director of adult education at San Francisco evening schools.

SAN FRANCISCO FACES CRISIS IN KEZAR BATTLES

Santa Rosa Cubs Are Figured to Give Rams Trouble

MULGREW IS ACE

Locals Need Double Win to Keep Lead in Conference

By Louie Bertolucci

Santa Rosa Junior College, with one of the strongest teams in its history, will appear at Kezar Pavilion Friday and Saturday nights to do battle with the San Francisco cagers.

Santa Rosa now holds down second place in the conference, with five wins and three losses. The Cubs split a hard-fought series with Sacramento last week and should provide the Ram quintet with one of its toughest series this season.

Friday will mark the first San Francisco appearance of Coach Dick Blewett's casabans.

VISITORS ARE STRONG

The Cubs have an impressive record, claiming double wins over Menlo and San Mateo, last year titleholders.

Comparative scores show that while both the Santa Rosans and the Rams split series with Sacramento, the Cubs dropped an unexpected series to Modesto and San Francisco defeated Modesto twice.

But don't take those results seriously. The Santa Rosa five is one of the best in the conference, and they are pointing for this week's

Other Lands' Opportunities To Be Subject

Green and Hobbs Will Talk on South America, Philippines

Speaking on the commercial and vocational opportunities in the Philippine Islands and Latin America, respectively, Kenneth L. Hobbs and George L. Green of the College Science department, will offer the main feature of an assembly to be held tomorrow afternoon at 1:45 o'clock in the Galileo auditorium.

Hobbs recently returned from an extensive stay in the Islands, and Green has spent considerable time in Central and South American countries. Hobbs' lecture will be accompanied by illustrations.

The administration-sponsored assembly was originally scheduled for last Thursday, according to Paul Pitman, assistant to President Archibald Cloud, but was postponed to make way for the Associated Students' rally and brawl.

VALUE STRESSED

Pointing out the courtesy extended by President Cloud, and by the Galileo administration for permitting the college the use of the auditorium on successive weeks, Pitman urged students to attend.

"Because President Cloud allowed the student rally to take the place of the previously scheduled administrative assembly, I think that all students should show their appreciation by attending tomorrow's meeting," he said.

Pitman also stressed the value and educational interest of the schedule, bringing out the contention of the high qualifications of Green and Hobbs as speakers on their respective subjects.

MORE SPEAKERS PLANNED

President Cloud has also secured the services of members of the San Francisco Junior Chamber of Commerce for a program in the near future.

"If you think President Cloud cannot pick good speakers," Pitman said, "just recall the enthusiastic reception given by students to Cameron Beck, director of the New York Stock Exchange Institute, who spoke at an assembly last semester!"

Document Passed By Women's Group With Few Changes

Meeting last Wednesday at Galileo, the Associated Women Students passed upon all the articles of the constitution, with minor changes in wording and small technicalities.

An executive council, consisting of a member from each class in the college, and the president, vice-president, secretary and treasurer of the A.W.S., and the women's editor of The Guardsman, was decided upon.

A final action will be taken at a subsequent meeting for the purpose of ratification of the constitution, according to Dean Eugenie Leonard. A constitutional committee was appointed for the purpose of making adjustments to the constitution. The committee consists of Elizabeth Yates, chairman; Ethel Clarkson, Barbara Latz, and Helene Wright, president of the society. Lloyd Luckmann and Mrs. Leonard will act as faculty advisors.

Only Two Rooms Available for Meets

At present there are only two rooms available for club meetings, the faculty and the main cafeterias at Galileo between 1:30 and 2:30, according to Paul Pitman.

Because of lack of rooms, all clubs wishing to secure a meeting place must register the date of the meeting with Miss Denhart, President Cloud's secretary. The various clubs will be notified when they may have a room for a meeting.

Paul Pitman, assistant to President Cloud, hopes to have a few more rooms available for club meetings within a short time.

College Marksmen Scheduled To Meet San Quentin Guards

Arrangement of a match between the San Quentin Guards and the Rifle and Pistol Club of the college was announced at a meeting of the latter last week. The match has tentatively been set for the middle of March.

Warden James B. Holohan, who captains the prison team, is reputed to be one of the best pistol shots on the Pacific Coast, according to James S. Hughes, faculty sponsor of the college club.

"If the club can produce a team capable of giving these guards, who are professional marksmen and who have target practice of an almost continuous nature, a close contest, it might well deserve a high ranking among Bay region shooting teams," said William Hancock, range officer. "If the college team should win, however, national recognition may be expected."

Candidates for places on the actual team should make it a point to attend the meeting of the club to be held at Galileo today at 1:30 o'clock p. m., according to Hancock.

For those not already versed in the intricacies of marksmanship, the club is sponsoring a course of elementary instruction.

Board Definitely Selects Ingleside

Selection of the Balboa Park site in the Ingleside district for the permanent home of the San Francisco Junior College was definitely announced last week by the San Francisco Board of Education.

The decision of the board came just one week after the results of The Guardsman's straw ballot were officially announced, in which students of this college indicated their preference for the Ingleside location by more than a 4-to-1 vote.

Construction of the buildings will begin immediately after the legal-technicality of having the Park Department transfer the property in question to the Educational Department has been overcome.

"I can see no reason why this transfer cannot be made easily," said Hon. C. Harold Caulfield, president of the Board of Education, in an interview with The Guardsman.

The board hopes to have buildings ready for students at the beginning of the next Spring semester in January of 1937, according to Caulfield.

Funds for the construction will be taken directly from the taxes, with no necessity for a bond election, Caulfield said.

For the Fall semester of this year, the Extension Building-Galileo High School arrangement will have to be used once more.

"I see no way out of this," said Caulfield, "but the board will endeavor to have available for the college more rooms in other high schools to handle the expected increase in enrollment."

Accompanying is the ground plan announced by the board for the new college. The buildings will be single-story, Spanish stucco type, with red tile roofs, according to plans revealed by Caulfield. Each building will probably have about 14 classrooms.

The main group will be in the form of a quadrangle composed of five or six buildings, connected by covered archways. A patio in the center is planned for open-air assemblies.

Additional buildings at the top of the inverted "L" will be constructed as the need arises, Caulfield said.

Adult Educational Classes Announced By City Director

Day as well as evening classes are offered to the men and women interested in learning to speak, read or write English, or to prepare for citizenship examinations, according to Mary Barrett, supervisor of Americanization in San Francisco.

"Many students in San Francisco come from homes in which the mothers have little or no knowledge of the English language," Miss Barrett said, in announcing the adult educational program.

Classes are held at the following places: Burnett school, Bryant school, Excelsior school, Fairmount school, Fisherman's Wharf, George Peabody school, Girls' High school, Hawthorne school, Irving M. Scott school, Gene Parker class, John Muir school, Lincoln school, McKinley school, Portola Junior High school, Raphael Weill center, Sarah B. Cooper school, and Sherman school.

For further information, those interested should call the board of education, HEmlock 4680, according to Miss Barrett.

MONEY OF HOARDER IS FOUND IN LIBRARY

Talk about hoarders! Some resourceful miser cached his sock in the north library at Galileo last week, according to Francis J. Colligan, librarian. The owner of the money apparently counted on the old theory that nobody can find anything in a library anyway, but this time the parable isn't true.

The dough-shorn person can reclaim the sum by contacting Colligan at the library between 2:30 and 5:30 daily.

NYA Workers Must Fill Out Time Form

In order to receive credit for February work, students must report to her office to receive official time report forms, according to Edith Pence, assistant dean of women and college N.Y.A. administrator.

The forms will be issued until February 21, in the morning, at the Powell offices and in the afternoon at room 212 in Galileo.

New instructions will be issued at Miss Pence's offices in order to help students fill out time reports.

Length of Whisker Will Be Decided By Men's Club Contest

How long is a whisker? Or should we say how long, bushy or otherwise will the winning beard be in the San Francisco Junior College men's "Whiskerino" contest?

President Maury Schwarz will be defending the championship he acquired while attending San Mateo Junior College. His growth for two weeks at the peninsula institution was approximately one and a half inches in length.

All men students are eligible to enter this "hair-raising" contest and prizes will be awarded for the thickest beard, the darkest beard, the weakest, the fanciest and the reddest.

The contest is scheduled to begin in the near future and will last for two weeks.

No, the prizes are not razor blades.

RETREAT

"Sweet Adeline" is all the rage on the campus of the University of Missouri, and Dr. Frederick Middlebush, president, has taken a cabin in a remote part of the Ozarks to get away from it all.

Markuse's Music At Dance Of Children Held In Galileo Gym

Award Prizes for Most Original Costumes Worn; Put On Your Best Bibs, Rompers for Occasion

"Oh, to be young again!" is a cry heard many times. Next Friday night all the students of the college will have the opportunity of discarding their slacks and cords, of throwing off the cares of many years, to don the swaddling clothes of their infancy and toddle around the women's gymnasium at Galileo from nine o'clock in the evening until——?

And it will be toddling to college rhythm, for, after a week of listening to various orchestras offering to play for the occasion, Mimi Colton's social committee chose that of Howard Markuse, whose music was heard by those who attended the Men's Hi Jinks last semester.

ORCHESTRA DRESSES UP

Quite a contrast to the infantile raiment will be offered by Markuse's 10-piece orchestra, for it will come formally garbed in mess-jackets, with all the trimmings that make a good professional outfit.

The little tykes who hope to join the baby show won't even have to do the collegiate thing of reaching into papa's pockets for money, for admission will be free to every couple that boasts one Associated Student's card. Holders of other J. C. cards will have their ducats honored at a 40 cent admission per couple, while rank outsiders will have to dig down for 80 cents.

PRIZES AWARDED

Additional entertainment for the occasion is being arranged by a committee consisting of Marge Silk, Ethel Clarkson, Ruth Peterson, Aaron Gallant, Ed Schwartz, and George Hagens.

To encourage the babies to put on their best bibs and rompers, two bids to the Sophomore formal (one to a man, and one to a woman) will be awarded for the most original of the infant's garbs. The judging committee will be composed of Miss Colton, Betty Gray, Maury Schwarz, and Bill Weinstock.

Frosh Dunked In Mud Holes At Big Brawl

After losing the first event, a tie-up race, to the rugged freshmen squad, upperclass warriors came through to win four out of six contests and maintain their supremacy at the Big Brawl held Thursday. A capacity crowd filed out of the rally preceding the festivities and crammed into the Galileo gymnasium to enjoy the program.

Led by Frank Bowen, the frosh tie-up artists captured Wee Willie Weinstock, sophomore leader, and dragged him the length of the gymnasium floor, bound and gagged, to open the program. Upperclassmen "Red" Waters, George Clark and Deming Smith were unable to aid the hapless Weinstock.

The freshmen came out on top in the "Johnny-ride-the-long-horse" event, in which President Maury Schwarz demonstrated a new hop-skip-and-jump which may carry him to the Olympic Games.

Upperclassmen proved their superiority in an individual egg fight, starring Clyde Poland. Led by Frank Knowlton, the sophomores won handily in a novel five-legged race, and also captured the championship in a caterpillar race. Both of these events met with the approval of the audience.

AFTER THE BRAWL

"Red" Brickley tanked two goals to lead the higher-ups in an embroglio which proved to be a combination of rugby and hockey. It was a basketball game, with the players wearing boxing gloves, and nothing barred! Schwarz and George Clark scored additional points for the sophomores, while the squad was rounded out by Charlie Kremesec, Waters and Fred Wilkinson.

After the brawl a group of energetic upperclassmen cornered several freshmen on the rain-soaked Galileo field, battling in the muck for hours in a heavy downpour to insure the frosh a complete initiation.

DATE BUREAU

Formation of a date bureau under the direction of Diana Duncan has been announced. In the mornings, it will be operated from 9 o'clock to 12:30 in the ticket booth on the mezzanine floor of the Extension Building, every day except Wednesday.

The bureau will be run on a business-like basis, and all applications will be treated with the strictest confidence, according to Miss Duncan. Assisting Miss Duncan will be Marie McKnight, Pat Dolan, Paul Fechtner, Frank Pederson and Bob McArthur.

Come on, ladies; remember this is leap year!

No Blocks For Non-Athletes Is Decision of Exec. Committee

Settling the question of whether non-athletes should be entitled to wear letters at this college, the Student Executive Council decided in the negative at their regular meeting held last week. This move prohibits former student officers from wearing the blocks which they appropriated themselves last semester.

The group considered the presentation of suitable insignia to student body heads and agreed that if present officers receive them, former leaders should also be rewarded. However, the final judgment in this matter was put off until a future date.

In response to Coach Russ Sweet's plea for an Awards Committee, President Maury Schwarz appointed Tyler McHugh, chairman; Tim Guiney, Arleen Frazieres, Helene Wright and Bob Sisco as a committee to draw up a list of awards to be given for athletic activities. The coaches were asked to advise this group in its functions.

Schwarz also appointed the Budget Committee for the spring semester. Bob Neal was named chairman of this group, with Guiney, Arleen Frazieres, and Bob Sisco also serving.

The discussion as to awards for yell leaders was delayed pending investigations.

IS IT ALL NECESSARY?

A dance is planned here, a dance is planned there. This activity is going to sponsor this, another that.

That is all very fine, but when do we study? Or is studying just of secondary importance in college?

Social life has its decided advantages; taken in moderation, it is desirable to round out a college education.

Before taking so much time to help the students socially, however, would it not, perhaps, be advisable to lend them a little material assistance?

Instead of spending fifty dollars for a dance, why not establish a scholarship for some worthy student?

Why not some industrious worker formulate plans for a dormitory of sorts, where out-of-town students could live at a minimum of expense?

In other words, the suggestion is that some thought be given to the problem of helping the STUDENT who knows why he comes to college, and who is really getting some thing from it besides activities, which, while desirable, are not entirely necessary for the sustenance of the institution.

What WOULD a college be without students in its classes?

KNOWLEDGE OFFERED; GET IT!

Seldom ever was any knowledge given to keep, but to impart; the grace of this rich jewel is lost in concealment.—BISHOP HALL.

The faculty of a college is a group of men and women who have knowledge to impart, and who are willing to attempt to bestow it upon students.

These men and women are paid to make certain of these attempts. Further to enrich "the grace of the jewel" of knowledge, by imparting it voluntarily, George Green and Kenneth Hobbs are speaking before those students who realize sufficiently the worth of acquiring the knowledge authorities are willing to impart, in the Galileo auditorium tomorrow.

It has been stressed in other places, and by other people, that students should attend this assembly to show their appreciation to President Archibald Cloud for postponing his originally scheduled gathering in order to make way for the students' rally and brawl last Thursday.

That, in itself, is a good reason. It should not, however, be the only reason. If it were, President Cloud would probably just as soon students didn't put themselves out by coming.

The real reason that students should attend this assembly is that two authorities are going to speak on subjects which they know; subjects which are of importance and interest. Students should come to acquire knowledge, for every little drop of knowledge saved serves further to make a better ocean of commerce upon which to launch one's individual ship after graduation.

FREEDOM OF THE PRESS

The unanimous decision recently of the United States Supreme Court in outlawing the Louisiana state law taxing newspapers declared this tax "an invasion of the guarantee of a free press, and a deliberate and calculated device in the guise of a tax to limit the circulation of information to which the public is entitled in virtue of the constitutional guarantees."

The decision, read by Justice Sutherland, was unanimously voted unconstitutional by the nine justices of the court.

The tax which the court ruled unconstitutional was an attempt by the late Huey Long to combat newspapers hostile to his dictatorial regime. It was passed by the Louisiana State Legislature in 1934, and required all newspapers and other periodicals having a weekly circulation of more than 20,000 to pay a punitive tax of 2 per cent of their gross advertising revenue, or immediately cease publication.

"A free press," said the decision, "stands as one of the great interpreters between the government and the people. To allow it to be fettered is to fetter ourselves."

This emphatic decision of the Supreme Court provides a decided contrast to the Minnesota "gag-law" case in 1931—another law aimed at the curtailment of freedom of the press—which was finally thrown out by a scant margin of one vote, after many days of heated discussion.

This mighty blow in defense of American liberty has brought home a fact that should be obvious to every pure-blooded American citizen: that without a free and unfettered press, which is honest and impartial in its dealings with the public, the preservation of our American liberties will be placed in the hands of a few unscrupulous leaders, in the guise of dictators, and imbued with a mistaken idea of American liberty.

The freedom of the press is NOT for the benefit of the newspapers only, but for the PROTECTION OF THE POLITICAL AND SOCIAL RIGHTS of every loyal, patriotic American citizen. It is the ONLY way that the government can stem the tide of corruption and crime that would be FATAL to American liberty if allowed to exist.—Robert Spencer.

President's Column Says Brawl Is Success; Promises Activity

By MAURY SCHWARZ

I think I can say the last week's rally and brawl was a success, and since it was, then let that be an indication of what our future activities will be. We now know what the students want and we'll try our best to get it. There are, however, a few difficulties with which we come in contact.

We have been given a schedule of times available for rallies by Galileo High School. Every other Thursday is set aside for J.C. assemblies. Half of them will be sponsored by the faculty and half by the student body. That doesn't leave us with many rallies. However, we think it's better to have a few rallies of the last one's caliber than a great many of the mediocre type.

The faculty had planned to sponsor last week's rally, but through the graciousness of President Cloud and a faculty committee, the time was given to us.

Tomorrow we have an assembly. Two of our faculty men will speak. Let's show them that we'll play ball with the faculty and give them the cooperation they've given us. Be at the assembly tomorrow at 1:45!

There were many headaches after the brawl. No wonder! It probably was the first time most of the heads were used, even though to ram them against someone else's head (mine's sore, too!). If we had any grievances against anyone they should have been knocked out of our system at the brawl and so now we should be one big happy family—which reminds me—

My, how the quintuplets have grown since the last time I saw them (in pictures)! I would hate to have those that were at our rally around the house; I'd go broke supplying them with razor blades!

Remember:

This Friday evening is the Baby Dance. Howard Markuse and his orchestra have finally been chosen. If you were at last term's Hi-Jinks you'll remember what a hit he made there.

So far it looks like the Mark Hopkins will be the place for our High Soph Formal. June 12 is the date. Bids will go on sale soon.

Beards will be blooming soon—a whiskereeno contest will soon be under way. Prizes will be given for the darkest, heaviest, reddest, most futile, etc. Two weeks will be the length of the contest—you lucky girls!

We've got another big surprise for our next rally and this time I'll try to get the public address system there in time!

CURTAIN!

By Irvin Silberstein

Nazimova in Henrik Ibsen's "Ghosts."—the announcement of a brilliant actress in a classic play.

Opening at the Curran Theater, Monday evening, February 24, this incomparable production has been accredited by all critics as an outstanding triumph of the current season.

When Nazimova is billed, it is an occasion, or when an Ibsen masterpiece is presented, it is an occasion, but when it's Nazimova in an Ibsen play, then it's sensational. So sensational it was that the audience at the Broadway premiere refused to leave the theater before the curtain had been raised in tribute 28 times. Richard Lockridge of the New York Sun wrote, "A terrific experience in the theater . . . Worth going very far to see." It is seldom that such an opportunity is afforded, and college students should take advantage of it.

The company is brought here for a limited engagement by Luther Greene, presenting the original New York cast including McKay Morris and Harry Ellerbe. Settings are by Stewart Chaney, and Mme. Nazimova herself has staged the play.

Children's Theater

The Children's Theater Association of San Francisco is now enjoying its second successful season in the production of a series of plays for children. Founded last year by prominent San Francisco citizens, the organization is now a permanent institution which seeks to provide suitable entertainment for young children. Since last December, with the co-operation of various dramatic schools in the city and the Junior League, the association has produced five plays in nine different performances. Production will continue with three more plays to be presented at five dates between now and April 4.

"Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs," by the Reginald Travers group, received excellent commendation.

Information may be had at Sherman Clay and Co. or at the High School of Commerce Auditorium every Saturday afternoon.

Stage, Screen

Is it possible for a motion picture to extract the same qualities from a play that a stage production is able to—or vice versa?

Perhaps an answer to this question, at least an interesting comparison, is offered by the Warner Brothers' screen presentation of The Petrified Forest, now at the Warfield Theater, and the recent engagement of an Henry Duffy legitimate group in the same play.

The picture, with Leslie Howard and Bette Davis in the leading roles, gives Robert Sherwood's play a wider physical scope. The beauty of the Arizona desert becomes real, and the outdoor scenes add a natural note in the progress of the story.

But it is the stage play that gives words meaning. Somehow, there seems to be no artificial substitute for the qualities that a human voice can give to thoughts brought to life in words. Even though the screen close-ups afforded the audience a better opportunity to understand thoroughly the long philosophical speeches, the same words spoken from the stage seemed to carry as much weight despite the distracting setting around the speaker.

The Petrified Forest, on stage or screen—equally enjoyable—both worth seeing.

SAILING THROUGH THE NEWS

Recently in Los Angeles a young couple stole an airplane, took it to a small landing field in the hills which they had previously cleared, and then drove off in an automobile.

No one has been able to find them; no one can figure out just why they stole the plane, and what they intended to do with it. They left a note in the hangar from which they took the craft, saying that they would return it in a few days, unless the police were notified, in which case they would destroy it.

The story, incomplete, is not very unusual. Their plans, however, might have offered great possibilities for the fertile mind of a novelist. If carried out, who knows but what the scheme might have developed into one of the proofs for the alleged adage that truth is stranger than fiction.

This Man Wanted to Live

Last week a man found himself adrift in a sea of ice. According to the papers, he crawled across the frigid ice flow for eight miles before he found assistance. Partially revived, but so seriously frozen that he will probably lose both legs, the man cried that he wanted to live—he was so young!

After having gone through all the beastly preliminaries of dying, the man wanted to live. Now, some day, he shall have to go through them again, although perhaps not such painful ones.

When asked what he would do if he were again a young man of 21, Clarence Darrow, the famous criminal lawyer, unhesitatingly replied, "I'd commit suicide; any young man who wouldn't is a fool."

Navigators Not Nutty Nudists

Maurice Allard and his party of fellow nudists had to sail from Tampa, Florida, for the Virgin Islands where they intend to establish a back-to-nature colony without a navigator, according to word received from the Havana Post, because not a sextant-squinter could be found who would put to sea without his clothes.

Seafaring men may fall for the regrettably common (but usually justified) fad of going on strike, but they seem to stick to the age-old tradition of the sea that a man should take along his oilskins and sou'ester.

The Fate Of a Martyr

Murdered by cowardly assassins because he waged an unrelentless battle on crime and graft, Walter Liggett, militant Minnesota editor, is not forgotten. Governor Floyd B. Olson of Minnesota probably wishes he were, for Mrs. Liggett, before a jury, swore that the governor ordered the murder committed.

Murdering editors is not a profitable business. Brother journalists, as a rule, frown upon the practice; so much so, in fact, that all those involved in the perpetration of the crime are apt to find that they have started a juggernaut that they can stop only by killing off every newspaper editor in the country.

CONES WON'T DO NOW

By Florence Murphy

During the last few years, Young America has become milkshake conscious. Gone are the good old days when an ice cream cone would do; now it has to be a milkshake or nothing.

In the "gone but not forgotten" diet days, "she" would be content with a cup of black coffee after the show; but now she must have a double chocolate shake with a big dab of whipped cream and maybe a ham sandwich on the side.

When the gals had to watch their "figgers," you would see them slyly creep into a drug store and order "a small cherry coke," but now they walk boldly in the front door, park themselves in a booth, and spend the afternoon sipping the creamy confection.

Some may say that the "milkshake craze" is not so good, but others say, "Long may it wave o'er the land of the lamb chop and the home of the pineapple!"

Student Opinion Raps Person Who Won't Help Dog

THE RAM'S HORN

Would you walk past an injured man without rendering as much as a kind word? Then why walk past an injured dog and a pleading boy down on his knees begging for help! One of our most prominent jayseers did just that.

The little boy's dog had a severe attack of intestinal pains due, as I was told later, to poison. The little boy, who was about ten years old, was down on his knees begging for someone to help his dog.

Our jayseer happened to be the first one to come up the street. He asked the little boy what the trouble was. The boy, torn by grief and with tears streaming down his face, was unable to say anything except "Please help my dog, don't let him die." But our jayseer turned a deaf ear to his pleadings and walked up the street.

I rushed out into the street and did all I could for the dog. The boy's aunt was informed of the mishap and called a veterinarian. When he arrived to take the dog to the hospital, he remarked that it was a clear case of poison.

Why can't we start right now to learn all over again how to be kind to animals! I don't see how anyone could make himself so low as to refuse to render help or at least a kind word to that boy after hearing his pleading. You did yourself proud, jayseer, but please, for your own respectability, don't do that if you ever find yourself in the same situation again.

Noise Annoys Anonymous

I had been suffering under the delusion that I would be able to study in the library—I even thought I might be able to catch up on my sleep there—but I find I am mistaken.

The first ten minutes in either of the alleged libraries at Galileo are like ten years in a boiler factory, what with students, profs and what have you running in and out the doors; people in the back of the room yelling to people going out, and other miscellaneous noises.

But the main difficulty is in the amplified chairs, whose scrapings can be heard all the way out to Daly City. Every time somebody takes a breath, his chair creaks. It would be a simple operation to put rubber stubs on the legs in order to muffle the sound somewhat. Or are the chairs left that way to keep people awake?—ANONYMOUS.

It Comes Out Here

In this school, if you keep your ears clean and your eyes open, you learn a lot more than your school work.

It is very VERY nice of Jack Baron to take Rita Ryan home from school all the time. I wish someone would take me. I hate those darn street cars.

I hear Paul Rippon used to go with a Stater. (That's a girl from San Francisco State College to you guys and you gals who are unfamiliar with the term.) Why the break, Rip? She's a very cute blonde.

That Agnes Glover wears just what the perfect co-ed should. Don't you think so, fellows?

Here's a hint: Get "pally" with Ben Deane. Then you can go up Monte Rio this summer and receive free swimming lessons from Ben's father, who is swimming instructor at Little Sandy Beach.

Spirit prevailed in a big way at the rally Thursday. It was certainly a gala event. Virginia Haig put it over—YES, YES, and by the look on the girls' faces, Karl Ravasso hit the spot. The quintuplets, those five tiny cuddly tots, were an added attraction, especially Bobby Neal.

Did you know that Betty Hunt is a very talented little actress? Well, if you didn't, she is. From the looks of things, Ken Collins is interested in that certain dramatics' star.

There's a teacher here at school named Miss Gavin and she's "tops." When a student admits that, it is something.

FASHION FLASHES

By FEM

Among the prevailing fashions for spring are the always popular prints. These prints feature color and have brilliant backgrounds of green, red, and blue which are used to contrast with the brightly spotted patterns. Most of the designs are fairly small and very wearable, and feature circles, triangles, geometric shapes, and dots.

Much thought is being put on the simple tailored patterns which make simple daytime frocks and jacket costumes. There are quantities of floral patterns, and they appear mostly in the dresses which are intended for late afternoon or evening wear. These increase in size from tiny baby rose buds to giant size poppies.

In direct contrast to these gay prints are the black dresses which are always so very smart looking. These can be given individuality in many different ways this spring. The most important step is to select a simple dress with smart lines that are becoming to your figure. If you select dresses which feature collars and cuffs, try to have these detachable so that they can be laundered or cleaned more often.

One dress may have any number of collar and cuff sets, and the clever co-ed can be crisply tailored in white pique or wistfully feminine in lace and embroidery, whatever the mood.

Black dresses may also be livened by clever clips, crisp icebox flowers, or gay scarfs featuring many of the new spring colors.

Paper Talk

By Paul Green

A rose by any other name would smell as sweet.—SHAKESPEARE.

San Francisco legislators seem to have forgotten the truth of that old statement in the course of an action taken by them recently. I refer to the ruling of some city department prohibiting the display of the words "Beer" or "Tavern" in neon signs over local bars and grog shops.

The city heads seem to think that the use of the two common words printed above ruins the appearance of our fair city, but in changing them are destroying the cause instead of the effect.

When the neon sign builders first heard of the decision, they rubbed their hands together in glee and looked forward to an expansive business of new signs. But they reckoned without the resources of beer parlor owners. Not willing to buy a new sign if they could get around it, the suds dispensers racked their brains to see if they could remove the evil by changing only one letter of the sign. As a result where the signs formerly read,

B E E R

most of them now read

which is accomplished by removing the lower arc of the first "B," thereby turning it into a "P." However, some of the joint owners, striving for originality in their advertising, hit upon many other combinations, one Polk Street operator having the audacity to change his sign reading "BEER" into "BEEP" by turning the "R" into a "P." Those whose signs formerly read, "TAVERN" have changed the "T" to "C," making it read "CAVERN."

BEEP IS NEW WORD

This will undoubtedly have a strong effect on posterity. In due course of time the words "Peer" and "Beep" will appear in the better dictionaries defining the drink called Beer, which word will have become obsolete. Likewise, Tavern will disappear from common usage, and another meaning will be added to Cavern, thus making a terrible mess of the English language.

Already, when an individual requires a drink or so, he sneaks into one of the places bearing a "PEER" sign, gets close to the bartender, and whispers, "Gimme a glass of—well, I can't say it, but—."

"Oh, you mean PEER, meaning B-E-E-R," the bartender answers. Therefore the evils of the speakeasies confront us again.

In the past it has been noticed that once in awhile one letter of a neon sign burns out. So a sign reading BEER sometimes appeared as BEE. If this should happen, and it undoubtedly will, to the PEER signs, the city department will realize what a mistake their action was.

This attempt to put the universal art of suds swallowing on a high society basis will then, paradoxically, remove it to depths even lower than before.

TOUGH ON GUS

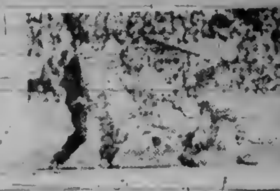
The decision has therefore produced nothing but has aggravated the poor appearance of the thousands of beer parlors (pardon, peer parlors) and will give travelers passing through town the opinion that San Francisco doesn't know how to spell. Imagine, in a few years an easterner might pine for a glass of suds and ask for one at a bar—but nobody would understand him! No more will the old cry "Another beer, Gus," ring out of an evening.

It breaks my heart—guess I'll have to go back to billiard drinking.

CAMPUS POETRY

QUEST

I've searched in distant lands,
In corners of the earth,
For a thing of matchless beauty,
Something of priceless worth.



A gem, perhaps, or a bit of gold,
A rare old book, or jade,
For every sort of treasure
An endless quest I've made.

And when, grown weary, I'd returned
To rest at "Journey's End,"
I found that which I'd overlooked,
That dearest thing—a friend.

RAMBLINGS

Rain Hurts Tossers

Due to the heavy rain storm which hit San Francisco and the peninsula, the baseball team was unable to open its campaign against the Stanford Freshmen last week.

Unless Jupiter Pluvius intervenes by going on another spree, the Ram "horsehide flingers" will officially open their first ball season against the St. Mary's College Freshman nine at Moraga tomorrow.

While on the subject of baseball, let's discuss a couple of the diamond twisters, namely, Larry Favor and George McGuire.

Favor, who handles the difficult short patch, is a transfer from San Jose State, and is quite a ball player. He is a steady, dependable fielder and possesses an excellent throwing arm. Larry, who should gain Favor rapidly (get it?), is the lad that arrived late to fill properly a gaping weakness at shortstop; one that was very conspicuous, even to the inexperienced baseball fan. This boy is also a very good batsman.

Handling the initial sack with a great deal of ease and sureness is George McGuire. George is the type of first baseman whom any manager likes to have on his club. "Mac" measures six feet tall, left handed, and wears glasses, not to say a few freckles.

Bespectacled George saves all the infielders from being charged with errors on bad throws by stretching from "hyar to thar" to pick 'em out of the dirt.

Although not a heavy hitter, "Mac" can pound out basehits often enough to be a consistent threat at the bat.

Blinkers Prepare

More laughs are in store for Jaysee students on the nights of Friday and Saturday, February 28 and 29, at Kezar Pavilion.

On those dates the "Blinkers" will engage Tom Wilson's 145-pound basketeers in preliminaries to the conference games between the Rams and San Mateo.

The "Blinkers" will be clad in colorful suits; begged, borrowed, or stolen for the occasion.

A new type of sweat suit has been procured and it promises to be different than any other kind heretofore exhibited in these parts.

Remember, February 28 and 29. Ram Varsity versus San Mateo. "Blinkers" versus Rams 45's.

Better be there if you wish to be gay the following week. The "Blinkers" will help you to get happy if you're inclined to feel sad.

Footballers Aid

A few members of last season's football squad aided materially in putting the lowly freshmen in their places in the Frosh-Soph Brawl last Thursday.

Charles Brickley, Charles "Blink" Kremesec, George Clarke, Frank Knowlton, and Charles Blumenthal helped the cause of the sophs.

Brickley and Clarke scored the winning baskets in the "rough house" basketball games, in which they participated, while all the boys wreaked plenty of damage upon the low frosh in the other brawls that preceded the above-mentioned embroglio.

Tracksters Try

San Francisco had two men entered in the indoor track meet last week and while neither placed, they did well enough.

Jackson was entered in the Jaysee 50-yard dash. A bad start didn't help him any when it came to placing.

Walt Bertram competed in the open mile run. Walt was right up with the leaders, Burrows and Nimmo of Stanford, for the first half mile, but faded in the final part of the race.

Track Coach Russell Sweet was one of the "high and mighty" officials for the evening; believe you me, Russ performed his duties without a hitch.

New Baseball Uniforms

Esseff's first baseball squad will be decked out in brand new uniforms for the coming season.

The equipment consists of grey suits with S. F. J. C. in red block letters across the chest; cardinal caps are used for headware; red and white socks complete the uniform.

Members of the team are well pleased with the outfits and intend to be the best dressed team in the conference, besides pennant winners.

Faculty-Student Game

Rain cancelled the Faculty-Student "soft ball game" scheduled for last Thursday.

In all probability the "mush ball" artists will clash on Baby Day, this Friday, at 2:30 p. m. Galileo Field will be the scene of battle; you are urged to get your seats early if you wish to witness this game that portends plenty of laughs.

Students, get behind your team! Faculty, do likewise, and let's have a good crowd present for the performers.

Rippon Leads Cagers In Win Over Modesto

The highly touted Modesto Junior College quintet, after a double win over Santa Rosa last week, fell before the onslaught of Coach "Dutch" Conlan's San Francisco cagers in two conference tilts last week. The Rams won on Friday with a 28-21 score and nosed out the Pirate squad by 2 points on Saturday, winning 29-27.

As a result of these victories, the Rams are now tied with Sacramento Junior College for the conference lead with six wins and two defeats.

RIP STEALS SHOW

Dark-haired Paul Rippon stole the show in both games. Coming into the struggle on Friday with his team behind and only ten minutes to go, Rip "saw his duty" and accounted for 9 digits to win the game. Rippon proved himself to be a money player on Saturday, also, dropping three pretty shots near the close of the game to give the Rams the lead for the first time that night.

Modesto, having expected to beat the Rams, had the gymnasium packed to the rafters by the addition of extra bleachers.

Half-time score on Friday was 10-8 for San Francisco. The Rams took 35 shots in this period and connected on only five of them. The Pirates sank only two out of 20 attempts.

CAINE FLASHY

Flashy point scoring by diminutive Carlyle Caine increased the local's lead in the second half, but the Modestans scored near the close of the game to come within two points of the Rams. It was at this point that Conlan inserted Rippon to "do his duty."

Caine was high-point man for the night with 11 markers.

SLOW STARTERS

In Saturday's encounter, both fives started slowly, the Pirates taking the lead with three free throws. The game was 11 minutes old before Caine tossed in a free throw for the Ram's first score, bringing the count to 7 to 1 for Modesto. Unable to cope with the Pirate attack, the San Francisco hoopsters trailed at half, 15-10. Sloppy officiating hampered the play of both teams.

"Dutch" Conlan delivered one of his famous pep talks to his cagers during the intermission and sent them back into the game fired-up for a victory.

Modesto ran up a 20-13 lead before the Rams could get going, but Rippon found the range to bring the score to 20-19. However, shots by Triano and Perry, Pirate stars, put Coach Gardner's Modesto outfit further ahead.

RADUNICH BEST PIRATE

With five minutes to go, the Rams had not led once during the game, but Rippon, desperate and displaying his best form so far this season, broke through the Modesto guards three times in a row to give his team the lead. Radunich then evened the count with a free throw, but Hillsman again put the Rams in the lead, 27-25, with an appropriate field goal.

At this point, Monty Mordecai was ejected from the game because of four fouls, and Ed McSweeney relieved him. McSweeney immediately tanked the bucket that meant the game and the series.

Rippon's 10 points gave him high honors for the night, while Caine had 8 markers to his credit. Hillsman and "Red" Lowans played good ball for the Rams, Lowans being in there for the entire game and leaving it a very tired individual.

S. F. STATE QUINTET SWEEPS TO VICTORY OVER JAYSEES, 46-39

Conlan's Hoopsters Fail To Impress as Alligators Avenge First Tilt

Taking the court last Tuesday as a vastly improved basketball squad, the San Francisco State cagers subdued the efforts of the Ram cusabans and avenged a previous defeat handed them by the Jaysee squad. The game was played at the State gymnasium, final score being 46-39.

Having won the first encounter between the colleges, 30 to 25, Coach "Dutch" Conlan started his second team against the Alligators but was forced to start his varsity players in the second half.

The Staters held the lead throughout almost the entire contest by virtue of some sharp basket-shooting by Atkinson and Chionio and brought a capacity crowd to its feet by remarkable hoop-marksmanship.

The Jaysee attack was throttled when McSweeney, who started off to play the best game of his career, was ejected from the contest because of four personal fouls. When McSweeney left the game the Rams' attack left also. The first period ended with State on the long end of a 31-26 count.

Conlan started his first string, Glynn, Caine, Lowans, Mordecai and Hillsman at the half but it made no difference to the Purple and Gold warriors, who continued on their scoring spree. The Ram regulars were able to account for only 13 markers in the second half.

Merv Chionio, State forward, led the scorers with 16 points, followed by Atkinson with 12. Paul Rippon was high for the Rams with nine digits, while Ernie Loustalot accounted for eight.

Table tennis and badminton today have been given the calls as "muscle builders" for the schools of King County, Washington, over football.

William Hickman, deputy prosecutor, ruled county schools could purchase table tennis and badminton sets as muscle builders, but could not invest in football equipment.

FOOTBALL MEN TURN MANAGERS

It looks as if all the managers of the spring athletic teams will be football men.

Those who have signed up already include: Baseball—Fred Wilkenson, Charles Kremesec, Adolph Pedrin; Track—Bud McSweeney, and basketball—Tony Scafani.

Freshmen Hope For Top Honors In Intramurals

Program Will Begin in Two Weeks. When Classes Organize Teams

By DEMING SMITH

The long-awaited men's intramural sports program will begin in about two weeks with an inter-class track and field meet at Funston field, according to announcements from the coaching staff.

The incoming group of low freshmen is a favorite to win this event, boasting a strong aggregation of former high school stars. The high freshmen are also expected to figure in the meet. Sophomore groups are not rated high in track circles.

Class rivalry, receiving a booming start at the freshman-sophomore brawl held last week, is expected to mount even higher as the intramural sports program is rounded out.

MAY GET NUMERALS

It is expected that the winning class team in each event will receive numeral awards. However, no definite action on this score has as yet been taken by the awards committee.

No definite teams have been selected to represent the various classes and anyone who desires to compete may enter by signing up with Coach Russ Sweet at the Galileo gymnasium. All candidates will be required to sign up in advance so that the meet can be conducted in an orderly manner, Sweet said.

LOTS OF SPORTS

Men whose talents run to sports other than track will be given an opportunity to show their wares in other competitive sports as soon as the weather permits. Indoor baseball will be conducted under Coaches Eisan and Sweet, it was announced, with Sweet handling aquatic stars for interclass events single-handed. A college golf tournament will take place in three weeks, under the direction of Conlan and golf manager Jack Welch. Several trophies are offered in this tournament and winning players will be selected for places on the college golf squad, which is entered in the Northern California Junior College Conference race this spring.

Tennis enthusiasts will play under the direction of Tom Wilson, who expects to discover some star racqueteers for inter-college competition. The inter-mural matches are to be held at the Palace of Fine Arts courts.

TOUCH-TACKLE

Plans for touch-football and basketball are also under consideration, but no definite arrangements have been made. Arrangements for handball and other minor sports depend on the number of men willing to participate.

Aside from the regular intra-class competition, sports activities for inter-club and gym class teams will also take place.

Clubs, such as Charlie Kremesec's "Blinkers," which will meet the Jaysee '45's at Kezar next week, are rapidly being organized and will provide a full program for sports-minded students.

Dutch Conlan Real San Francisco Boy

A graduate of Commerce High and St. Mary's College, Coach "Dutch" Conlan can really be considered one of San Francisco's own athletes.

Starting his long and illustrious career as a sportsman at Commerce, he participated in football, baseball and basketball. However, his fame did not spread until he entered St. Mary's.

While at the college, he called signals as quarterback on the football team for three years. During the spring term he was to be found at guard position on the basketball squad, a position he held down for four years. Upon graduation, he became coach of the freshman football team, a system that he inaugurated himself. Before that time there were no separate frosh activities, freshmen being eligible to compete in varsity sports. While coaching for three years, he took a law course at Hastings, being admitted to the bar in 1930.

In 1929, Conlan transferred to Commerce to become head football and basketball coach, where he developed many championship squads until 1935, when he was appointed to the Junior College coaching staff.

ERNIE

Ernie Loustalot, one of the better forwards on the Ram Varsity. A fine player on the basketball floor, Loustalot hasn't gone wild for about two weeks but is expected to be "hot" against Santa Rosa this week.

GOLDEN GATE JUNIOR COLLEGE SWIMMERS ARE ENROLLED HERE

Mowatt, Wetherbee, And Brotman Are Former Wandering Raiders

Numbered among the swimmers attending San Francisco Junior College this semester are three distinguished title holders, formerly of Coach George Madera's "Wandering Raiders" at Golden Gate Junior College.

Bob Mowatt, Harold Wetherbee, and Herb Brotman represent a triple-threat team that has built its record on past achievements, pitted against some of the country's best swimmers.

Mowatt, a former Lowell High School champion, now holds both the 100 and 150 yard back-stroke records, made at the Northern California intercollegiate meet last year, as well as the record for the Junior P.A. 50-yard back-stroke championship.

Wetherbee, besides placing first in the quarter-mile event at the Northern California meet last year, is also Junior P.A. 500-yard free-style champion. Harold claims Mission High School as his alma mater.

Brotman, former Lowell High swimmer, holds the Senior P.A. 50-yard record. Both Brotman and Wetherbee are former high school "All-Americans." All three are now swimming for the Olympic Club.

CONFERENCE HI-LITES

SAN FRANCISCO ties with Sacramento for lead in conference standings.

Santa Rosa aids S. F. materially by winning one from Sacramento.

San Mateo split with Marin, going into a tie for fourth place.

Commissioner Paul Mohr decides that the protested Marin, Modesto series must be replayed. If either college should win two games, it would probably put the league lead in a three-way tie.

RESULTS LAST WEEK

San Francisco, 28, 29—Modesto, 21, 27.

Santa Rosa, 54, 28—Sacramento, 48, 44.

San Mateo 38, 50—Marin 44, 37.

Yuba, 67, 49—Menlo, 37, 34.

Santa Rosa files protest with Commissioner Mohr in an attempt to get a replay with Modesto, who have beaten the Cubs twice.

Tossers Move To St. Mary's For Contest

Rain Postpones Initial Game at Stanford; Eisan Says He Expects to Win

By DOLF PEDRIN

With Old Man Weather winning the first encounter, the "Red Rams," jaysee baseball nine, will journey to Moraga Valley tomorrow to meet the St. Mary's college tossers.

Last week's contest with Stanford had to be abandoned because of the rain, so the Gael tilt will be the first for the locals.

"We expect to take them," said Headman Eisan yesterday. Lee expects great things of his club, and this scribe agrees with him. Already the horsehide hitters are beginning to attain form.

There has been little time for practice during the past week, due to the rain, but the pitchers have been working out daily in the gymnasium. Larry Wilgus has won the mound assignment over McGuire and Biggerstaff.

Felix Anido, team chatterbox, has been getting plenty of exercise on the basketball team, so his inability to take up the catcher's duties hasn't hurt him much. First baseman Ed McSweeney has also been working out with the hoop squad.

Anido and Telesmanic leave very little to choose between them for the backstop duties, although Jerome is trailing right behind them.

The starting lineup tomorrow will be: McGuire, first base; Scafani, second; Favor, shortstop; Guisti, third; Fitzgerald, centerfield; Fex, leftfield; Lucchesi, rightfield, and Anido, catcher.

Manager Fred Wilkinson has arranged for about twelve non-conference tilts, lining the team up against such competition as Stanford frosh, Cal. Frosh, and St. Mary's.

CHEAP HITS: Felix Anido, noted basketball and baseball star, is sending a valentine to Yuba (guess why). . . . Ben McGuire claims he is a second Dizzy Dean (we agree to part of that). . . . Albino McSweeney is another who is Yubaying. . . . Headman Eisan can't stay too late at practice because he is fearful of being late for his 2:30 class. . . . Can't you picture him being reprimanded by a teacher? . . . Jack Telesmanic, with his 235 pounds, wonders why he can't be a sprinter.

SWIMMERS NOTICE

Arrangements are being made for a San Francisco Junior College swimming team. The team will probably practice at Central Y.M.C.A. or some other local institution, and there will be a membership fee of $2.50. All those interested should see Russ Sweet as soon as possible.

The nation's school bill is $2,418,633,561 annually.

meetings. If they can beat the Rams they will still be in the race.

Besides, one of the Modesto defeats may be replayed, as a dispute over a referee's decision is now in the hands of Paul Mohr, conference commissioner, pending decision.

The Rams are advised to keep their eyes on one Cub in particular, Mulgrew, who is touted as one of the best basketball men in the junior college league. As evidence of Mulgrew's ability, it is noticed that he scored 18 points in one of the Menlo contests and only last Friday tanked 23 points single-handed to give his team a win over Sacramento.

RAMS FACE CRISIS

Coach Conlan's Rams, fresh from two stirring victories over Modesto, are facing the crisis in exactly the same manner as the Santa Rosans, with the first string ready to go the full route in both games if necessary.

The San Francisco boys are not forgetting that they need a double win to stay at the top of the heap.

Noticeable in the Ram lineup will be left-handed Paul Rippon, who asserted himself so strongly at Modesto that he may receive a starting assignment Friday.

In any case, however, pick the Red and White to win. (Yes, those are the Santa Rosans' colors, also.)

The games start at 8 o'clock, with the J. C. 145 pound team meeting a local club outfit in the preliminary at 7 o'clock.

Unexpected Budget Cut Hurts Golfers

Receiving an unexpected cut in allowance from the budget committee, fairway plans for the present semester must be changed, Jack Welch, golf manager, announces.

A college tournament will be held, however, at one of the public links at the conclusion of the current bay tourney, he said. All men students are eligible to compete; they may sign up with either Welch or "Dutch" Conlan.

The Doggone Quintuplets will be at the BABY DANCE

The other officers are: David York, vice-president; Helene Wright, secretary; Robert Harless, treasurer, and James Neal, publicity manager.

The following is a list of the charter members: Barbara Latz, Helene Wright, David York, Don Mills, Bob Griffith, James Neal, Attilio Ferrari, Robert Harless, Henry Kearney and Albert Leake.

Several new members were added at the last meeting. They are: Guy Hayler, Gertrude Schauberger, Arnold Green, Max Chenoweth, Bradley Schwarz, Walt Stafford and Clay Yerby.

HERE'S WHERE WE'LL BE

Conveniently accessible by both Municipal and Market Street railways, the location of Balboa Park in the Ingleside district, next year's home of San Francisco Junior College is shown at the point of the arrow on the above map. The cross marks the exact location of the cluster of buildings that will probably house S.F.J.C. students next January.

with the first unit that is expected to be ready by next January, having facilities for approximately 3000 students.

The Recreational Department has tennis courts and other athletic facilities adjoining the college site. Caulfield expects to make an arrangement whereby the college will have use of these facilities in conjunction with the park.

(The Guardsman expresses appreciation to Milton Ecke and Richard Allman, of the College Art Department, and to the San Francisco Call-Bulletin for help in preparing the draft of the ground plans.)

90 Co-Eds Taking Classes in Tennis

Over 90 women students of the junior college are receiving instruction in tennis, Miss Keller, women's athletic instructor, announced. Classes are being held at the Palace of Fine Arts on Tuesday and Thursday mornings under Miss Keller, and on Monday and Wednesday mornings under Miss Spencer. Afternoon classes meet at Funston Field.

"We are very pleased thus far with the students," Miss Keller said. "We have promise of some excellent material. Before the close of the semester we plan to hold a ladder tournament and then perhaps a tournament with the men tennis enthusiasts of the college."

Disease Specialist Is to Speak Today

Dr. J. V. Parisi, specialist in women and child diseases, and brother of Sue Parisi, a student of the San Francisco Junior College, will speak before the class of Economics 54 (current economics and social problems) today, February 19, in room 404, at 12:35 p. m.

His topic is entitled, "The Medical Facts and Usage of Narcotics." During the course of his address he will discuss licenses, cure, and general medical demands for the different types of drugs.

PELICAN ISLE

"Alcatraz," the present Devils Island, was once called "The Pelican," or "Isla de Alcatraces," by Ayala because of its population of pelicans when he sailed through the Golden Gate on a voyage of discovery August 5, 1775.

WASHINGTON'S LIFE IS TOLD BY SCRIBE

By CHASON TUCKER

George Washington—"First in the hearts of his countrymen!"

Saturday, 204 years after George Washington was born at Wakefield, Virginia, the United States bows its head in humble reverence to the "father of our country."

In grade schools, little lassies and freckled Penrods will wriggle their toes and giggle while reciting the pleasant tale of the cherry tree and the throwing of the silver dollar across the Potomac. Leather-lunged orators will bellow his ability to succeed after necessarily quitting school at the age of 16. Military leaders will revel in his exploits in the Virginia militia as an adjutant-general, and his tactical skill in causing Lord Charles Cornwallis to give up the British ghost at Yorktown, October 19, 1781. And politicians will laud his activities in the Virginia assembly and the two Continental Congresses, while diplomats will praise his international friendships with Lafayette, Rochambeau, de Grasse, and Von Steuben.

Over a century has rolled through the sandglass since he retired to the coolness of Mount Vernon, where, by the blue Potomac, he passed into eternity on December 14, 1799—a man paid the highest of tributes: "First in the hearts of his countrymen."

Thus, George Washington, who in spite of modern biographical revelation and vaporous eulogy, still remains the firm image of a great man, human, a lover of children, and, above all, a patriot. In reverence, a salute to you, father of the America!

Exchange Editor's Clippings Show What Contemporaries Do

Ventura Junior College held a Leap Year Dance on February 14, and the gals paid the necessary forty cents admission, furnished the transportation, and provided the usual after-dance snack. Sounds like great fun, huh boys?

The students of the Chaffey Junior College, Ontario, California, were entertained by a talk from Barney Oldfield, speed king of the early nineties. Oldfield cautioned his listeners against speeding, careless driving, and foolish stunts, saying, "It doesn't pay—I ought to know."

Co-eds at Syracuse University wear a ribbon in their hair to signify that they have no home work and are willing to step out, if asked. When a date is made, the girls are supposed to remove the ribbons to signify that they are not open for dates. Many of the girls do a little chiseling, and keep the ribbon on until they have had three or four invitations, and then take their choice!

When the Tiger gridsters of Riverside Junior College received their gold footballs, Coach Howard Jones of the University of Southern California was on hand to speak to the students, saying that "Football plays a great part in college life and is invaluable for its teaching of good sportsmanship."

The Santa Rosa Junior College "Oak Leaf" carried an interview with John Masefield, Poet Laureate of England. Mr. Masefield, when asked his opinion of American college students, said, "I know very little of the American college students. Youth, on the whole, is in a rather perplexing state of life. It is in youth that one's principles are formed, and in spite of discouragement and disappointment, these principles will not be changed throughout life."

W.A.A. Sign-Ups Being Held Are At Galileo Now

Association Seeks to Have Vote in Council of Other Group

The Women's Athletic Association sports sign-ups are being held this week in gym A at Galileo, and will last through Friday, according to Ruth Johnson, vice-president and publicity director of this organization. Miss Johnson especially stressed that to join the W.A.A. at least one sport must be taken in addition to the required class course.

A W.A.A. council meeting was held Thursday, February 13. The meeting was called to order by President Arleen Frazieres. The minutes of the previous meeting were then read by Secretary Parnell Brown, who some time ago was unanimously elected to this office when it was vacated by Martta Solonon's departure from college. Award systems were discussed, but the council could not definitely decide on any one plan. However, it was tentatively decided not to employ a point system in awarding blocks.

The most important result of the meeting was the definite adoption of the W.A.A. budget, which was drafted by the council, then approved by it, and by Vera Spencer, faculty advisor. It was later presented to the budget committee of the Associated Students.

Miss Johnson expressed the desire of the association to obtain a vote in the A.W.S. council as well as to secure more complete athletic facilities, so that more intercollegiate meets may be held.

Basketball, Tennis Are Favorites Of Women's Classes

Registration for women's physical education classes is completed and classes are now well under way, according to Vera Spencer, director of this department.

While all of the sports offered are proving popular, those finding most favor with women students are tennis, basketball, and tap dancing. No fewer than 86 co-eds are enrolled in the tennis classes, which are held at the Palace of Fine Arts courts.

All other sports, with the exceptions of golf and riding, are given in the women's gymnasium at Galileo. Golf fans practice at Funston Playground, and equestriennes canter at the Stanyan Street stables.

Although credit registration is completed, all eligible women students are urged to go out for as many sports as possible at the W.A.A. sign-ups this week.

Total enrollments in the various activities are as follows: Tennis, 86; basketball, 63; tap dancing, 43; modern dancing, 38; archery, 31; riding, 28; golf, 25; recreational games, 21, and tumbling, 14.

Household Arts Association Will Hold Meeting Friday

A meeting of the Household Arts Association, for the purpose of discussing plans for the coming term, will be held at 1:45 o'clock on Friday, February 21.

The president, Louise Corica, will preside. The other officers are: Vice-president, Evelyn Dybdal; secretary, Virginia Elliott, and treasurer, Corrine Lynwood.

The constitution for the club has been sent in, and at present they are waiting for the charter.

Cadet Instructor Added To List of College Faculty

Mary Smiley, graduate of the University of California, began work as a cadet instructor here last week. Miss Smiley is in charge of the study hall at 540 Powell, and also in charge of the traffic regulations and arrangements.

The Guardsman, on behalf of the faculty and students, welcomes Miss Smiley to the college.

Stamp Club to Meet For Reorganization Tuesday

Anyone interested in stamps will be welcome at the meeting of the Philatelic Society (stamp club to you), which will be held at 1:30 Tuesday in the "little cafeteria," according to Carl Stough, advisor.

A general reorganization will take place, and plans for the coming semester will be discussed, Stough says.

La Belle, Telfer Among Audience of Badger

Among the guests of the Friends of Music group, in which Flossita Badger, college music instructor, entertained, was Claude La Belle, dramatic editor of the Daily News. Ronald Telfer, noted dramatist, and a select group of art and dramatic critics, were also present.

Approved Budget Will Allow College To Spend $9,110.00, Including Deficit Pay-Off

In a letter to the Associated Students, Edwin C. Browne, assistant dean of men at the junior college, presented instructions for financial routine according to state law, together with the adopted student body budget, Friday.

Because of a deficit incurred last semester, it was found necessary to plan on a conservative margin, appropriating the money as evenly as possible to the various groups which petitioned for funds. The deficit will be paid from the current budget.

Dean Browne's letter and the budget follow:

February 14, 1936.

Mr. Maury Schwarz, President,
S.F.J.C. Student Body,
San Francisco, California.
Dear Mr. Schwarz:

The state school law provides that all school funds be handled through the administration and supervision of the school employes. In order to facilitate the accurate and uniform handling of all funds passing through the Associated Students finance office, the following procedure will be followed:

1. Deposit all funds collected from students for any purpose with the finance office. The finance office will provide receipt books.

2. Control of the sale of tickets to all activities will be centralized in the finance office. Your assistance in furthering their distribution is solicited.

3. No obligation upon the Associated Students may be incurred without authorization through issuance of a purchase order by the finance office. Expenditures incurred without this authority must be met by the individual incurring same.

a. Requisition blanks can be secured at the finance office. After approval from properly authorized sources, the purchase order will be issued granting the holder authority to obligate the Associated Students.

b. For small expenditures the finance office is authorized to reimburse you not to exceed one dollar ($1.00) upon receipt of the sales slip evidencing a proper expenditure.

c. Requisitions for items costing twenty-five dollars ($25.00) or more should be accompanied by bona fide bids from at least three vendors.

The following student body budget is set for this present semester and activities must be confined to their budgetary limitations:

Pi Mu Gamma Has 15 on Probation

The Pi Mu Gamma Society, pre-medical and pre-dental group of the junior college, held its second meeting of the term on Tuesday, February 11, at Galileo, Room 203.

Fifteen students applied for admission to the organization. These applicants, according to Arthur Robinson, president, will be put on one month probation before being accepted as full-fledged members. With their initiation, the membership of the club will reach the 40 mark.

Plans for a field trip to the Mare Island Naval Hospital and a wienie roast at a later date were the topics of discussion at the meeting.

Press Club Prospects To See Colligan Afternoons

The Press Club, under the direction of Francis J. Colligan, is expected to begin its activities next week. As yet no plans have been made, but in a short time the club expects to be functioning as it did last semester.

Anyone interested in becoming a member of this organization is requested to see Colligan in the North library at Galileo High School between 2:30 and 5:30 any afternoon.

Capacity Crowd Attends Rally Last Thursday

Coakley's Group Entertains, Mails Struts, and Quints Dance

Strutting about the stage, and refusing to speak until the lights were turned on, Walter "The Great" Mails opened the student rally last Thursday.

Mails, after thanking the faculty and students for the opportunity to speak before a junior college audience, told some of the highlights of his 22 years of baseball. He concluded by saying "I am in favor of baseball being played in the schools, and I believe that more men, and women, can take part in baseball than in any other sport."

MISS HAIG SINGS

Tom Coakley, genial orchestra leader, was next presented and he introduced his pianist, Bud Grieg, who played "Honeysuckle Rose." Carl Ravazza, featured singer with the orchestra, sang "Alone," and, later, a medley consisting of "Moon Over Miami," "I'm Building Up To An Awful Letdown," "Red Sails In the Sunset," and "Where Am I?"

The hit of the afternoon was Virginia Haig, petite Coakley songstress, who sang two novelty numbers especially written for her, and, as an encore, "Rhythm In My Nursery Rhymes."

QUINTS DANCE

"Dr. Dafoe," in the person of Dean Browne, introduced his precious charges, the famous "Quints," portrayed by Bud Brookman as Yvonne, Bob Neal as Annette, Deming Smith as Cecile, Jim Fahn as Marie, and Bob Nelson as Emilie. The quints served to advertise the coming Baby Dance and romped about the stage, presenting a song and dance number which belied their tender years.

The rally, boasting a nearly capacity attendance, was closed by the traditional "Rams Yell."

The public address system used at the rally was loaned by Sherman & Clay. The rally committee expresses appreciation for this kindness, especially considering that the loan was made as a last-minute request.

Women's Service Group Initiates Five Co-Eds Today

Initiation for those who were elected to membership in the Women's Service Society will be held today, February 19, according to Verrel Weber, women's physical education instructor. In the morning they will meet in front of the Powell Street Building for their instructions for the day. In the evening a banquet and formal initiation will be held at the Women's City Club.

Pam Spalding is in charge of the arrangements for the banquet, and Helene Wright will act as toastmistress. The guest of honor will be Mrs. Eugenie Leonard, dean of women.

Those who received invitations to the society are: Mimi Colton, Helen Davis, Dorothy Fitsimmons, Hermine King and Marygail Konkel.

We Get Another College Rally—1:45 Tomorrow

Cagers Begin Big Game Rivalry vs. San Mateo Friday

RAMS FIGHT SAN MATEO IN KEZAR

RIFLE GROUP IS PLANNING RALLY FOR TOMORROW

Chief W. Quinn May Speak on Safety in Traffic

YAWARA, MAYBE

Schwarz Hopes That San Mateo Pres. Will Talk

Stressing a theme of safety, the College Rifle and Pistol Club is planning an assembly for tomorrow afternoon, to begin at 1:45 o'clock in the Galileo auditorium.

As The Guardsman goes to press, definite plans for the gathering are as yet unavailable.

According to the plans the club hopes to put through, Chief of Police William J. Quinn will speak on traffic safety.

It is also hoped to have members of the San Francisco Police Department give a performance exhibiting the use of Yawara, a Japanese method of self-defense that is employed by peace officers of this city.

Boosting the basketball game to be played between San Francisco and San Mateo junior colleges at Kezar Pavilion next Friday and Saturday nights, Maury Schwarz, local Associated Students president, hopes to have the president of the San Mateo contingency speak at the assembly.

Regardless of how plans go through, it is definite that there will be an assembly tomorrow at the above stipulated time, and that there will be some sort of good entertainment, according to last-minute word received from Paul Pitman, assistant to President Archibald J. Cloud.

HISTORIAN IS REWARDED FOR WORK

A noted authority on American history, President Archibald J. Cloud is seen above receiving a medal given him in recognition of his activities as chairman of the schools committee charged with the observance of the birthday of George Washington.

The medal was struck in the mint at Philadelphia and is a replica of one given President Franklin Roosevelt.

400 Frolic At Dance; Prizes Go To Three

Four hundred San Francisco Junior College students and their guests danced to the music of Howard Markuse's orchestra in the women's gymnasium Friday at the Baby Dance, which proved to be the season's best activity, according to those who attended.

The high spot of the evening's entertainment came at 10:45, when all of those present took part in a grand march for the selection of the best-dressed babies. A committee of Mimi Colton, Bill Weinstock, Maury Schwarz, Joe Amori and Edward Sandys passed judgment as the characters paraded by, and finally selected three prize winners.

First prize went to Jane McGruer, dressed in pink rompers. Corinne Lynwood, in a white lace outfit, straw hat, and pigtails, took second prize, while Mike Garakian won third honors in a novel "time to retire" costume. The winners received free bids to the Sophomore Formal to be held at the Mark Hopkins June 12.

Careful planning by the social committee transformed the gymnasium into a ballroom of beauty, with red and white streamers, and floating balloons livening up the affair.

Mimi Colton, chairman of the social committee, said, "The Baby Dance has proved that these festive informal affairs are more successful than any others, so we of the social committee shall endeavor to arrange more of them in the future."

Art Club Disbands; Possible Affiliation With Delta Epsilon

At a meeting last Thursday of the Art Club, which was formed last term with Richard Allman and Milton Ecke as faculty advisors, a majority voted to disband for the present, due to the lack of proper facilities and due to the hardship of getting the members together, according to Mr. Allman.

If the junior college should get a building, the club will probably be reorganized.

There is a possibility of a group of art students in this college becoming affiliated with the Delta Epsilon Society, although the club is for junior and senior students, according to Allman.

A certain amount of grade points and a B average in art are the prerequisites.

"I intend to investigate the matter further," Allman said.

ARTISTS LOOK JUST LIKE OTHER PEOPLE, IS FIND OF ART CLASS

Down a quiet alley to a plain, flat-looking building and up a long flight of narrow, twisted stairs into the small art gallery of the Artists' Cooperative Association filed Richard Allman's art appreciation class last week.

No long-haired, queerly dressed people of the artist type were present to greet the class. Only a young, intellectual looking man with one leg resting on the bannister, and with a pipe in his mouth, glanced at the class without concern. A few smocked students, sketching "still life" subjects, paused to do the same thing.

To pick out the painting the members of the class liked the most, and to write a composition on it, was the immediate aim of the trip; but to learn to appreciate the different types of art technique was the real object.

Mimi Colton, Maury Schwarz on Mort Werner Broadcast

As guest speakers on Mort Werner's amateur hour next Friday night, Maury Schwarz, president, and Mimi Colton, vice-president, of the Associated Students, will speak over station KROW some time between 9:30 and 10:30 o'clock.

Other college talent is also expected to be broadcast on the program. Possibilities that have been mentioned are Gene Blumenthal and Sammy Sable.

Declaring Friday night's broadcast a San Francisco Junior College night, Werner extends his personal invitation to members of the Associated Students and their friends. "And," he adds, "I'm even going to throw in some free lollypops, so come one, come all!"

Station KROW is located in the Bellevue Hotel, 505 Geary Street, in San Francisco.

Economics Club Is To Meet Tomorrow

The Economics Club will hold its first meeting of the semester tomorrow at 12:30 in the Powell Street building. A proposed constitution which has already been drawn up by the executive committee of the club will be put up for discussion and approval.

The club members will also vote on a proposition for regular future meetings. Wallace Fowler, head of the organization, urges all students interested in the club to attend the meeting.

Newman Is Elected President Of College Rifle, Pistol Club

Meeting for the purpose of electing officers for the Spring term, the S.F.J.C. Rifle and Pistol Club held forth last Wednesday, February 19, in the Galileo Cafeteria at 1:30 p.m.

Club balloting elected A. W. Newman, president; John M. Stewart, vice-president; B. K. Schwarz, treasurer, and Ethel Jones as secretary. The Board of Control's officers were C. M. Hartnett and A. B. Kuperstein.

When approached as to the future plans of the club, Newman, the newly elected president, said:

"During the coming semester our club plans to sponsor a Junior College Assembly on "Traffic Safety." Chief of Police Quinn will be the main speaker, and during the course of the assembly, members of the Police Department will demonstrate the Yawara system of defense which enables them to handle the hardest criminals with ease."

At the meeting it was decided that inasmuch as the cafeteria is generally noisy, future gatherings will be held in Galileo's Room 203. The next assembly will take place on Friday, March 6, at 1:30 o'clock.

Mark Hopkins Will Feature College Night

Friday night is to be College Night at the Hotel Mark Hopkins, with the San Mateo and San Francisco junior colleges joining together to have a social affair after the basketball game at Kezar Stadium.

Griff Williams and his Hotel Mark Hopkins orchestra will introduce three new songs from the Paramount picture, "Palm Springs," as a feature of College Night. These songs, "I Don't Want to Make History, I Want to Make Love," "Old Palm Springs," and "Hills of Old Wyoming," will be heard on the West Coast for the first time. Williams also has several new hit song arrangements which his soloists, Kay Griffith, Buddy Morino, and Monty Kelly will feature during the evening.

As an added attraction for this big event, Williams is presenting Joe Brigandi and his home-made musical instrument, the Hoseola (garden equipment!). Mr. Brigandi has previously introduced other musical instruments of equal resourcefulness, to mention one specifically—the Noseola!

By arrangement with the Hotel Mark Hopkins, the junior colleges have been able to obtain special rates for the evening.

COMMISSION IS TO BE PRESENTED FOR ADS

In the future, all advertising solicitors for The Guardsman will receive a 25 per cent commission on contract advertising, according to Lloyd D. Luckmann, business advisor. This offer is open to everyone except those enrolled in college advertising courses.

While the paper is comfortably financed through a budget appropriation, there is a portion of ad space still for sale, Luckmann pointed out. Editorial and business heads have reached the conclusion that The Guardsman should carry at least $30 of advertising space in each issue. Space will be for sale until this quota is reached.

Persons interested in securing contracts and the commission should first report to Luckmann in Room 303, Galileo, for definite information.

CHANGE IN PLAN OF NEW COLLEGE MADE BY BOARD

Auditorium and Cafe Are Additional Buildings

FUNDS AVAILABLE

Construction Starts Immediately After Legal Transfer

Slight revisions of the plans for the new college buildings, as outlined in last week's Guardsman, have been made, according to reports from the office of the Secretary of the Board of Education.

In the drawing on page one of the February 19 edition of The Guardsman, the building marked for the library is to become that of the auditorium, according to the revised plans.

SIX TO GROUP

The structure marked as the science building has been changed to become a cafeteria, with the science one to be the long, unnamed one at the top right on the inverted L.

It is planned to construct the library to the left of the cafeteria, and parallel to the auditorium.

The academic buildings will be built in the form of quadrangles, with six forming each group. Two groups are planned, one as indicated in the published ground plans last week, and the other, to be constructed as necessity demands, at the top of the inverted L, behind the science building.

TRANSFER REQUIRED

The buildings of these quadrangles will be long, with a corridor running down the center, according to plans, and each group is expected to house 2,000 students.

Sufficient funds to commence work are already available, according to word from the board, but if additional money is needed, it will be possible to get it under the new budget.

Construction of the first of the buildings will begin immediately after the property, part of Balboa Park in the Ingleside District, has been legally transferred from the Park Department, the board has announced.

Philosophy Club Is To Meet Next Wed.

At the first meeting this semester of the Philosophy Club, 20 members gathered at the home of Nairn Borup, 1944 Webster Street, last Wednesday, February 19.

A paper read by Louis Wax on "Theories of Value" was the subject of spontaneous critical discussion.

The next meeting will be held on March 4 at the home of Jacque de la Montanya, president of the club, at 2964 Jackson Street. He will read a paper entitled, "My Concept of the Ultimate."

Series Will Begin 'Feud' Between Two Colleges In Sports

Games Will Install Bulldogs as Traditional Rivals; MacFadden's Men Are Improved Outfit, So Outcome Is a Toss-up

By LOUIE BERTOLUCCI

Marking their last home appearance of the current season, the San Francisco Junior College quintet will play host to the Bulldogs of San Mateo J.C. Friday and Saturday at Kezar. The Ram 145's meet the "Blinkers" in a preliminary, with the varsity tilt going on the boards at 8 p.m.

Besides being an important series in the Northern California Junior College Conference, the engagement is the beginning of what is sure to become one of the most heated traditional rivalries on the Pacific Coast. What Stanford is to California, what Santa Clara is to St. Mary's—that's what San Mateo is to San Francisco.

The Bulldogs, with two veterans of last year's championship squad in the lineup, are formidable opponents. If the Rams can successfully dispose of them, they can be assured of at least a tie for the championship.

Murlus MacFadden's peninsula outfit boasts wins over Modesto and Marin, and at present holds down third place in the conference standings. If the Bulldogs win two, they have a chance to tie for the championship and knock the Rams out of the top position.

MacFadden pins his hopes on Henry Kotta, diminutive forward and captain of the San Mateans, and Al Johnson. Kotta will be remembered as the boy who won all-city honors while playing for Galileo High School three years ago. Johnson is rated as one of the best guards in the conference. It will be interesting to see how he compares with the Rams' own Captain Ralph Hillsman.

Benduch, former Sequoia athlete, will start at the other forward position for the Bulldogs, with Kuhn at center and Don Haney at guard.

Another reason why a fierce battle

Captain Ralph Hillsman is out for blood against his former San Mateo teammates this week. Hillsman is being touted as an all-conference guard and Coach Dutch Conlan will start him at the left guard position.

Household Arts Group Plans on Affair Soon

The Household Arts Association, at its meeting last Friday, made plans for a combination card party and fashion show to be held at Borden's Creamery some time in the near future.

The plans include card playing and other games and a fashion show, which will be either modern or old-fashioned, depending on later plans. Following the show, refreshments will be served.

Five Are Approved By Skull and Blade

Five prominent members of the San Francisco Junior College student body were approved as members of the Skull and Blade, men's honorary service society, at a meeting held last week. The new Skulls are Maury Schwarz, Ed Ferdiani, Henry Kearny, Pete Jambruno and Joe Kissel.

President Ray Brunn announced that the newcomers will not become active members of the organization until they have been properly welcomed. Brunn appointed Paul Green and Bob Rhode as an initiation committee, besides naming a social committee composed of Jim Fahn, Jack Welch, and Ed Talavera.

The group agreed to consider the presentation of a gavel to the outgoing Associated Students president each semester. A rally before the student body and plans for a club entertainment were also discussed.

BUDGET ACCEPTANCE IS HIGH LIGHT OF COMMITTEE MEETING

The budget of $9,110,000 was balanced, read, and accepted by the Student Executive Council at the regular meeting last week.

No definite date has yet been set for the presentation of the constitution to the students. The financial section will remain much the same as it was printed in The Guardsman, although a few changes may be made by Ward Nichols.

An invitation from San Mateo Junior College to sponsor a joint dance at the Hotel Mark Hopkins on February 28 was accepted by the council.

It was decided that the Social Committee of the college, which now exceeds 30 members, and which was originally to have not more than 25, is to be cut down.

Sweaters and blocks for the college yell leaders will be paid for from the student treasury, according to the minutes of the meeting.

Vice-Pres. Considers Sports Sign-Ups Of W.A.A. Successful

The W.A.A. sport signups, which ended February 21, were a tremendous success, according to Ruth Johnson, vice-president of the organization. One of the most interesting activities, and one which proved to be among the most popular, is "Outing." This sport will be held week-ends, probably Saturday afternoons, and will consist of various picnics and skating and swimming parties.

Other popular activities were archery, dancing, tennis, and basketball.

A new awards system is being considered by the W.A.A. council. Under this plan, to be eligible for an award, the applicant must:

1. Go out for at least two sports a semester for one year.
2. Make one first team a semester.
3. Be of some service to W.A.A.
4. Have good attendance.

In addition, all W.A.A. officers will receive 100 points toward their awards, managers 50, captains 25, and committee members 10. Members of first teams will receive 20 points, second team players 15, and squad members 10.

IN THE NEUTRAL CORNER

H. Capps was the cause of a bit of comment about college with his little tirade that appeared in the February 12 edition of The Guardsman, and which was directed against the local bookstore.

Those who think that the store was done an injustice are asked to remember that The Guardsman is, after all, the students' newspaper, and has pledged itself to publish any complaint that is decent and free from malicious intent, under the caption of "The Ram's Horn."

Those who agree with H. Capps should remember the editorial that appeared in the January 27 issue of The Guardsman, under the heading of "Use of Ears Lessens Tongue's," in which it was recommended that anyone having a complaint first carry the grievance to its perpetrator for explanation.

If no explanation be forthcoming, or if the one given seems unsatisfactory, then is the time for further complaint and action, if the complainant still believes it justified.

The Guardsman itself remains neutral on all such questions until a complete investigation has been made, after which action is taken or not, as the case warrants.

DO YOUR XMAS SHOPPING EARLY

Does it seem just a trifle premature, or else a few months late, to start campaigning for Christmas shopping? It would seem even more out of place on the Fourth of July, wouldn't it?

Do you sometimes become amused or annoyed upon seeing billboards and fence posters advocating the election of some mayoral candidate or aspirant to the city council, for a ballot that has long since taken place?

Those things are no more incongruous than the many, many weeks old notices posted on the Extension Building bulletin board. Naive little Miss Bewildered hits the nail fairly and squarely in her just and plaintive comment in the Ram's Horn this week. Read it, and it will become obvious that further editorial comment is unnecessary.

Would it be asking too much to suggest that those posting notices see that they are removed within a reasonable time after they have served their purpose?

After all, Miss Bewildered must find her pencil before she succumbs to nightmares of skulls, rifles, and horses.

ROMEO, MOVE ON!

Keep to the left, please! Enter by the lower door, please! Becoming rather familiar words, these.

No one resents following the advice of these admonitions—students, especially, when they see that the edict applies to faculty members as well as to themselves at the Extension Building.

This system of handling traffic has alleviated the crowded conditions considerably. Whoever is responsible for inaugurating the method is to be commended highly.

To cooperate fully in the desire to move traffic through the narrow passageways, it is recommended that all confine their seemingly necessary tete-a-tetes to the uncrowded corners, instead of stopping in the middle of the hall, or half-way up the stairway.

Wouldn't it be better, anyway, campus Romeos, to get in your endearing words in an atmosphere more secluded?

NOTHING TO KICK ABOUT!

The proverbial editor sits back in his swivel chair, planks his heels firmly on his desk, lights an aromatic cigar, and proceeds to think of something which he can attack with fiery words.

The idea found, he rolls up his sleeves, lets the cigar go out so the smoke won't get in his eyes, and furiously attacks his typewriter.

That is very fine, but perhaps this editor is getting out of touch with college affairs. Right now, he can think of nothing about which it would be worth while to complain with sizzling pen. Oh, of course there are the old stand-bys—lack of spirit, lack of interest, safety, nationalism, and politics—but most students really do not care very much.

A good, furious campaign would be lots of fun. But for what shall we campaign now, in addition to those matters with which we have already dealt?

Does it matter much, though, one way or another? Here today, gone tomorrow—what's the odds?

"The fool and the drunkard may trod o'er his grave,
And though his cold ashes upbraid him,
Little he'll reck' if they let him sleep on
In the grave where Britain has lain him."
(I forgot the author.)

NICE PRIVILEGE—LET'S KEEP IT!

Dealing with us under the assumption that we are students of college calibre, most members of the faculty have been rather lenient with the matter of class attendance.

In many junior colleges, rules much more stringent are enforced than those at this institution.

Let us not, however, abuse the privilege. There are times when it is found almost necessary to "cut" a class. There are many times, however, when we fail to attend merely because we do not happen to feel in the mood.

It would be well to overcome this tendency, reserving cuts for those times of necessity.

Among the causes of men's failing to attend classes regularly are women. Ladies, be considerate, and do not tempt the men!

Men, exercise your manly will-power. If she simply can't wait another fifty-five minutes, just remember that women are like street cars—there will always be another one along in a few minutes!

THE RAM'S HORN

Student Opinion Can't Find Pencil Because Of Signs

Dear Editor:

Have you ever tried reading the bulletin board on the mezzanine at 540 Powell when you're in a hurry? It can't be done. Before you have segregated the old announcements from the new ones, you are sure to be five minutes late for class. Why can't a system be set up so that week-old notices may be posted to one side, and more recent ones placed in a separate section? After I find out that the Skull and Blade had a meeting some time last week (incidentally, that big red skull gives me nightmares) and that the Soccer Club is still asking students to sign up, and that the Photography Club notice is just occupying space (the print on that poster is very well done, though)—at any rate, after I've waded through these, it is just a matter of plain luck that I find the lost and found notice to see if my pencil has been returned.

Next, I make a survey for any important announcements, and there right in front of me is a notice about hot lunches: Can I help it if I get to class with that lean, hungry look? As a last episode to this bulletin board search, I dash up the stairs (already two and one-half minutes late) with rifles, pistols, soccer balls, red skulls, and—I do wish somebody would find my pencil!—MISS BEWILDERED.

Note: See editorial comment, Miss Bewildered, and thanks for the idea.—Ed.

A Letter

Guardsman:

Is there another way that I can receive my copy of The Guardsman except by going to the ticket office at the Extension Building on Powell Street? Inasmuch as the students have to enter the building through the mezzanine floor, I have to be a football player to get through the mass of men and women waiting in line for the weekly issue. It sure is popular but I want to be sure of getting my copy.

X MARKS THE SPOT.

NOTE: Come around to Room 150 in the afternoon, if you can't brave the crowd. There is little crowd between classes, however.—Ed.

CURTAIN!

By Irvin Silberstein

This column regrets, because of a deadline, its inability to review Nazimova in Ghosts now at the Curran Theater, so it herewith presents notes from recognized authorities of the New York press.

"A terrific experience in the theater.... Worth going very far to see.... Nazimova played with a kind of lambent beauty to make you catch your breath.... Great—there does not seem to be any other word for it; Mme. Nazimova's playing is great playing."—Richard Lockridge, N. Y. Sun.

"A great actress.... Great is a word for sparing use, but there is no other way to characterize a transcendent performance ... superb ... masterly ... surrounded with players who have caught the fire of her own acting."—Brooks Atkinson, N. Y. Times.

"Twenty-eight curtain calls at the opening.... Crowds cheer her every night."—Walter Winchell.

"Ghosts is no longer a classic. It is a play—and a four-starred one at that."—Robert Garland, N. Y. World-Telegram.

"The best English production of Ghosts I have ever seen."—John Anderson, N. Y. Journal.

"Has more vitality than any play you can think of that is half its age."—Gilbert Gabriel, N. Y. American.

"Best production of Ghosts I ever saw. Mme. Nazimova is incomparably better than Duse in this particular role."—William Lyon Phelps.

Settings for Ghosts, written by Henrik Ibsen, were designed by Stewart Chaney, and the production was directed by Mme. Nazimova herself.

Children's Group In Third Repeat

By popular demand of the juvenile population of this city, Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs, produced by the Reginald Travers group under the auspices of the Children's Theatre Association of San Francisco, played its third successive and successful performance last Saturday afternoon. Pocahontas, Pinocchio and Jack, the Giant-Killer will follow, playing alternately on Saturday afternoons from February 29 to April 4, inclusive, at the High School of Commerce auditorium.

French students had an opportunity recently to hear and see a play entirely in French when Andre Ferrier produced Poil de Carrotte (Red Head) in his Little Theatre at 1470 Washington Street.

An editor who lost his job recently when he changed junior colleges was heard to remark: "I'm through with newspapers; I'm going to spend my time studying this semester!" All well and good, but he was in The Guardsman office the other day. Could he be thinking of joining our humble staff?

President, In Column, Seeks Rally Support; Says A.W.S. Inactive

By Maury Schwarz

The dance last Friday was a great success.... Congratulations to Mimi and her committee, and also to the student body for their cooperation.

* * *

Tomorrow—Frank Nihil, San Mateo's president, will be our guest at our pre-game "pep" rally. Let's give him a real welcome and show that S.F.J.C. "knows how." Be there! Friday we are presenting a rally at San Mateo.

* * *

Friday evening we are starting a future great tradition. Our first "big game" with San Mateo will take place at Kezar, Friday and Saturday evenings. Our yell leaders, after "yelling" (speaking both figuratively and literally) have finally received their new outfits. They will be out on the court leading yells. The more often they lead yells, the more chances they'll have to show off their new outfits—so get prepared for a yelling spree on those evenings.

If any organization wishes to sponsor an event, it will have to apply to the executive council for an open date.... Which reminds me ... two weeks ago I hinted rather strongly that the women were inactive. Frankly, I expected quite a reaction; however, I heard nothing from the women. This time I know I'm leading with my chin, but if these remarks create some life among them, we'll feel that we've succeeded in our cause.

The A.W.S. is one of the few organizations which has received any appropriations. It is also one of the few which hasn't as yet even announced any plans for activity. If they have any plans, let us know in advance; don't spring it on us suddenly and then expect us to back them. Lest they reserve a date immediately, they may find themselves without any and then complain about not being able to spend their $100.

Perhaps my remarks may be unjust, but if they are I'll gladly swallow them. If the A.W.S. wish to defend themselves, they are welcome to use this column. And, if we hear of any activity and a definite date from them, I'll take back all the "mean" things I've said.

After the game, February 28, we are invited to attend a joint J.C. Night at the Mark Hopkins, and we will get the benefit of the special rates. For reservations and special cover charge, please see me.

* * *

Going the Rounds

The Skull and Blade Society will be in charge of the doors at the rally and no one will be admitted while a number is on. The police department is putting on a self-defense act at the rally tomorrow through the efforts of Mr. Hughes and the Rifle Club.

WAYFARERS SLIPPING

By Donald Flash

As a supplement to the unique atmosphere of the tiny Civic Repertory Theatre, located on the second floor at 74 Commercial Street, the Wayfarers offered to their patrons, this month, the play entitled "Entr'acte," written by Lili Pollock and translated from the Hungarian by Lillian Spaulding.

"Entr'acte" is a simple bit of fast-paced comedy, the whole point of which seems hard to find. It concerns itself with a snappy bit of off-stage acting done by a temperamental actor and his wife. The plot consists of the wife's attempt to conceal an incident of her past life, which only succeeds in arousing more suspicion in her jealous husband; all of which gives cause for the storms of temperament that are loosed upon the audience.

Jack Thomas, as the actor husband, gives a smooth performance; and, though his attempt to be a comedian is not quite wholly successful, he hits some of the high spots of the evening's entertainment. Dale Frederick also handles her part well, and is to be commended for her work in Hamlet and Sister Beatrice, as well as in this play. She has proved herself to be a capable and dependable actress. Patricia Kelly, however, playing opposite Thomas, shows a tendency toward overacting; and, on the whole, does not measure up to the standard set by the other two.

The fact that this play is not a success is not due to an inefficiency on the part of the players, but to the choice of a play. This, as well as Sister Beatrice of last December, seems unworthy of the attention of this dramatic group.

The Wayfarers, evidently, have become assured of dependable and appreciative audiences, for they seem confident that no matter what is selected to try their talents upon, it will be met with approval. It is, however, the opinion of this reviewer that unless the standard of Wayfarian productions is brought back to its former level, such as that attained in Hamlet, the further choice of such plays will result in a serious loss of patronage.

An encouraging sign, however, is the announcement that their April production will be Henrik Ibsen's Hedda Gabler. This, we sincerely hope, will be a turn toward the dramatic achievements of which we know the Wayfarers, under the direction of Jack Thomas, are capable.

Paper Talk

In general the world of today expresses great fear for future generations. Politicians point out that the staggering public debt will fall upon the shoulders of those not yet born; economists say that our progeny will face a great social crisis; statisticians present charts to show that the world is rapidly exhausting its natural resources. So what! Let us forget the future, and turn our attention to a problem which confronts us today.

Don't look now, but an epidemic of long-leg-ivitis is here. Already hundreds of us are afflicted with this dreaded ailment.

It's like this: In between classes the majority of junior college students bide their time standing on the sidewalk of steep Powell Street. This is the first step toward long-leg-ivitis.

By standing with his back to the Extension Building, a person must necessarily hold most of his weight on his left foot and shorten his right leg in order to maintain a vertical position. Thus the left leg is continually extended while the right is just as continually flexed. Through repeated application of this stance, day in and day out, one leg naturally grows shorter than the other.

Take time out for a minute. Think it over. Already you can see how this phenomenon works. It's the same principle as when you are cooking a hamburger—if you cook hamburgers. If you continually fry one side, the lower half becomes burnt, while the upper is still raw. Just so with the lower extremities. If you have one foot at sea level and the other stretched out almost horizontally as a prop, one leg will grow and the other will shrink, in an inverse ratio. After several semesters of lop-sided standing, the results are noticeable and there's where the trouble comes in.

So don't wait any longer. Have your legs measured immediately, and if there is any difference, send us a letter stating your symptoms, accompanied with ten dollars to cover postage expenses. If you wait, it may be too late, and then you will be able to stand with one foot in the gutter and the other on the curb without bending your knee. If you don't want to have one foot in the gutter, you will have to wear a stilt on one leg to preserve your equilibrium.

However, if you are not yet in the third stage of this disease, you have no cause to be alarmed. You can even continue to stand sidewise on steep hills if you follow directions. The way to dodge this scourge is as follows: If you must stand on the hill, stand for five minutes with your back to the building, with your left foot extended. Then, when your time is up, turn around, facing the building, and your right foot will be extended. In this way your legs will shrink and stretch proportionately, and you have nothing to worry about. Of course, if someone sees you standing with your nose against the building, he might think you are being punished or something, but that is better than taking a chance on long-leg-ivitis.

This is the same system your mother used on you when you were a baby. She let you sleep four hours on your left side and then made you turn over on your right for awhile. This was done because your sconce was soft, and your mother wanted you to have a nice round head, instead of an egg-shaped one. Of course, mothers sometimes forget.

These directions need not be followed on rainy days, because nobody can stand up on Powell Street in the wet, anyway.

It Comes Out Here

It's kind of hard to get dirt with all this rain washing it off our faces.

Speaking of rain ... it certainly is tough on the energetic fellows that found their recreation playing ball in front of J.C. at Galileo.

Alma Bracken and Alice Lubeck are perpetually by each other's side.

Helen Scott is one good kid. She's the type that always has a smile and will do anything for a friend.

Did you know that Johnny Dissmeyer phoned a girl a few nights back, and asked her to go out on a Sunday night, down to the St. Francis, March 6, and a couple more dates? Ask Johnny what her answer was.

Recently revealed ... Phyllis Kaiser relishes the nickname "P.K.". San Mateans, it seems, are in the know.

To speak of quarrels, does a certain Ernie still hold a yen, or perhaps more than a mere yen, for that Cecilia Butler?

Most girls would be pleased to have a fellow from California "that way" about her, but it doesn't interest Edith Ginsburg at all.

Here is a very funny one: I overheard two girls talking about a certain J.C. student. They both thought he was "darling." The character turned out to be none other than Frank Johnson. How you slay them, Frank!

SAILING THROUGH THE NEWS

Two kinds of fire with which a government cannot play without getting burned are religion and the press. Hitler's Nazi government, while for long it has played with each individually, last week took upon itself the problem of juggling both together.

Disregarding the German concordat with the Vatican, in which freedom of papers published under the auspices of the Catholic Church was guaranteed, the Nazis abolished the independence of all church publications, either Protestant or Catholic.

The order was signed by Paul Joseph Goebbels, minister of "public enlightenment." More properly might he be called the minister of government propaganda, and the squelcher of public enlightenment.

Sight of the Job Was Too Much

Clutched in the icy grip of Winter, the nation has suffered a number of tragedies recently. In New York, two officials of the Department of Public Health went out on the streets to survey the snow situation, and promptly died of heart failure.

You draw your own conclusions as to the nebulous cause—and it probably wasn't directly due to the depth of the snow.

A Change Is Needed

The last few months have offered an interesting opportunity to notice, judging from streamers and top-head stories, what the local dailies consider the biggest story of an edition.

One day last week the Chronicle had, on its 6 a.m. edition, a streamer to the effect that 20,000 Africs were killed. The same edition of the Examiner played up the decision of the Supreme Court on the constitutionality of the TVA project. In a two-column top-head, however, it said that 13,000 Ethiopians were killed and wounded.

When news of an alleged epidemic of meningitis on the California school ship, S.S. California State, broke, it was labelled by the local sheets as a death ship, plague ship, disease ship, mystery ship, misery ship, and what-not.

Most newspapers, in what seems to be a contest to outdo each other in sensationalism, are losing sight of a fundamental principle of good newspaper practice—that of presenting the news accurately.

The greatest complaint is directed at the flare for sensational, but inaccurate and misleading, headlines. I look to see the time, in the not too distant future, when the local papers will drop back to a more sensible degree of conservatism, or else suffer an alarming cut in circulation and in public esteem. There is not much of the latter left, anyway, though.

FASHION FLASHES

By FEM

To say that fashions from Paris are "off to a flying start" would not only be making a very bad pun, but would be making a true statement. Among the "air-minded" fashions are airplane silk blouses, balloon sleeves, propeller hat trimmings, stratosphere colors, and the parachute silhouette. In the parachute silhouette the skirts have a soft fullness, flaring around the bottom, often assisted by gores and godets. Some afternoon skirts have a flaring line around the knees, drawn slightly at the hem. If this keeps up, we girls shall have a hard time keeping our feet on the ground!

Other recent showings in Paris revealed that taffeta is tops for evening wear. Fabrics are both printed and plain with many colorful plaids being worn. Much emphasis is put on front decorations and the halter neckline, with voluminous front trimmings in the form of loops or puffs of self-material among the highlights of the evening collections.

A recent report from New York stated that the Gibson girl is back among us. It seems that there has been a wistful hint of the gay nineties in fashion for some time, but this Spring it bursts forth in full bloom. The Merry Widow sailor, which used to adorn the pompadour of the Gibson girl, is in the Spring parade in shiny patent leather, with only the hatpin missing. The suit that was so popular with the belles of the nineties also makes its appearance in the 1936 lineup, complete with padded shoulders, hip-length boxy jacket, and gored skirt.

Further carrying out the "gay nineties" theme is the fob watch which dangles by a narrow leather strap from the left lapel of the smarter tailored suits, and nestles in the breast pocket. These watches are said to be comparatively inexpensive, and are good timekeepers.

RAMBLINGS

By TONY SCAFANI

Do YOU realize that YOUR basketball team is in the running for the conference title?

The Rams will probably win, but, even if they don't, they have done plenty for their first season of play in the jaysee league.

Yet most of YOU Associated Student members seem oblivious of the fact that San Francisco HAS a good team and a potential pennant winner.

Out of a 1,600 enrollment, only a few paltry hundred were in attendance at the Santa Rosa series last week.

This week YOUR varsity clashes with San Mateo at Kezar Pavilion, 8 o'clock. Will YOU be there?

If YOUR team wins both tilts, S.F. is virtually assured of the title. FREE ADMISSION with A.S. CARDS!

Saturday's Game Too Close

Another basketball game like last Saturday night's contest against Santa Rosa and this correspondent will go crazy.

What a finish! Ram supporters were deep in the blues when the Santa Rosans eased into that never-to-be-forgotten 25-24 lead with 30 seconds to go. A toast, everybody, to "Eagle Eye" Guido Nicco, whose field goal with 25 seconds to go won the ball game for the Rams! You who weren't there missed out on a great performance.

Our vote as to the best conference opponent so far goes to Copsey, the husky Santa Rosa forward. That guy is a complete team in himself.

Jupiter Pluvius has put the damper on most spring sports around here. Baseball, track, golf, tennis, crew and intramurals have been at a standstill all week because of the rain.

Squad Averages 38 Points Per Game

The San Francisco cagers are doing all right for themselves, judging from the record of their past performance, emerging victorious in 16 basketball engagements and being short in the point totals four times.

Of these victories, eight are conference tussles and eight non-conference tilts. Two losses have been sustained in the conference, one each from Marin and Sacramento, while San Francisco State and U.S.F. frosh have each beaten the Rams once. The locals have won from State and U.S.F. in other games, however.

In 20 games the Rams have garnered 761 points, an average of 38 points per game. Meanwhile, the opponents have amassed 579 points for an average of 28.9 points per engagement.

Conference competition so far has yielded 352 digits to the jaysee sharpshooters, an average of 35.2 for each contest. Conference opponents have obtained 281 digits to average 28.1 per game. And that's not bad!

Don't forget to be at Kezar Pavilion Friday and Saturday nights.

What's doing? Well, the Battle of the Century will be held as a preliminary to the varsity series against San Mateo J.C.

In these preliminaries, which will start at 7 p.m., Kremesec's "Blinkcan be expected is the fact that several of the San Francisco players have attended San Mateo in the past. Hillsman played on the Bulldog championship squad last year, while Guido Nicco, Carlyle Caine and Len Leahy have also transferred from the peninsula college.

The Rams will have to win both games to stay in the race. If they lose both, they will be third in the standings, and if they split the series, Sacramento will probably take the league lead singly. Realizing this, Coach Dutch Conlan will start his strongest combination.

Carlyle Caine, one of Conlan's most consistent players, will probably get one forward assignment, with "Red" Lowans at the other. Lanky Bill Glynn at center and Hillsman and Monty Mordecai at guards will complete the lineup. Nicco, Ernie Loustalot and Paul Rippon will be sitting next to Conlan ready to enter the fray at any moment. This trio will probably see action in the series.

Although the Rams should be favorites by past performances, the Bulldogs have improved over their early-season form, and besides possess a psychological determination that prevents any pre-game predictions.

ers" tangle with the Ram 145-pound cagers.

Both teams are on edge for the tussles and a hard fight is guaranteed. The 45's will probably start Hallet and Hubbard, forwards; Kennedy, center; and O'Neill and Coss, guards. Coach Tom Wilson will direct the attack from the bench.

"Coach" Kremesec intends to string along with Benny McGuire and Bob Fex, forwards; Larry Wilgus, center; and George McGuire and Larry Favor, guards.

A big hand to Carlyle Caine and Ernie Loustalot, forwards on the Ram basketball varsity.

Although he was ineligible during the first two games at Marin, Caine has been the most consistent player so far this season. Carlyle has worked himself up from the second string to a regular forward berth and his brilliant shooting and floor play should continue to keep him there.

Loustalot, on the other hand, has been more of an "ace in the hole" for Dutch Conlan. He has delivered the goods at crucial moments in several games and Conlan is always ready to shove Ernie into the game as a steadying influence. A good floor player, Loustalot knows just what to do when the team can't figure out the opponent's attack. Although probably the smallest player in the junior college conference, Ernie can take care of himself when the going gets tough.

The word "alibi" is commonly misused to mean any kind of an excuse, whereas the dictionary defines it as meaning the plea of having been elsewhere when the alleged act was committed.

Soccer Team Works Out As Regular Class

With hopes of presenting a strong soccer eleven in conference circles next fall, practice for a soccer team will be conducted as a physical education class, it was announced by the Physical Education Department last week. The class will meet on Tuesdays and Thursdays at 4:30 p.m.

More than twenty soccer enthusiasts have already signed up in the period, and the team looks forward to a good season. Work this term will include matches with club teams in preparation for intercollege tilts.

Last season the soccer squad had a fairly successful record, despite lack of support by the college. Tom Bass, mathematics instructor, donated his services as coach, being assisted by Joe Amori.

Some of last year's veterans who have announced their intention of joining the squad are Lambie, Leed, Wenburg, Taylor, Faha, Zegura, and Conway.

Bob Nelson, Mull, Zuardo, Ota, Geffen, Oberlians, O'Grady, and Smith are others who will participate.

Golf Team Tough Proposition, Say Conlan and Welch

Whether or not San Francisco Junior College will be well represented on the fairway this semester is a moot question today. Because of the curtailment in the budget appropriation for the golf team, matches will be hard to arrange, according to Jack Welch, golf manager.

Welch and Dutch Conlan are attempting to discover the golf talent of the college, but are finding it a difficult proposition. "Inasmuch as the Rams will be hosts to junior college conference golfers at Stanford early in May, it is imperative that we select the best players available for the college team," Welch said, "but it looks like golfers will have to provide their own means until the tournament is played."

Browsing Is Fact Source

By DEMING SMITH

According to various writers, the art of browsing is fast becoming extinct. Due to the heading of this column, some might get the impression that this is an attempt to revive the aforesaid art; however, such an attempt would undoubtedly prove futile. The purpose of this column is to put forth facts clearly and interestingly for the benefit of the readers, not only in school sports but also in out-of-school activities.

Physical exercise has long been recommended for the development of the mind and body. Therefore, it is advantageous for the student to participate in one or more of the sports offered to him through the excellent intramural sports program now in progress. This program, which is handled by the gym department, offers competition in every sport possible, and no one need complain for the lack of opportunity to improve his health. Remember, health makes wealth, and opportunity knocks but once.

The junior college is fast becoming the training ground for university athletics, and many of the present stars are former J.C. students. Smiles will wreathe the countenances of the coaches that acquire the athletes now playing on the Ram varsity. Many of these players will long be remembered by the followers of the sports world, and the San Francisco Junior College will justly be proud of calling them its own.

With boats already obtained and oars due in the next few days, the crew men are at last beginning to get under way. The delays were unavoidable, and the patience of the crew men has been severely tested. However, they soon will be rowing over the various sections of the bay, and from the looks of the present material will no doubt give a good account of themselves in their future races. Aside from the material obtained from San Mateo's last championship crew, there is a large and prospective array of talent. Prominent among the candidates are Bill Moll, Casanova of last year's wrestling matches, Ed Craig, San Francisco's premier delivery boy, Budge Brookman, 6 foot 4 midget of quintuplet fame, and Bert Gross, former Lowell athlete, and member of last year's football squad.

Let's see more attendance at the basketball games. We have a great team, and they deserve your whole-hearted support.

Tennis Tryouts Are Open To All Players

All men students interested in entering the San Francisco Junior College tennis singles and doubles tournament for the college championship

Announcement of a faculty men's tennis tournament was made by Coach Tom Wilson yesterday.

Wilson states that a handsome trophy has been selected for the winner and urges that all faculty members participate. Those who wish to compete must sign up with Wilson before March 5.

The faculty tournament will be conducted in conjunction with the student matches, with the possibility of a play-off between the winners for the all-college tournament.

must sign up at the physical education department or hand in their intentions to Tom Wilson before Friday, according to a bulletin issued by Wilson last week.

Winning players will be seeded for places on the college net team, Wilson said.

The following rules will be enforced:

1. Each player must make mutual arrangements with his opponent for the furnishing of balls for individual matches.

2. All round matches must be played off as indicated on the tennis chart, on the assigned date. This rule will be rigidly enforced.

Both the singles and the doubles champions will be awarded trophies, which will go to the individual players, rather than to the college.

"In this manner the junior college will know its best men in each division," Wilson said, "and everyone will have a chance to show his worth."

RUMOR THAT EISAN RAN INTERFERENCE FOR RIEGELS FALSE

Dutch Conlan is not the only member of the coaching staff who is a local product. Lee Eisan, baseball mentor, belongs to the same category.

Eisan, a graduate of Polytechnic in 1923, did not immediately attend college, but went to work for two years. During this time, however, he played football for the Olympic Club. He was a member of the Winged O eleven which handed the California Bear its first defeat in six years, during the old "wonder team" days.

Eisan entered the University of California in 1926, and played varsity football for three years. Lee was quarterback on the California team in 1928, when the Bears played Georgia. Sports fans will remember that that was the game in which Roy Riegels pulled his famous 80-yard run, BACKWARDS. Rumors have it that Eisan led interference for Riegels on his famous blunder, but Lee says he can prove that he was on the bench at the time of the mistake.

His first coaching experience was at La Verne College, in 1930. Eisan also handled American Legion baseball teams before joining the S.F.J.C. faculty.

Athlete's Utterings

Epigrams, proverbs and quotations are very popular; to these we add two phrases that were quoted by a lad on the football team; and are still popular:

"When are we back comin'."
"Where ya was."

And while on the subject, immortal are the words uttered by the lad who said: "Wimpy's bed must look like a canoe."

Dots and Jots—We wondered why the two indoor track meets were so far apart, and after hearing how many times the boys in the two-mile went around the oval, we realize it will take that time for them to unwind.—Lee Eisan says he isn't going to tell any more tales of his college days, and we think that will cause a boycott on the class.—(No, Brickley, we don't mean a child's bed.)—Add similes—"About as much ase as a melted ice cube."—Isn't that cube?—(we have a cold id da bed.)

They say—"If Adolph played the piano by ear he would be America's foremost pianist."—"If they build the school on the old prison site, all the boys will be hanging around the bars, as it were."—"A horse may be driven to water but a pencil must be lead."

Cinder Stars Run In Rain To Hear Music

Out in the rain all week, San Francisco track enthusiasts did not allow their spirits to become dampened, although the spirits were the only things that didn't get wet. Attempting to attain mid-season form in the slush has inspired Russ Sweet's men to new heights.

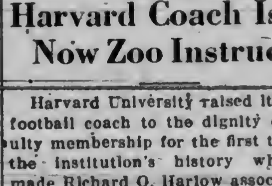
Mr. "Whizzer" Warren, better known as the "Hollister Holocaust," has been lamenting the lack of publicity for track and the possibility that folks may forget his specialty, the 440-yard dash. So, using the theme song, "Running Between the Rain Drops" (amplifying system, records and phonograph loaned through courtesy of Coach Russ Sweet, known as the "Custer County Kid"), we find Warren sloshing, diligently and enthusiastically around the track, until the rain got so bad he felt all washed up—how's that, Mr. Warren?

Mr. Sweet then changed the record to "Stormy Weather," and Jim Fahn went out to romp, but tripped over the sentence, "Can't pull my poor self together" and called it quits after pulling himself out of an ultra puddle.

Still hopeful, Sweet waited while George Dunne attempted a broad jump. Dunne declared a vacation when he landed knee-deep in the sloppy terra firma and had to be lifted out by the armpits.

Not to be outdone, Ed Scott and Pete Jublonsky tossed the discus and shot put, but the rain came down with such force that they lost sight of the missiles.

Some of the other boys tried practicing, but, becoming peeved at the "Los Angeles" weather, they all retired to the dressing room and harmonized a medley of "It ain't gonna rain no more, no more" and "That's what you think."



However, with better weather predictions for this week, and the spike stars literally champing at the bit for want of exercise, Sweet will give everybody a workout in hopes of building up a championship squad.

MEN'S CLUB MAKING ARRANGEMENTS FOR MORE BOXING BOUTS

Planning to continue its sponsorship of college boxing and wrestling shows, the Men's Club of the San Francisco Junior College is making arrangements for a tournament to be held early in March, according to Joe Amori, faculty advisor to the group.

The March event will take place at Larkin Hall if current plans are successful.

Amori states that he has a long list of talent already signed up for the affair, which will be presented free of charge to holders of A.S. cards.

Several of last semester's champions will compete, including Jack Brigham, heavyweight, "Killer" Kremesec, 175 pounds, and Jimmy Fahn, 118-pound winner.

Harvard Coach Is Now Zoo Instructor

Harvard University raised its head football coach to the dignity of faculty membership for the first time in the institution's history when it made Richard O. Harlow associate in zoology.

Harlow is a nationally known ornithologist (bird expert) and possessor of one of the largest private collections of birds' nests and eggs in the world.

COLLEGE MEN "COOKIE EATERS"

According to Edward P. "Slip" Madigan, head coach of St. Mary's, "college men are becoming nothing more than 'cookie eaters'. They are losing their masculinity more each year, and the only thing that will help them is to go out for athletics."

HITCH-HIKERS' FRIEND

With objectors shouting: "What would our college boys do?" the South Carolina House of Representatives voted down a bill which would outlaw hitch-hiking.

HAYSEEDS BEST

Boys from the farm with "hayseeds" in their hair make the best long-distance runners, says Brutus Hamilton, University of California track coach.

LAST MINUTE FIELD GOAL BY NICCO GIVES CAGERS WIN OVER SANTA ROSANS

"Red" Lowans Gets 15 Points in Contest on Friday; Mordecai's Headwork Gives Locals Unexpected Bucket

A last-minute field goal by Guido Nicco, substitute guard, gave Coach Dutch Conlan's San Francisco cagers a double win over Santa Rosa J.C. and a tie for first place in conference standing, Saturday, at Kezar Pavilion. Final score was 26-25. San Francisco won the first game of the series, on Friday, in easy style with a 36-25 score.

Heralded as a quintet of championship calibre, the Cubs were disappointing in Friday's contest, being outplayed consistently by the Rams. "Red" Lowans, mainstay of the San Francisco forwards, accounted for 15 points to steal the show from the visitors.

COPSEY FLASHY

The Rams led all the way Friday, having a 21-13 advantage at the half, but stellar work by Blondy Copsey, big Santa Rosa center, made the contest fast throughout. Copsey collected 14 points and was the best man the Cubs had on the floor.

In the second half of the game Lowans and Bill Glynn did all of the San Francisco scoring, Lowans gathering nine and Glynn six points.

Mulgrew, highly touted Cub forward, was unable to get a point because of the careful guarding of the Ram guards.

SECOND GAME GOOD

The second contest was a nip-and-tuck affair throughout. San Francisco started out strong and buckets by Ernie Loustalot put the Rams out in front by an 11-5 count. However, Santa Rosa closed strong, showing an improved offense, and Murphy knotted the score with a field goal late in the period. The Cubs were ahead 15-13 at the half.

Conlan started Guido Nicco in his second half lineup, and it was this strategy that beat the Santa Rosans. Right after the tipoff, Nicco broke through to tie the score at 15-15.

The height combination of Mordecai and Glynn kept the visitors from collecting points and the crowd settled back expecting an easy win with the Rams leading 24-21 in the last two minutes of play.

FREE THROWS COUNT

However, the Cubs cashed in on three successive free throws to give themselves the lead, 25-24, and the crowd was on its feet from then until the final whistle. The Rams were shooting desperately with only seconds to go, and finally Nicco cooly flipped in a long one to give San Francisco a 26-25 advantage.

Free throws nearly lost the game for the locals. They made good on only two out of six attempts, while the Cubs counted nine out of 11 foul shots.

Heads-up playing by Monty Mordecai was as much responsible for the Ram victory as was Nicco's timely long shot. Early in the second half, Mulgrew fouled Lowans, who received one free throw. Lowans' attempt rolled off the basket, and, while both Santa Rosa and San Francisco players stood flat-footed, apparently expecting another free throw, Mordecai put the ball into the hoop unmolested.

Murphy and Mulgrew tied for high-point honors with nine markers apiece, while Nicco and Loustalot each collected seven digits for the Rams. Loustalot did all his scoring in the first half and Nicco did his in the second.

The best floor game on both nights was turned in by little Carlyle Caine, who darted all over the court to trouble the Santa Rosans. Caine stole the ball from the Cub players when they held it too long and had them guessing on his pass work.

Antlers Ask J.C. Men to Join Them In Rally Tonight

The San Francisco Antlers' Club is presenting a baseball rally tonight in the lodge room of the Elks Club, 456 Post Street, according to a notice received yesterday.

The rally will be held in honor of Walter Mails, prominent southpaw pitcher, now connected with the San Francisco Seals in the capacity of publicity director. The program features talks by noted sportsmen connected with baseball, and other entertainment.

The Antlers send a cordial invitation to all men students of the college, free of charge.

Wilson's 145's Win Two Tilts

Augmented by a large number of freshman stars, Coach Tom Wilson's 145-pound basketball quintet took the measure of the Horseshoe Tavern five in two preliminaries to the varsity series last week at Kezar. The lightweights won with a 35-18 score on Friday and came out on the long end of a 20-to-12 count on Saturday.

Both teams got off to a slow start in Friday's encounter, but Bill Kennedy started the scoring for the jaysee squad with two free throws. The Horseshoe team was unable to score until 14 minutes of the game had elapsed.

BILL KENNEDY STARS

Kennedy was the outstanding man on the floor, playing a good defensive and passing game, besides accounting for six markers. Hubbard and Coss tied for high-point honors with seven digits.

The Horseshoe team provided very poor competition for the locals, who had matters all their own way in both games. As a result, Wilson was able to try out his reserve strength and used 13 men in the first game.

Jack Hubbard, perennial high-scorer for the lightweights, accounted for 11 of his team's 20 points in Saturday's game to take scoreboard honors.

MEET BLINKERS

Wilson's squad are confident of another double win this Friday and Saturday, when they tangle with the highly touted "Blinkers" at Kezar. Kremesec's "Blinker" outfit, however, looms a slight favorite.

NYA Workers Help On CCC Projects At Local Presidio

Working in conjunction with Mr. Joseph W. Burk of the 9th corps area, a number of NYA workers from the junior college is now employed in the stenographic department of CCC at the Presidio, according to Miss Edith Pence, NYA director.

The work includes the making of educational books for class work in CCC camps. These books are used in conservation camps throughout the state, Miss Pence said.

Many of those employed at the Presidio are students who have extra hours of work to complete in order to bring the works appropriation quota to its monthly average.

Concerning NYA workers in general, Miss Pence said that it is imperative for these people to maintain a high standard in mid-term examinations. Any NYA worker who does not have a satisfactory scholarship rating will be dropped from the pay roll and another student appointed to his place.

Tuberculosis Tests Will Be Made Here

Students interested in taking the skin test for tuberculosis may make application for the examination at the college within a week or so, according to Dr. Alice Potter, women's consultant of the San Francisco Junior College.

To fill out this blank, a signed agreement from the student's parents is necessary.

"This test is rather important," says Dr. Potter, "as any tendency toward tuberculosis becomes evident. If, during the course of one's childhood, contamination of this sort has been contracted, the skin test will be a rather good analysis. If tuberculosis is found, a further examination under X-ray will be granted by the school clinic of the Board of Education."

Chess Club Gets Plans Under Way

Activities of the Junior College Chess Club have been inaugurated and are now well under way, according to Edward Eklund, newly elected president.

Other new officers for the term are Mabel Head, vice-president, and Elden Waller, secretary-treasurer.

The club recently held a beach party and a hike, besides numerous meetings and a tournament with the Chess Club of Galileo High School which resulted in a tie score of two up.

Eklund said, "The club welcomes new members and players, and anyone desiring to join should see a member or Henry Ralston, faculty advisor."

Art Courses Organized In Emergency Program

Twenty-five new classes in art, both professional and avocational, are being organized in an emergency education program sponsored by the San Francisco school department and the State Department of Education.

Both day and evening classes are being held, with units in color, design, commercial art, life drawing, sculptures and etching.

The classes are open to the public without cost. Information as to the location and times may be obtained from the program office, 750 Eddy Street.

L. A. J. C. Wants Library Opened On Sunday, Exchange Reveals

Students at Los Angeles Junior College are trying to make arrangements to have the college library open for a few hours on Sunday so those who are working their way through school will have a chance to do necessary research work.

Preparations are being made at Santa Rosa J.C. for a book called "First the Blade," which will feature poetry written by college students. Entries will be accepted from all junior colleges. Harrison Smith, student editor of the book, says: "We want this anthology to be truly representative of the college student's verse, so our selections should be made from a great deal more material than we could possibly use. The deadline for all entries is Monday, March 2."

Pi Mu Gamma Head Plans Resignation

Art Robinson, president of the Pi Mu Gamma Society, announced his intention of resigning his position at a meeting of the club last week.

Robinson offered no explanation of his action, saying that his reasons were purely "personal." His resignation has not been officially accepted, as he did not submit it in writing. Frank Cirelli, vice-president, has temporarily taken charge.

Due to this change, members of the society have decided to elect a woman as vice-president.

At the meeting it was also announced that the field trip to Mare Island Naval Hospital has been postponed until a later date.

Appropriation Asked For Aeronautics in College

Air-minded students who would be interested in taking courses in aviation but have not the facilities or perhaps sufficient funds, may be interested to learn that Congress was asked to set aside $30,000 to carry into the schools of America instruction in the fundamentals of aeronautics.

It was urged to use this fund to promote and develop among the youth of America interest in aviation, aerodynamics, theory of flight, airplane design, engine construction and meteorology.

The proposal came from Representative Edward A. Kenney of New Jersey. He offered an amendment to the Interior Department appropriation bill to set aside $30,000 of the $1,480,000 proposed for colleges of agriculture and mechanical arts, for school instruction in aeronautics.

New Lab. Course For Next Semester

Students interested in organic chemistry may take this course next semester, according to Paul Pitman, assistant to the president of the college. The course is being made possible by the new Galileo science laboratory, which is now being constructed at a cost of $4,000, excluding movable equipment.

Although the Board of Public Works received the contract for construction of the laboratory last August, work did not start until recently, but, according to the Board of Education, it is to be completed in six weeks at the most.

Work on the laboratory, which is to be situated in Room 405, has necessitated some adjustments, the Galileo classes which were held in Room 405 now meeting in the Junior College North Library until 1 o'clock. Junior college students are requested not to enter the North Library until this time.

The new laboratory will make up-to-date facilities available to next semester's science classes.

Mid-Terms Will be Held Week Ending March 6

Friday, March 6, will mark the end of the first mid-term period. All mid-term warning notices are due in the office on Monday, March 9.

The mid-term examinations will be held during the week ending March 6.

FILIPINOS MEET TOMORROW

Members of the Filipino Club, under the leadership of Gertrude Bolton, faculty advisor, will meet for the first time this semester on Thursday, February 27, at Galileo.

Enrollment Is Slightly Over Last Term's

1,514 Students Attending College; Increase Is Only 42

According to an incomplete report from the administrative office, there are 1,514 students enrolled in the college.

This report shows an increase of only 42 over that of last semester. The total enrollment last semester was 1,472.

MANY TRANSFERS

"The slight increase in enrollment is due to the large number of students who have dropped out, either to go to work or to transfer to a higher institution," says Mary Jane Learnard, assistant registrar.

The college has approximately 425 new students, including 87 transfers, she said.

"We have done well to have a slight increase in enrollment. We had to take in a large number of students to make up for the number that we lost.

MORE EXPECTED

"If there were a large increase, we wouldn't be able to handle them, because of the crowded conditions," Miss Learnard admitted.

A large increase in enrollment is expected next semester by the entire administrative force.

At present there are two rooms available for club meetings at Galileo. They are Rooms 203 and 212. The use of the cafeteria has been discontinued, because classes occupy it from 1:30 to 2:30 o'clock.

The clubs that have signed up with Edna Denhard, secretary to President Cloud, are: Art Club, meeting each Friday in Room 212 from 1:30 to 2:30; Filipino Club, meeting on alternate Thursdays with the assemblies in Room 212, from 1:30 to 2:30; Rifle and Pistol Club, meeting on the first and third Fridays in Room 203 from 1:30 to 2:30.

Clubs not mentioned above are requested to sign up in President Cloud's office with Miss Denhard.

Selection of Emblem Is Discussed by Pre-Legals

Selection of an emblem took up most of the discussion at a meeting of the Pre-Legal Club, Monday.

The emblem committee, working under Dr. Franklin Sewell, faculty advisor, brought a long list of designs.

The Pre-Legal group meets every Monday at 1:30 in Room 301, Galileo. New members may obtain information by contacting Sewell, Lloyd D. Luckmann, jurisprudence instructor, or President Attilio Ferrari.

Helen Davis Is Elected Service Club President

Speaking at the formal initiation and dinner of the Women's Service Club last Wednesday evening, Dean Eugenie A. Leonard, guest of honor, chose as her subject "Ideals and Traditions." On the same program, Pam Spaulding spoke for the charter members, and Hermoine King for the new members.

During the course of the dinner, elections were held for officers for this term. Those elected were: President, Helen Davis; vice-president, Hermoine King; secretary, Ruth Peterson, and treasurer, Marygail Konkel.

STAMP CLUB MEETS TUESDAY

The Philatelic Society invites all those interested in stamp collecting to meet with the club next Tuesday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock in the Little Cafeteria at Galileo, according to Carl Stongh, faculty advisor.

Trained Efficiency Counts, Is Opinion Of Helen Reveal

By FLORENCE RAVAZZANO

"Luck counts once in awhile, but trained efficiency counts all the time." So said Miss Helen Reveal to her class as the reporter walked in to interview her. Speaking of training for the business world, if any one has had practical experience, Miss Reveal certainly has her subjects well rounded out in order to make her teaching efficient.

She has been a buyer of automobile accessories, a certified public accountant, and a professional court reporter. She has been a federal supervisor of commercial subjects and was on the State Curriculum Committee for Vierling Kersey in commercial subjects. She graduated from, and later managed, the secretarial department in Heald's Business College here in San Francisco, and has been personally trained by John Robert Gregg, author of the Gregg shorthand system. From his school in Chicago, the Gregg School of Business Administration, she received a degree of Bachelor of Business Science.

Miss Reveal is active in teacher welfare organizations, and was president of the California Commercial Teachers Association, northern section.

Aside from her teaching career, Miss Reveal plays the pipe organ and has a singing voice.

While in the educational division of the U. S. Army, teachers were allowed the use of cavalry horses and they took up polo as an avocation. In this thrilling game, Miss Reveal became quite an enthusiastic player.

Department Heads Are Planning New Classes For Fall

In order to make an entirely new catalogue, the heads of the various departments will meet and decide upon new classes in their respective departments that will benefit the students next semester.

The heads of the departments are: Paul M. Pitman, English and business; Dr. Eugenie A. Leonard, social sciences, arts, and women's physical education; Edith E. Pence, biological sciences and foreign languages; Paul J. Mohr, physical sciences and mathematics; Edwin C. Browne, men's physical education and athletics.

Pitman, assistant to President Cloud, said: "We hope to have the new catalogues completed by June, so that the students may look them over during the summer vacation, and have an idea of the courses they will take during the Fall semester."

Many Art Exhibits Now on Display In Various Galleries

Students of art classes and those interested in the different forms of art are afforded the opportunity of viewing a variety of collections, including advertising art work, paintings, oriental rugs, architecture, Mexican prints, and numerous others, as listed below:

Academy of Advertising Art—Scholarship students' exhibit, to February 29.

Artists' Co-operative Gallery—"Paintings Unknown and Unshown," to February 29.

730 Montgomery Street — John Howard's exhibition of Santa Fe paintings.

Speaking Contests With Classes Being Planned

Plans are now under way for the inauguration of interclass public speaking contests. Although there will be no prizes, the contests should prove keen as well as entertaining to the students, according to Lloyd D. Luckmann, public speaking instructor.

A new member has been added to the public speaking staff, Claude H. Shull. The other members of the staff are Luckmann, James S. Hughes and Paul McKelvey.

Pomona College Offers Awards

Pomona College announces ten advanced standing scholarships to be awarded on the basis of competitive examinations available to junior college men and women all over the country for the academic year 1936-1937.

All students interested in these scholarships must be eligible for admission to Pomona College. In order that such eligibility may be determined, all candidates are asked to file an application (fee $2.50) with the Committee on Admissions before March 1, 1936.

One scholarship of $300 and two of $150 are offered with the understanding that half of the amount is available for the first semester and half for the second semester. Five scholarships of $150 each, open to all junior college candidates, and two scholarships of $150 each, open to candidates nominated by Alpha Gamma Sigma, are available to pay tuition of the second semester of the academic year 1936-37, provided the candidate's first semester work is satisfactory.

Further information concerning these scholarships may be secured from junior college advisors, or full information and application blanks may be obtained by addressing the Committee on Scholarships, Pomona College, Claremont, California.

Debate Is Planned With Sacramento Junior College

A debate between San Francisco J.C. and Sacramento J.C. on the question, "Is government relief detrimental to the best interests of society?", is being arranged by members of the faculty of both schools. No definite date for the contest has been set.

"As San Francisco J.C. does not boast an organized debating society, we are asking members of the student body at large to volunteer to carry our side of the question. All persons interested should see me at once," declared Lloyd D. Luckmann, instructor of public speaking.

A. W. S. OFFICERS INVITED TO MEET AT SACRAMENTO

Dean Leonard, Mary Jane Learnard Will Go

GROUP PLAN TEAS

Lowell, Galileo Are Guests of Event on March 12

An invitation has been extended by the Alta and Central A.W.S. Council of California for Dean Eugenie Leonard and President Helene Wright and other A.W.S. delegates to attend a convention which will be held at the Sacramento Junior College on March 20 and 21. At a council meeting held last Wednesday, it was decided that accompanying Dean Leonard and Miss Wright will be Miss Mary Jane Learnard, assistant registrar; Pam Spaulding, vice-president; Elizabeth Yates, treasurer, and Barbara Latz, newly appointed secretary.

Plans were made for the formation of several committees to assist in the preparations for a series of teas which will be given in honor of the various principals, vice-principals, and senior counsellors of the seven local high schools. The main purpose of these teas is to gain interest in our college and to acquaint high school executives with J.C. curriculum, according to Miss Wright.

The first tea will be given for Lowell and Galileo on Thursday afternoon, March 12, at Galileo. The next tea will honor Polytechnic and Mission, and will be held on March 26. The final one, held on April 3, will honor Commerce, Girls' High, and Balboa.

Any women who have graduated from any of these high schools in the 1935 or 1936 classes are urged to see Miss Wright as soon as possible, as they are needed to serve tea and act as hostesses.

Naval Class Sees Launching of New 1,500 - Ton Vessel

Nineteen members of the naval history and science and navigation classes, instructed by Francis G. Marsh, were afforded the opportunity of witnessing the launching of the United State's newest 1500-ton destroyer, the U.S.S. Smith, at Mare Island, Wednesday, February 19.

The students were the guests of the Navy Yard for the entire day, and were shown through the shops and quarters.

On Tuesday, February 18, the same group visited the U.S.S. Oklahoma, which was anchored in the bay during Defense Week.

Mr. Marsh, a former navy officer, said, "The purpose of these trips is to have the students see conditions as they exist aboard ship, of which they can only hear in class. It also widens their knowledge of navy routine and broadens their vision regarding general activities of the navy."

P. McKELVEY PLAYS MAJOR BOWES ROLE

All right! All right! No, it's not Major Bowes of radio fame, but one of Paul McKelvey's public speaking students opening the class session in an interesting way. Each amateur is given an equal chance and there is positively no gong.

In order to stimulate interest in the Public Speaking 1B classes, McKelvey appoints a chairman for every hour, and each leader must give an introduction of the speaker to come. These chairmen have imitated the major, political speakers, and various other notables, and have the audience in fits of laughter. As this takes place in the lecture hall, and the performers speak from the platform, much more is accomplished than in a small classroom.

The speakers have no need to wait in anticipation of that well-known "gong," and are requested to finish their talk by the instructor.

Sisco Resigns Soph Rep. Post To Ex-Council

Governing Body Has Plans For Activity at Local Plunge

The receipt of $35 from the Filipino Club, to be used toward a college banner, was recorded at the weekly meeting of the students executive council, last week.

Donna McPherson, corresponding secretary, was directed to send a formal letter of thanks to the Filipino Club for its donation.

High spots of the discussion included plans for the appearance of Griff Williams and his orchestra at an afternoon rally scheduled for March 19.

SWIM PLANNED

Plans were also formulated for a junior college swimming party, tentatively arranged at the Fairmont Hotel Plunge on March 19.

At the meeting, Bob Sisco, Men's Club president, resigned his office as sophomore representative, claiming that the men's group would require all of his spare time. The committee accepted the resignation, and appointed Bob Douglas as temporary representative.

LOAN CONSIDERED

After considering the request of the sophomore class for a $50 requisition, to be used in preparation for its formal dance, the council appointed Alfred Agosti and Ward Nichols, faculty members, and Mimi Colton and Maury Schwarz as a committee to investigate the matter.

The group also heard an announcement from Dean Edwin C. Browne saying that any college body that plans a function should first consult the office calendar before making definite decisions, so that there will be no conflicting dates.

Extensive Program Planned by Club Of Engineer Students

George Brand, construction engineer of the Pacific Gas and Electric Company, will address the Engineers' Club at its regular meeting tomorrow at 1:30 in room 293. An election of officers for the semester will follow.

Brand will exhibit samples of cable and other materials, along with slides of underground engineering work. Bob Carter, club chairman, invites all interested to attend.

This will be the first of a series of talks planned by the club. They hope to have men from the two bay bridges, the Bell Telephone Company and General Electric Company speak at later meetings.

As a survey reveals that there is a larger percentage of engineering majors than of any other in this college, Alfred Agosti, faculty advisor, urges all to join and enjoy the benefits of the club.

Pi Mu Gamma Will Visit Mare Island

Members of the Pi Mu Gamma Society will hold their initial field trip of the year, when they make a tour of the Mare Island Naval Hospital at Mare Island, on Saturday, March 7. All members will meet at the Ferry Building at 7:30 o'clock in the morning.

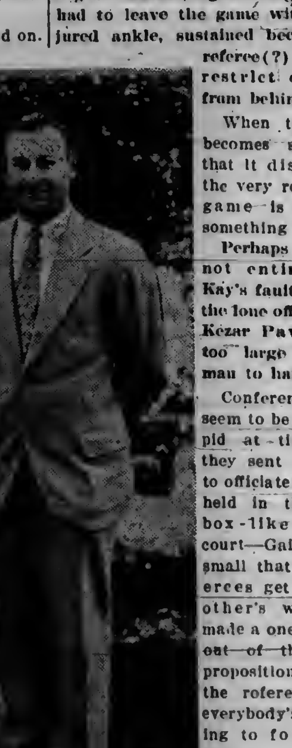
At the club's meeting last week Eleanor Roche was elected vice-president.

Ten new members were admitted to the society also at this time.

Officiating Found Poor In San Mateo Slugfest

By PAUL GREEN

The Rams played only one basketball game over the week-end, but they won both of them.



Let it go, Mr. Printer, and read on.

After having displayed a fine brand of clean basketball on Friday night, outplaying the San Mateans in every department of the game, the championship San Francisco cagers finally won out in the embroglio on Saturday in a contest that was not basketball, but murder.

And the reason for all this is one Mr. Ned Kay, alleged referee sent down to handle the series by Junior College Conference authorities. Mr. Kay let all the standard fouls, such as hacking, holding, kicking and bodily contact go unchecked, blowing his whistle only when it was a case of downright slugging.

As a result, tempers were at a keen edge throughout the night. This made for a very exciting contest, and the fans were on their feet more than the players, but it stopped both the Rams and San Mateo from playing the game the way it is set forth in the rule book.

The fiasco was so rough that several near-fistfights were narrowly averted on the court and "Red Light" Lowans, high-scoring forward, had to leave the game with an injured ankle, sustained because the referee(?) did not restrict clipping from behind.

Ned Kay, Referee

When the going becomes so rough that it disregards the very reason the game is played, something is wrong.

Perhaps it was not entirely Mr. Kay's fault. He was the lone official, and Kezar Pavilion is too large for one man to handle.

Conference heads seem to be very stupid at times, for they sent two men to officiate at games held in the small box-like Galileo court—Galileo is so small that two referees get in each other's way, but made a one-man job out of the Kezar proposition, where the referee got in everybody's way trying to follow the ball.

If this is typical of officiating throughout the conference, now we begin to understand why there have been so many protests of errors this season.

It's all over now—the Rams have the title—but the conference moguls had better change the officials next year if they want to advertise basketball as a sport.

Junior Chamber Of Commerce Sponsors Finger-Print Drive

An assembly which will mark a milestone in the history of the junior college will take place next Thursday, March 12, according to an announcement by Paul Pitman, assistant to President Cloud.

"This assembly," explained Pitman, "will be held in collaboration with the San Francisco Junior Chamber of Commerce, which is preparing a campaign of citizens' voluntary finger-printing.

"Mr. Dwight Merriam, president of the Junior Chamber of Commerce, will be present, along with several other prominent people, to explain the nature of this campaign to the student body. Our college has been favored with the opportunity of pioneering this drive in San Francisco, and this will afford us the chance to demonstrate our cooperative spirit as citizens."

Plans are also under way to obtain popular entertainment for the program. More definite information pertaining to this program and the object of the campaign of finger-printing will be published in The Guardsman next week.

Additional Help Employed to Fill NYA Hour Quota

Although the college quota is 176 persons working under the National Youth Administration, 198 students are now employed at this college under the NYA.

That was the announcement of Edith Pence, assistant dean of women, yesterday. Miss Pence went on to explain, however, that the reason for this is that a large number of students are not working on a full-time basis, which enables the director to place many more workers in part-time jobs to fill in the extra hours.

Miss Pence asks that all February time reports be turned in by this afternoon, to facilitate quick handling of the payroll. February checks are expected to arrive about the middle of March.

Students' Travel Association Plans European Journey

Planning an itinerary that will include a bicycle tour through France, Germany, Denmark and Sweden, the Students International Travel Association has extended to students of San Francisco Junior College, through Joe Amori, a western representative of the association, an invitation to participate in the trip.

The entire cost of the trip will be $289 for the round trip from New York, and this will include food, lodging, spending money, and a visit to the Olympic Games in Germany.

Aside from this bicycle tour, there will be two other trips, one of which will tour Europe by bus, visiting the same places as the first tour, and which will cost $339.

The third trip is by flat-boat, and will cover not only the countries visited by the other groups, but will travel along the principal rivers of France and Germany. This will also cost $339.

The purpose of the S.I.T.A. is to build a closer union between nations by acquainting the students with the living and economic conditions of their foreign brothers.

Want A Free Vacation? Then Read And Follow Directions

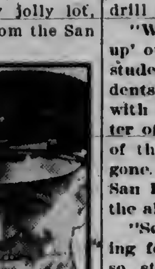
Want a pleasant, inexpensive summer vacation?

No—there's no catch. No thousands of subscriptions to sell, no babies to kiss and no handshaking to be done!!

At present, many S.F.J.C. students are filling out their applications for enrollment in the Citizen's Military Training Camp at Monterey, California, this year. July 5 sees some young men answer general roll call in the golden sun of the Presidio to undergo one full month of combined military training and life in the great outdoors—all expenses paid!!

Featuring instruction in the infantry, cavalry, and field-artillery branches of the service, thirty full days are crowded with calisthenics, first-aid, combat principles, tent pitching, military sketching, patrolling, and marksmanship. Sporting blood runs high, at least one-half of each day being given to a variety of competitive sports.

Highlight of last summer's encampment and certain to be repeated this year was the overnight hike by the trainees. Therein, the young men "roughed it" and got a sample of service on the trail as if they had been "regulars."



Interested? If so, pen a letter to: The Adjutant, C.M.T. Camp, Presidio, Monterey, California. If shy the three cents, see James S. Hughes (faculty), 1st Lieutenant, Infantry Reserves. Hughes was publicity officer for last summer's camp, and will probably act in the same capacity this year.

At any rate, step forward, young "Pershings"—here's your chance!

Goff Stresses Traffic Safety In Rally Talk

'Crooning Cop' and Yawara Exhibition Part of Program

Proving that policemen, when off the beat, can be a very jolly lot, a delegation of officers from the San Francisco Police Department provided the entertainment at a rally presented by the Junior College Rifle and Pistol Club Thursday.

Chas. Goff

Speaker of the day was Captain Charles Goff, who stressed the importance of safe driving and cooperation with police in traffic problems. Goff pointed out that, while some people resent the supervision of trained police officers in central traffic zones, the fact remains that these supervised districts are the freest from accidents and subsequent casualties.

"Today we need the help of the pedestrian as well as that of the motorist to make San Francisco a safe city," Goff said. "It should be a part of school curricula to educate persons in the matter of safety."

Sergeant Pat McGee, with a record of 40 years in the department, presented a few of his men as added entertainment. Officer La Vole, the "crooning cop," was called back for encores by the audience, while other acts included Officer Lynch in a tricky act of prestidigitation (magic), and an exhibition of Yawara. Policemen Perry and Comes executed the holds, which brought bursts of applause from the students.

Frank Nihil, Associated Students' president at San Mateo J.C., spoke on the beginning of athletic relations between the Rams and San Mateo in relation to the basketball series played at Kezar over the weekend.

Consul-General Of Argentine Believes America Fortunate

Lucky is the fellow who has the opportunity to attend American schools when he realizes the difficulties encountered by students entering the schools and colleges of South America.

This statement is verified by the report of an interview by one of the members of The Guardsman's staff with Jorge Amuchastegui, consul-general from the Argentine Republic.

The students of the Argentine must have had four languages well learned before graduation, which comes at the end of six years of college work. High school lasts five years, in which time the student covers the general course preparatory for a very specialized course in college. The strictest of administration is employed in the South American colleges for the definite purpose of gathering a select group of students to handle political, scientific, social, industrial, and engineering affairs of the republic. Opportunity for the Argentine student to better himself in his country is wholly dependent on himself, inasmuch as scholarships are awarded frequently.

Street Car Company Seeks To End Chiseling By New Tickets

Seeking to end car ticket "chiseling" and at the same time to offer to qualified students half-rate fares, the Market Street Railway Company has discontinued the "blue books," substituting in their stead 20-ride tickets to sell for the same price, according to F. W. Allen, commercial manager of the street car company.

The new form of tickets will go on sale March 1, Allen said, but conductors will accept the present single-ride ones during the month of March. Unused tickets, attached to the books, may be exchanged after March at the company office in Room 721, 58 Sutter Street, the manager said.

"To use the new 20-ride ticket, the student, when boarding the car, must hand the ticket to the conductor, who will punch out one number for the ride," Allen explained. "Transfer will be issued on request. One pupil ONLY will be allowed to ride on each ticket. When the ticket is presented for the last ride, it will be punched and taken by the conductor."

Qualifications for buying the new form of ticket will be the same as for the "blue books," the company official said.

Explaining the reason for the change, Allen said: "In an effort to protect the school children in the use of our half-fare tickets, and to stop the abuse of these tickets by others, we are making a change in the method of selling half-fare rides."

All salt water snakes are poisonous in India, while all fresh water snakes are harmless.

BATALLION CHIEF URGES RESPONSE TO FIRE ALARMS

Calling attention to the fact San Francisco Junior College students are impairing their own safety by disregarding or not recognizing fire-alarm signals, Coleman J. Conroy, battalion chief of the San Francisco Fire Dept., expressed his dissatisfaction at students' response to a fire drill held last week at Galileo.

"While I am in no way 'burned up' over the poor showing of college students, I believe it is to the students' own advantage to cooperate with department heads in this matter of safety," Conroy stated. "Most of those attending the college have gone to grammar and high schools in San Francisco and are familiar with the alarm system.

"Some said they mistook the warning for the janitor's bell. If that is so, students should learn to identify alarms and leave the building immediately upon hearing them."

Directions for leaving the building are posted in each room, and the administration is working to educate people so that they may follow simple directions and empty the building efficiently at future alarms.

Outing Group Will Meet Tomorrow In Galileo Cafeteria

All women who have signed up for the outing group are urged to attend this week's meeting, which will be held tomorrow at 1:30 o'clock p.m. in the faculty cafeteria.

There are several W.A.A. classes still taking applicants. For further information about these, see the bulletin board in Gymnasium A at Galileo.

WHISKERINO WILL BEGIN TOMORROW IN GALILEO CAFE

Sign-ups Held at 2:00 o'Clock with Bob Sisco

MUST BE SHAVED

Prizes Awarded For All Manner of Beards

The virility of manhood will reign supreme over the campus for the next two weeks, as the boys of youthful down will have to give way to the he-men of bushy beards.

It is not a boycott of the barbers and the shaving supplies manufacturers, but it is the two-week whiskerino sponsored by the Associated Men Students, under the leadership of its president, Bob Sisco.

Disloyal co-eds will immediately start to ply their coquettishness on off-campus Romeos, while the faithful ones will either resign themselves to two weeks of staying home nights, or else start spreading stories of how they are going around with genuine Russian counts.

TRIUMPH OF MANHOOD

Youngsters, not yet mature enough to boast that vestige of masculine strength—a fine, bushy beard—will shamefacedly, quietly slip into classes, while the proud he-men strut about in all their grizzled glory.

But no great effort, regardless of the discouraging results, will go unrewarded; for not only will the most luxuriant, toughest set of whiskers bring its owner a prize, but also the most dismal, down growth will give to its hapless producer some sort of consolation award.

WEAK REWARDED

Every imaginable classification of beard that excels in its own department will receive recognition—van dykes, goatees, handle-bars, bolshevikis, dunkards—and yes, even sideburns will be given consideration.

Entrants in this contest of manhood must sign up with Bob Sisco at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon in the Galileo Cafeteria. They must appear clean-shaven before their entrance can be accepted.

Editor's Note—When the Men's Club voted at its first spring semester meeting to sponsor a whiskerino, the issue was passed with few dissenting ballots. From this, it is obvious that there will be numerous contestants, or else a great number of men are not willing to back up that which they decided to put through.

Skull and Blade Plans 'Ham' Show

Members of the Skull and Blade Society, under the direction of Lloyd Luckmann, faculty advisor, are planning an entertainment for the student body of the college. The group plans to put on an amateur show in which all men and women may participate, or some similar entertainment, according to Ray Brunn, president. The exact type of performance and the date have not been officially set.

Skull and Blade members will act as an auditorium committee for all future assemblies and rallies. They will assist in ushering and take complete charge of the doors to see that order is maintained, Brunn says.

WOMEN'S SMOKING ROOM IS AVAILABLE

Through the efforts of the Women's Service Club, a smoking room has been secured for women students which should serve to eliminate smoking in the Powell Street building.

This room, which is now ready for use, is located in the basement of the S.F.J.C. Book Store. It has been provided with tables and chairs, and has lighting facilities. The women will also have access to a cement court in the rear of the store, where they may go when the weather is warmer.

The Women's Service Club will take complete charge of stopping all smoking in the building, and, according to Helen Davis, president of the organization, every woman is expected to cooperate to eliminate the fire hazard.

FAIR THINKING, FAIR CHANCE

Branded as everything radical and red, including communistic, by those who judge without knowing the facts, the American Students Union was championed last week by Lawrence Resner in his editorial columns of the Daily Californian.

"We wish that people could forget their backwoods origin, their puritan forefathers, and the dead hand of the past," Resner said. "Our present problems cannot be solved on the sharply defined and homely philosophies of John Winthrop and William Bradford. These puritans whose memory our simple patriots speak of with such reverence were narrow, bigoted, self-righteous, intolerant individuals who suffered no group's activity but their own."

As evidence of the truth, to some extent, in Resner's statement, recall that the Mathers of puritan times, ministers all, were greatly instrumental in the brutal execution of alleged witches. That does not stand up very well in the view of modern so-called enlightenment.

Some of the modern alleged patriots are nearly as bad. They would condemn every college liberal, merely because he is known to be a liberal, without first ascertaining just what the principles for which he stands are.

In justification of the American Students Union, it must be said that the organization has several commendable principles.

According to their program, drafted at a convention held in Columbus, Ohio, last December, the union stands for the right to education and security, defense of academic freedom, in a commendable attempt to make sure that American education and intellectual life do not retrograde to the sterility of culture under Fascism; for abolition of all racial discrimination in education; for the improvement of student life, and proper placement of the student in society; and for peace at any cost, embodying the abolition of compulsory military training in universities, with a view toward its ultimate extinction.

Without reservation, the Union accepts the Oxford pledge: "To refuse to support any war conducted by the U. S. government." This includes even a DEFENSIVE war.

That last principle is the only one to which a considerate mind could object, for it is almost an insult to American patriotism, a slap in the face of those American patriots who fought with might for some of the other principles outlined in the American Students Union program.

War is brutal, barbarous, unnecessary, a downright shame to any civilized race; but as long as there are certain races, controlled by men through whose veins the blood of savagery still runs hot, it is rather foolish to say that all wars can be avoided with advantage to the abstaining country.

If a country were not even to defend itself, it might be captured and over-run by a more barbarous people; then what would become of the other fine principles of such a group as the Students Union? They would be scrapped, and their supporters would be fortunate if they were permitted even to spend their remaining lives in prison as "political prisoners."

In these days so full of many ideas for creating an American Utopia, that government of ours that has withstood for many years better than that of any other nation the exigencies of time and adverse conditions is no longer given a fair chance.

With so many different groups, all with good intentions, pulling in different directions, it is difficult for the government to make rapid progress forward.

Why cannot these groups get together and institute a five-year trial plan in which they would all give SUPPORT to that which is established, seeking to IMPROVE ON THAT WHICH IS ALREADY ESTABLISHED, instead of tearing it to pieces and attempting to substitute SOMETHING THAT AS YET HAS NOT EVEN PROGRESSED OFF A SHEET OF PAPER?

If failure were then apparent, then would be the time for radical change; THEN, AND ONLY THEN!

WE ARE ONLY HUMAN

And we make mistakes. When we make them, we apologize.

Last week The Guardsman, in a news article, said that the Associated Students budget was $9,110,000. It should have said $9,110. Fortunately, the error placed the sum so high that everyone must have realized that it was a mistake.

In reply to "X Marks the Spot," the editor said that copies of The Guardsman could be obtained Wednesday afternoon in Room 150, Galileo. The tragic part came when several students entered the room and asked for their copies, only to be told that as yet they hadn't arrived from the Extension Building. The cause of this slip-up has been removed, and we assure you that every effort will be made to prevent any recurrence.

OUR COMPLIMENTS!

First conference competition; first championship.

That's the record future San Francisco teams will have to shoot at because of the surprising victory hung up by Coach Dutch Conlan and his basketball charges.

The championship brings with it the first, but certainly not the last, trophy the junior college has obtained.

Our compliments to Conlan, Coach Jack Gaddy, Captain Ralph Hillsman, Bob Lowans, Carlyle Caine, Bill Glynn, Monty Mordecai, Paul Rippon, Len Leahy, Guido Nicco, Ed McSweeney, Ernie Loustalot and the rest of the players who comprise the FIRST VARSITY CHAMPIONS.

San Mateo Game, Mark Hop, and Radio Keep Prexy Busy

Last Friday was about the liveliest day I ever had or hope to have. Friday morning we presented a rally at San Mateo, and contrary to our rehearsal, the rally was a great success. Friday evening, the game with San Mateo. Later a J.C. Night over KROW. That meant two speeches for me—one at San Mateo and one over KROW. Two too many as far as I or anyone else was concerned. And thus, the excuse for the quality of this week's column.

* * *

Well, the women have some fight left, after all. After last week's column, the A.W.S. sent a delegation to me and gave me both barrels. And now we hear of many plans for the A.W.S. They sound something like this: three teas, a delegation to Sacramento, a dance, and that's that for this term. Oh, well, they know what they want, I hope. If nothing else, it's activity, and so I'll take back my harsh words of last week as I promised.

* * *

J.C. nights seem to be the fad suddenly. Our joint J.C. night with San Mateo at the Mark Hopkins was a huge success. Here's looking forward to the next one.

* * *

Another big day—March 19. At our rally—Griff Williams from the Mark Hopkins. The same evening we are having a swimming party at the Fairmont Plunge—more news about both in the next column.

* * *

To the fellows: If any of you are interested, we are starting training for the coming boxing and wrestling tournament. A class for the "pugs" will be held every Monday, Wednesday and Friday at 1:30.

* * *

It looks like many of us are going to warm the front steps of our homes after the mid-terms waiting for the mail man—or am I only speaking for myself?

* * *

Although we didn't get much of a chance to use the public address system at our last rally, our thanks go to Bob Parker and Harry McCune for letting us have the use of it.

FASHION FLASHES

By FEM

After diligently studying pages and pages of fashion news, we find that the theme of the whole spring set-up is COLOR, and lots of it.

There are so many new vivid colors that it would be impossible to name them all. A few of the more intriguing include apricot, boat blue, crab coral, Chinese red, copper, fog grey, natural beige, bright green, water green, and bright yellow.

Among the newest notes of the season are the startling color combinations which feature color contrast between coat and dress, or skirt and jacket. Among the smarter combinations are rose with indigo, black with beige, navy with red, light blue with cyclamen, old rose with turquoise, sky blue with pink, and black with vivid green.

Perhaps the most startling color news concerns accessories. They simply must be brightly colored, this being caused, perhaps, by the influence of the tailored suit.

The most interesting of the new bags are the gleaming patent leather ones which feature bright reds, greens, yellows and blues. These come in pastel shades, too, and in the new London tan, also known as luggage tan or saddle. This is a rich shade of tan with a slight coppery tone.

Gloves are gay and gaudy with pink, red, yellow, green; blue and violet predominating colors. These come in suede, kid, or, even smarter, a combination of the two.

Lively colors are also found in stockings, and are believed to be more flattering to the legs. These colors include orange and apricot, which are intended for wear with black; the copper tones, which look so grand with navy, dark green and rust; and the yellow that is so popular for wear with brown.

For sports wear there are lots of new sun-tans that manage to match your own skin tones, and for evening you may step out in ochre, golden beige, apricot or peach.

Even the men are going "color-conscious" on us, with gay plaid shirts in yellow, reds, and blues; plaid camel's-hair jackets; trousers with colored stripes in red or blue; coral and yellow neckties; green suits (!); and brilliant hosiery of all colors.

(Who sez I can't write a "colorful" column?)

Paper Talk

When Mrs. Rose Long received the appointment as Congresswoman from Louisiana recently, the woman's age-old fight for "equality" reached the pinnacle of its success. Why the widow of the late lamented Huey is entitled to the position is a question to which there is apparently no answer. Here in California a few years ago, Mrs. Florence Kahn was admitted to Congress upon the death of her Congressman husband; Mrs. Kahn has proved herself to be one of the best legislators this state has ever sent to the nation's capitol, but the coincidence of her success does not mean that every lawmaker's wife can step into his shoes on the stroke of Death.

If this practice is continued to the extreme, anything might happen.

The system doesn't seem just. For instance, how would it be if Mr. J. J. Braddock died and his widow claimed the world's heavyweight boxing championship? Of course, we have to admit that Mrs. J. J. could probably lick most of the present crop of ringmen, but that should not give her an option on the crown.

Carrying this system of succession further, if Papa Dionne came to his rest, Mrs. Dionne would automatically become the father of quintuplets. Even the staunchest supporter of "women's rights" would flinch at this arrangement.

And when G-men succeed in knocking off Alvin Karpis, his "moll" would assume the title of "Public Enemy No. 1." Or is Karpis leading the league this week?

Mrs. Clark Gable would become the "screen's greatest lover" if her spouse died. If the chief engineer on the Bay Bridge should be killed, his wife would complete the job, and then San Francisco WOULD have something novel to offer visitors during the World's Fair. Any time a college football player was killed in action, his widow would take his place in the lineup. And so on. If women really want equality, let wives complete the unfinished terms of convicts who die in prison. What! No response?

Co-eds Are Mud-Hens.

Continuing the saga of the rights of women, a newspaper photograph on the desk shows women students joining in the mud-battle which was part of the freshman-sophomore feud at the Los Angeles Junior College. One girl, dressed in what was once a stylish frock, is on her knees in the goo, "covered all over from head to foot," as the song goes, with mud. Others, in slacks, have more muck on them than some of the men combatants in the picture.

Anyway, these co-eds will probably become fine mudders some day.

It Comes Out Here

Can you keep a secret? Rhoda Van Vliet is engaged to a Walt Ramsing. He holds a position at Libby McNeill & Libby.

They don't come any nicer than Pat Gscheidle, but here's telling one on her. Fellows, take a tip—don't give any pins to Pat, 'cause she takes them down to the jewelers that are interested in old gold, and she does business.

Bill Cunningham has gone with a girl for four consecutive years. Two hundred and eight weeks certainly is a long time. The girl is Charlotte Foss, an ex-J.C. student.

An old friend of Jack Serguson was talking about him recently. Remember, Marie de Pangher of grammar school, Jack?

Did you know that a little girl named Frances is Art Miner's biggest interest?

The new sweaters of the yell leaders are very, very collegiate.

There must be a lot of spare time floating around school, when those certain girls can find time to play cards during classes in Room 254.

It seemed that the attendance at the rally Thursday wasn't what it should have been. That skit the Police Department put on was very good. It certainly would be much healthier to have that man with all the holds, locks, and twists on your side if there were a fight.

An unknown party remarked that Diana Duncan resembles Joan Crawford. Do you think so?

Confessions of a gun moll: "I'm da moll dat packs da rods."

Whose voice serenades the typists in 260? Is it Lawrence Tibbett or Nelson Eddy?

Rita Ryan is how our St. Francis representative. She is all a dither, as Tom Coakley calls her RITA. How personal!

THE RAM'S HORN

Wants To Know If Lack of Exercise Ails Professors

Dear Editor:

Is it lack of exercise that causes instructors to move about so much while lecturing? If it is, then I would suggest that they come to class late for a change, so they can get a little exercise running up the stairs. It really is quite distracting, though, to try to concentrate on what is being said, on the one hand, and to watch the maneuvers of the lecturer on the other.

There are some instructors who have a fondness for the strings on the window-shades. They tie these cords so firmly about their fingers, while talking, that everyone in the class holds his breath for fear their circulation will be stopped. Then there are some who crumple a piece of paper up into a tiny ball, and attempt to throw it from the desk into the waste basket in the corner. Naturally, everyone in the room misses the point of what is being said and stretches his neck to see if the teacher made a hole in one.

Again, there are a few teachers who pull and twine a rubber band around their hands until it finally gives up the struggle, breaks, and flies out of its torturer's hands onto a student's desk. After illustrating an example on the board, some instructors keep rubbing the chalk in their hands until it either melts, or whitens their hands to such an extent that everything they touch (including their faces and clothes) is "chalk-dusted."

These and many other similar situations occur day after day, in the classrooms, and lessen the interest of a lecture (which possibly is already in itself not so interesting). I'm sure that teachers could be guaranteed a 100 per cent cooperation as far as class attention is concerned, if they would make it their business to exercise sufficiently before breakfast.

MISS DISTRACTED.

NOTE: I do not care what the lecturer does, as long as he does not make sufficient noise to awaken me.—Ed.

To the Editor of The Guardsman:

In answer to the last edition's The Ram's Horn, I would like to answer both letters. To the Animal Lovers, from your description, one would think you were the only one with the "centuries-old" milk of human kindness. Last week I saw a fine act of kindness. On Van Ness Ave. and Chestnut Street, waiting for a car, was one of our college men. A little six-year-old girl asked him to help her across the street. And the fellow gladly took her hand and helped her across. This is merely to prove that J.C. is full of kind, loving people.

In answer to Anonymous, I would like to ask "IT" how people can possibly use the library without first coming in, and if "IT" thinks that a person having completed his studying should wait for a bell to ring so that he may leave the library, "IT" is all wrong. Maybe "IT" is thinking of the good old high school days; well, it's about time "IT" awoke to the fact that this is a junior college and not a high school.

At present the library attendants have all they can do to take care of circulation, and if "IT" feels that the chairs need rubber stubs so badly, why doesn't "IT" put them on "ITSELF"?

Respectfully,

MISS ANONYMOUS.

A glance into a session of the play-production class, a moment's survey of what's happening, and a news-hound withdraws with some surprising conclusions.

Though little or no evidence of the work of the dramatic department has as yet been presented and will not be, probably, for some time, a foundation is being laid now that will undoubtedly assert itself in its full value when the time for a public debut does arrive.

At present the class is rehearsing A. A. Milne's Mr. Pim Passes By and Magda, by Hermann Sudermann, not for public presentation, but only for class practice. At a later date this group may present some shorter selections to other sections of the dramatic department.

The group is a very ambitious one. Individuals feel that they are slipping if all the lines of a four-act play are not learned overnight. Not satisfied with the problems that Magda offered for Bernhardt and Duse, they are eager to tackle anything a bit more difficult that Mr. Shakespeare might have to offer. In short, why not crowd a lifetime of theater into two rehearsals per week?

Enthusiasm of this order is bound to earn its reward. More power to them!

The Children's Hour, the New York dramatic success that shows how a malicious school child can instigate misunderstanding and cause tragedy, arrives next Monday at the Curran, the original production intact.

The play ran two years on Broadway and has recently been made into a picture entitled We Three.

SAILING THROUGH THE NEWS

Japan, apparently so ready and eager to go outside her territorial limits for trouble, had enough right in Tokio to keep her busy last week. It must give some people a rather prudish satisfaction to see the would-be efficient Japanese nation placed in a position where it can hardly deny that all is not well.

The attempted Japanese revolution once more brought out, inadvertently, what this column lamented last week—the American journalistic tendency toward misleading sensationalism in headlines. One local paper, in a banner, said, ARMY SEIZES JAPAN. The headline unqualifiedly said that three statesmen were killed.

Another exercised a bit more discretion by saying, EX ARMY REBELS SEIZE TOKIO; Premier, 2 Statesmen Declared Slain. I do not remember what the bright-colored sheet spread over its page one, but I recall noticing that, surprisingly, it was more conservative—and probably more truthful—than its earlier appearing enthusiasts.

Ashamed Of Religion?

Forty-five per cent of the students at U.C. express no preference in the matter of religion, according to the Daily Californian. "Religion is not placed upon a dignified plane at the university, and this fact reacts upon the students," explained Rabbi Max Merritt of the Hillel foundation, and Father Louis O'Hara of Newman Hall.

"The student feels that the expression of a preference in religion might hurt him; for instance, he feels that it might keep him from getting a job—especially if he is a Catholic," said Father O'Hara.

Not All Quiet On San Simeon Front

All is not well down on the San Simeon paradise of the well-known (or should it be said, notorious?) William Randolph, although you would never read it in any Hearst publication.

Awarded $75,000 and costs for false statements "made with actual malice and with intent to injure the plaintiff," according to a decision of the Los Angeles superior court on January 17, 1936, Frank E. Bonner proved that the "front-page editorial man" is, after all, vulnerable; and that said publisher cannot always get away with abuse of the far-famed American freedom of the press.

Germany— Future Moronia?

If you think a thought out to the end,
The result is sharp-shooting.
When I hear the word culture,
I cock my gun.

The author of the above nonsensical verse, Herr Johst, won a first prize in some sort of a Nazi contest for his play, "Schlageter," in which he brands culture as "unmanly" and "effeminate."

"Cleverness is the cause of treachery, intellect is the cause of degeneration, brains are the cause of decreasing population," declared the official organ of the Nazi Teachers' Union. Following up this idea, the Nazis issued the order: "All mental ballast must be thrown out of the schools and the universities."

By such statements, the Nazis responsible have indicated that their mental ballast has long since been thrown overboard; possibly it was so putrid, anyway, that the stormy sea of German affairs so upset their stomachs that, like the missionary's daughter, they "cast bread upon the waters, in a way that wasn't orthodox at all."

A Scoop On Brisbane

Proudly displaying before Webb Miller, United Press man recently returned from Ethiopia, an instrument worn on his wrist, a combination of watch, thermometer, barometer, and altimeter, Ras Demtu, chief aide of Emperor Haile Selassie, confessed that he could not even tell the time.

Arthur Brisbane, ever watchful for an opportunity to drive home his contention that the Ethiopians are nothing more than "barbarous savages, who mutilate children," apparently has overlooked this juicy morsel.

Or have I perchance missed out on a presentation of "Day by Day" recently? (Remember that I am writing this on February 26, so if Brisbane utilizes the above item after this date, I still had the idea first.)

Crewmen Are Delayed

By DEMING SMITH

Last week-end's basketball series marked the end of a highly successful season for Coach Dutch Conlan's first Ram varsity, and their record is one of which every San Franciscan can justly be proud. The Menlo series which was to have marked the finale of our season was called off because of a measles' epidemic on the Menlo campus, a regrettable incident because the members of our team wished very much to play against the Oaks.

* * *

University scouts have no doubt been in the audience at a great many of our games, and several of our players will probably receive attractive offers. Captain Ralph Hillsman has been a stellar player throughout the whole season, and along with "Red" Lowans and Ernie Loustalot has been the most polished player on the squad. Carlyle Caine has been the most consistent shot on the team. Guido Nicco was the flashiest player, and his timely shots pulled us out of many a hole. Paul Rippon's left-handed shots were nothing less than sensational, and drew the audience out of their seats more than once. Most of these players have not as yet made a definite selection of their universities, but you may be sure that any college to which they transfer will be mighty pleased to have them playing for it.

Several attempts have been made to organize a handball team at the college, but for various reasons they have failed. Under the new intramural sports program, an attempt to organize this sport may be made if there are enough men interested in it. Those interested should inquire at the gym office or get in touch with Ed Craig.

* * *

Another delay for the crew men. It seems that one thing after another has happened to hamper the progress of Jack Gaddy's huskies; however, the team will soon begin to practice daily, as the last obstacle has been overcome. Oars, the lack of which was the cause of the last delay, have been ordered, and they should arrive any day now. With an array of excellent athletes, the crew will undoubtedly give an excellent account of itself, and if entered in any league competition, will be a serious contender for the championship.

Tony Scafani, former sports editor, is quite some athlete, and is at present captain of the baseball nine and manager of the varsity basketball squad. During the Fall term, Tony does a good job of calling signals on the football team.

* * *

It is rumored about that several of last year's wrestlers are going into training for their grunt and groan routine to be put in effect under the auspices of the Men's Club. "Red" Brickley, giant heavyweight champ of last year's matches, has been seen in training around school. His routine is a bear-hug on his various pals, and an occasional elbow swing here and there. Whenever the opportunity presents itself, he rips fenders off available cars, and dares street cars to try and knock him down. Bill Moll, 145-pound contender, has confined his activities to mere taxicabs and grocery trucks, but claims that he is gradually rounding into shape, and spends his last few minutes before retiring each night in making contortions of his face before the mirror. It looks like a great show this year, and a large crowd is expected to attend these events.

Great and ostentatious has been the praise of the writers for the men who have overcome severe handicaps to become champions, but none deserves such praise more than Glenn Cunningham, Kansas ace. His legs badly burned as a youth, doctors gave him no chance to walk, let alone run; yet by a long series of difficult exercises, he built his legs up to such a degree of development that he was able to break the world records in the mile, and defeat many of the world's greatest milers. Which all goes to prove that "Where's there's a will, there's a way."

Congratulations to the S. F. Chronicle, its columnist, Will Connolly, and Jim Fahn, Bill Moll, and Tim Guiney for seeing that the varsity exploits in the conference were given due recognition Monday.

The Chronicle sporting green carried a swell account of the jaysee victory and it's about time athletes at this institution were given their due share of consideration from the press.

One quart of milk contains as much nourishment as: Six and one-half oranges; two pounds of potatoes; three pounds of string beans; or three-quarters of a pound of beef-steak.

The height combination of Mordecai and Glynn was the main factor in the Rams' double win over the Bulldogs last week.

Jaysee Teams Protest Games

Dante's "Inferno" is now being played by several members of the Northern California Junior College Conference, according to Paul Mohr, conference commissioner. The conference teapot threatens to boil over through action taken by Modesto, Marin, Sacramento, and Santa Rosa junior colleges.

Protests now on record include claims by Modesto and Marin, against each other; a protest by Santa Rosa against Modesto; and a foul claim by Sacramento against Santa Rosa. All claims are based on allegedly false decisions by referees.

Only one decision has as yet been handed down. That deals with the Marin-Modesto series, the results of which have been wiped from the record. The two colleges will replay on March 13 and 14, according to Mohr.

Santa Rosa sued against Modesto for a game lost in an overtime period. The report says the referee gave the ball to Modesto under the Santa Rosa basket at the beginning of the extra period, whereas the rules say the ball should be put into play by a center-jump at mid-court. No decision is expected on this score until the matter has been investigated further.

Sacramento protested the game which they lost to Santa Rosa, claiming the referee disqualified a player on four fouls, the fourth of which was allegedly committed by another player. Although no ruling has yet been taken, the protest does not seem to hold water, and it is generally expected that the claim will not be allowed.

Local Golfers In Top Flight

San Francisco Junior College golfers fared exceptionally well in the qualifying round of the current city championship that is now being conducted by the San Francisco Emporium. All four of the Ram entrants succeeded in breaking into the championship flight. The tourney is being conducted on the four San Francisco public links, Harding Park, Ingleside, Lincoln, and Sharp's Park.

At Lincoln the lanky southpaw ace, Bob Dumesuil, long prominent in junior golfing circles, carded a 71, two over par.

A poor drainage system made the Sharp's Park course a veritable sea of mud, but the sloppy peninsula layout held no terror for Coach Dutch Conlan. When the day's work was done, our golfing maestro was right up with the leaders, posting a 76.

As expected, Bob McGlashan eased into the championship flight at Harding Park with a creditable

75. Golf Manager Jack Welch is bracketed in this same flight. Welch's 78 was nothing short of brilliant, as his qualifying round was played in a driving rain that sent scores of players running for the clubhouse to "scratch" their entries.

Immediately following the city play, a junior college tournament will be held at one of the public courses to determine the college golf team, according to Welch.

Need More Men For Cinder Outfit

By BUD McSWEENEY

Around last December, Coach Dutch Conlan and Coach Russ Sweet issued calls for basketball material and track candidates. Today we can readily see what practice and cooperation will do in any sport. The casaba tossers are serenely perched on the top rung of the conference ladder. While on the track situation we find a perfect answer for the old question, "How can a coach build a good competitive team when his own men won't back him up?"

NEED NEW MEN

Saturday the varsity candidates knew there were to be time trials run. Conditions were perfect. But upon looking around, one could see the same few faces that are there every day, and most of these faces belong to lads who have good prep school and former J.C. records left in their wake. All in all, there were eighteen fellows in sweat suits.

We realize that all the aspiring candidates can not be on hand every day, but surely there are more than eighteen varsity men out of a student body of 1,500, aren't there?

So some of you lads who really want to run on the Ram cinder varsity ought to meet the coach half way. After all, he is hired to train, develop, and give you the finesse that is needed for a track man; he isn't asked to play the roll of nurse or to hire a bus and go from door to door picking you up. The harriers who go out every day realize this fact, and as they harbor hopes of getting a cup or so for the school, it isn't quite cricket to them either.

LET'S GO!

So let's get off the dime if we expect any change.

In the time trials on Saturday, "Whizzer" Warren blazed around the oval in the 352-yard dash in 39.7, bettering his old mark of 41.4.

Compas returned to the wars after being laid up with an injured back and ran the century in 10.6.

Tybar took the first 70-yard high hurdle heat in 10.1, while Sanderson took the second heat in 10.4, which was no one else running, this is fair left standing.

Allison ran his first 880 race and was clocked in 2:25 and, as there was no one else running, this is fair time.

Dunne broad-jumped 22 feet, improving his old mark of 20.9 inches, and won a bet with Jim Fahn by so doing, as Jim bet that Dunne (of the San Mateo Dunnes) could not leap 21 feet, and the San Mateo Mustang claimed James wouldn't clear 12 feet in the pole vault. Jim knocked the cross-bar off with his chest and so Dunne is one milk shake richer today. (Sech bodacious wagering, boys!)

Baseball Squad Loses Game To Bears

Displaying a lack of organization which was due to inactivity during the recent rainy spell, the San Francisco Junior College baseball nine went down in defeat to the strong University of California freshman tossers last Tuesday at the Berkeley diamond, 9 to 3.

The Rams met their downfall in the first inning, playing an improved game as the contest progressed.

The locals scored all of their three runs in the second inning, when Guisti, flashy third baseman, clouted out a double with the bases loaded. The tossers missed out on a good scoring opportunity in the sixth, however, when they failed to put a run across the plate after having loaded the bags with only one out.

Fex and McSweeney were the outstanding players for the Rams, McSweeney running far to his left in the fifth frame to make a sensational catch that would have done credit to Joe DiMaggio. Fex made several nice catches in the center field pastures also.

Coach Lee Elsan was well satisfied, however, for he found out what some of his men could do. In the fourth inning he put Ben McGuire into the game to relieve Larry Wilgus on the mound. McGuire struck out the first two men and the third popped out to center field in the only inning he pitched.

Milsap, Bear frosh chucker, held the Ram batters in check, allowing only four hits, while Cannon, third baseman, grabbed a big hand when he hit out a home run in the first inning with the bases loaded.

Elsan's men showed that they can stand bolstering at the plate and on the mound, but, all in all, their performance was pretty good for the first game of the season.

145-Lb. Hoopsters, Blinkers, Split Two Preliminary Games

Winding up a successful season with six wins and six losses, Coach Tom Wilson's 145-pound cagers split a two-game series Friday and Saturday against Kremesec's "Blinkers" at Kezar.

The "Blinkers" nosed out the jaysee lightweights, 35-33, Friday, but the 145's came back to cop the second encounter with a 27-10 count.

O'Neill, lightweight guard, and Wilgus, "Blinker" center, tied for high-point honors on Saturday with eight points. Urga was high for the 145's on Friday with 11 digits.

When Coach Dutch Conlan came over from Commerce High School, he brought Carlyle Caine with him. One of the tiniest forwards in the conference, Caine has been the most consistent scorer for the San Francisco cagers in their championship win.

Scafani Quits Editor's Post

Stating that other duties prevented him from devoting his time to The Guardsman, Tony Scafani resigned his position as sports editor last week.

While the editorial staff has not yet appointed a successor, Deming Smith handled the sports for this issue. Louie Bertolucci and Howard Capps will also try out for the position, with a definite appointment expected in two weeks.

'MIRACLE MAN' CONLAN SENDS QUINTET TO VICTORY DURING FIRST LEAGUE ENTERPRISE

Locals Beat San Mateans Twice in Rough Games; Sacramento Loses and Leaves Road Open for Red and White

After winning easily from San Mateo Junior College, 42-33, Friday at Kezar Pavilion, the championship Ram basketball outfit just did come through in the final minutes of play Saturday to beat out the Bulldogs, 27-21, and cop the championship of the Northern California Junior College Conference. Sacramento J.C., which had been in a tie with San Francisco for the league lead, dropped a game to Modesto Saturday to leave the title spot open for the locals.

It was Carlyle Caine; it was "Red" Lowans; it was Len Leahy; it was Captain Ralph Hillsman; it was big Monty Mordecai; it was flashy Paul Rippon, and rangy Bill Glynn that won the game Saturday to give San Francisco a championship in its first taste of conference competition.

ROUGH PLAY

Saturday's tussle was one of the hardest fought battles ever played on the Kezar court, with the San Mateans fighting to win so they could earn their block letters, and the Rams equally as anxious to win the title. Loose officiating made the game almost as rough as a football game.

Coach Dutch Conlan, in his first year at a new school, with a bunch of men who had never played together before, is deserving of all the praise that has been showered on him in leading his charges to victory.

The San Mateo team had matters their own way in the first half Saturday. Coach Marius MacFadden had Al Johnson, stellar guard, trailing "Red" Lowans like a leech to prevent him from scoring, and this impaired the Ram attack. However, Conlan used some strategy of his own, starting Len Leahy at center to keep his eye on Kotta, diminutive Bulldog forward. Leahy held Kotta down to one field goal and played a wonderful floor games besides.

S.M. LEADS HALF

The desperate San Mateo five outfought, outplayed and outsmarted Conlan's team in the first half, going off the court with a 15-13 lead, but an inspiring pep talk in the dressing room sent the Rams back a fighting bunch.

However, Lowans had to leave the game because of an ankle injury sustained in one of the pile-ups which characterized the rough play, and the Rams were unable to get going until there were only five minutes to go.

A long shot by Ralph Hillsman tied the score at 19 up, and then the Rams started to go. Caine followed up with a bucket and Rippon flipped in a left-handed hook shot to put San Francisco ahead, but San Mateo's Collingwood scored to bring the count to 23-21.

CAINE SCORES LAST

Then Bill Glynn scored and Caine took the ball the length of the court to put the game on ice, making it 27-21. Inspiring work by Ralph Hillsman at his guard position, together with Mordecai's fight and height, were the high spots of the night. Hillsman tied with Paul Rippon for high-point honors with seven digits. Kohn, Bulldog center, collected 10 points.

The Friday night game was delayed 30 minutes because the referee

IN THE PEACOCK COURT ON THE HILL

After the successful basketball game last Friday night, numerous San Francisco Junior College students, along with their not so fortunate friends from San Mateo, adjourned to the Mark Hopkins to participate in the joint college night sponsored by the establishment.

Above are pictured many of those who attended the affair. Recognize yourself, or some of your friends?

Tennis Classes Under WAA Are Open To Women

Picnic Is Planned by Group at Palace Courts Noon Today

Women who have not yet signed up for tennis may still do so, according to Vera Spencer, W.A.A. faculty advisor. Two classes are still open, meeting at 11:15 on Mondays and Wednesdays and at 1 on Wednesdays and Fridays.

Last week's tennis classes were held in spite of the rain, for the Palace of Fine Arts courts which Many players are proving themselves outstanding by virtue of their exceptional ability. Among these "stars" are Helen Davis, Caroline Originos, Betty Phillips, Taneko Amemiya, and Dorothy Howell. Miss Davis, a graduate of Miss Burke's school, has placed in several state tournaments.

Bertha Keller, women's tennis coach, plans to put the girls through several weeks of practice before preparing for tournaments, which are tentatively scheduled to be held in about a month.

was late. He might just as well have stayed away on Saturday for all the work he did.

"Red" Lowans and Carlyle Caine stole the show on Friday, making 11 and 8 points, respectively. With Glynn and Mordecai using their height to stop the San Mateo attack, the Rams had it easy, and led 24-16 at the half.

LEAHY STARS

In the second period, Leahy came through with two pretty hook shots, while Hillsman accounted for seven points.

Tight defensive work kept the Blue and Gold quintet in trouble throughout the game.

Collingwood, S.M. guard, kept the game exciting with his long, looping shots, and chalked up 12 digits to his credit.

1520 Enrolled This Semester, Registrar Says

High Frosh Have Largest Class; Men Students Outnumber Women

Complete official reports from the office of the registrar reveal that there is a total enrollment of 1,520 students in the college this semester.

There are 247 first semester men, 463 second semester ones, 105 third, 133 fourth, and 14 special male students. This brings the total male enrollment up to 962.

There are 141 first semester, 314 second, 33 third, 58 fourth, and 12 special women students. This makes a total women registration of 558.

Last semester there was an enrollment of 1,478. This total, plus 460, which is the number of new students this semester, makes the grand total registration for the school year of Fall '35 and Spring '36, 1,938.

There are 366 new first semester students, of which 235 are men and 131 are women. The remaining students, who total 94, are transfers from various institutions, namely, Marin J.C., Golden Gate J.C., San Mateo J.C., U.S.F., and the University of California.

One hundred and ninety-eight of the 460 new students were not enrolled in any state institutions last semester. They are students coming from private and out-of-state schools, and those who were out of school last semester.

Two hundred and fifty-two of the 460 new students were not enrolled in any San Francisco school last semester. This group includes the transfers from the various junior colleges, high schools not in San Francisco, and other institutions not located here.

These figures show an increase of 42 students over the registration of last semester.

The Guardsman wishes to thank Mary Jane Learnard, assistant registrar, and Eileen Faulconer, secretary to Registrar Paul Mohr, for their co-operation in compiling the above figures.

PHILOSOPHERS CONVENE

Reading an original paper on his concept of the ultimate, Jacque de la Montanya will address a meeting of the Philosophy Club, to be held this evening at his home, 2964 Jackson Street, at 8 o'clock. Invitation to all interested is extended by David Goldshur, faculty adviser.

Riverside J. C. Has Course In Charm For Women; Good Idea?

Specific parking spaces have been assigned to the faculty members of Riverside Junior College.

The Menlo Junior College basketball team has a traditional game with the faculty in which the faculty team usually carries off the honors. We wonder what would happen if we played our faculty. Perhaps the same thing—maybe.

• • •

A course in charm for women has been suggested at Riverside Junior College after the enthusiasm that greeted a speech presented on that subject to the women of the college. Remember in Sir James Barrie's play the lines that ran, "If a woman has charm she doesn't need anything else, but if she hasn't charm it doesn't matter what else she has." We might enlarge on the idea and have a course in charm for both men and women, or don't you like charming men?

Recordings took the place of an orchestra, and acoustics amplified the sound at a recent Riverside Junior College dance. It was well received because the main drawback of having regular dances is done away with, namely, the cost of an orchestra.

• • •

We are not mentioning the name of the junior college paper, but we wonder what would happen if we had a cigarette ad that occupied over half a sheet in our school paper?

Galileo Students Loan College Address System

Materially aiding the assembly last week, Bob Baker and Harry McCune, Galileo High School students, loaned the college the public address system used at the gathering.

Any group interested in securing public address equipment for dances or other occasions can get in touch with Baker or McCune at Galileo, or by phoning their homes.

These men have promised Maury Schwarz, A.S.S.F.J.C. president, the use of their equipment whenever needed for a college assembly or rally.

Economics Organization to Hear Emporium Speaker

The Economics Club has secured a guest speaker from The Emporium to address its meeting tomorrow morning at 11:40 in the Lecture Hall of the Powell Street building.

The topic of the scheduled speech will be Current Trends in Retailing, or some related subject. All students interested are invited to attend the meeting.

Sophomores Seeking Bids On Orchestra for Formal

Announcement that bids will now be received from orchestras interested in playing at the Sophomore Formal, tentatively scheduled for the Mark Hopkins Hotel in June, was made this week by class officers.

Any orchestra interested should consult the class officers and class faculty advisers, according to Bill Weinstock, soph president.

Public Schools Week Will Be Celebrated At Galileo With Program On April 29

With April 27 to May 1 as the date set for the annual observance of the California Public Schools Week, the committee for this event in San Francisco is rapidly pushing ahead plans for the 1936 celebration.

Under the direction of Charles R. Cooper, general chairman, the committee has as honorary vice-chairmen Archibald J. Cloud, president of San Francisco Junior College; Dr. Edwin A. Lee, superintendent of schools; the Hon. C. Harold Caulfield, president of the Board of Education; and Mrs. Joseph E. Morcombe, president, second district of the P.-T.A.

OBSERVANCE PLANNED

Handling the arrangement of programs for the celebrations in different schools, Charles R. Cooper is selecting distinguished speakers to explain and discuss vital school topics concerning California public schools, and San Francisco in particular.

The Galileo auditorium will be the scene for a joint observance by San Francisco Junior College, Galileo High School, and Galileo Evening School on Wednesday evening, April 29. Plans for the program will be announced as soon as completed.

HISTORY RELATED

Monday, April 27, will mark the beginning of the sixteenth year in the annual observance of Public Schools Week. Created at a time when a crisis confronted the schools of California and the nation, the institution was founded in 1920 by Charles Albert Adams, then grand master of the Masons of California.

The public educational structure, at that time, was on the verge of collapse, for as a result of war service, the teaching staff was seriously depleted, while teachers, such as were available, were far below the necessary standard. One-third had less than four years' training beyond the eighth grade, one-half had had no special training, and the remaining ones were under 21 years of age, or were teaching on temporary permits.

WEEK SET ASIDE

The Masonic lodges of California, conscious of public duty, thus set aside one week in order to bring to the public's attention existing conditions in the schools. The first pioneer observance resulted in the passage of Constitutional Amendment No. 16, which fixed a certain amount of state funds for each pupil.

Even after the crisis had passed, the grand master continued the observance of Public Schools Week, and it is now an established community activity.

G. BLUMENTHAL AND J. AMORI AID INJURED

Immediate action on the part of Joe Amori, faculty member of the junior college, and Gene Blumenthal, executive committee member, may have materially aided in saving the lives of two seriously injured women in a four-car smashup on the Bayshore Highway near Mills Field last Friday.

Returning after the rally at San Mateo Junior College, Amori and Blumenthal were the first on the scene of the accident, where they took charge, administering first aid until the ambulance arrived.

Household Art Club Begins Tea Plans

In preparation for a tea to be given by the Household Arts Association of the college, a planning committee, consisting of Melba Crisp, Pamella Spaulding, Elsie Crane, Marjorie Burke, Vera Griffin, and the officers of the club, was chosen at a special meeting last Friday afternoon.

The officers of the association are Louise Corica, president; Evelyn Dyhdal, vice-president; Virginia Elliot, secretary, and Corrine Lynwood, treasurer.

Definite plans, and the exact date, will be discussed at the next meeting.

Two new members were also taken in at the meeting, Alice Frye and Claire Mason.

Women's Club Tries Sea Sports as Recreation Aid

Recreational Games Club members will be well prepared for shipboard activities if they should embark on sea vacations this summer, for among the games played by the club are deck tennis and shuffleboard. Regulation equipment such as that used on shipboard is provided; in fact, all that is lacking is a rolling deck and a handy ocean to throw said equipment into when one loses the game.

Deck tennis, a popular shipboard sport, is played much like tennis, except that rubber rings are used instead of racquets and balls.

Other games enjoyed by the club are ping pong, darts, wall-paddle tennis, and badminton. This last game has proved so popular that it will be taught as a separate sport next semester.

Palace Hotel Features College Amateur Night

Planned as a weekly affair, the initial intercollegiate amateur night will be held at the Palace Hotel tonight, featuring as guests talent from all the colleges and junior colleges of the bay region.

Among the students here who are expected to appear on the program are Gene Blumenthal and Jack Welch. Blumenthal plans to sing "Moon Over Miami."

CONGRATULATIONS

John Gerstung, history instructor here, became the father of a baby boy last Sunday night.

A name for the infant hasn't yet been selected, according to the somewhat flustered, and undeniably joyful, father.

"We shall probably choose some good old Teutonic name, such as Eric," Gerstung said.

Congratulations, Mr. and Mrs. Gerstung!

Mimi Colton Tells of Plans Over Broadcast at KROW

Maury Schwarz, president of the Associated Students, and Mimi Colton, vice-president, were interviewed by Mort Werner over KROW last Friday night.

During the junior college program, Miss Colton commented briefly on the success of the last school dance. She said that other social activities will take place during the term, according to present plans.

Nobody Wants Money! 'Buck' Still in Library

In a former issue of The Guardsman it was revealed that a sum of money had been found tucked away in the North Library, and all claimants were invited to consult Francis J. Colligan, librarian, between the hours of 2:30 and 5:30 o'clock p.m.

As yet, the rightful owner has not appeared to claim his or her property, but it is still being held and may be redeemed by calling at the North Library at the stipulated time.

Council Plans Plunge Party For Fairmont

Invitation to Coming Hotel Night Is Accepted at Meeting

Plans for a swimming party to be held at the Fairmont Plunge constituted the major topic of discussion at last week's meeting of the executive council. The date of this affair has been changed to March 18, a day prior to the original date.

Other matters taken up at the meeting are as follows:

The invitation from the Mark Hopkins Hotel to have a junior college night on March 27 was accepted by the council.

WARNING ISSUED

An announcement was made that the expenditures of all clubs must be passed upon by the executive council, even though they are included in the budget.

It was decided that the social committee will be cut down to a smaller number, each person of which will be the chairman of a certain activity and pick his own committee.

RALLY FOR CHAMPS

In the near future a special rally will be held to recognize the championship basketball team. A discussion took place as to whether the team would receive any individual awards. It was decided that the awards committee would take charge, if an affirmative decision were made.

The council received an invitation from San Francisco State College's date bureau to have a joint affair in the near future.

HAIL TO THE CHAMPIONS!

Members of the championship Ram basketball squad, who brought San Francisco J.C. a title in its first league competition, are shown above.

Standing: Coach Dutch Conlan, Mass. McSweeney, Mordecai, Glynn, Butler, Leahy, Lowans. Front row: Anido, Rippon, Nicco, Hillsman, Caine, Loustalot.

FOOD COURSE NOW OFFERED IN HOTEL CLASS CURRICULUM

J. Graham Sullivan, A.B., Stanford '30, to Be Instructor

Starting a new part of the course curriculum, Hotel and Restaurant management 71B-3, dealing with all phases of food preparation and restaurant management, will be offered beginning next Wednesday, March 18.

The course has been designed to give students the elementary principles of operation and basic plans of organization of the hotel and restaurant dining room and kitchen, according to John Gifford, in charge of the course.

The instructor for the course will be J. Graham Sullivan, A.B., Stanford '30, and former manager of the Bal Bijou, Lake Tahoe night club.

In addition, outside lectures will be given by hotel and restaurant managers, chefs, and others who are trained experts in their fields, Gifford said.

Both lecture and laboratory work will be given, the laboratory work consisting chiefly of actual food preparation and service, including soda fountain and beverages, together with applications of accounting principles, Gifford has announced.

Classes are held Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday mornings, beginning at 10 o'clock, on the mezzanine floor of the S.F.J.C. Bookstore.

'Exciting Paper' Read at Meeting

"It was a very exciting paper"—thus did David Goldshur, faculty adviser of the Philosophy Club, describe a treatise written and read by Jacque de la Montanya. The paper, entitled My Concept of the Ultimate, was read at the club's meeting held last week at Jacque's home.

The next meeting of the group will be held March 18, at Goldshur's home, 1305 Vicente Street. The title for the paper to be read at this gathering has not yet been chosen.

Women Racqueteers Lay Plans For Tournament

Twenty members of the College Women's Tennis Club met at the Palace of Fine Arts Wednesday, March 4, at noon.

Following a luncheon on the lawn, the club held a business meeting under Caroline Orginos, tennis manager. Plans for a ladder tournament, singles, doubles, and mixed tournaments, as well as a play day with another junior college were discussed.

The singles and doubles tournaments are scheduled to begin next week, while the mixed tournament and play day are planned for after the Easter vacation.

The singles and doubles tournaments, Miss Orginos announced, will be conducted in two groups, an experienced group and an inexperienced group.

"We are especially anxious to see the inexperienced players sign up," Bertha Keller, tennis instructor, said, "since tournament practice is most beneficial for beginners."

All women students wishing to compete are urged to sign up at Galileo Gymnasium or at Powell Street this week.

3 Pi Mu Gamma Students Receive Honor Key Awards

Honor keys for receiving an average grade of "B" or over last semester were awarded to three members of the Pi Mu Gamma Society at the regular meeting March 3.

The three students to receive this distinction were Thelma Taylor, Stewart Kingsland and George Hartwich. Glen Noble, instructor of biology, and Art Robinson, former president and founder of the society, were also awarded keys for their work in organizing the club.

As a climax to the field trip to the Mare Island Naval Hospital, the society held a social for members only at its club room, 1450 Union Street, Saturday evening, March 7.

Charlotte Zier, accordionist, and Adrian Hess, saxophonist, provided musical entertainment for the evening.

Pay Roll Expected For NYA Next Week

An NYA pay roll amounting to $2,600 for work done in February is expected to arrive next week, according to Edith Pence, NYA director for the junior college. The pay roll will be distributed among 197 student workers.

The next work period will include February 29 to March 28, inclusive, Miss Pence said, with time reports due by March 29.

With a list of aspirants unable to obtain work because the NYA quota is filled, the director said new workers will be placed only as present employes drop their jobs. It is expected that several places will be open when the mid-term grades are reported. In order to maintain a job, a student must have a satisfactory scholarship standing.

DEBATE SQUAD IS IN NUCLEAR STATE BUT WITH HIGH HOPES

Forensic Opponents Named on Possible Schedule of Argumentators

Following the formation of a nucleus for a college debating team, a tentative schedule for forensic meets with various junior colleges of Northern California has been adopted, according to Lloyd D. Luckmann, public speaking instructor.

Included in the schedule, the exact dates of which have not yet been decided, are Sacramento, Marin, San Mateo and Menlo junior colleges, and San Francisco State College.

Hoping to be whipped into shape that will enable it to compete with Stanford and California debating teams, the local squad is as yet somewhat inexperienced, according to Luckmann.

Among those on the present team who have had experience in the forensic field are Mildred Ross, Helene Wright, William Hancock, and Barbara Latz.

The new members to the group are Eugene Blumenthal, Fred Campagnoli, Wallace Fowler, James Neal, Robert Sisco, James Tassos, Bernalyn Seymour, and Ruth Rainglass.

Plans are now under way for the formation of a society that will later join the national fraternity of junior college debaters, according to Luckmann.

Recreation Group Offers Equipment

Invitation to all women faculty members to use club equipment on Tuesdays and Thursdays at 4:30 p.m. has been extended by the Recreational Games Club, according to Laurene Kuhn, coach of the group.

Offering men badminton enthusiasts a chance to participate in the sport, Miss Kuhn announced that a mixed group will meet on convenient afternoons as soon as sufficient interest is shown.

All women students are welcome to use recreational games equipment between their classes, Miss Kuhn said.

Fingerprinting Is To Be Subject Of Speech By S. F. Junior Chamber

Identification Assembly Held Tomorrow at Galileo, 1:45; College Hailed as Pioneer in Civic Campaign

Hailed as a pioneer in a public-spirited campaign, the San Francisco Junior College will be addressed by Donald Breyer and William G. Lee, Jr., of the San Francisco Junior Chamber of Commerce, on the subject of voluntary fingerprinting and registration. The college is the first bay region school to participate in the campaign, which will be held during the week of March 16-20.

Numerous members of the junior chamber will be present at the assembly, including Dwight Merriam, president, and Robert Fouke, head of the California State Junior Chamber of Commerce and an authority on the subject of fingerprinting.

SEE PAGE 2 FOR EDITORIAL COMMENT

FIVE ADVANTAGES OF FINGERPRINTING

1. Names, handwriting, features and characteristics can be and have been changed, WHEREAS fingerprints REMAIN unaltered from birth to death.
2. Fingerprints cannot be duplicated or successfully transposed.
3. The chances of two fingerprints being alike is 1 in 640,000,000.
4. The chances of all ten fingerprints being duplicated is one in 38 TRILLION, 4 BILLION.
5. Fingerprints are the only CERTAIN means of identification known to exist.

The object of the gathering will be to acquaint the members of the student body with the advantage of fingerprint registration.

An attempt will be made to have every student and faculty member of the college voluntarily have his prints taken. Cooperation of outsiders will also be sought.

A committee of 10 students under Bob Sisco, president of the Associated Men's Students, were given a course in the science of fingerprinting last Saturday by the San Francisco Police Department, and they will be in charge of the work during the campaign week.

Members of this committee include Bernalyn Seymour, Helen Davis, Hermine King, Barbara Lats, Clyde Pollen, Bob Zelinsky, and Gene Blumenthal.

'Raise Devil? No, But I Had Fun'—Breyer

Chamber Member Urges All Join Fingerprinting Campaign

"Raise the 'devil' in college? Wouldn't say that I did, but I really had a good time!"—this from the lips of Don C. Breyer, youthful Junior Chamber of Commerce member and speaker scheduled for the junior college assembly tomorrow afternoon, March 12, at 1:45.

Attired in a neat dark grey suit, Breyer, radiating the air of a man not far removed from college, leaned back in the desk chair of his office in the Sydney Garfinkle Advertising Agency awaiting the question-and-answer barrage.

SECRET KEPT

"What is the subject that I aim to speak on tomorrow? Now"—here a humorous twinkle shone in the eyes across the desk—"If I told you today, I'd just be repeating myself tomorrow, so I'd rather not say. However," in a more serious tone, "there are two things which I feel will concern all the young people of this nation in the near future, and those two things are national registration and fingerprinting. The value of these is obvious.

"Society today, through government, is recognizing a new responsibility to its citizens. One gets nothing for nothing, and so in return for the helping hand being extended to individuals, the individual should recognize his responsibility and obligation.

RECOGNIZE DEMOCRACY!

"The future of democracy rests on the recognition or rejection of that obligation. If the individual does recognize it, then he'll deserve and get a continued democracy; if not, then he'll deserve and get 'Fascism'!

"So when the time arrives, I urge the young men and women of your college to realize their obligations and endorse these two broad issues, not only because realization marks the acceptance of a new, democratic responsibility, but because S.F.J.C. is a new college, and it is only fitting that college students should lead the way."

THRILL CITED

"Biggest thrill?—when President Robert Sproul, University of California, appointed me chairman of an NRA 'flying squadron' to talk to various consumer groups. The college looked like a good place to start, and within a short while 8,000 of the 10,000 at the college had joined in cooperation. The drive was so successful that telegrams were received from General Hugh S. Johnson, General Farley, the governor of the state, and several mayors. I really treasure these!!"

Rifle Club Orders New Guns; Starts Armory Practice

Members of the Rifle and Pistol Club, at a meeting held Friday, March 6, passed a motion authorizing the purchase of two new rifles.

These rifles will be of the .22 calibre, the type suitable for intercollegiate competition.

It was also reported that the regulation army rifles, ordered from the east, are being shipped and will arrive about the middle of the month.

New and old members are requested to attend the regular meeting this Friday afternoon at 2:45 o'clock, in room 203, Galileo.

The first instruction period of the semester will be held Saturday, March 14, at the National Guard Armory, 14th and Mission Streets. This class is under the direction of William Hancock, club range officer.

Parents Will Get Registrar Letter

Parents of all new students will receive letters from the college explaining the system of cinch notices, according to word received from the office of the registrar.

The purpose of the letter is to acquaint the parents with the purpose of the warning notices, according to Mary Jane Learnard, assistant registrar.

New students having no grade deficiencies the first six weeks, will have the word "none" written in the letter to their parents, Miss Learnard said. After the first letter, only the students will be notified in the event of poor grades.

GOFF SPEAKS TO CLASS

Last Monday the class in social and current economics heard Captain Charles Goff of the San Francisco Traffic Bureau discuss the methods of gaining greater traffic safety.

Captain Goff was secured by the efforts of Edith Alphers, a student.

Music Appreciation Is Subject of Speech

Basing her talk upon the saying, "One enjoys what one is familiar with," Flossita Badger of the music department of the college recently spoke to a group of business and professional women on the necessity of preparation for the final appreciation of music.

She advised the complete study of lives of musicians, stories of opera's periods affecting their works, and of the value of some knowledge of instrumentation.

In accordance with her ideas, the club intends to complete the study of one opera, and then in a body attend a performance of the San Carlo Opera Company.

Announcement of plans for the San Francisco Junior College Press Club for the Spring semester will be made in the next issue of The Guardsman.

Sport Club Heads Assuming Duties In Various Groups

Sport club managers were appointed last week by the W.A.A. executive council and are now assuming their responsibilities, according to Vera Spencer, W.A.A. faculty adviser.

The list of managers is as follows: Basketball, June Rose Bellow; tennis, Caroline Orginos; archery, Margaret Litchfield; golf, Diana Duncan; riding, Phyllis Bruce; tumbling, Doris Michaels; dancing, Hermine King; outing, June Woo; baseball, Caroline Anottner.

Verrel Weber, women's basketball coach, said that the basketball group that meets on Tuesdays and Thursdays at 5:30 o'clock has issued a challenge to any team that wishes to play it.

Business Staff Has Advertising Survey

Conducting an advertising survey in order to determine which establishments should advertise in The Guardsman, the business staff distributed circulars through classes Monday morning. Compiled results will be printed next week.

The survey, made under the supervision of Lloyd D. Luckmann, faculty business manager, included questions asking which shops were patronized by students and why.

'Another Beard, Gus'—And Sisco Examines Another Entry

"Another beard, Gus."

And Bob Sisco, president of the Men's Club, examined another clean-shaven entry into the Whiskerino being conducted under the auspices of the men's organization.

Only 20 men joined up for the contest, which offers prizes for the darkest, fuzziest, reddest, and fanciest facial growths.

"The contest will come to an official close a week from Thursday," Sisco said, "and anybody who thinks he can win with a late start is welcome to enter."

Maury Schwarz, said to be one of the best bluebeards, is being touted as the winner of the "blackest" prize, but other sources say that A. Cassoni will walk off with all honors.

Charley Kremesec and Howard Capps, both of whom shaved for the first time last Thursday, will battle it out for the championship of "the most dismal attempt" event.

As this goes to press, Schwarz leads Cassoni by one whisker, although Cassoni is figured to close strong and do most of his growing in the last few days.

Other entrants include: Ed Talavera, Martin, Forrest Morrison, Adolph Pedrin, Barrett, George Clarke, Bill Kennedy, E. Blumenthal, Leon Davis, Deming Smith, Jack Steiger, Chas. Doudlet, Tyler McHugh, Shaufelle, Al Cohen, Rev. Markell and Fleming Pope.

'Friendly Suit' For Quiet Balboa Title May Be Needed

"A friendly suit may be necessary to obtain a quiet title to a section of Balboa Park for educational purposes," City Attorney John J. O'Toole informed the Board of Education last week.

O'Toole added that the transfer of the park to the Board of Education could be done "without very much difficulty."

That section of Balboa Park selected for the site of the San Francisco Junior College was originally dedicated to the city for park purposes, according to O'Toole, but has never been used for such.

The attorney pointed out that he believed the use of the land for educational purposes could be sustained in court.

Construction of the first unit of the new buildings will begin as soon as the land has been transferred, according to reports from the office of the secretary of the Board of Education, with the expectation of having the initial group ready to house 2000 students by January, 1937.

Money for the initial construction work is included in the new budget of the board, and if more funds are needed, the budget will be increased accordingly, according to Hon. C. Harold Caulfield, president of the board. No bond elections will be necessary, he said.

WHY NOT COURTESY?

A good listener is as valuable to conversation as a good talker.

It is suggested that students remain seated and quiet while anyone is speaking at an assembly. Courtesy demands it.

Sometimes a speaker is a trifle uninteresting; sometimes students do not possess minds mature enough to appreciate fully what is being said. Regardless, observe the nicety of paying attention, or, at least, of feigning it.

The Guardsman has continually urged that students attend assemblies; yet, if they go only to get up and leave, quite noisily, in the middle of a talk, the paper reminds them that, after all, they really do not have to come.

WHERE IS YOUR COURAGE?

Proving to be one of the most popular features of The Guardsman, The Ram's Horn has afforded students an opportunity to express their opinions and pet grievances.

Several contributions to the Horn have had to go unpublished for the simple reason that their authors, from LACK OF COURAGE OR LACK OF THE STRENGTH OF THEIR CONVICTIONS, have failed to sign their masterpieces of reform literature.

"Dimejigger" not only failed to sign his work, but also wrote it in such a manner that a conference of the editorial staff was unable to figure out the exact intended meaning.

"N.R.A." sent in an interesting letter, even going to the expense of sending two cents for postage. His little comment, however, must go unpublished because he is anonymous.

The authors of contributions to The Ram's Horn will not have their names published unless they so desire. Their names, however, must be known by the editor—just in case!

NO COMMENT NECESSARY

First afforded the opportunity in San Francisco, the junior college is to have the chance to inaugurate voluntary fingerprinting in this city.

The editor of a nearby university daily decried the fingerprinting idea. Patriotic citizens, however, can have no objections. They will, on the contrary, give the movement their whole-hearted endorsement.

Noted criminologists throughout the nation have long advocated national fingerprinting, not so much as a means of ferreting out menaces to society as a sure-fire method of protecting the law-abiding citizen.

The sooner people come to realize that police departments are for the protection of the honest and of integrity, the sooner will they be able to derive the utmost benefit from this protection, and to give more efficient cooperation toward decreasing the crime rate.

BOOKSTORE MATTER INVESTIGATED

Formation of a cooperative students' bookstore has been the latest subject of major discussion around the campus. The idea is splendid, but at the present there are more implications in the matter than would be apparent at a casual glance.

Unsigned letters to The Ram's Horn have not only urged the establishment of such an organization, but have also condemned the local commercial bookstore.

The Guardsman seeks to champion neither the one side nor the other. It seeks, however, to champion the cause of FAIRNESS, CONSIDERATION, and DECENCY. Toward this end an exhaustive investigation into every phase of the matter has been made; all accusations and rumors have been carried to their alleged sources, and explanations received.

There was an allegation that the local bookstore was selling books at prices higher than those of other book marts. THIS IS AN ABSOLUTELY FALSE CONTENTION, THE INVESTIGATION REVEALED. The store sells books at publishers' prices—prices set by the publishers; and these prices are exactly the same as those of all legitimate, fair dealers in new books, including the co-op of the University of California.

The next pet grievance is that the San Francisco Junior College store allows only 40 per cent cash, and 50 per cent credit, on books turned back to it. According to William C. Patterson, manager, this is necessary because what small margin of profit he may make is made principally from the sale of used books. Rent in the present location, the only one available near the Extension Building, is excessively high. In order to meet such an overhead, Patterson claims that he cannot allow more than his present percentages and still remain in business.

As soon as the college becomes more permanently established, and it is definitely known from one semester to the next which books will be used and which ones will be discontinued, an allowance equal to that of any other store will be given—THE 50 AND 60 PER CENT WHICH IS NOW EMPLOYED IN UNIVERSITY TOWNS.

One letter to The Ram's Horn even accused the college administration of favoritism in giving Patterson a monopoly. This is another entirely false contention, one which apparently formulated in the mind of someone who lacked the courage to investigate for himself, yet who, on a mere sudden idea, unfounded in fact, was willing to voice an opinion—but an opinion given BEHIND THE ADMINISTRATION'S BACK.

The administration has granted absolutely no monopoly. The list of books to be used is available to every bookstore that wishes to see it as soon as it is ready for release, with absolutely no preference shown. It is a fact, also, that no bookstore other than the present one has

President Invited To Join Women in Tea; Page Emily Post!

By MAURY SCHWARZ

Although a bit late, we, the ex council, hope it isn't too late to offer our congratulations to the basketball team for winning the conference championship. We can point with even greater pride now to the fact that S.F.J.C. is our Alma Mater. In recognition of the team's triumph, our semi-annual Hi-Jinks will be held in honor of the basketball team, and there, gold basketballs will be presented to the players.

In the way of news . . .

Mimi Colton and I wish to thank the A.W.S. for their cordial invitation to attend their tea which will be held tomorrow afternoon. I'll admit that I've often felt nervous and had chills going up and down my spine before a boxing match, but I never felt the indescribable sensations I get when I think of my possible presence at an A.W.S. tea. If I'm not there, it will be because I haven't had a chance to read up on my book of etiquette. However, thanks again. I feel greatly honored.

The date for our swimming frolic has been changed to Wednesday, March 18, but it's still being held at the Fairmont Plunge. The social committee is arranging different novelty contests, so that all swimmers, whether good or not so good, will have an equal chance at the prizes. A special rate of 35 cents per student with an Associated Student Body card, has been obtained and spectators will be admitted free of charge. Tickets may be purchased from Mimi Colton, Fleming Pope, Tim Guiney or myself.

The Junior Chamber of Commerce will be in charge of the assembly to be held tomorrow. The speakers will probably give us demonstrations of the methods of fingerprinting which should be very interesting. Be there on time, so that the program can start on time—1:45.

Next Thursday, March 19, Griff Williams, from the Mark Hopkins Hotel, will be the main attraction at our rally. The final judging of the whiskerino contest will also be held at this rally.

We have group training for the coming fights every Monday, Wednesday and Friday, at 1:30 p.m. You may still join by showing up today.

TREASURE ISLAND

By Harold Augustin Calahan
(Reviewed by Donald Flash)

Paying a twentieth century tribute to Robert Louis Stevenson and his immortal romance, Treasure Island, Harold Augustin Calahan has, in Back to Treasure Island, related the further adventures of Jim Hawkins and his struggle with pirates in the search for another loot of buried treasure.

Subjugating himself to follow the trend of thought that Stevenson must have used when he wrote Treasure Island, Mr. Calahan has picked up a few loose threads which he insists were left by Stevenson for the express purpose of providing a means for a future sequel, and carefully knit his tale to the earlier adventure by using as his basis the obscure references to the negro wife of John Silver, the mysterious Mr. Blandly, and certain marks on the chart.

Mr. Calahan, beginning his story shortly after the concluding incidents in Treasure Island, tells how Jim Hawkins, distrustful of banks, has kept half of his money buried, while his friends are financially ruined by the bursting of the famous South Sea Bubble in 1720. Outfitting a boat, they sail back to Treasure Island in search of the last part of Captain Flint's buried treasure, tons of bar silver, with which they had not bothered on their first treasure hunt. In spite of all precautions, pirates again smuggle aboard the ship, and then begin, in their usual way, to hamper and terrorize Jim Hawkins and his friends.

This book should become inseparable companion to its predecessor, for Mr. Calahan has made of it a work worthy of at least a small share of the success of Treasure Island.

MYSTERY SOLVED!

"What is that big hole for? What is that big hole for? What is that big hole for?" Queries such as these have been floating around for the last month or so, as students ogled at the digging workmen at Van Ness and Bay.

Well, everybody . . . it's a high-pressure cistern, in case you didn't know, for the Fire Department. It is a Federal Public Works project and will be completed in about a month. In case of earthquake, if the water main breaks, the Fire Department can draw from this extra supply.

Paper Talk

Not much to write about this week, so, because everyone's wits should be sharp after mid-terms, a few puzzles. Most of them are old, but pretty tricky to those who haven't heard them before.

Number 1

A man has been away from his home town for 30 years, during which time he has neither seen nor heard of any of his old friends.

Thirty years later he returns. He meets his old chum, whom he used to pal around with. While they are conversing it develops that the chum is married.

"Have you any children?" inquires the traveler.

"Yes, I have a daughter by the name of Evelyn," the chum replies.

"Oh!" the traveler says, "you named the child after its mother."

How did the traveler, after 30 years, know that his chum's child was named after its mother?

Number 2

A man goes to a bank and borrows as much as he has and then spends $20. He repeats this a second and a third time. He then has no money left.

How much money did he have to begin with?

Number 3

A man has two pieces of string. One is twice as long as the other. If he cuts six inches off each piece, one will be three times as long as the other.

How long is each piece of string?

Half a number squared is twice the number.

What is the number?

Number 5

A wealthy Arabian who is about to die has two sons. He wishes to leave his fortune to only one of them. He summons them to his bedside and instructs them to have a race on horseback—the estate going to the one whose horse loses the race.

Not wishing to stall purposely, the sons are stuck, so they consult a Wise Man.

How does the Wise Man instruct them?

It Comes Out Here

Here's the latest news on our president:

Maury Schwarz "got taken" for the bill the last two times he was out. Maybe he was so interested in the girl accompanying him that the bill was the farthest thing from his mind.

At the San Francisco-San Mateo game, they wouldn't admit Schwarz because he didn't have his student body card with him. I guess the presidency means nothing.

Bill Reynolds vowed he wouldn't give his ring away. It is now missing from his finger and a girl called Puss is suspected of wearing the ring.

It is more than rumored—it is known: that Bob Neal cheated on his girl friend Friday night; February 28, when he took Marie Higgins to the Mark Hopkins. Bob now certainly has heart interests for himself over at San Francisco State, as Marie and Lil are both Staters.

Gladys Herst shows symptoms of being related to an Eskimo. She wears her fur coat to school on blistering hot days.

Every little thing is o.k. once more with Helene Maloney and Dick Reilly. They went out together the other weekend for the first time since their big break-up.

That fellow who plays piano on Wednesdays around 2:30 o'clock in the auditorium certainly gathers the girls around him. Have you ever heard his playing?

Have you ever decided to be discreet and amble over to Fort Mason? There is a swell walk over there, popularly called Lovers' Lane. Of course, it isn't a college credit course, but for further information see "Casanova" Pedrin.

What boy follows what girl like ink follows a pen? Not T. McH.!

Thanks for the cigarette contribution, Messrs. Fred Wilkinson and Pete Jambruno.

THE RAM'S HORN

Ask Arbitration To Try To Make 'Silent' Library

Dear Editor:

In regard to the placing of rubber stubs on the chairs in the library, I think Anonymous's letter deserves a reply. It seems that a "let-it-put-them-on-itself" attitude is most unreasonable, for, after all, "IT" merely made a suggestion that could be either disregarded (courteously) or taken up if possible.

You must admit, Anonymous, that the noise in the library is at times very distracting, and that it is the policy of all libraries to maintain a certain amount of silence. For these reasons, I think "IT's" complaint a reasonable one. This college is comparatively young in its establishment, and naturally suggestions for improvement will come up until we are actually settled in our own building; but if each idea is going to be turned down and dismissed so coldly, then I can't see how we can achieve a unified, cooperative student body. And so, if Anonymous wants "IT" to put the stubs on the chairs, all Anonymous has to do is to supply "IT" with the stubs, and I am sure "IT" will put them on "ITSELF."

MISS ARBITRATOR.

P.S. No doubt, in spite of these articles, the chairs in the library still continue to mock us, and groan even louder each time we move.

NOTE: Let me introduce all three of you, and we'll start a combination anti-noise and anti-work committee.—Ed.

CURTAINI

By Irvin Silberstein

Dead End, a current Broadway success enjoying a long run, has an interesting set. The play, much on the order of Street Scene, has for its scene the "dead end" of an alley in the slums. The orchestra pit represents the East River and during the course of the play, youths in the cast "jump in."

* * *

Boy Meets Girl, another success due for a long run, takes a whack at the Hollywood play writing or script writing racket. Like Once In a Lifetime (by the same authors), this farce carries each detail to a hilarious point of exaggeration. According to the story, the plot for nearly every movie script has three divisions: (1) boy meets girl! (2) complications—misunderstanding, boy and girl are separated; (3) conclusion—boy and girl make up.

Spotlight
Browne Again!

Assistant Dean Edwin C. Browne afforded the Drama 1A section a rare bit of entertainment and education when he visited the class Friday, March 6.

After hearing a young man recite a poetry selection with not too much fervor and enthusiasm, Browne offered to show his powers of interpretation, using the same selection.

Jim Bludso of the Prairie Belle (by John Hay) was created right out of print, gestures included . . . a perfect lesson in sight reading.

The Children's Hour, a tragic drama by Lillian Hellman, is playing now at the Curran Theater. The play, staged by Herman Shumlin, stayed two years in New York.

FASHION FLASHES

By FEM

For many years psychologists have said that the best thing a woman can do when she feels downhearted is to buy a new hat. We find that this is especially true this year, for even if you don't actually buy a hat, just trying on some of the "madder" ones will cause that "down-in-the-dumps" feeling to disappear.

Among the most popular styles for spring is the Homberg felt, which is a very mannish type. In direct contrast to this is the shiny straw sailor, which usually features a veil or, perhaps, a tiny nosegay of bright spring flowers nestling on the brim or the crown.

Flowers for hat trimming are used a great deal, and some ingenious designers are even using vegetable trimmings! One smart chapeau actually featured a bunch of carrots that looked so realistic that we fervently hope the wearer never comes too close to a hungry horse!

There is a great deal of Spanish and Chinese influence in hats this spring. Styled after those worn by the Caballeros, some feature wide brims, and even a chin strap to add to the authenticity. Chinese styles come patterned after the coolie, the mandarin, and even the pagoda!

SAILING THROUGH THE NEWS

Two thousand homicidally inclined criminals roaming around the San Francisco Bay region, armed and desperate, is an interesting matter to contemplate.

Possibility of that is told in one of the local dailies by Don Castle, former Sacramento editor who spent 17 months in San Quentin on a bad check charge.

It is brutal to say so, but perhaps it would not be such a terrible thing, after all, if the break were to take place. Sooner or later, the criminals would either be killed outright or captured and executed; thus society would benefit from the decrease in the members of the criminal element.

The prison would be almost completely demolished, according to the purported plans revealed by Castle; then the state could put men to work building new ones, and would not have to find new trails for relief workers to build through little-frequented hills—trails which, although nice, are hardly of prior importance under present chaotic conditions.

Revolution
Going Backward

Throughout history most revolutions have been instigated by so-called radicals, and have been directed against the old order of things.

The reverse of this occurred in Japan in the recent outbreaks there. Leaders of the revolt were men who were dissatisfied with the government's slight tendency toward modernization and liberalization. The insurgents wanted strict militarism, censorship of liberality, and advocated fostering of the antiquated chauvinistic theory of intense nationalism and rigidity of government control. So intense was their feeling on the matter that they even were willing to sacrifice their lives.

Gloria patriae, sure; but what glory can possibly accrue to their bullet-riddled corpses?

Let's Have
The Oily Truth

Ever full of brilliant ideas, the League of Nations now proposes actually to put into effect an oil ban on Italy if that country will not desist in its African foray.

Just how much good such an embargo would accomplish is somewhat nebulous. Many say that it is impossible unless the United States joins in the ban. A little research into the matter, however, will reveal that this country, in the past, has furnished Il Duce's fatherland with somewhat less than 10 per cent of its petroleum products. The actual figures are as follows:

Source	% of Total
Roumania	45.4
Iran (Persia)	14.8
Russia	14.4
Dutch West Indies	11.5
United States	6.5
Colombia	3.2
Iraq	2.5
Others	1.7

One may judge for oneself, from the above statistics, just how effective an oil ban by the league would be, even assuming that the United States were to join in the embargo.

War!
Why Not Peace?

Rather depressing and disheartening was the headline that greeted me when I picked up my favorite conservative daily recently. SOVIET READY FOR WAR. STALIN WARNS, it read.

That made me appreciate one fact about the League of Nations. Most news of its doings are, at least, on talks of peace, and ways to prevent war. Of course, it is no more than talk, but at least it IS talk of peace.

There is one consolation in the Soviet warning. War with either Germany or Japan, or both, is the stipulation. Those two nations seem to do so much throat-cutting among themselves that it would not be so hideous, after all, if another country of radicals were to join the little melees.

Publicity
Or Notoriety?

The U.C. Chapter of the American Students' Union recently advocated complete boycotting of the moving picture "Red Salute." Three diligent paraders picketed the theater in Berkeley where it was showing.

A camera-man appeared on the scene; pictures were taken. "Ah ha!" thought the pickets, "we get some publicity in the San Francisco News."

Alas, their expectant joy was turned into chagrin when they later learned that the photographer was sent, not by a newspaper, but by the Berkeley Police Department!

BASEBALL SQUAD OPENS J.C. CONFERENCE COMPETITION VS. MARINERS HERE ON SATURDAY

SPRING PRACTICE

By HOWARD CAPPS

Champs
Catch the Eye

Coach Dutch Conlan and his efficient staff of conference champs are the medium through which San Francisco Junior College is gaining recognition from local sports writers.

With most of us assuming an "it's about time" attitude, San Francisco scribes are at last lauding "Dutch" and the Ram varsity for their near-miraculous feat in capturing the conference title in their first attempt.

It seems that they aren't restricting their articles to basketball, either, for one morning paper recently devoted quite some space to an account of the jaysee crew.

* * *

What
Warren Says

"Whizzer" Warren, bespectacled quarter-miler, is an ardent booster of the Messrs. George Compas and Dan Southart. He defends the rather ordinary "best" time of 10.6 for Compas in the century, claiming the track was in very poor condition.

Southart, Warren claims, has a 14.9 mark to his credit in the high hurdles. Should Russ Sweet chop a few tenths from Southart's time, Leroy Kirkpatrick, San Mateo J.C. hurdle marvel, will taste his first real competition in jaysee track this Spring.

* * *

Gridders
Start Soon

Spring football practice will probably begin in April, Coach Russ Sweet reveals. Listed "among those missing" will be Vasco Vanelli, varsity tackle of last season, and Bob Eltringham, halfback. San Jose State has enlisted the services of these two.

Russ Clark, whose play at the right tackle post was one of the standouts of the 1935 season, is now at Santa Clara. Odero Guisti and Tom Murphy have filed intentions of joining him there later.

Outstanding among the new material at this early date is Walt Loving, giant transfer from Marin. Loving played a lot of end for the Mariners and stands well over six feet, tipping the beams at 230 pounds honest weight, no springs.

Lose Hoop
Captain Next Year

Speaking of losses, Captain Ralph Hillsman of the championship hoop squad will not be here next season. There is also doubt about the return of forward Len Leahy, who came into his own late in the season, turning in a good performance in the crucial series against San Mateo. Guido "Minute Man" Nicco, who earned both his and the Rams' titles by a bucket from "way out" in the closing minute of the second Santa Rosa game, has another year of competition but may not be here, either.

Although these men will be missed greatly, we may well be sure of capable replacements, as Dutch Conlan has the knack of converting ordinary players into real stars.

* * *

Lack of equipment holds crew activity to a standstill at present, but Coach Jack Gaddy expects this condition to be remedied shortly.

A wealth of material, supplied mainly by San Mateo J.C. and Lowell High, will be on hand when Gaddy calls his first practice.

When Larry Favor, star shortstop, left school his teammates expected to be hard hit at the loss. Much of the sting has been taken out of Favor's absence by the snappy work of Bob Fex, however. Coach Elsan converted Fex from a centerfielder to a shortstop with almost no notice. Bob handled all of his chances perfectly in the Galileo game, but had an off day at the bat.

A very disgusted fellow is Golf Manager Jack Welsh. He came out on the short end of his Sunday match in the Emporium-City golf play, in an off-form round.

Bob McGlashan and "Dutch" Conlan both succumbed one down in matches that could have gone either way. "Dutch's" opponent, Bob Thompson, is Stanford's number one man and "seeded" by many experts in this tourney. He was unable to subdue Conlan until the home green, however.

Racquet Men Meet Menlo In League Play

After winning from the University of San Francisco net team, five matches to four, last Friday, the Ram tennis squad went up against a strong University of California freshman outfit Saturday and came out on the short end of an eight to one score.

The locals won the second, fifth and sixth singles matches, and the first and second doubles games from the Dons at the Palace of Fine Arts Courts.

Although Hodes and Durfee Jaysee number one man, put up a brilliant performance on the court against the Bears, the Berkeley team had too much for the locals on Saturday.

However, neither of these matches counts as anything more than practice.

Tomorrow Tom Wilson's racqueteers travel to Menlo J.C. to engage the Oaks in the first conference net matches, but it is possible that the conference matches may be postponed because of an epidemic on the Menlo campus.

Present rankings are: 1, Durfee; 2, Hodges; 3, Novikoff; 4, Rogaway; 5, James, and 6, Pulceneo.

Wilson Sets Tennis Dates

With hopes of presenting a strong college tennis team in conference circles during the summer, Coach Tom Wilson has arranged a singles and doubles match play to discover the best talent available. Wilson said he expects results from the singles prowess of Milton Durfee, and a strong doubles team composed of Durfee and Rogaway.

"Chances for a tennis championship in the Junior College Conference look pretty good right now," Wilson said. "I think our only troublesome opponent will be San Mateo J.C., which has captured the net crown too many times to be taken lightly."

The list of singles matches being played off this week follows:

Byes: Durfee, G. Novikoff, Rogaway.

Cahsnez vs. Licknin; Karsant vs. Lincoln; Gutrerrez vs. Cardinal; Davis vs. Bertolucci; Grohs vs. Bryan; Pavloff vs. Charles; Campillo vs. Austin; Cassey vs. Floroff; James vs. Munson; Hansen vs. Lum; Prisenco vs. Gee; Kanimos vs. Poostovol.

The doubles matches:

Byes: Hodes, Novikoff; Cardinal, Lincoln; Durfee, Rogaway; Davis, James; Floroff, Pavloff.

Bryan, Hansen vs. Merrin, Nagahashi; Presenco, Casey vs. Charles, Warner; Gee, Lum vs. Karsant, Karsant.

Faculty Netmen Have Own Tourney

Faculty members must have their recreation as well as anyone else, so Tom Wilson, tennis coach, has arranged a tennis tournament for professors exclusively. Players must make mutual arrangements as to the play-offs.

First round matches must be played by March 18, Wilson said, quarter-finals by March 27, semi-finals by April 10, and finals on April 18. Game scores should be turned in to Wilson as soon as matches have been played.

Singles matches are as follows: Gerstung—bye; Parker vs. Berman; Nichols vs. Goss; Elsan—bye; Sweet vs. Amori; Hughes vs. Williams; Gaddy vs. Mohr; Sandys—bye.

Favorites are Sandys and Mohr, according to pre-game dopesters.

Men's Club Gets Ready for Boxing

Planning to present another of its frequent boxing and wrestling shows, the Men's Club is busy engaging talent to perform at the Verdi Club near the end of the month, according to Joe Amori, faculty adviser.

"We will have more weight classifications than ever before, with awards for the winners in each division," Amori said. "All men students are eligible to compete, and they may do so by signing up with either Bob Sisco or myself."

A list of entries so far includes Dave Shiller, James Neal, Bob Weinstock, Deming Smith, Dick Barfield, John Jefferson, Bob Young, "Red" Brickley, Odero Guisti, Glen Allen, Gene Sullivan, Maury Schwarz, Carlyle Caine, and Tom Connolly.

Champions' Awards Still Undecided By Committee

The final decision upon what awards shall be granted the championship San Francisco cagers has not yet been reached, according to Tyler McHugh, chairman of the awards committee.

Questions as to whether all men should receive blocks, and how many should get gold basketballs are now being debated by the committee, which is composed of Tim Guiney, Arlene Frazieres, Helene Wright and Bob Sisco.

However, Joe Amori is expected to present a point-system which will iron out matters successfully, allowing the champions the recognition they deserve.

Game and Championship

The man on the other guy's back is Len Leahy, who is making an unsuccessful attempt to get possession of the ball as San Mateo's Al Johnson retrieves it off the backboard after a shot by Lowans (No. 4).

Other men in the picture are Caine (No. 9), while just stepping into view is Kohn of San Mateo. Directly in front of Kohn is Monty Mordecai, while the player in front of Caine is Don Haney, Bulldog guard.

Intramurals Will Start In 3 Weeks

Intramural sports competition, long held up during the recent rainy period, is scheduled to begin during the second week of May, when Coach Russ Sweet will conduct an interclass track meet. Sweet has entered all of his varsity cinder aspirants in the meet, and urges anyone else who is interested to sign up during this week if possible.

Among the dash men figured to compete are Jackson, Compas, and Farley, with Gerarty and Warren in the 440 and Towell, Allison, Bertram, and Gibeau in the 880-yard event.

Jablonsky, Segurson, Scott, Lee, and Brickley comprise the weight men, with Scott the lone entry for the javelin throw. Loustalot and Hughes are expected to provide strong competition in the high jump.

The strength of this squad, however, will not bring in points for any one class, as some are frosh and some sophomores.

No definite decision has as yet been made regarding possible awards for winners in interclass events, according to reports from the coaching staff and the student ex council.

After the track season is over, indoor baseball will take the limelight. Lee Elsan has announced that competition in this sport will take place early in April.

Tennis, which is expected to draw a flock of entrants, is scheduled for May.

Other sports, including basketball, touch-football, and golf, will be presented for interclass competition in the Fall semester, according to the present schedule.

Staff Picks All-Conference
Lowans, Caine Lead Scorers

A consensus of opinion among Guardsman sports writers placed two San Francisco Junior College cagers on a mythical all-conference basketball team, with a third named on the second squad.

The unanimous choice for a first team is as follows:

Forward—Lowans, S.F.
Forward—Copsey, Santa Rosa.
Center—Radunich, Modesto.
Guard—Kerwin, Sacramento.
Guard—Hillsman, S.F.

A bitter debate over the second string selections took place, Louis Bertolucci holding out to place Watson of Sacramento at the center position, while the majority of the other writers picked Kohn of San Mateo. The second five follows.

Forward—Caine, S.F.
Forward—Bendeich, San Mateo.
Center—Kohn, San Mateo.
Guard—Burnett, Marin.
Guard—Triano, Modesto.

Bob Lowans, red-haired Ram forward, led the champion San Francisco cagers in total points scored for the season, a score-book survey shows.

"Red Light" tallied 89 digits in practice games and 84 in the conference, to total 173. Following closely was Captain Ralph Hillsman, who garnered 61 points in practice, and 63 in league competition, for a sum of 124. Paul Rippon had a total of 122, while Carlyle Caine, who did not play in the Marin series, tallied 115. Caine was the highest-scoring local in the conference, with 85 points.

Other tabulations follow:

Swimmers Working Out Under Sweet

The material from which Russ Sweet intends to mold his varsity aquatic outfit is working out daily at the Chinese Y.M.C.A. on Sacramento Street.

Impressive performances by Waldon Klaffke, diver, Herb Brotman, Bob Mowatt, Harold Wetherbee and Richard Simon feature the daily workouts, Sweet said.

Swimming is not considered a major sport by California junior colleges, and consequently there is no conference for the water stars. However, Sweet will endeavor to arrange meets with local high schools and various college frosh teams.

Soccer Men Start Drive For Funds

Under the leadership of Coach Tom Bass, veteran members of last year's soccer squad are now making strenuous efforts to produce a championship team for San Francisco Junior College. Requests for funds to support the team are to be made and the leaders of the shin-skinners are hustily figuring out their needs. Expenses include suits, balls, trip funds, and other incidentals necessary to support a successful campaign.

The soccer squad will play a practice game with Lowell High School Saturday morning at Beach Chalet field. Practices are being held on Tuesdays and Thursdays at Funston Field, 4:30 to 5:30 p.m.

Last year the team was organized by a band of enthusiastic players who paid all their own expenses and arranged for all their games under the supervision of Coach Bass, who gave his services freely upon the request of the students. The team went through a fairly successful season, and managed to eke out several wins. The squad accomplished a great deal, considering the tremendous odds they were forced to face, and this year they expect to win a great many games.

Tom Wilson Gathers Blocks By Bushels, Record Shows

Some save stamps and some save coins, but from the looks of his record, Coach Tom Wilson saves block letters. Twelve blocks in high school and eight in college are his present record. While attending Napa Union High School, he participated in three years of football, basketball, baseball, tennis, and one year of golf.

He entered the College of the Pacific at Stockton in the Fall of 1930, where he played frosh football, basketball, and threw the javelin and discus on the track squad. During the next three years he was halfback on the varsity football team, making second string all-coast in 1934, and first string Far Western Conference in '33 and '34.

In the Spring terms he played guard on the basketball team, aiding in winning the Far Western championship in 1933. He received two blocks and a gold racquet for tennis competition, but was unable to compete in golf. Remembered as one of the greatest players in Pacific Coast football history, he literally stood Southern California and St. Mary's on their heads in 1934 with his "spot" passes.

He served as president of student affairs in '33, and graduated in '34. The next year he enrolled in a post-graduate course, and at the same time assisted in coaching football and basketball, also serving as head tennis coach until coming here in 1935.

Jaysees Beat Cards, Lions In Tight Games

By LOUIE BERTOLUCCI

It took the Ram baseball team nine long innings to prove their superiority over the Stanford frosh Thursday at the Palo Alto campus. But when the last ball had been pitched and runs totaled, San Francisco had 6 runs to 5 for the frosh.

Ram hopes took a dive in the first frame when De Witt, Stanford left-fielder, poled out a home run with two men on. The frosh led 3-0 until the third inning, when the Red and White pushed over four runs to take command at 4-3.

The Rams tallied again in the fifth, but Stanford made two runs in the seventh to tie the score.

With the score tied at 5 all in the ninth, McGelvery, Stanford pitcher, walked Scafani. Fitzgerald sacrificed him to second; Scafani stole third, and a long fly by Guisti made it possible for Tony to ramble home with the winning run.

Acting Captain Felix Anido was great behind the plate, beside knocking out a triple and two singles to lead the batters.

Coach Lee Elsan showed two promising pitchers in Jerry Biggerstaff and Bob Dumesnil. The former yielded six hits in four innings, while the latter allowed three in five frames.

Fitzgerald, who made some hard catches in centerfield; Bob Fex, who knocked down several sure hits in the shortstop patch; Odero Guisti at the bat, and Ed McSweeney at the bat and in centerfield caused the bright sparkle in Elsan's eye.

The Rams took another victory last week when they defeated the Galileo High School tossers, 7-6, at Funston Field in a 7-inning affair.

The locals scored twice in the first inning but lost their lead when the Galileans put over four runs in the next frame. Hits by Guisti and Lucchesi enabled the Rams to score again in the third and fifth to tie the count at 4 all, and they put over three more in the seventh to clinch the game. In this session Ben McGuire stole home from third base with the winning run.

Wilgus let the Lions down with nine singles, whiffing 11 batters, while Anido took good in stealing four bases during the afternoon.

The Bat Bag

By OSCAR BAUER

JOHNNY FITZGERALD, the lad who patrols the outfield, once blew the trumpet for Cordova's orchestra. . . . Flashes of Ty Cobb: BEN McGUIRE was speed personified when he stole home in the last inning of the Galileo-S.F.J.C. struggle. His score proved to be the winning margin of victory. FELIX ANIDO gave an exhibition of sliding. He was seen hitting the dirt at second base no less than four times. . . . With the basketball season over, baseball is now the leading sports topic of the campus (?) . . . We hope that the national pastime will receive as good support as did the championship basketball squad. . . . Talk about versatile athletes: The starting lineup of CHARLIE KREMESEC'S "Blinkers" is also a part of LEE ELSAN'S baseball lineup. . . . BOB FEX, guard, plays short; TONY SCAFANI, forward, holds down the keystone sack; LARRY WILGUS, center, handles the pitching chores; BEN McGUIRE, forward, is in the outfield when not doing some relief twirling, and GEORGE McGUIRE, guard, has charge of the initial sack. . . . The team travels by automobile this year, with cars of LEE ELSAN, JACK GADDY, BEN McGUIRE and JOE MARTINEZ.

Ram Tossers to Meet S.F. State at Seals Tomorrow

Beginning San Francisco Junior College's second venture into Northern California Junior College Conference competition, Coach Lee Eisan's peppery baseball nine engages a strong Marin J.C. diamond squad Saturday at Funston field. The teams will play a double-header, with the first encounter starting at 11 o'clock.

Today Elsan's tossers have a practice engagement with Balboa High School at the Buc grounds, at 2:30 p.m., and tomorrow they tangle with the strong San Francisco State batters in a feature attraction starting at 2:30 at Seals Stadium.

Larry Wilgus will probably get the starting assignment against Marin, with Bob Dumesnil, Ben McGuire and Jerry Biggerstaff alternating in the other conflicts.

While little is known of the Marin team's prowess, the Rams are not too worried, having a few wins under their belts to insure confidence. Elsan will probably start, besides Wilgus, George McGuire at first, and Tony Scafani at second, Bob Fex in the shortstop region, and Od Guisti at third base. Fitzgerald, McSweeney and Lucchesi are figured to handle the outfield posts, with Felix Anido behind the plate.

Fex, formerly an outfielder, was shifted to shortstop when Larry Favor left school, and is showing up well in his new position.

The Rams are gradually getting the knack of hitting the ball, something they have failed to do so far this season, and figure to give the Marin mound starter a workout from the first inning on.

Cinder Stars Nearing Form

By BUD McSWEENEY

Coach Russ Sweet and company are striving in earnest now at track practice sessions, as the recent escapade of Jupiter Pluvius has put them about two weeks in arrears for their training.

Besides, the cinder season is rapidly drawing near, with the first meet scheduled for March 21 against the University of California freshmen. As a further incentive, our arch rival, San Mateo Junior College, has run its first time trials in more than fair fashion, which makes the Rams train harder than before.

Several new faces appeared last week, all of them in the field events. Bill Lee and Charles Brickley, former gridiron stalwarts, are out there trying for the shot put, while Rosewelzen lad from New York, is putting in his bid for the same event. Rosewelz is a rarity in his field, a southpaw weight tosser.

A newcomer in the high jump is Hughes. Clavarie and Stafford have joined Fahn in his pole vault endeavors.

The track at the U.S.F. field is still soggy in spots, especially around the shot put circle and jumping pits, but despite the adverse conditions there are no serious complaints.

The return of George Compas, who was laid up for several weeks with a strained back, boosts the dash situation, with Compas expected to give Bill Jackson a run for his money in the sprints.

Dave Shiller is being groomed by Sweet for the 440 dash, which should prove to be the Rams' strongest event. Ed Scott, javelin thrower, has a few sore muscles which are delaying his form, but these will work out with proper exercise. Weightman Jablonsky's only worry is that we spell his name right, which we do.

Golf Tomorrow

A four-man junior college golf team composed of Bob Dumesnil, Bob McGlashan, Jack Welch and Howard Capps will represent the Rams tomorrow against the University of Santa Clara divot-diggers at the San Jose Country Club.

All of the above four play in the seventies and are figured to be the four who will represent the junior college in conference competition later in the season.

'EXOTIC NAZIMOVA' IS VIEWED BY SCRIBE FROM STAGE WINGS

By GLADYS HERST

Among all the exotic dramatic artists, Nazimova is the most natural. A born genius, she portrays to perfection the role of Mrs. Alving in Ibsen's "Ghosts," giving the character a power and intensity that is truly remarkable.

Nazimova, by the use of clever make-up, is able to transform herself in "Ghosts" from the benna-haired, youthful little person that she is to the tall, distinguished, silver-haired Mrs. Alving, the tragic mother surrounded by the "ghostly" reminders of her dead husband's past.

To give the impression of height, the actress wears a navy-blue gown and a flowing jacket, and to accentuate the desired air of penetration, she makes use of brunette grease-paint on her lashes and a blue shadow on her eyelids. Nazimova's attitude throughout the play is that of a woman whom life has disillusioned and who holds no emotion now other than fear. Her use of the "pause" is most effective.

Mme. Nazimova, a native of Russia, made her first dramatic attempts in the "little theaters." In her portrayal of Mrs. Alving in "Ghosts," she has fulfilled one of her lifelong ambitions. Upon her return to New York, she will consider appearing in Alton Chekov's "The Cherry Orchard."

New Club Is Organized By Hotel Students

Group Elects Officers At Luncheon Meeting Last Week

Established as the newest student club of the college, the Society of Hotel and Restaurant Men was organized at a luncheon meeting held at the Plaza Hotel last week.

The officers elected at the meeting are: Frank Claverie, president; Hart Smith, vice-president and reporter; Stuart Kingsland, secretary-treasurer, and Dick Purdy, editor of a bulletin the organization plans to publish. John Gifford, college science instructor, is the faculty adviser of the club.

Present as guests of honor at the luncheon were: President Archibald Cloud; Paul Pitman, his assistant; Dean Edwin C. Browne, and Ray R. Stroh, manager of the Clift Hotel.

The purpose of the newly formed society is to acquaint the hotel world and the general public with the hotel and restaurant course of the junior college. This course is being supported and assisted by the Northern California Hotel Association.

Representing the course and the newly formed society, Clifford Brandon Watson, manager of the Berkeley Women's City Club, and Frank Sullivan, instructor in food management, will leave soon for Los Angeles to attend the National Restaurant Convention, to be held there March 16. They will explain the objects of the course and the club, in the hopes of creating further interest, according to Editor Purdy.

Loss Of San Mateo Wall Taken As Hint; Too Bad We Have None

Part of the wall that surrounds San Mateo Junior College was torn down; someone suggested in the college paper that this might be a hint to the officials to rush the plans for the new junior college in view of this, it is indeed unfortunate that neither the California Extension Building nor the Galileo building belongs to the junior college, thus depriving us of a way of giving hints. The college paper of the University of Texas boasts of being the only college paper with a special correspondent in the Ethiopian war zone. A student from this university decided that he wanted to become a war correspondent, so he shipped out on a freighter and worked his way to the French Somaliland, and from there made his way to Addis Ababa.

Complete directions for impressing the profs, how to avoid being called on for what you don't know, how to get yourself called on for what you do know, and getting unfair grades corrected, are all included in a book entitled The Psychology of Getting Grades, which was written by an anonymous author who "made Phi Beta Kappa without studying."

Chess Team Takes Galileo Down For Humbling Defeat

Having vanquished the seven-man chess team of Galileo High School, the college pawn-pushers are now laying plans to join the Northern California Chess Federation, the ranks of which boast such institutions as Stanford, California, and University of San Francisco.

The victorious five-man team of the college, under Henry Ralston, faculty adviser, consisted of Ralston, Bob Holmes, Ed Ekland, Elden Waller, and Dick Holmes.

A tournament to determine the standing of each member of the club will be held during the course of the next two weeks, according to Waller, secretary of the organization.

"We should like to remind all those students playing chess who have not yet joined our club to get in touch with Ralston," Waller said, urging such students to enter the tournament and join in the competition for a place on the team.

Frankenstein Will Lecture on Operas

Alfred Frankenstein, a noted lecturer, will be in charge of a series of ten programs dealing with the operas of Gilbert and Sullivan starting this evening, March 11, at 7 o'clock in the lecture hall of the Extension Building on Powell Street. All of the Gilbert and Sullivan operas that are still being produced will be discussed by Frankenstein, and presented to the audience by means of phonograph records. Operas to be given include: Trial by Jury, Pinafore, Ruddigore, The Yeomen of the Guard, The Mikado, The Gondoliers, and Princess Ida. The dialogue that he reads summaries of the casts constituting an informal performance.

Faculty Is to Be Guest of Chinese

Members of the faculty will be guests of the Junior College Chinese Students' Club on a eight-seater tour of San Francisco's famous Chinatown next Wednesday evening, March 18, beginning at 7 o'clock, according to word received from W. Lawrence Gee, publicity director of the club.

Officers of the Chinese Club are George Chin, president; Gladys Chin, vice-president; Horn Gok, treasurer; Sarah Jung, secretary; Paul Mark, athletic manager; and Daisy Fung, social chairman.

Rohrs Speaks On Business Trends

Raymond Rohrs, buyer for The Emporium, addressed members of the Economics Club and its guests last Thursday morning in the Powell Street lecture hall.

With Rohrs' address, the Economics Club inaugurated a policy of having a guest speaker of note appear before the members every two weeks.

GLORY OF PAST IS STILL MAINTAINED BY LONE SURVIVOR

Alone, one of the last of its race, it stands. The coppery skin glistens in the light of the morning sun. Stoically, fatalistically resigned to the knowledge that even its days must be numbered, it stands uncomplainingly with its virile chest naked to the elements.

Tall and stately, representing a manly glory of pioneer days, it remains unmoved by the hurrying products of modern science about it. If it notices the encroachers, the men who stole its domains, it is probably with a faintly disdainful contempt, for on its immobile face a mocking smile can perhaps be seen.

Day in, day out, it remains there. Clutched in its left hand is a mighty tomahawk, and in its richt—perhaps an anachronism—the 44. It is not, however, the old 44 of the romantic western plain. No, it is the modern interpretation of the peace-pipe—a box of cigars.

Yes, you must have guessed it by this time. It is none other than a genuine, wooden, cigar-store Indian, the only one this wanderer of the streets has seen in San Francisco for several years.

This noble Indian nods his plumed head over slotted Clay Street, near Battery, just across from the Custom House.

Roll on, oh March of Time—I stand unmoved!

President's Gavel Suggested by Club

Due to the fact that it is getting no funds from the Associated Students, the Skull and Blade Society announced at its last meeting that it will abandon the idea of presenting a gavel to the outgoing president of the Associated Students each semester.

The group suggests, however, that the students of the college present a gavel to the president in token of their appreciation of his work. This matter will be brought up at the next meeting of the Executive Council by Representative Bill Kennedy.

President Ray Brunn wishes to thank the students for cooperating with the auditorium committee at the last rally, and announces that the Skull and Blade will continue to take charge of the doors and help maintain order.

S.F.J.C. stickers are still being sold by the society, and may be purchased at Room 260, Grilloo, between 2:15 and 4:00 o'clock p.m.

Associated Students Report On Finances Given By Nichols

Warning was given last week by Ward A. Nichols, comptroller, regarding the purchasing of goods by students who have been making expenditures without authorization. Any student must secure a purchase order from the office and must have it ok'ed by a faculty adviser and also by Nichols. This is to protect the student in case there is any mistake, Nichols said.

With basketball season over, the student fund has sufficient capital left to buy the various awards for the team, according to the comptroller.

Those students who have not yet collected their chemistry deposits for the fall semester are urged to do so immediately, as Dean Edwin C. Browne wishes to clear them off the books, the finance director said.

Any student who has not paid his I.O.U.'s for fees this term is asked to get them paid up as soon as possible. If they are not paid the student's credit will be held until settled, Nichols warned.

The financial report of the Associated Students up to last Friday, as released by Nichols, is as follows:

IT'S A 'PIPE!' OBTAINS PRIZE OUT OF SLOT MACHINE ON FERRY

By ROBERT L. SPENCER

It happened on the San Francisco-bound ferry the other morning. . . . An elderly, gray-haired woman was inserting one nickel after another into a type of slot machine which is supposed to pick up—by adroit manipulation—various and sundry gifts, from a bed of sugar candy, and drop them via a chute into the waiting hands of the gullible players. By the time the ferry came abreast of Yerba Buena island, the woman found her nickels exhausted, her temper nearly so, and . . . nothing to show for it.

Producing a dollar bill from the depths of her purse, she had it changed into nickels, and then grimly, and in mounting anger, resumed playing. Suddenly, she emitted a stifled shout . . . a silver combination lighter and cigarette case was caught in the jaws of the machine! A smile broke over the woman's face, but quickly changed to a look of bitter grief when the case fell back into the machine. Undaunted, she continued her quest for it. When the ferry was nosing into the slip, and all but two of her nickels were gone, she was rewarded with success . . . a pipe!

E. M. Beal Talks To Engineer Students

Speaking on "Underground Construction," E. M. Beal of the P. G. & E. gave a talk before 30 members of the Engineers Club last Thursday.

The club will have a new speaker at its next meeting, the date of which has not been set as yet.

Famous Opera Man Talks To Interviewer

Fortune Gallo of San Carlo Company Found Genial and Unassuming

By MARGARET CECCOTTI

Founder of a noted opera company, one-time employer of such celebrities as Lucrecia Bori, Tito Schipa, and Giovanni Martinelli, holder of three honorary titles from the Italian government—that's Fortune Gallo, energetic little impresario of the San Carlo Opera Company, which has just completed a successful two weeks' engagement in San Francisco.

Such success might easily turn anyone's head, but Mr. Gallo, despite his many achievements, is a most unassuming, modest, and genial individual.

ARTIST-EMPLOYER

When this reporter braved the unknown and sought out the noted impresario in his suite at the St. Francis Hotel, she was greeted with a hearty hand-shake, a cheerful smile, and an invitation to occupy the most comfortable chair available.

As he looked that morning, Mr. Gallo seemed an artist himself, rather than an employer of artists. With a jaunty blue beret perched on his head, and a gray, quilted silk jacket over his shoulders, he bustled about, answering phone calls and what-not during the conversation. He had several costumes lying on a chair, and two desks were practically covered with letters and papers.

LIKES SAN FRANCISCO

"San Francisco is one of my favorite cities," he said in his delightful Italian accent. "I came here for the first time in 1906 with Ellery's band, and just missed the earthquake in 1906 by three days."

Gallo organized his first opera company here in 1911 and engaged the famous Ruggiero Leoncavallo, composer of "I Pagliacci," to conduct the performances as a special attraction. Among his millions of opera converts, Gallo boasts of the late President Warren Harding and Queen Liliuokalani of Honolulu, who was persuaded to attend the opera after she had left the palace for 22 years.

"LUCKY ROOSTER"

In addition to carrying out his slogan of "opera for everyone," Gallo has also other achievements to his credit. He brought Anna Pavlowa and her Ballet Russe to the United States and managed the last American tour of the celebrated Italian actress, Eleonora Duse.

Mr. Gallo's name, when translated, means "Fortunate Rooster," and the impresario would modestly attribute his success to luck of fortune. But to begin as an immigrant of 15 with 12 cents in his pocket and to attain the heights he has reached requires more than luck. Even Mr. Gallo has to admit that work and talent played at least a small part in his realized ambition of presenting opera to the American public.

WHISKERINO WILL END AT RALLY TO BE HELD THURS.

Skull and Blade Club Expected to Do Novel Stunts

WILLIAMS PLAYS

Noscola Artist From Mark Hopkins Featured

With a full program including awarding of prizes in the Men's Club Whiskerino and entertainment by Hotel Mark Hopkins' Griff Williams and his musicians, an Associated Students' rally will be held tomorrow at 1:45 p.m. in the Galileo auditorium.

Joe Amori, faculty adviser to the Men's Club, and President Maury Schwarz will judge the twenty contestants in the beard-growing contest, and will award prizes for the fanciest, blackest, reddest and most invisible facial growths. At this writing, Al Cohn is leading the flock for the blackest tufts, having nearly an inch of dark whiskers on his countenance. Forrest Morrison, Ty McHugh, and George Clarke are also figured to be "in the money" at the judging.

A close decision between Charles Kremesec and Howard Capps for the most invisible beard title is expected by observers, for, although Kremesec has the longer hairs, Capps has the fewer.

A surprise performance by the Skull and Blade is also expected in regard to the Whiskerino.

As a preview to the Junior College Night to be held Friday at the Mark Hopkins, Griff Williams, genial orchestra leader of the hilltop resort, will present three of his entertainers, Buddy Moreno, Williams' featured solo singer, will perform, as will Joe Brigandi and Ray Griffith.

Brigandi will present four novelty instrumental acts, playing the "Schnozsola," "Hosaphone," the "Regalsaxophone," and the "Garden Hose," besides singing one of his latest compositions. Miss Griffith will sing popular ballads.

Hotel Engineering Next to Be Taught In Student Course

Offered as the next step in education in all phases of hostelry work, hotel and restaurant engineering taught by Brandon Watson, will be taught to students of the college's hotel and restaurant management course.

Watson, formerly assistant instructor in hotel engineering at Cornell University, is now manager of the Berkeley Women's City Club. He will bring to students a presentation of theory and practice in the subject of a department in which efficiency in operation determines to a large degree the margin of profit, according to John Gifford, coordinator of the college course.

The work involved will include lectures and practical experience in the fundamental principles of hotel steam power plants, boilers and methods of firing, control and operation, heating and ventilation, together with elements of air conditioning and refrigeration, presented from the management viewpoint, Gifford says.

College Swim Party to Take Place Tonight

Plunge Affair Will Be Held At Fairmont; Tickets Are 35 Cents

Continuing a program of varied social activities, the executive committee has made arrangements for an all-college swimming party to be held tonight at the Fairmont plunge, located at the Hotel Fairmont, Mason and California Streets, beginning at 8 o'clock.

Admission to the affair will be 35 cents per student, a special reduction from the regular price. College spectators will be admitted free upon presentation of an Associated Students' card.

STUNTS PLANNED

Working under President Maury Schwarz, a committee has been making plans for a variety of feature stunts to take place at the party. In addition to straight races and diving contests, it is planned to have comic competitions in different phases of aquatic sports.

Promising to be one of the most humorous of the events, according to Schwarz, will be a "night-gown" race, open to men and women alike. In this affair contestants, clothed in flowing night-gowns, dive into the water, and try to see who can get his garments off and on the fastest, or possibly on someone else, or something like that.

"DON'T BE SHOCKED"

"But don't worry about your modesty being shocked," laughed Schwarz, in explaining the event. "Contestants will wear bathing suits under the sleeping garments."

Tickets for the aquatic evening may be secured from Schwarz, Tim Guiney, or Mimi Colton, or they may be paid tonight at the Fairmont plunge.

Philosophy Club To Hear Talk Tonight

At the next meeting of the Philosophy Club, Alex Goodenbakloff, a member, will read an original paper entitled, A Mind in Transition.

Students interested in attending the meeting are reminded that it will be held at the home of David Goldshur, faculty adviser, 1805 Vicente Street (at 29th), at 8 o'clock tonight.

Traffic-Minded Cop Hits Cop And Both Leave Rather Red

Coincidence, the most striking of worldly phenomena, played an important part in an incident which took place at Galileo last week.

A group of students were gathered about a plain-clothes officer from the police department, listening attentively to his denouncement of fast and reckless driving on Francisco Street.

Apparently feeling that everyone was favorably impressed, the officer stepped into his car and proceeded to back out of his parking place. Then things began to happen.

The police car zoomed out and clashed fenders with another vehicle coming up the street. The plain-clothes man leisurely stepped out of his machine, and, approaching the other driver with deliberate confidence of one with authority said, "Here's my badge. I'm a policeman!"

"That's okay by me, pal," replied the other. "So am I, and here's my star."

Both smiled sheepishly, and, with a face as red as his broken tail-light, the lecturing policeman got into his car and slowly drove away.

THEORY GOES INTO PRACTICE

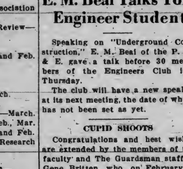
Practicing up in preparation for rendering good cuisine and dining room service, Marx Smith (left), student maitre d'hotel, and Jean "Frenchy" Gahard, chef, were caught busily preparing food in the Galileo cafeteria. Gahard made his debut into the kitchen first through experience, then into the theoretical, and back to the practical once more, as he has worked in the food plants of several of San Francisco's leading hotels, and is a student in the college class of restaurant and hotel management.

A.W.S. DELEGATES TO CONVENTION VISIT SACRAMENTO FRI.

Helene Wright Is Offered Chance to Get Even With Schwarz



On Friday afternoon, March 20, Dean Eugenie Leonard, Mary Jane Learnard, and officers of the Associated Women Students of the San Francisco Junior College will leave for Sacramento, where they will attend the convention of the Alta and Central A.W.S. to be held at the Sacramento Junior College. The purpose of the convention is to exchange ideas on the procedure of running A.W.S. organizations.

The delegates will be received and registered at a tea which will be held from 2:30 to 5:30 p. m. in the reception room of the Sacramento college.

Saturday morning and afternoon will be devoted to business and discussion and lunch will be served on the campus.

The high spot of the convention will be a formal banquet and dance held on Saturday evening. There, it is said, President Helene Wright will have a perfect opportunity to get even with her friend Maury Schwarz, for she has been invited to give a humorous talk on the subject, "If I Were President of the Student Body!"

ENTERTAINER

Bringing with him members of his Mark Hopkins orchestra, Griff Williams, leader, will play at the rally to be held tomorrow afternoon at Galileo, 1:45 o'clock.

Chance Is Offered For College Talent On Radio Program

With the idea of giving a special chance to San Francisco Junior College talent, "Professor" Mort Werner continues to parade his student amateur hour over station KROW every Friday night from 9:30 to 10:30.

Werner, a former student of San Francisco Junior College, has issued special invitations for students of the college to participate in his program with the possibility of winning a radio.

Last Friday night San Francisco J.C. was represented by Corrine Lynnwood and Betty Gentry, and had as guest stars Jack Martin, the effervescent, banjoist, and his accordion accompanist, Richard Ferraris

The week prior to that, Helen Marlowe, a jaycee student, was presented with a radio for having taken first prize honors. Miss Marlowe polled a total of 8520 votes, to submerge completely her nearest opponent.

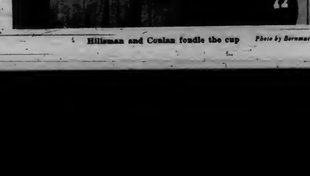
The "Professor" said that any junior college student wishing to appear on his program will be given an immediate audition. He can be reached at KROW, located in the Bellevue Hotel on Geary Street.

CLUB MAY DISBAND

Due to the lack of adequate time during the noon hour for both Carl Stough, faculty adviser to the Philatelic Society, and Donald McPher son, president, this club may possibly be discontinued for the present.

THE FIRST OF MANY TROPHIES

Wanted: One NYA worker.
Required Experience: Metal polisher.



Typical Tasks: Shining S.F.J.C. trophy.

It came! Last week, soon after the Messrs. Hillsman, Lowans, Caine, Glynn, Nordeen, Rippon, Nicco, McSweeney, Loustalot, Leahy, Maas, Ritter and Janko won the first championship for the Rams in basketball, the shining trophy shown in the picture arrived at the college.

As yet there has been no provision made for a trophy room, but one will be erected when the San Francisco baseball and track outfits bring home similar championships in their respective divisions, according to Dutch Conlan, whose coaching talents were responsible for the winning of the award.

Losing only three wiggrams of the squad, Rams hopes for retaining the junior college hoop crown next year look bright.

The matter of individual awards for players on the championship squad was decided yesterday at a meeting of the Awards Committee. The Guardsman going to press before results could be obtained.

TEA GIVEN TO HIGH SCHOOLS BY COLLEGE CONSIDERED SUCCESS

Similar Affair Will Be Held March 26 with Poly, Mission Guests

Acclaimed by guests as a "great success," a tea was held last Thursday afternoon for Galileo and Lowell high schools under the auspices of the college Associated Women Students, with Helene Wright, A.W.S. president, in charge.

Assisting the A.W.S. in the affair, Mrs. Paul M. Pitman, wife of Paul M. Pitman, who is assistant to President Archibald Cloud, poured tea. Sandwiches, little cakes, and tea were served.

In addition to the guests from the two high schools, various members of the college faculty were also present.

Miss Wright, in speaking of the success of the affair, extends her appreciation and thanks to the various committees that had so much to do with the tea, especially Elsbeth Yates, who was in charge of the refreshments.

The next tea will be held on March 26, with Mission and Polytechnic high schools as guests. In order to permit more members of the college faculty to attend, the time has been changed from 4:30 to 5:30 o'clock p.m., according to Miss Wright.

COORDINATOR

John Gifford, above, will supervise jointly with J. Graham Sullivan, the operation of the Galileo cafeteria by students of the hotel and restaurant management class.

Hotel Class Takes Over Management of Galileo Dining Service Today

"Best Food at Least Expense" Is Motto Of Embryonic Hostelrymen Who Will Inaugurate Novel Set-up

Inaugurating a service novel in any educational institution, the class in hotel and restaurant management under the supervision of J. Graham Sullivan, instructor, will take over the operation of the Galileo High School cafeteria today, according to John Gifford, coordinator of the course. The operation will proceed with the cooperation of the present cafeteria personnel, Gifford said.

Operating as a non-profit organization, the new cafeteria and soda fountain from service will attempt to give the best possible meal at the lowest possible price, Gifford explained.

AIMS TWO-FOLD

"The aims to be attained are twofold," the coordinator said. "First, to furnish a means of giving to students of this course practical training in the fundamental principles already studied; and second, to give them an analysis and study of the principles of high school cafeteria operation."

Students have been appointed in all departments connected with the work, the temporary assignments being as follows: Frank Claverie, manager; Hart Smith, purchasing agent and maitre d'hotel; Gus Gravelle and Lawrence Wong, accountants; Jean Gahard, chef; Paul Allsman, faculty checker-cashier; Dick Purdy, cashier; Charles Dondlet, food checker; Hart Smith and Claverie, publicity; Stuart Kingsland, store room and waiter; Marcel Frankaerts, waiter, and Victor Rohelet, service.

DAILY MENU OFFERED

Mary Smiley, University of California graduate, will be in charge of the faculty dining room, and will also serve in the capacity of hostess.

Both faculty and students will have the advantage of a daily menu, according to Gifford, which will be issued by the lunch room every morning and posted where customers may read it before ordering.

The menu preparation will be in charge of Smith and Gahard, with the assistance of Miss Smiley and Claverie.

Urging students to utilize this new service, Manager Claverie stressed

Students Offer Experience In Work of Cafes

Coordinator Gifford Comes From Stanford and Cornell Schools

Practical experience, as well as theoretical, is offered not only by the instructors who will participate in the new reorganization of the Galileo cafeteria, but also by the students, according to John Gifford, faculty man in charge of the services.

Booking reservations for high school and junior college organizations and faculty groups, Hart Smith, maitre d'hotel, comes from a family of hotel men, as his father, George D. Smith, is manager of the Fairmont and Mark Hopkins Hotels.

Sewell Invited To Peace Convention Held in Michigan

Franklin Sewell, pre-legal instructor of the Junior college, has been invited by the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace to attend the seminars for instructors in International Law and Relations as a guest this summer. The convention will be held at the University of Michigan in Ann Harbor, Michigan, June 23 to August 2.

Dean Lewis Cassidy of the law school at the University of San Francisco, will be the other person to attend the meeting from this district.

The seminars are conferences held for open discussion and are led by Dr. Wilson of Harvard University, Dr. Charles Cheney Hyde of Columbia University, and Dr. James Brown Scott of Washington, D. C.

The purpose of the meeting is to discuss all matters of international relations and laws. Sewell attended the last meeting of the association held in 1932.

Hotel Accounting Course Completed

Completion of the course in hotel accounting was announced today by Frank Turner, instructor and assistant manager of the Fairmont Hotel.

Students registered in this course have drawn up a complete set of books using the recommended forms established by the uniform system of accounts as set forth by the American Hotel Association.

Voting Membership of Social Committee Named by Council

Drastically cutting down the voting membership of the social committee, the executive council last week made a final selection of chairmen for the sub-committees, to function under the leadership of Vice-president Mimi Colton.

The heads of these sub-committees, as announced by Miss Colton, are as follows: Marie McKnight, card bureau; Gene Blumenthal, publicity; Joe Kissel, decoration; George Haenes, orchestra, assisted by Eleanor Schaub; Ruth Peterson, entertainment; Bill Kennedy, ways and means, assisted by Shirley Breyer; Pam Spaulding, budget; Neal Martin, men's service; Jane Neal, women's service, and Ed Schwartz, hotel.

Miss Colton has called a meeting of the members of the social committee for 1:45 o'clock this afternoon in the Galileo cafeteria, and urges that those concerned attend.

Additional members of the committee will be selected from those students who have served on the temporary group that has functioned thus far this semester.

THE HELL IT CAN'T!

This country is not immediately faced with curtailment of personal liberties, or dictatorship and its implications. For the answer to the contention of those old stand-patters who say that "it can't happen here," however, readers are referred to Sinclair Lewis' book of that name, in which those who can see beyond their noses aver "the hell it can't."

There are too many current events that bear a startling similarity to past history—history that has resulted in bloodshed and suppression—and too many situations in this country that bear a marked resemblance to those of nations now under the iron rule of the -isms, to allow one interested in civic affairs to sit back in smug contentedness.

There is too much likeness in all the -isms to allow a good liberal unqualifiedly to set himself up as a communist, a socialist, a fascist, or what-not. Each of these movements, in some way or another, means curtailment of individualism and private enterprise—the very rights that have led to the placement of this country among the world's greatest. All but socialism advocate writing finis to intellectual freedom.

Under most of the -isms the man who goes to college to learn anything except how noble his country's dictator is, and how best to participate in the glorious pastime of mass murder—war, and the suppression of any form of liberalism that is not compatible with the ideas of the powers that be—is considered effeminate, an undesirable malcontent who would best be put out of the way.

Political orators point with pride to intense patriotism for the prevention of encroachment upon the rights of the American citizen. That is true if one does not go to extremes, and only as long as one bears in mind that what made this country was not a pure race, but a collection of many nationalities. Sane patriotism leads to national pride; rabid patriotism leads to—COLORED SHIRTS.

The only sure prevention of such an occurrence in America lies in pure liberalism that tolerates all kinds as long as there is peace; in the type of kindness and consideration that religion teaches; in open-minded interest in all national and international affairs; in liberal education; and in peaceful, yet determined, opposition to anything that smirks of fascism, or that might, directly or indirectly, lead to it.

VACATIONING MAIL MAN WALKS

And all students do these days is talk shop. "Gosh, wasn't that mid-term tough?" "Oh, dear, I'm SO worried about that ex." And, alarmedly, "Do you think we'll get a test today?"

Students (?) must lie in wait outside rooms in which an earlier class has the same test that the allegedly more fortunate later-in-the-day classmen must take. As soon as the weary, still worried earlier-takers begin to pour from the room, the air becomes rent with such plaintive cries as "How was the ex? Was it tough? What did he ask? Do you think he'll ask this?" &etc.

Maybe it's all right. Perhaps it indicates industry, zeal, interest in the subject. More probably it indicates an admission of inability to do anything for one's self.

There is, undeniably, some good to be said for the system. The door lurkers-behind may someday become G-men; or, if prohibition ever goes into effect again, good speakeasy peephole peepers-through. The apple polishers who make such an ostentatious sham of interest in subject matter may become tomorrow's cajoling, baby-kissing politicians; in the latter case, however, let's hope they have enough sense not to go around to their predecessors admitting that they must get from them the secrets of office.

SOME NEVER LEARN

Editorials are like religious tracts—seldom read, and never heeded. Time and again students have been asked, requested, begged, almost ordered to cooperate in relieving the traffic congestion at the Extension Building.

Blandly, unaware that any undesirable condition exists until they want to get somewhere in a hurry, men still stop on the stairs of the main entrance to fish for a cigarette; the vultures still lurk on those same stairs waiting for someone to produce a smoke; the women pause to survey the male situation, to select one to help in the pleasant passing of the next hour or so.

The enamored swains and lassies who stand forever chatting sweet nothings can, of course, be forgiven, for they, traditionally in such weather that heralds Spring, are oblivious that any condition exists except that of divine rapture.

There is, of course, no use in saying this. We know that we shall have to continue smoking bull-durham for self-protection, to cast all politeness aside and push people out of our way when we want to get elsewhere quickly, and, resignedly, to have to admit that Spring with its proverbial implications IS here.

BE SURE TO GET PRINTED

Elsewhere in the columns of this paper are listed unrefutable reasons why one should voluntarily have himself fingerprinted. To enlarge any further upon these reasons is unnecessary.

Few reasons, if any, were given, however, by the authorities why one should not participate in the registration. There is no use denying that a few students have pondered over the pros and cons, rather than take a speaker's word for the matter.

The only advice to be offered is that one should consider the matter thoroughly from all angles; unbiased reasoning will prove that whatever objections may be raised are so highly hypothetical that the good points as outlined at last week's assembly completely outweigh them.

Prexy Announces Plans for Future and Submits Advice

By MAURY SCHWARZ

Has it every struck any of you hi sophs that before you can graduate an application of intention to graduate has to be filled out? I figured that after the many years I spent in junior college, it was understood that I get out this June. But to be on the safe side, I went into Mr. Mohr's office. After spending some time there, I found out I still need a couple of more credits so I added another course to my program. You hi sophs better be on the safe side, too, and find out what you need to graduate. It's only a month and a half late now, but it's better late than never.

Arrangements are completed for tonight's swim frolic at the Fairmont Hotel plunge. If it's warm today, then you may cool off tonight at the swim. If it's a cold day, we'll see that you'll have "a hot time tonight."

Seriously speaking, however, let's all get down to the Fairmont tonight, and if our "cinches" worry us, then we can "drown" our troubles. Anyway, I hope we have as great a time as we're expecting to have. Once again, the price is 35c per student, and spectators free.

After a good night's rest, try to get up before 1:30 p. m. so you won't miss our rally tomorrow. To start the rally off, the winners of the "whiskerino" contest will be decided on the stage. After that's over, Griff Williams, Mark Hopkins' maestro, will present the rest of the entertainment. Please try to get in the auditorium as early as you can and grab the front seats. It makes it very difficult for everyone if the program is continually interrupted with late comers.

It's our policy when a hotel orchestra presents a rally for us, to hold a J.C. Nite at that hotel if we can get special rates. The Mark Hopkins has offered us the special cover charge again. So our next S.F.J.C. nite will be Friday eve., March 27, at the Mark Hopkins Hotel. If any singers around school would like to sing with Griff Williams that evening, please see me.

Last Thursday the A.W.S. had a tea for Lowell and Galileo High guests. I never thought I would see the day that I would attend an A.W.S. tea—and enjoy it—but I must confess, even though with my head hanging a little, that I did. I'm looking forward to the next one. Boy, those fancy cakes and sandwiches were good—all except the Roquefort cheese sandwiches. Next time I'll not bite into any of those things. Helene Wright and Elizabeth Yates and the rest of the committee get the credit this time.

The boxing tournament will take place early in April. All potential or hopeful pugilists sign up now with Joe Amori, Bob Sisco, or myself.

A new organization has sprung up on the campus. They don't need any publicity in the paper with "guys" like Pedrin and Caine as president and secretary. Nicco and Jambruno are the two representatives to ex-council for the Block S.F. Society. With such officers, the Block S.F. should soon be quite active—more power to them.

Say, if some of you are lonesome, then let me remind you that we have a date bureau in existence at the J.C. Marie McKnight is in charge. She guarantees every applicant a date. The early bird gets the worm—I mean apply early and get the first choice.

CURTAIN!

By Irvin Silberstein

With all its depressing and tragic atmosphere, Lillian Hellman's powerful drama, The Children's Hour, now in its final week at the Curran Theater, continues to depress audiences.

Powerful it is, but power created in a situation that is derogatory to the mind and awful to realize as truly existing. It is not a play for the immature mind and, as this reviewer sees it, serves no purposes nor stimulates any reaction from the adult brain.

The tragedy is the ruination of four lives, caused by the malicious gossip of a spoiled child. The question that comes to an audience's attention is whether this play is presented to show how a public scandal can be created out of idle rumor, idle to the extent of originating in a child's imagination or whether it is an attempt to reach the public through the sensational angle.

If the former is true, it has succeeded to a degree, a rather base degree. The loophole lies in the fact that the grandmother of the child, who spread the gossip, was given to possess very little common sense for so old a woman. Would anyone take the word of a spoiled child as a decision in a matter that would so disastrously affect a number of lives?

If the sensational angle is true, then the play has succeeded nobly, for it is now enjoying its second year as a Broadway success.

Paper Talk

With the inevitable talk of war in Europe and subsequent publicity of the fact that Continental proletarians are practicing defense measures in case of surprise air and gas attacks, it is pertinent that we observe recent developments around the Galileo buildings. Viennese are looking around for suitable cellars in which to hibernate, and French citizens are buying gas masks. We are building "underground fortifications" on Van Ness Avenue and Bay Street.

The construction of a tunnel connecting the main north gate of Galileo with the athletic field and the finishing off of a 20-foot-deep emergency cistern on Van Ness Avenue are the safety precautions at home.

When the tunnel is completed, it will be a good place to hide if we ever have a surprise attack through the air. It will also come in handy in several other ways. For instance, club groups at the junior college who are having a hard time finding room for meetings may appropriate the cool depths of the Bay Street underpass in which to convene. People may stand in out of the rain and watch athletic events through the northern mouth of the tunnel in wet weather. In course of time some enterprising driver will utilize it as a parking lot.

If the tunnel were a little closer to Powell Street, it would undoubtedly be grabbed up by the administration as a class room to ameliorate crowded conditions.

The cistern, which is to be kept full of water as an extra supply in case of earthquake, will also find other uses. Coach Russ Sweet's swim team candidates are already contemplating leaving the cover off so that they will have some place in which to practice their aquatic endeavors.

Answers to last week's puzzlers: No. 1—The chum is a woman, Evelyn; No. 2—$17.50; No. 3—12 inches and 24 inches; No. 4—Number eight; No. 5—The sons trade horses.

Someone suggested that we, in collaboration with the current finger-print drive, publish pictures of the thumb whorls of prominent jaysee people and give prizes for identification. We were going to do it, but then decided that the police department would receive most of the prizes. However, by printing pictures of prominent noses, ears and feet a lively campaign would probably ensue.

We have discovered a fallacy in the idea that finger-printing is the only certain means of positive identification among humans. How about hair?

It would be safe to bet that no two persons have the same number of hairs on their heads. As an experiment, we counted the fuzz on the noodles of ten students, then at random. None of them came out the same, which, using the principle of the straw ballot (no pun intended), shows that people can be identified in that way.

Besides, hair counting would give employment to all our unemployed accountants and could be made a works relief project.

Aha! Immediately you say, "That won't work. How about when people get bald? Then the identifications are destroyed." We have no answer to that one, but a like failing is found in finger-prints. What happens to the indentification mark when people work their fingers to the bone?

It Comes Out Here

Bill Weinstock wants everybody to know that he's in love with his new girl-friend, Lenore McKnight.

The fellows at J.C. hold no interest for Agnes Glover. It's Santa Clara for her.

When Ed Schwartz gets a ticket, he really gets one. The other Friday night a cop gave him a summons for no license, no tail light, speeding, and four in the front seat. Practically a record!

Beth Hillyard ought to wear nothing but red. It certainly becomes her.

Deming Smith has stiff competition with Jack Barron where Rita is concerned. She is wearing Jack's ring. Is it on the right finger, Rita?

Donna McPherson was with none other than Fred Wilkinson at the St. Francis the other Friday night.

What about that Maury-Marge-Tim triangle???

It has to be a corner or nothing when Marjorie Thompson parks her car.

Student Opinion Complains About Divers Matters

THE RAM'S HORN

Dear Editor:

Why hasn't someone complained before about the study hall at Powell Street? Even the noisy library is easier to study in.

First and foremost among its many annoyances, the lights in the hall are so dim that you get a headache if you study for any length of time. To get any work done, you have to strain your eyes in the gloom, gasp for breath in the stuffy air that's as chilly as an F cinch in winter, and much too warm for comfort in summer (by the way, to cope with the heat or cold you have to dress like an Eskimo or else a nudist), while those movable table tops slid around and the accompaniment of talking, whispering, and yelling gets louder and still louder.

One way of raising the scholastic average of the college might be to give the students a comfortable place in which to study.

AMBITIOUS.

Note: Where, might I timidly ask, would one find a comfortable place close-by that will house several hundred students at no expense? Have you tried Union Square? An inverted garbage can makes a nice study table.—Ed.

Dear Editor:

I don't think that our professors have been properly praised in public. All we had at our high school were "old fogies" who didn't know how to get on with students; they treated us like babies, so naturally we were more inclined to act like them. But at this college the professors treat us like equals; they talk to us like regular pals, and they laugh with us even when the joke is on them. Everyone here has more or less of an equal chance; there aren't favorites like there were in "hi." The prerequisites for the instructors at this college might have run like this: Must be under 40 (mentally), must have good personality including sense of humor, and must be fairly good-looking or have some attribute to make up for it. Three cheers for our faculty!!! They're great stuff.

AN ENTHUSIAST.

Note: With no exceptions?—Ed.

Dear Editor:

If it's within your power, would you please have the orchestra practice out in the Galileo field or at least some place where they won't disturb the lectures.

If the orchestra really played something worth listening to, it would be different, but each fellow plays a different piece, and it sounds like each one is trying to outdo the other.

With all due respect to the orchestra leader, if there is one, I remain,

MISS ANNOYED.

Note: The college orchestra consists of three musicians. I am amused by the thought of how you might like it if it were a full sized group. But maybe your musical knowledge is the same as mine, and it was the band you heard.—Ed.

Dear Editor:

Your editorial of Wednesday, March 11, captioned BOOK STORE MATTER INVESTIGATED made the students laugh. They were surprised to read of the editor's private investigation into the wrong matter.

Mr. Editor, you have evaded the issues. The students want a used book exchange, not a cooperative book store requiring a capital outlay.

Mr. Editor, your editorial substituted objectionable features which were never a part of this used book exchange plan. One of your objections was that the exchange could not be housed. This is a very weak objection, indeed.

Please remember that the students are

IT CAN'T HAPPEN HERE

By Sinclair Lewis

(Reviewed by Donald Flash)

Parading the theories of Communism, Socialism, and Fascism, Sinclair Lewis, in his novel It Can't Happen Here, points out the pitfalls that Democracy is likely to encounter, by painting a lively picture of what America would be like under Fascist dictatorship. The common feeling that in America, where freedom has so long been enjoyed, there could never be an iron-fisted dictatorship of force, Mr. Lewis uses as his theme, by insisting in a dramatic yet amusing manner the fact that "it can happen here!"

He presents his ideas in the form of a novel, wherein we find Doremus Jessup, the editor of a small-town paper, who has liberal ideas, but who is an American first and foremost, caught in the whirling maelstrom of a nation walking blindly into an enslaved state, ready for War—any War.

About to be filmed, It Can't Happen Here recently received some not unwelcome publicity when it was censored. The censor boards would do well, however, to be more lenient with this story and confine the selection of their victims to pictures such as Klondike Annie.

Arriving at the conclusion that the constant struggle for greater justice, equality, and liberty is not so much against Communism, Fascism, or Capitalism, as against bigotry, Sinclair Lewis leaves the reader with a sense of enlivened interest and new determination to strive conscientiously to have a free, inquiring, critically spirited attitude with which to face the issues that arise in human society.

Note—The editor urges that every student of national affairs read this book, and its British contemporary, Storm Jameson's "In the Second Year." Those who do not take interest in matters of government had better not read it, for fear that they might decide to change their interests.

SAILING THROUGH THE NEWS

"I wouldn't change my life as a farmer here for a life in the best city in the world." That is what a contented agriculturalist of the Sacramento River delta region told me last week while I was up that way.

This particular man, and many of his neighbors, probably represent the closest approximation to the proverbial "country gentleman" that the West boasts.

The farmers of this region drive good cars, own nice homes (some, it is true, somewhat mortgaged), and work or not as they wish. When they work, it is because they like to, not because they cannot hire someone else.

They almost represent a small American aristocracy, these white men, Americans almost entirely descended from Nordic stock, who are the land-holders. The orientals, Filipinos, and Hindus, do the work—but they do not own the land.

But the World Always Keeps On

While on the subject of farm laborers, I asked my friend about the practicability of using white labor. He informed me that members of the white race are not suited to that particular type of work, which requires laboring close to the ground all day.

When asked what the farmers would do if they had no such source of cheap labor as that mentioned above, he informed me that the Filipino population is decreasing, as so many thousands are going back to the Islands; that the Hindus were becoming scarcer, because few have wives, and none is permitted to enter this country anymore. My friend did not profess to know the answer to the apparent problem. "But," he philosophically remarked, "one thing we do know is that the world will always go on."

Islands Made to Order

The farmers who are not busy harvesting the asparagus crop now are busy pumping out islands so that they can put in a crop. That struck me as a bit odd, so my friend drove me over to where an island was in the process of being remade. The recent high water of the Sacramento River broke over the levees, overrunning some of the islands, which, ordinarily, are BELOW river level anyway. The island (or, rather, the water covering it, and the newly raised levees) he showed me contained an area of 226 acres. Up the river was another inundated one of 500 acres. In another location about 10 feet of water covering 8000 acres was being dumped into the river by four mammoth pumps which work 24 hours a day, and will require 30 days to complete the job.

Just Conditions

Some of the work of creating and maintaining profitable agricultural land is carried on by the reclamation projects, fostered by the state, and part by the private owners. The average reclamation tax is five dollars an acre. The total average annual tax is thirteen dollars an acre. My friend has 460 acres. Figure out his tax; he is, nevertheless, contented, as are most of his neighbors.

What has all this to do with news? Just this: It shows that certain small, semi-socialistic enterprises can be successful; that hard, honest toil has its reward in happiness; that good care of soil and crops helps a country more than curtailment of agricultural resources; that a state can better itself by attending to its own internal affairs than by going out to conquer the world, or by setting up a militaristic regime to defy the world with Fascism or some allied form of chauvinism.

In view of present world affairs and trends, figure it out for yourself.

REALM OF THE RAM

Grades Important
150 Days to Football
Soccer 11 Practice
'Shrimps' Do Things

By DEMING SMITH

Gone are the days of so-called "snap" marks for athletes. Let it be known now that participants in all sports must make their grades just the same as any other student, and are carrying double duty while in active competition. Practice takes time and energy, and a team member must make passing marks in order to be eligible to represent his school in league tournaments. The players take on this responsibility freely and without complaint. They deserve your support and encouragement, and their requests for attendance at games should not go unheralded.

The basketball team has won the championship their first year out, the track team is strong and is going places, the baseball team is your other major sport. Support for these latter two has been noticeably lacking and the players are not receiving the support due them. Track competition is not as yet fully under way but baseball is; the first conference games, against Marin, took place last Saturday and more are coming up, so let's all get out there to the games and root our team to another conference championship. Remember, "Good spirit surmounts all difficulties."

Now that universal fingerprinting is the vogue, one can imagine the numerous incidents that might take place on the various playing fields. Just think how easily the referee could figure out who was the first to touch the pigskin in a disputed fumble play, by simply taking the prints and then calculating how long each one had been on the ball or just who was holding the ball and why in a basketball argument. Oh, well, stranger things may have happened—but I don't know when.

Only about 150 days until the opening of football season again, and, gazing into the old crystal ball, we see a bright future for the gridders of San Francisco Junior College. The majority of last year's players have returned and will play a greatly improved brand of ball this year. The boys have all played together and are accustomed to one another, a factor great in the building of a successful team.

With last year's nucleus and the array of new material expected, Coach Russ Sweet will have a team primed for a leading position in the conference race. With linemen such as: Brickley, Telesmanic, Kremesec, Wilkenson, Jambruno, Gross, McHugh, Pedrin, Lee, Warren, Harrington, and Wiechers among the returning, it is difficult to see how anyone is going to pierce our defense. In the backfield Morrison and Scafani stand out with Odero Guisti and George Clark as possible returners.

All in all, it looks as if that perpetual Roos Bros. trophy for the Los Angeles game and the conference title will come to the Rams' headquarters to roost.

The soccer players are at it again. Practice takes place every day between 4:30 and 5:30, and the players are hoping for a championship in the newly formed soccer league in order to keep up with their brother Ram varsity. All of last year's veterans have returned and are working out daily. New candidates may report any day they wish and begin getting in trim for next term's campaign.

* * *

The three conquering warriors of the champion Ram varsity that are leaving have practically made up their minds as to their future Alma Mater. Capt. Ralph Hillsman will hasten to the call of Nibs Price and his Golden Bears, Guido Nicco, remembered as the "Minute Man," will hibernate to Arizona, and Len Leahy (he's the guy what takes his time) is still taking time to chose between Stanford or Santa Clara, where his brother captained the team of '31. Bob Eltringham, former halfback on the Ram varsity, is now a member of the San Jose Spartans. Jack Brigham, last year's heavy champ, has left school and is now planning on entering Stanford University, where he will participate in varsity football.

* * *

Smallness is supposed to be a great handicap in the sports field, but here at the college many small men are successfully taking part on the many teams. Jim Fahn is the smallest man on the track team, tipping the scales at 124 pounds, and reaching the titanic height of 5 feet 5 inches. Felix Anido, varsity catcher, is 5 feet 6½ inches in height and tips the scales at 150. Tony Scafani, varsity second baseman, is 5 feet 5 inches, and is 140 pounds, and last year was the sparkplug of the football squad. "Babe" Lucchesi, Jerry Zaragno, and Ernie Loustalot were other small men that made notable records in athletic competition.

Two Rams Picked On All-J.C. Five

Lowans, Captain Hillsman Win Honors

Bob "Red" Lowans and Captain Ralph Hillsman of the championship San Francisco Junior College basketball squad were honored with positions on the official All-Conference team which was selected by coaches from seven junior colleges at the Whitcomb Hotel Thursday. Menlo J.C. took no part in the voting because they forfeited several series and did not see all the teams in action.

ALL-CONFERENCE SELECTIONS

FIRST TEAM	Pos.	SECOND TEAM
Lowans, S.F.	F	Petty, Marin
Hunt, Sac'to	F	Benedcich, S.M.
Copsey, S.R.	C	Radunich, Mo.
Triano, Mo.	G	Johnson, S.M.
Hillsman, S.F.*	G	Burnett, Marin
Kerwin, Sac'to*	G

*Hillsman and Kerwin tied for one guard position, so both were honored.

Lowans got more votes than any other forward in the conference, although his selection was not unanimous. Harlan Copsey, brilliant Santa Rosa center, and Modesto's star guard, Frank Triano, were the only ones to be voted in unanimously. Hillsman and Dave Kerwin of Sacramento tied for one guard position, so there are six men on the first squad. San Francisco did not place any men on the second string.

San Francisco and Sacramento each placed two men on the first team, with Modesto and Santa Rosa rounding out the outfit. San Mateo J.C. and Marin each placed two players on the second team, with one man from Modesto.

Except for one man, Hunt, the official first team is the same as that selected by Guardsman sports writers in an unofficial poll taken last week. The Guardsman writers picked Caine for a second-string berth, but he was not rated officially, largely because he was unable to participate in the first series with Marin, and consequently was not seen by all those who voted.

Bill Glynn, tall Ram center, Ernie Loustalot, forward, and Caine all received votes in the balloting but not enough to secure them winning places.

The men elected to the first team will receive certificates from the Northern California Junior College Conference as recognition. The voting group failed to mention any "most valuable man," putting all elected players on the same footing.

4 HOME SERIES

At the meeting the schedule for 1937 was arranged, with San Francisco getting four series to be played at home. The Rams will meet Menlo, Yuba, Marin and Sacramento on the home court, while out-of-town series include Santa Rosa, San Mateo, and Modesto.

The schedule is as follows:

Jan. 22-23—Menlo at S.F.
Jan 29-30—Yuba at S.F.
Feb. 5-6—S.F. at Santa Rosa
Feb. 12-13—Marin at S.F.
Feb. 19-20—Sacramento at S.F.
Feb. 26-27—S.F. at Modesto
Mar. 5-6—S.F. at San Mateo.

ATHLETIC AWARDS HELD UP AT MEET

That there will be no presentation of athletic awards for this term was the decision rendered by the executive council at its meeting last week. After the constitution is adopted, plans will be made for next term by the awards committee working in conjunction with the coaches, it was decided.

At this meeting a social committee was appointed, consisting of Marie McKnight, chairman; Bill Kennedy, Jane Neal, Neal Martin, Joe Kissel, Pam Spalding, Ruth Peterson, Gene Blumenthal, and George Hagans.

Gymnasium Plans Submitted to Cloud

Plans for the new junior college women's gymnasium will be drawn up and submitted to President Archibald Cloud this week, according to directors of the physical education department.

As guest of Dr. Dorothy Hellman, medical adviser and director of physical education for Stanford women, and Ruth Radir, assistant director, Dr. Eugenie Leonard, with Verril Weber, Bertha Keller, Laurine Kuhn, and Vera Spencer, women's physical education instructors, inspected the modern new Stanford gym, which was completed in 1930. The size, they report, should be comparable with the college women's gymnasium, because of the equality in enrollment.

2-GAME SERIES AT SAN MATEO FOR VARSITY BALL 9

Bulldogs Are Hustling Club and Rate Favorites on Season's Record

Coach Lee Eisan and his baseball team hie themselves down to San Mateo Saturday to settle a two-game series on the peninsula diamond. The San Mateans, rated one of the better nines in the jaysee circuit, will be making their conference debut, having been idle last week as the Rams played Marin.

BULLDOGS HAVE EDGE

Coach "Tag" Taggart's Bulldogs outfit is a hustling ball club, and rates the edge over the San Francisco ballhawks. The Bulldogs dropped a 12-9 decision to the strong S.F. State tossers already, while the Staters handed the Rams a lop-sided shellacking in an off-form game. San Mateo also has the advantage in that the series will be played on the peninsula diamond.

Sloper, San Mateo first baseman, is one of the outstanding players in the conference at the plate, while Cavelli is touted as the best fly-chaser around these parts. Cavelli plays center field.

Little Jack Taylor will take the mound for the Bulldogs Saturday. Disproving the adage that "pitchers can't hit," Taylor socked out a home run against the Staters which nearly broke up the ball game.

WILGUS RAM HOPE

Ram hopes for a double victory rest on the shoulders of Larry Wilgus, rugged pitcher, who will start the first contest. Ben McGuire will probably draw the starting assignment for the second game.

Striving never to be beaten by a San Mateo aggregation in any sport, the nine is pointing for the struggle. The hitting prowess of Guisti, Anido, Lucchesi and Fex is the basis for Ram scoring opportunities.

Probable starting line-ups:

S.F.	Pos.	S.M.
Wilgus	P	Taylor
Anido	C	Cahill
G. McGuire	1b	Sloper
Scafani	2b	Ferris
Guisti	3h	Brandenberg
Fex	SS	Liade
Lucchesi	LF	Blythe
McSweeney	CF	Cavelli
B. McGuire	RF	Mobley

Tennis Team Whips Menlo

Going wild to score a lop-sided victory in their first junior college competition, the San Francisco J.C. tennis team scored a decisive 6 to 0 win over the Menlo J.C. racqueteers Thursday at the peninsula college.

Hodes, Rogaway, Durfee and Novikoff took the four singles matches from the Menlo players in easy style, although the doubles combination of Durfee and Rogaway was extended to a 30-game set before they won from Van Dyke and Stillwell of the Oaks. Hodes and Novikoff won the second doubles match in easy style.

Match scores:

Hodes d. Anderson, 6-1, 6-0; Rogaway d. Stillwell, 6-0, 6-2; Durfee d. Van Dyke, 6-4, 6-2; Novikoff d. Scholefield, 6-3, 6-3.

Durfee and Rogaway d. Van Dyke and Stillwell, 16-14; Hodes and Novikoff d. Hoffman and Scholefield, 6-2, 6-1.

Bass-Men Beat Lowell Eleven

Engaging in the first of a series of out-of-season practice games, Coach Tom Bass' soccer eleven met the Lowell High School team at Beach Chalet field Saturday and won, 2 to 0.

Both goals were scored in the first half, in which period Homer Lamble showed some real ability with the ball. The second half was used experimentally, trying various methods of attack to drill the players in team work.

Although the soccer squad has not been recognized as a major sport, it represented the college in many contests last season, meeting its own expenses. Practice sessions are held on Tuesdays and Thursdays at Funston Field between 4:30 and 5:30 p. m.

Because most other junior colleges recognize soccer as a major sport, and because San Francisco has a strong team, a movement is under way to establish it as a major sport, making players eligible for letters.

Homer is hailed as the first sports writer. In the 23rd book of the Iliad, he described the great wrestling bout between Odysseus and Ajax.

SPORTS

S. F. Wins One And Ties With Marin

After spotting Marin to a lead in both games at Funston Saturday, the San Francisco J.C. nine came back to win the first encounter 11-8 and earn an 8 to 8 tie in the second game, which was called because of darkness. This places the Rams in second place in the conference, behind Modesto.

Larry Wilgus, Coach Lee Eisan's ace pitcher, put on an iron-man act, going the full distance to win the morning game, and doing relief duty for four frames in the second. Wilgus fanned 11 batters in the morning contest. Going into the second fray in the fourth on the short end of a 5 to 1 score, he held the Mariners to six hits while his teammates tied the score before the battle was called off in the extra inning.

The Mariners swept ahead by virtue of rallies. In the first two innings to lead 5 to 0, but hits by Anido and Lucchesi, a walk to Ben McGuire, and a long triple by George McGuire scored two runs for the Rams. Wilgus followed with another three-bagger and scored on a single by Scafani, making the score 5-4. S.F. tied the score in the fifth, but the Mariners scored two runs in the seventh on fielders' errors, only to have the San Franciscans even the count again on hits by Anido, Lucchesi and B. McGuire.

A home run by Bob Fex in the eighth put the game on ice for the locals, 11-8. Anido led the batters with 4 for 5, while Lucchesi collected 3 hits for 5 trips to the plate. Ben McGuire collected 2 for 2.

SECOND GAME THRILLER

Scoop Carlson's Marin boys started off strong in the second game, running up a 5 to 1 lead, but the locals tied the score in the fourth by virtue of hits by Fex and McGuire, and two Marin errors.

A home run by Guisti in the next inning put the Rams ahead, 7 to 5, a lead which they held going into the last session. But, with two men on and two outs, Thomas came up to pinch-hit for Marin. Thomas sent the ball out of the field for a home run, putting the Mariners ahead, 8-7.

It all seemed lost for the Rams then, but Babe Lucchesi came through with a home run to tie the score. Marin went scoreless in the extra inning.

RALLY FALLS SHORT

The Rams started their half of the extra frame with a single by Wilgus. Scafani sacrificed him to second, but the next batter hit into a double play. Both teams then decided to call the game because of the approaching darkness. It will probably be replayed later in the season.

Ben McGuire collected 3 hits for 4 times to plate, while Guisti and Wilgus each garnered 2 bingles.

Men's Club Boxing Contests Set For Verdi Club Soon

That the Men's Club boxing and wrestling show will definitely be held at the Verdi Club, scene of former S.F.J.C. boxing contests, has been announced by Bib Sisco, president of the organization.

It was originally planned that the fights were to be held at Larkin Hall, but due to complications, the Verdi Club will be used. The exact date has not yet been set, but more than likely it will take place at the end of March, Sisco said.

Joe Amori, faculty adviser, has said that there will be more weight classifications than ever before, and the winners will receive awards.

All men students are eligible to compete and can now sign up with either Sisco or Amori.

Among those already entered who have shown their boxing wares in past matches are Maury Schwarz, "Killer" Kremesec, Gene Sullivan, Carlyle Cain, and Glen Allen.

Today's college students, who as mere children when prohibition went into effect, "were never going to know anything about liquor," now have 103 slang words and phrases for intoxication.

Charles Freeman, first American heavyweight champion, was bigger than Primo Carnera. He weighed 320 pounds and was 7 feet 3½ inches tall.

Playground Pool Will Be for Swim Team Instruction

Men's swimming classes under the direction of Coach Russ Sweet are awaiting the spring opening of the North Beach Playground swimming pool in order to get instruction in the fundamentals of the aquatic sport.

The mermen formerly occupied the Chinese Y.M.C.A. on Sacramento Street, but have moved out to await opening of the North Beach pool. Swimming will begin as soon as the San Francisco Playground Commission sees fit to open the swimming facilities for 1936.

Aspirants for the jaysee swimming team work at the Olympic Club daily.

May Buy Lurline

The Lurline Baths on Bush Street has been bought by a real estate company and was offered for sale to the school department at the last meeting. The baths will close about April 1 because of poor business.

The pool, which was offered at an unpublished price, was suggested for purchase as a central swimming center for the schools of San Francisco.

The Board of Education has taken the matter under advisement.

If purchased, the pool would be an ideal spot for the strong junior college swim team, which has been shifted all over the city in search of a practice tank.

SIEGE GUNS GO TO BAT FOR EISAN

HIT AND A BALL

Two of the better hitters for Lee Eisan's ball team are Tony Scafani, upper, and Felix Anido. Scafani is poling one out for a hit, while Anido lets a bad one go by.

Both phots taken in practice games as Rams attained form for conference conflicts. According to predictions, the local will need plenty of hits to beat the strong San Mateo aggregation, whom Rams play Saturday.

Block S. F. Society Forbids Wearing Other Letters

Unanimously deciding to put a speedy end to the wearing of blocks other than the SF on the junior college campus, members of the Block SF Society passed a resolution to that effect at a meeting held last week. Lettermen voiced the opinion that wearers of blocks from other schools will be asked to desist, and that drastic measures will be taken for repeated negligence of the rule.

At the meeting Adolph Pedrin, former head of the Hickory and Jeans, was elected president of the blockmen. The Block SF has taken over the functions of the Hickory and Jeans, under the sponsorship of Coach Russ Sweet, faculty adviser. Carlyle Caine, of basketball fame, was elected secretary-treasurer of the group.

Tentative plans formulated at the meeting call for a society dinner in the near future to get everyone together, and a barn dance, which may be presented this semester.

Golfers Beat Bronc Varsity

A brilliant display of golf gave the Ram divoteers a double win over the University of Santa Clara varsity at San Jose last Wednesday.

In the absence of a fourth man, Manager Jack Welch was forced to undertake the seemingly impossible task of competing against the best ball of Santa Clara's Lyman and Price. Welch came through in his "iron-man" stunt, however, administering a 2-1 trouncing to the two Broncos.

The two Bobs, Dumesnil and McGlashan, teamed up nicely to turn back Duino and Daly 8-6 in the other match. Dumesnil seldom found the fairways with his tee shots, but consistently made brilliant recoveries. McGlashan, about the steadiest of Dutch Conlan's talent, was in top form.

The University of California varsity will be the team's next opponents, Welch reveals, with San Mateo and University of San Francisco to follow. The Berkeley Golf and Country Club will be the scene of the U.C. matches.

Sh! Baseballers Lose Close One 24-6

Having an off-day themselves and meeting a strong San Francisco State nine which could not be beaten, the Ram baseball team went down to an inglorious defeat Thursday, 24-6.

Coach Eisan used nearly every man on the squad, using the game as an experiment-ground to find out his strength for the conference series. The Rams had to use their reserve pitchers as Wilgus had to chuck against Marin Saturday and needed a rest.

The Staters took advantage of 10 errors by jaysee men to turn the game into a rout.

Trackmen Meet Cal Frosh Sat.

32 Local Stars In First Big Battle

By BUD McSWEENEY

They're off!

Saturday the Ram cinder varsity locks horns with the Bear frosh in what should be an interesting battle, as this is jaysee's first taste of competition and the frosh are smarting from the lickings administered them by Sacramento J.C. and San Mateo J.C. The meet takes place at Edward's Field, Berkeley, at 10 a. m.

Twenty-two Rams will don the Red and White scanties for the first battle and will enter the fray with high hopes of bringing home a nice cub steak.

TEAM MEN CLOSE

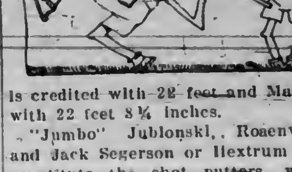
Coach Russ Sweet has worked hard with the lads and is taking those boys who show the best possibilities, and in the events where the boys are battling nip and tuck, the one to represent will be decided later this week.

Bill Jackson, George Compas and "Whizzer" Warren will pound out the 100 and 220 yard dashes; vieing with Trumbly, who took a second behind Kirkpatrick last Saturday. This brigade is tentative as Jackson and Compas are ailing with pulled muscles.

Warren, Bob Merlo and "Chuck" Geraghty will be out for points in the 440-yard run. Warren and Biggs of Cal should stage a nice battle as Biggs has been clocked in 50.6 seconds, while Warren has done 53.6 at U.S.F. track, which is a slow path.

BERTRAM THREATENS 880

The 880-grind will be pumped off by Bob Towell, "Stub" Allison, Gibeau and Lee Bertram, who will square off with Baker, Green and Breaux of Cal. This should develop into a beautiful bout between Bertram, who has done 2.07, and Baker, who has clipped off 2:05.6. The issue will probably be settled in the finishing spurt.



Melhert is Cal's hope in the mile run. He will be opposed by Gibeau and Bertram. This too should be a fair battle as six seconds separate the entrants' times. Here Bertram may surprise, as his odd stride makes him appear ready to trip and fall any second, but sorry are those who notice this and start to loaf. Gibeau is a husky kid and may plow through if he is endowed with the speed at the finish of his younger brother, now carrying the colors of Commerce High.

Dan Southard, Ty Barre, and Joe Sanderson will climb over the high hurdles, battling with Vann, Ziegler, and Hall. Southard, Barre, Fahn and Cook will run the 220 low hurdles. Dan has been improving of late, as have the rest of the hurdling contingent, and was clocked at 26.2 last time trials.

POLE VAULT DOUBTFUL

In the field events: Ernie Loustalot, Harold Hughes and Paxton will do their fighting around the high-jumping pit, while Jim Fahn and Shardia will be scrapping it out along the pole vault runway. This may develop into a nice duel between Fahn and Monroe of Cal. Both have cleared 12 feet 6 inches this season. Against San Mateo Monroe soared 12 feet 8 inches.

In the broad jump George Dunne and Chester Cade will be opposed by Manuel, Kido and Shibata. Dunne is credited with 22 feet and Manuel with 22 feet 8¼ inches.

"Jumbo" Jublonski, Rosenwelz, and Jack Segerson or Hextrum will constitute the shot putters, while Cal's exponent will be Bohme.

Scott is jaysee's lone javelin entrant, and will run up against Anderson, who has tossed the spear 171 feet.

The relay team is doubtful as yet and this event may be forfeited to the frosh. The outcome of the meet is very doubtful, but the chances are fifty-fifty as things shape up according to times. Differences in tracks make comparisons difficult.

Sure points should be gathered in the 440; 880; discus and both hurdle events.

not asking for investigations. The students of San Francisco Junior College want a used book exchange and they want it now.

The strength of this demand is so great and its wisdom is so profound that I eagerly challenge you to debate the question on the campus, at your earliest convenience.

Respectfully yours,

Note: Once again readers are reminded that this column expresses the opinions of individual students. Once again, too, students are recommended to take their problems to the administration, which, they will find, is always willing to offer full cooperation.—Ed.

Dear Editor:

Congratulations on your fine editorial concerning the Student's Book Store! It was certainly illuminating and showed that The Guardsman goes out of its way to deal out fairness to all. I, for one, I know, have formed an entirely more favorable attitude toward the store since reading your comment.

Your policy of investigating all accusations that appear in your column is to be commended. Keep the practice up; it's a credit to the college.

A COLLEGE READER.

Note: My heart wells with deepest gratitude for such appreciation.—Ed.

Dear Editor:

Have you every stopped to realize what would happen if students did not sit on the stairways at 540 Powell Street? We would all be on time for our classes, not having to stumble over them; and being on time for anything, you know, is decidedly atrocious etiquette. What would we do if students would refrain from that undescribable pleasure of slamming doors when they entered the class room? Naturally we would absorb all of the lecture, and though that might help us in our midterms, those cinch notices were not so bad after all.

If students would really "study" instead of talk in the study hall, can't you visualize the inevitable calamity that would befall this institution? Their jaws would get rusty, and their marks would be raised a point higher; but then, well-oiled jaws, and low marks seem to be two of the college's "pet prides." Furthermore, everyone would know his lesson, teachers would swoon from surprise, and then where would we be?

If J.C. students did not "bellow" in the cafeteria before 2:30, we might be able to get some last minute "cramming" done, but it is a well-known fact that any kind of work (mental work, especially) cannot help the digestive system to function properly. Ask any hygiene teacher.

MISS TRADITIONAL.

Note: You are quite right. We must not lose those hallowed, sacred traditions.—Ed.

Household Art Club Issues Dues Call

All members of the Household Arts Association not paying their dues by Friday, March 20, will be automatically dropped from the club, Virginia Elliott, secretary, announced at the meeting Friday.

Committees for entertainment and refreshments for the tea to be given were also chosen at the meeting.

The entertainment committee will consist of Corrinne Lynwoed, Dorothy Densmore, Alice Frye, Claire Mason, and Lena Way. Members of the food committee will be Jo Jordan, Olive Reed, Anita de Martini, and Dorothy Bonavitch.

Filipinos Plan To Hold Dance Soon

A dance will be the next event on the program of the Filipino Club. It will be held some time in the near future and will be a benefit affair with the proceeds going to some worthy organization, according to F. Cruz, the club's publicity manager.

The next meeting of the Filipino Club will be held on Thursday, March 19, at Galileo. Further plans for the dance will be discussed.

Amateur Night Is Planned at Palace

Another intercollegiate amateur night is scheduled to take place at the Palace Hotel tonight, according to word received from the establishment.

Student talent from various bay region colleges will be present, and an evening of dancing and intercollegiate entertainment will be offered, the hotel said. Music will be furnished by Paul Pendarvis.

Art Sauter and Jack Barron are Palace representatives at this college.

Hotel Students To Have Employment

Assurance of practical employment to further their knowledge of the work this summer has been given to students of the college hotel and restaurant course through the cooperation of the Hotel and Restaurant Managers of Northern California, according to Frank Turner, member of the association.

Work will include waiting, cuisine, soda fountain, and possibly placement on board trans-Pacific steamers.

POET WINS PRIZE

Awarded second prize in the Oakland Post Enquirer's amateur poet's contest, Robert MacArthur, student here, is now busy with a new work on "the futility of it all."

MacArthur's prize-winning poem, Quest, was first published in The Guardsman.

Class Plans Trips To Further Study

To offer further survey of the practical side of the subject, students of the college hotel and restaurant course will make several field trips this semester, according to John Gifford, coordinator.

Among the field studies planned are Swift's meat packing plant, the Whitcomb Hotel, the Matson steamship, Malolo, the produce markets, and Borden's milk plant.

IRISH PATRICK'S NOT PASSE; SHAMROCK SHINES FOR S(H)AINT

Shure, and it's a fine time to be tellin' ye, me Paddies, but yesterday was Saint Patrick's!!

Back in old Erin, Irish colleens went a-partying at dusk and in the glow of lamplight shook agile feet and flying braids to the 6-8 time of the Irish jig and reel, arm in arm with their young "Michaels." Groups of young folk went about from house to house praising the patron saint of Ireland, and with lusty voices sang the "Wearin' o' the Green."

In America, it was strictly a day for the O'Learys, the Dooleys, and the Kellys, each family in turn exhibiting snub noses, blue eyes, and a genial personality to prove their County Cork descent. Many a button-hole on a barrel-chested Celt was punctured by a pert, green shamrock, and many were the times that the "Pat and Mike" stories flew the verbal rounds.

Robust cops forgot their hard exteriors, and through the day the traffic whistle and the harsh words gave way to the joviality of twinkling eyes and a hearty wit.

And in the twilight, sons and daughters of Hibernian ancestry gathered to dance, to sing, and to make merry—true, it was a far cry from the Emerald Isle, but who could deny the spirit with the rising tones of "When Irish Eyes Are Smiling"?

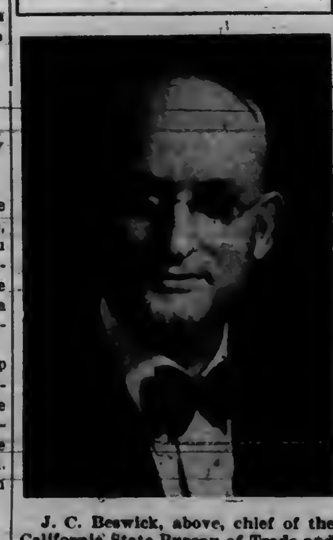
FOUNTAIN SERVICE SOON

This unique laboratory program for college students was made possible through Major Joseph Nourse, principal of the high school; Mrs. Edith Murphy, head of the home economics department of the San Francisco schools, and Virginia Bartlett, in charge of the home economics classes at Galileo.

Adding an additional service, a student-operated soda fountain will be installed in the near future, Gifford said.

School Attendance Reported Declining

Daily school attendance of the state of California has decreased during the year of 1935, according to a report of the State Taxpayers' League.



In 1931-32 the daily attendance was 684,000. In 1936 the attendence dropped to 673,000. However, the population of the state has increased 690,609, or 12 per cent, says the league reports. The population in 1930 was 5,677,251, and in 1935, 6,367,860.

Pharmacists Ask College to Dance

Invitation for junior college students to attend a dance to be held next Friday night at the Century Club, Sutter and Franklin Streets, has been extended by the University of California Pharmacy College.

The admission price will be one dollar per couple. Howard Markuse and his orchestra will furnish the music. Markuse is a San Francisco Junior College student.

ADULT STUDENTS ARE URGED TO REGISTER FOR MAY ELECTION

"Register, young citizens, and do it before March 26, in order that you may vote in the May election!" This is the advice of Edith E. Pence, who, aside from being assistant dean of women in our college, is chairman of education for the City and County Federation of Women's Clubs.

There are many students, both men and women, attending junior college who have reached their majority, and Miss Pence urges them to exercise their privilege of voting and perform this important duty of the American citizen.

Miss Pence said further, "These young adults must realize that the opportunity has come for them to shape their own lives and the lives of those about them by exercising the vote of the cherished franchise of every American citizen. They must realize that their participation in determining the trend of affairs in their local community and in their nation is not only a privilege but it is also a solemn duty which they must be ready to perform. To be ready in this case means to be REGISTERED before March 26."

Roosevelt Leads In College Ballot By Largest Majority

By THE EXCHANGE EDITOR

In a strawballot taken at San Francisco State College, President Franklin D. Roosevelt won a smashing victory over the rest of his opponents, polling 373 votes while his nearest rival, Landon, received only 46. Other possible candidates were voted the following order: Hoover, Thomas, Sinclair, Smith, Merriam, Hearst, Knox, and Darcy. Looks like State rides the New Deal donkey.

Class rooms of exquisitely carved framework, plate glass windows, gorgeous chandeliers, and massive fireplaces—doesn't that sound romantic? That was the atmosphere in which early San Mateans acquired their education during four years, from 1923 to 1927, when an old mansion in the town housed the college.

We wonder if they were ever disturbed by any family ghosts which, mystery stories tell us, reside in such places?

A mock wedding ceremony followed by a "bridal" dinner and open house party was held at Little Rock Junior College in Arkansas, in order to raise money. The performers in the nuptial rites were elected by the student body.

Differing slightly from Mr. Webster's formerly accepted definitions, the Daily Trojan has given the Southern California version of a few well-known words. Here they are, so throw caution to the winds, forget your college educational exposure, and try to see it their way:

grid—avarice, selfishness.

Greek—a stream, rivulet.

tackle—to cause to laugh by waving a feather under the chin.

lunch—to set out on the water, as a steamship.

sprinter—a sliver of wood.

Chimes—typical name for chauffeur, as in "Home Chimes!"

Southern Californians, it seems, are not the only ones who go in for unusual words; for in San Francisco there has been much evidence of the same tendencies as the result of a new ordinance. For instance, who would ordinarily suppose that beer could be known as PEER or BEEP; that buffet could be known as PUFFET or BULLET; or that tavern would have to become a CAVERN to be legal?

Kiepe Resigns As Sect'y of Society

Saying that he did not have enough time to devote to the office, Hans Kiepe, secretary of the Pi Mu Gamma Society, resigned his position at the regular meeting of the group last week. Howard Fifer was appointed to replace Kiepe by President Frank Cirelli.

Tentative plans for a field trip to the Pathology Museum of the University of California were also made at the meeting. Members will be notified of the exact date either at the next meeting or by mail, Cirelli said.

The society held a social hike in Marin County Friday, March 13.

Reasons for Fingerprinting Told at Assembly; Students Registering Throughout Week

"There are more than an hundred reasons why a person should be fingerprinted," said Robert Fouke, president of the California Junior Chamber of Commerce, at the assembly last week.

Giving some of the chief reasons why everyone should offer himself for voluntary fingerprint registration, Fouke pointed out that fingerprint records of every person would result in: greater accuracy in taking the census; less juvenile delinquency; fewer illegal entries into this country; exoneration of innocent persons accused of crime; doing away with fraud in voting; aiding the identification of missing persons, as well as of unidentified bodies; and the discontinuation of chiseling on the relief rolls.

The assembly, organized by the Junior Chamber of Commerce, had as speakers, Philip F. Landis, executive vice-president of the San Francisco Junior Chamber of Commerce; Don Bryer, of the National Affairs Committee, and Fouke.

The Galileo Band lent vigorous support to the meeting through the kindness of J. S. Kennedy, music instructor of Galileo High School.

A student committee, under Helene Wright and Bob Sisco, having been given a course in fingerprinting by the S.F. Police Department, will be in charge of the fingerprinting to be conducted on the basement floor at the Extension Building. The members are Birnelyn Seymour, Hermine King, Eloyas Cagle, Gordon Solimon, Attilio Ferrari, Clyde Polland, and Bob Zelinsky.

Through the efforts of Joe Amori, six students have been obtained who will devote time to do the registration typing free. The typists are Helen Scott, Amy Madriese, Margaret Beuham, Martha Flyita, Alice Lubeck, and Louis Brighlia.

ENGINEER

A former instructor at Cornell University, and now manager of the Berkeley Women's City Club, Brandon Watson, above, will teach hotel and restaurant engineering here.

Directors Chosen For Debate Society

Mildred Ross, Isabel Sherritt and Eugene Blumenthal have been appointed as student directors of debating, according to an announcement by Lloyd Luckmann, public speaking instructor.

"These students will take charge of organizing a debating society. All students interested should get in touch with them," Luckmann said.

It was also announced that Ross, Sherritt and Blumenthal are preparing a debate on the subject of continued government relief, and are ready to argue the question with any "worthy opponent."

Sisco Elected As Member of Skull, Blade Organization

After considering plans for initiation ceremonies for new members, the Skull and Blade Society voted Bib Sisco, Men's Club president, to fill a vacancy left when Bill Ellis resigned his membership in the men's honorary service association. This brings the society's quota up to 20 men, according to Ray Brunn, president.

The group decided to change the date of meetings from Friday to Wednesday, in order to devote more time to support of rallies.

The list of members, awarded memberships because of outstanding service to the junior college, follows: Ray Brunn, Ed Talavera, Jack Welch, Pete Jambruno, Maury Schwarz, James Neal, Bob Neal, Ben McGuire, Bob Rhode, Bill Kennedy, Jim Fahn, Milt Durfee, Alan Koblick, Joe Kisael, Paul Green, Julian Goodell, Henry Kearney, Frank Peterson and Ed Frediani.

A Cappella Choir to Sing Before Rotarians Soon

Chosen as a group of promising singers, the A Cappella Choir of the college, under the direction of Flossita Badger, music instructor, will have the distinction of entertaining the members and guests of the Rotary Club on the afternoon of March 24.

SAN FRANCISCO FISH-CONSCIOUS IN 1935

How many people visited San Francisco's famed museum and Steinhart Aquarium of the California Academy of Sciences in 1935?

You couldn't guess and neither could we, so here it is according to F. M. McFarland, president of the academy:

During 1935 visitors totaled 1,443,973, an increase of 439,541 over the year 1934. Students from 154 classes from San Francisco schools are included among this number.

Of this large number of visitors, 803,542 visited the aquarium, 455,097 the museum, and 185,334 the new African Hall.

No, McFarland didn't count all of the people as they entered.

Economics Club To Meet at Luncheon

Members of the Economics Club will meet tomorrow for luncheon at 12:30 noon. The restaurant has not yet been decided upon, but it will be one of those situated near the Extension Building.

In addition to setting the dates for future meetings, the club will decide on a key for the organization and plan on future social activities. Wallace Fowler, student head of the club, urges all members to be present, particularly the executive committee.

Those attending the luncheon are requested to meet outside the Extension Building at 12:30 sharp.

SPORTS AWARDS CLASSIFIED BY STUDENT GROUP

Only Four Games Get Major Recognition; Others to Be Considered

USE POINT SYSTEM

A, B, C, D Divisions Give All Athletes Equal Opportunity

After considering all phases of the awards situation, and striving to give all sports equal representation, the Awards Committee has drawn up a system to meet with the immediate and future demands of the junior college, according to Tyler McHugh, chairman. Other committee members include Tim Guiney, Bob Sisco, Arlene Frazieres and Helene Wright.

The classification follows:

SPORT CLASSIFICATION

All college activities (competitive sport activities) are divided according to the nature of the activity as follows:

CLASS A

Sports in which men competing as a team strive for a goal or victory (an equal number against an equal number): (Asterisks indicate that sport is not at present recognized.)

Football, basketball, baseball, *hockey, soccer, *water polo, *water basketball, *tug of war, crew (single oar falls under Class C), *lightweight basketball.

CLASS B

Sports in which victory is decided by the sum total of the points earned by individuals:

Track, swimming, *diving, *tumbling, *apparatus, *indoor athletic meets (*running high kick, *fence vault, etc.).

CLASS C

Sports in which individuals compete with other individuals:

*Boxing, *wrestling, *fencing, tennis (singles; doubles fall in Class A), *jiujitsu, *handball, golf.

CLASS D

Other competitive college activities (not considered under sport activities):

Debating, declamatory contests, speed commercial contests, special oratorical or essay contests, etc.

Note: It would be advisable to have an entirely different type of award for this class, as pins or medals, to avoid misinterpretation. When a number of men in Class C are representing the college as a team, the team would fall under Class B (such as boxing team, etc.).

RULES GOVERNING AWARDS

Rule 1. 100 points won entirely in one sport shall entitle the athlete to the block. (See award chart.)

2. A gold award shall be awarded to a member of a conference championship team who:

a. Class A sports—receives 100 points in the sport during the season in which the championship was won.

b. Class B sports—receives 100 points in the sport during the season in which the championship was won and places in the conference meet.

c. Class C sports—Wins the conference finals.

3. The second 100 points cannot be won in the same year in any one sport. That is, it is not possible to annex more than 100 points in any one sport during one season and have it count toward a second block. It is possible, however, to have points less than 100 count toward a block the following year.

4. 15 points shall be granted to any athlete staying out for the sport the full season.

5. Sports shall not be differentiated into major or minor classes.

'Hermit' Amori Picks Winners Of Whiskerino

Prizes Go to Nine Entries in Contest Sponsored by Men's Club

Believing that no one is more fitted to judge a whiskerino contest than a white-bearded "old man of the mountains," Joe Amori, faculty adviser, accordingly undertook the role while acting as official judge of tonsorial growths at the Associated Men Students' rally last Thursday.

Acquiring the most luxuriant set of whiskers in the 14-day period, Al Cohn was acclaimed college champion. For his facial display of masculine virility, he was awarded a Schick electric razor.

VAN DYKE WINNER

A neat Van Dyke and a couple of sideburns, worn by Bib Sisco, was deemed the most original type, earning for its owner a box of shaving cream.

Charles "Killer" Kremesec eked out a very close decision over his opponents for the most dismal, downy growth. For his efforts he received a unique desk lamp.

Tyler McHugh was declared the winner for the scraggliest beard, and was presented with a large box of razor blades.

BLOND GETS BID

The award for the blondest beard went to Charles Doudlet, who selected as his prize a bid for the junior college dance to be held at the Mark Hopkins on March 27. This gift was donated by Mort Werner of KROW.

For the reddest set of whiskers, George Clarke received a shaving mirror.

CONSOLATION

The rest of the contestants all received consolation prizes including shaving sets, mirrors, and boxes of chewing gum. They were Ed Talavera, Stafford Repp, and Jack Steiger.

Three hundred sticks of chewing gum were donated by the Wrigley company for this event.

Expect Increase In NYA Employment To Add 30 Workers

N. Y. A. checks for February, amounting to $2477, have been distributed to 195 San Francisco Junior College students, according to Edith E. Pence, assistant dean of women.

Because some students are working part time, the N.Y.A. will be able to assist 30 more students above the quota, and the March payroll is expected to have 205 names.

Miss Pence said that students whose scholastic record has not been satisfactory will automatically retire from the list on March 30 to give a chance to others.

Time slips for the period ending March 28 have been distributed, and all time reports must be handed to Miss Pence by March 30.

Miss Pence also said that the San Francisco Junior College will continue to have the benefit of N.Y.A. funds through May, but so far no word has been received regarding next semester.

Debaters Planning March 26 Meeting

Men and women who have signed up for debating, and all others interested in the organizing of a debating society are asked to be present at a meeting to be held at Galileo, room 203, on March 26, according to an announcement by Lloyd D. Luckmann, public speaking instructor.

LEADERS OUTLINE WOMEN'S SPORTS

Fostering a program of women's athletics including basketball, baseball, tennis, archery and numerous other sports, officers of the Women's Athletic Association have their hands full arranging activities for the large number of women students who signed up to compete in the games sponsored by the group.

Left to right, standing, are: Birnelyn Seymour, song leader; Arlene Frazierres, W.A.A. president; and Shirley Barrett, treasurer. Kneeling: Parnell Brown, secretary, and Ruth Jolinson, vice-president.

WOMEN NET PLAYERS COMPETE IN PALACE LADDER CONTESTS

Miss Orginas Leads Tennis Club in Meet Today; Matches Follow

Novice women tennis players who meet Tuesday and Thursday mornings at the Palace of Fine Arts under Bertha Keller's instruction are receiving their first competition experience in the singles and doubles ladder tournaments now under way during class time.

Places on the ladders were first determined by a drawing. In the 9:30 o'clock inexperienced singles tournament, Patricia Matz has succeeded so far in keeping position number one against challengers.

In the 11:30 o'clock class, both experienced and inexperienced doubles ladder tournaments are in progress. The Betty Phillips-Lois Sullivan team heads the experienced ones, and the Beatrice Murphy-Marie Wells the inexperienced. Gladya Butler and Jean Cassinelli kept second place in the inexperienced ladder against a challenge from Jane Ferguson and Florence Ravazzano.

The experienced players are required to play two sets out of three, and the inexperienced one set.

The Women's Tennis Club will meet today at the Palace of Fine Arts at one o'clock, under the direction of Caroline Orginas, women's tennis manager.

The club will discuss tennis awards and set up the W.A.A. doubles tournament. Following the meeting, matches in the singles W.A.A. tournament will be played off on the Palace courts.

YOO HOO! ARCHERS ENTERTAIN GALLERY WITH BOW, ARROW

Time: 3:30 Thursday.

Setting: A large, windy field, half of it sandy, half covered with an attractive green, though somewhat thinaish, lawn. Stately evergreen trees, interspersed with several simple stucco buildings, form a background against which several brightly colored archery targets show up effectively.

Place: Fort Mason Field.

You guessed it, Geraldine, it's Weber's archery class, and judging from the size of that gallery (composed largely of neighborhood children and Presidio WPA workers), it's proving popular with old and young alike.

A slim figure poses gracefully, carefully judges her aim, holds the bow taut for a moment, then lets the arrow fly, and it promptly finds a secure position in—the bull's eye?

Wrong again, it lodges in the ground underneath the target.

This game isn't as easy as it looks. It calls for excellent concentration, superior muscular co-ordination, and an ability to gauge distances correctly. Since the target is placed at a distance of 20 yards (30 yards is the minimum distance used in tournaments, but as the girls improve, the distance will be increased), a mistake of an inch in aim will be magnified 20 times on the target.

Contrary to appearances, the girls do not aim for the target, as this would cause the arrow to land too high. They try instead for a golf ball placed just in front of the target, on the ground. A perfect aim at this ball will score a bull's eye.

This attractive sport is becoming more and more popular, and one reason for this is the fact that men and women, and even physically handicapped people, can compete on an even basis, although the superior muscular construction of the average man usually makes him a better shot than the average woman.

BLOCK S.F. SOCIETY DISCUSSES LETTER QUESTION TONIGHT

Group Sponsors Sport Dance Next Week in Women's Gymnasium

The subject of new block designs, asked for by active J.C. athletes, will be one of the main questions discussed at a get-together dinner of the Block SF Society tonight at the Tower of Pisa Cafe. Guests of honor will include the coaching staff, Edwin Browne, Assistant Dean of Men, and Paul Pitman, assistant to President Cloud.

The block society, which came into activity only this semester, with Adolph Pedrin as president, has many plans on hand, first of which is the sponsorship of a dance to be held a week from Friday in the women's gymnasium.

Originally scheduled as a barn dance, the affair has been changed to a sport dance, according to Pedrin. The society has secured the services of Howard Markuse and his orchestra for the evening. Tickets will be 40 cents with Associated Student Body cards.

Tickets are on sale by all lettermen.

WAA Announces Contest for Song

Continuing an interesting series of W.A.A. activities, a song and yell contest has begun which will last until April 2, according to Ruth Johnson, vice-president of the organization.

Although all song words entered must be original, special music need not be composed, as the judges will accept words that fit the tunes of suitable songs.

'The Water's Fine'—Cry Rings Out As 100 Frolickers Splash

With the cry, "Come on in, the water's fine," approximately 100 students of San Francisco Junior College made a success of the first swimming party at the Fairmont Hotel Terrace Plunge, Wednesday evening, March 18.

The "highlite" of the evening was provided in the form of a "nightgown" race between the college's outstanding men swimmers. The teams were composed of five men each, and captained by Tom Connelly and Jimmy McGruer.

The race resembled a regular relay, except that flannel nightgowns had to be worn while racing and had to be delivered and put on by the next swimmer before diving in for his turn.

McGruer's team emerged the victors in this event, and were awarded . . . the privilege of wearing the nightgowns the rest of the evening.

Other events were a regular relay race by the same teams; exhibitions by swimmers of the hotel plunge; and fancy diving by members of the college swimming team.

"The evening proved such a success that we are all looking forward to another party in the near future," declared student heads.

Half Student Body Aids In Print Drive

Pitman Lands Response To Civic Campaign That J.C. Inaugurated

Over half the student body of the college responded to the Junior Chamber of Commerce campaign on citizen fingerprinting, held last week, announced Bob Sisco, president of the A.M.S., today.

The campaign, which began Monday, March 16, and ended Friday, March 20, was carried on by a group of students who had received instruction in the art of fingerprinting from the San Francisco Police Department.

"The response to this civic campaign by our school," declared Paul Pitman, assistant to President Cloud, "is to be commended, and thanks are to be extended to the Junior Chamber of Commerce for allowing us the opportunity to pioneer this undertaking in San Francisco."

A vote of thanks is extended through The Guardsman to Remington & Rand for the use of typewriters necessary to the clerical work during the campaign week.

Watkins To Finish Townsend Debate in Problems Class

Completing the second part of a debate on the economic and social implications of the Townsend Plan, E. G. Watkins of the Crusaders will appear before the current social problems class of the junior college on Friday, March 27, at 12:35 p.m. William Goss, instructor of the class, invites all other students interested in the subject to attend.

Watkins will discuss objections and criticisms to the proposals of the plan as it was presented to this same group of students on last Friday by Frank Rutherford of the San Francisco Townsend Club and head of the lecture bureau.

Watkins has made several appearances in San Francisco already, and both men have lectured widely on their individual subjects.

College, Hi School Combine to Manage New Dining Service

Planning to install later a fountain service with complete equipment, open to students of both the junior college and Galileo High School, the two having combined cafeteria organizations, according to John Gifford, coordinator.

Representing the high school in the new arrangement are Patty Sears and Bob Hartmaan, who were appointed by Major J. P. Nourse, principal at Galileo. Besides handling luncheons given by different organizations, the managers will help to formulate the policy of the management. They will also be required to consider suggestions offering betterment of the cafeteria service.

Special menus and service are offered organizations of the college or high school, Gifford said, and may be obtained upon application to the maitre d'hotel, Hart Smith.

Special a la carte menus will be served by waiters in the faculty dining room. Menus will be sent to teachers daily, with orders taken care of by the hostess, Mary Smiley.

Paul M. Pitman, assistant to President Cloud, was guest speaker of the San Francisco Public Schools Evening Forum at a meeting last Monday at Balboa High School.

COLLEGE NIGHT FRIDAY END OF 'MARK' AFFAIRS

Williams' Crew Entertains at College Rally as 'Mike' Fails

S. F. AMATEURS SING

Schnozzola Artist Renders Music with Noseola on Hoseola

Giving a preview of what students may see and hear at the College Night to be held at the Mark Hopkins Hotel next Friday night, Griff Williams and some of his entertainers offered diversion at the assembly held last week at Galileo.

Himself introduced by President Maury Schwarz in that inimitable way that only a Schwarz can introduce, Williams presented Buddy Mareno, who affectionately fondled the mike as he crooned two selections—"It's Been So Long" and "The Cockeyed Mayor from Kanakai."

By this time the mike had recovered from the effects of Schwarz' introduction, and Monte Kelly managed "My Romance" through it without being shut off cold, as was his predecessor, Mareno.

Kay Griffith's singing brought forth applause from all but the traditional sourdides row, which up to this point had remained mute and still.

Producing a pocketful of gadgets, Joe Brigandi, the garden artist, brought down the house with music forced through a garden hose, a schnozzola (perfected to permit a musician to chew gum while getting paid good money for making music through his nose), and a long piece of thin rubber tubing that looked like it had been pilfered from the bathroom syringe.

Sarcastically, yet humorously, Brigandi conclusively proved where the music comes out, and where it goes in; further, by draping the gadget around his neck, he showed that the music literally does go round and round. Now that that has been proved, please let us forget it, insomuch as what goes in circles can never get anywhere.

Brigandi's work went so far as to provoke a slight smile on the erst-

MARK HOPKINS DANCE WILL BE LAST HILLTOP AFFAIR

The last affair of its kind to be held for some time at the Mark Hopkins Hotel, San Francisco Junior College Night will be celebrated at the hilltop hostelry next Friday.

The event will also mark the first strictly S.F.J.C. night sponsored by the Mark Hopkins, which has extended a formal invitation to students of the college through the Executive Committee. The last affair held there was given jointly in honor of this and San Mateo Junior College.

The cost will be one dollar per couple for cover charge, representing a special reduction granted for the occasion.

In addition to music from Griff Williams' orchestra, it is expected that some aspiring junior college entertainers will be featured on the evening's schedule of entertainment. Anyone interested in an audition should see Maury Schwarz, who is the college representative of the Mark Hopkins Hotel.

Schwarz is also in charge of special reservations, and tickets allowing students the special cover charge price may be obtained from him.

Money Listed As A Requisite For Ambitious Female Medics

"Intelligence, hard work, health and money are four essentials toward becoming a good woman doctor," said Alice Potter, women's doctor of the college.

"Intelligence, because the study of medicine needs constant improvement and revising; hard work, because it is unlimited work and needs a constantly reliable person; health, because it is strenuous, mentally and physically; money, because finance is required throughout four years of college, four of medicine, and during three or more years of hospital training. It is often easier for a man to work his way through school than it is for a woman to do," she said.

In answer to the question of percentage of women doctors in California compared to that of the East, she said, "Although I'm not sure of statistics, I think there are more women doctors in the state of California than there are in the East, and many more girls plan to enter the profession here than there."

As far as the age-old question goes concerning just how women as doctors compare to men, Miss Potter says, "If you have something within you that makes you want to serve people, your sex or the field of work has no bearing on the case."

VIRTUE HAS ITS OWN REWARD

A new club or fraternity is started. Immediately students ponder over the selection of proper pins and emblems.

An athletic team goes through a season. Immediately there arises great discussion as to what blocks, numerals, and other awards must be given.

MUST WE BE REWARDED FOR EVERYTHING WE DO? ARE NOT THE PLEASURE AND SATISFACTION OF WHOLE-HEARTED PARTICIPATION SUFFICIENT?

Material rewards in the form of a piece of metal or cloth are mere signs, meaningless in themselves. They are nice to have, but one can live as long and as profitably without them as one can with them.

If one works only for the expectation of some such tangible, yet intangible, recognition, is one in reality doing such a noble thing?

Do not infer that these outward tapestries are particularly objectionable; gather, rather, that it is meant that the possession or absence of them is of little importance, and that working for the pleasure of the work and the satisfaction of achievement is better than striving for some material, yet meaningless, imagined glory.

GIVE IT A CHANCE!

Pledged to render efficient, economical service, the junior college class in hotel and restaurant management took over the operation of the Galileo cafeteria to operate it not only for the high school, but also for the college.

This is not a spasmodic attempt by a few theoretical-minded students; it is a major undertaking attempted by serious, business-like students operating under the supervision of men well qualified through education and practical experience in the field.

This new cafeteria is for your benefit; at least give it a fair trial. The food should be as good as that obtainable anywhere for the price.

(Bear in mind, incidentally, that none of the commercial cafes has indicated much support of the junior college.)

IT'S NOT SO BAD

Students eagerly look forward to the time when they will be firmly established in a college plant of their own. Yes, that will be nice.

It is impossible to have the desirable traditions under present conditions, some lament. Now, that's just too bad.

Realize it or not, traditions never to be found in the historical annals of any other institution have already been firmly established.

Travel about the world, and whenever you hear people speaking of San Francisco, you will hear of Chinatown, Nob Hill, Powell Street, the Lido, the North Point district, and cable cars.

These are now almost our heritages; they are our campus, our playgrounds. Years hence we shall tell of these things, and our children, languishing in a fine, centralized plant, will listen with envious ears to tales of scrambling about the "seven hills of San Francisco."

FOOLS OR HEROES?

A little nonsense now and then
Is relished by the best of men.

Very funny, some call them; darned fools, say others. Regardless, they are good sports, these students who are always willing to participate in some silly act for the amusement of students.

Headline crashers, publicity hounds, some declare them. What of it? Everyone is amused; and, in addition, being the intentional object of merriment has certain advantages toward developing poise and nonchalance.

It is not particularly advocated that all students participate in what might be termed the "silly but humorous" activities. That is a matter for the individual to decide for himself. Those who do participate, however, should be given due credit and applause.

A SHORT STORY

Slowly the hands of the slumber-shattering alarm clock crept toward the fearful morning hour of seven. At last, its harsh notes shattered the peaceful silence.

A sleepy student reached over, turned off the disturbing element, and philosophically thought to himself that it wouldn't make much difference if he were to add one more cut to his eight o'clock class. Tomorrow he'd be on time. Back to sleep he went.

At eight o'clock that evening, mixed with the blare of the radio, the tingling cry of a telephone rang out. A student, about to get ready to prepare to think about beginning to study, answered.

"Go to the show, you say? Well, I should do some studying . . . but, . . . oh, what's the difference? I can do it tomorrow." He went to the show.

The sun shone down in all its spring-time grandeur. As two-thirty rolled around, a student debated over the comparative values of swimming and attending a three-hour laboratory section.

"True, I am a little behind in my work, but . . . well, it might rain tomorrow, so I wouldn't be able to go swimming then." He went swimming.

Late into the night, three instructors, in different parts of the town, pondered over examination papers and grade records. As though a bond of mental telepathy linked their minds, they said to themselves:

"He's a nice kid, and I like him, but he certainly has been a trifle irregular in his attendance and in his work. I dislike having to send him a cinch, but . . ." The instructors sent the cinches—not tomorrow, but today!

SAILING THROUGH THE NEWS

Alleging that Senator McSwain pilfered from the Western Union a telegram addressed to one of his editors, and then read a very corrupted, misleading version of it in Congress, William Randolph Hearst has brought suit against the senator for damages he claims he has sustained.

Openly intimating in his notorious front page editorials that McSwain is a traitor, a liar, and a Communist, Hearst has payed the way for the senator to retaliate with a rather large libel suit.

Oh, If We Could Only Know the Truth!

If Hearst's condemnations are really true, then it is apparent that McSwain is a dangerous man to have in public office, and should be removed before he causes too much furor.

Politics being politics, however, and certain newspapers being managed and mismanaged the way they are, one is left in a quandary as to just what is the truth.

In conjunction with his bitter assaults on the integrity of Senator McSwain, Hearst comes out to condemn forcibly what he terms "radical pacifism," an idea of which McSwain is alleged to be a supporter.

One is inclined to wonder if ever radical pacifism led to war. "We want peace," countries declare, "but we must be prepared to defend ourselves from those who do not." So preparedness goes on at a rapid rate.

From Preparedness To Open Boastfulness

The armies expand; more dreadnaughts of the deep slip down the ways to cleave the waves for the glory and protection of the fatherland; nationalism, patriotism, superiority over other countries is pounded into the heads of school children until they actually believe it.

It is not long before the public begins to believe all the propaganda; it sees its own military force; soon it appears that it is God's own will that someone else be subjugated; and there is a war. Did radical pacifism ever do this?

Burros Of The Pacific

The great fleet of salmon ships is making ready to leave for the north soon, after the winter's layovers and repairs at various bay region ports.

A local maritime writer lamented the fact that no longer can be seen the glorious old sailing vessels that raced every year to the fishing grounds from San Francisco until about 1928. Gone was the old-time romance.

In the same paper appeared a story of a steam schooner that lost its rudder off the Oregon coast a few days ago. Little known by many, those little schooners, conceived and first launched by San Francisco shipbuilders to meet the needs of a lumbering industry on a rocky, jagged coast, represent a romance of the olden days still to be seen in service.

These little craft, usually constructed of wood, have an average speed of seven knots, and probably an average age of 35 to 45 years.

If you are interested in the romance of San Francisco, go down to the wharves and look over one of these "burros of the Pacific," as they are called. The Wapama, which ties up around Pier 19, is a typical one.

PAPER TALK

One of the most gullible traits of humans is that of taking other people's words for things. All somebody has to do is say, "I made it myself," or words to that effect, and everything is taken for granted. It's all wrong, and I wish something could be done about it.

Last week I was over to a friend's house for dinner, and he put on a big feed. Steak with mushrooms.

My friends is a good guy, and I like him very much, but he isn't—well, I wouldn't trust his judgment too much if my life hung in the balance. His eyes are none too good, for one thing, and, besides, he's a little careless.

In the middle of the repast, in order to be polite, I said, "These mushrooms are all right."

And the friend came back with, "Well, they ought to be—I just picked them myself, this morning."

That spoiled my meal. The more I looked at the formerly delicious fungi, the more I became convinced that they were toadstools, and I left the table in a hurry with my hand over my mouth.

That's the way it is all over. You tell some dame you like her new hat and she'll answer, "Well, I should think so—I made it myself." The same with most other things that can be made at home. If "I made it myself," it's supposed to be the best.

It's a regular craze. Riding in one of the new cars which the Market Street Railway Co. has foisted on innocent patrons of the No. 19 line, I chanced to stand up close to the motorman. The cars, though new, are uncomfortable and noisy. They are so lousy that I thought the car company must have bought them up at two-bits a dozen. But I found I was wrong.

In loud tones, I asked the motorman where they got the new cars. He couldn't hear me above the rattling of the No. 19. I hollered again, sarcastically, "This is a pretty good car!"

The car was noisy and I couldn't get what he answered, but I'm pretty sure he answered, "Yeah, I made it myself."

'P.A.' Trouble Bothers President But He Charges It Up to Variety

By MAURY SCHWARZ

Know what "P. A." trouble is? Well, I've got it. If you think that I go "nuts" just to please the audience, then get in my way the next time one of those "P. A." systems fails to work after the trouble we go through in getting it for our rallies. Their peculiarities offer one reason I'm so much in favor of whiskerino contests. The one last Thursday took up 15 minutes which gave us that much more time to connect the system.

In spite of the usual difficulties, and in great contrast to my usual prehistoric actions, Griff Williams, Buddy Marino, Kay Griffith, Monte Kelly, and Joe Brigandi were all great sports about the whole thing. From the comments around school, I gather that the rally was right on top as far as the best ones are concerned. I'd say that Griff Williams doesn't need the atmosphere to "go over"—he makes his own.

This Friday evening, March 27, the Peacock Court at the Mark Hopkins will be the stamping grounds of our S.F.J.C. Night. Let's fill up the Peacock Court with a real representation of the J.C.

Our thanks for those nightgowns we used at the Fairmont Plunge last Wednesday night go to Myrtle Hamilton. I hope we can borrow them again at our next swim; it certainly is hard to find another old-fashioned girl around school.

Speaking for myself, I had a swell time until I kicked myself in the mouth trying to follow the antics of Deming Smith and Jimmy Fahn in "follow the leader" off the springboard. The next time they're going to follow me.

Our social calendar, so far, looks like this:

J.C. Night at the Mark Hopkins, Friday, March 27.

Block S.F. Sport Dance, Friday, April 3, Galileo gym.

Student Body Dance, April 24.

Try to support at least one of them.

FASHION FLASHES

This 'n' That

Among the newest of the Spring coats is the new short, tailored, boxy type, which is especially fine for wear with a tailored suit. This is because the roomy sleeves and waistline make it possible to wear it as a top coat without looking bulky, or feeling uncomfortable. These coats come in camel's hair trimmed with pearl or wooden buttons and in many bright new colors, including tangerine, London tan, gold, beige, and bright blue.

* * *

Two fashionable balls, held in Paris and New York, revealed that frilly, feminine lace is once more back in the fashion picture. This filmy fabric, which has been so long absent from our wardrobes, is especially attractive in evening gowns, but is also seen in everything from lace veils on hats to (shades of our grandmother!) lace trimmed petticoats.

* * *

Another old style which is coming back is tassel trimming. Tassels can now be found on dresses, hats, and even gloves. They decorate necklines, belts, and sash ends, and are enormous in size.

* * *

Our athletically inclined co-eds will be interested in the new culotte or divided skirt, which is said to be especially appropriate for golf or tennis. Culottes appear in almost every type of costume from the heavy flannel sport skirts to printed broadcloth dresses of the spectator sports type. But, as one noted fashion writer has so frankly put it, they should be avoided if you have forgotten to count the calories!

Assorted Comments Received In Student Opinion Columns

THE RAM'S HORN

Dear Guardsman:

Why is it that so few S.F.J.C. students attend the weekly Thursday rallies put on by the student body when they seem to be so interesting and entertaining? Take last week's assembly for example; with such a group of entertainers as Griff Williams and his gang, college students should have jammed the auditorium. The judging of the whiskerino should have drawn many more students than were present. How about an editorial on this subject?

Sincerely,

COLLEGE SPIRIT.

Note: You people who belly-ache to have something done that already has been done gripe me no end. If you would read the editorials now and then, you would realize that quite a bit of editorial space has already been donated to the subject you mention. Incidentally, I doubt your ability to count—last week's assembly had a good attendance.—Ed.

Dear Editor:

May I make a plea for the classes at Galileo, along Francisco Street? Classwork is interrupted almost daily by blaring horns, blasting radios, and piercing voices. The instructor no sooner gets started on a lecture, when an automobile horn suddenly causes both teacher and textbook to jump with fright. In the middle of a test, the soft rhythm of either "Moon Over Miami" or the soul-disturbing tune of a baritone solo flows up from the street below; naturally everyone feels like getting up and dancing right out of the room and down the hall, instead of struggling through a test.

It seems that every time the teacher asks the class a question, an unknown (but loud enough) voice comes up from someone below, and instead of answering the teacher, I feel like running to the window, leaning out, and—yelling a few things back. Also, you may not realize it, you sidewalk "stander-oners," but we suffering students in the classrooms above do find out a good deal of your business (personal and otherwise) which you throw back and forth to each other. Furthermore, we hear everything you say about your "favorite prof."

Incidentally, while I am on the subject of Galileo classrooms, may I ask if it is unavoidable that carpenters must do their hammering during our class hours? I have been in several classes into which walked burly carpenters armed with hammers and nails, and who, without saying a word or offering an apology to the instructor, proceed to pound diligently on a broken desk, or on some hole in the floor. All attempts made by instructors to get anything over to the students are quite feeble and most ineffective. Actually, a good deal of time is wasted (although the students do enjoy the fact that not every carpenter can hammer a nail straight.)

MISS ANTI-NOISE.

Note: I am greatly in favor of an anti-noise week to be celebrated 52 times a year.—Ed.

Dear Editor:

. . . A most pitiful and outrageous incident occurred in front of Galileo, on Francisco Street, at about 4 o'clock p.m. A group of students were engaging themselves in the "sport" of goading . . . one of their less fortunate fellows. . . . The group included both men and women prominent in student affairs, sports, and social activities.

. . . May I donate the hypothetical orchid to charming ———, who alone, of all those assembled, had the fortitude and . . . kindness to express herself . . . as to what she thought of the ring-leaders and their choice of entertainment?

Sincerely yours,

NRA.

Note: Above are excerpts from a letter sent to The Ram's Horn two weeks ago, which was not run because the identity of its author was not established, and because the editor was unaware of the circumstances involved.

Below are excerpts from a second letter of NRA, whose identity is now known, and who is to be commended highly for his condemnation of the low-class sport mentioned above.

Dear Editor:

I assure you that it was not through cowardice or lack of conviction that my statements were valid, that I failed to sign my name two weeks ago. My reasons . . . are these: Never having written anonymously to a column before, and not being familiar with journalistic policies, I used a nom de plume. Secondly, . . . I know several of those engaged in the incident, and I did not wish to have them think I was a "namby-pamby." Yet I felt so strongly opposed to their actions and so sorry for the fellow who was their object, that I thought a few words on the subject might make them see the folly of their ways.

. . . For various reasons, I later felt that it might be best to let the whole matter drop. After your second note, however, I decided that perhaps you thought my letter . . . merited publication. You are at liberty to use your own discretion.

NRA.

P.S.: I, too, greatly enjoy The Ram's Horn, as well as the rest of The Guardsman. Also your editorials are exceptionally good.

NRA.

Note: Apologies are offered if the editorial notes seemed to cast any aspersion upon the integrity of NRA. Such humane interest is splendid. Thanks, also, for the compliment.—Ed.

CURTAIN!

By Irvin Silberstein

The greatest living master of comic pantomime, Charles Chaplin, retains all his perfection as an artist in Modern Times, his first picture in five years, playing now at the United Artists Theater.

In a story of "humanity crusading in the pursuit of happiness" against a terrifying obstacle—this modern machine age—Chaplin painstakingly works in a clever satire, through the trials, tribulations, and emotions of his sympathetic character . . . the man with the hat, the cane, the shoes, the moustache. So full of meaning are his antics and so perfect is his technique that even an adult audience cannot completely absorb all the fine details that are a part of Chaplin's story and a product of his satirical mind. One must necessarily see the picture twice really to "get" the meaning behind each incident on the screen.

Though the absence of speech is a bit noticeable in the other characters, it is difficult to imagine Chaplin talking, for the illusion built around the role of the funny little man would be lost with the advent of sound. The musical score, composed by Chaplin, tends to replace the loss of speech because it blends so well with the tempo of the story.

Modern Times was written and directed by Chaplin.

The Children's Hour, Lillian Hellman's "problem child" drama, is now in its third week, an extended run, at the Curran Theater. Gladys George and an all-New York cast in Personal Appearance will follow.

It Comes Out Here

Whisperings around school have it that Eunice Scarrett is very fond of Don Mills.

Bob Neal recently got some sense knocked into his skull when a raft fell on his head Sunday.

Can you imagine? While driving down the highway, Bill Reynolds stopped his car to pick wild flowers for Evelyn Dybdal. It was either the heat of the day that got him, or else Evelyn has him where she wants him.

It is rumored that Bud McSweeney's "wife" cut the way for Pete Jambruno.

Tom Connolly was recently nicknamed "32-Gulp" Connolly. Why? Ask Tom.

Where was Jim McCann going on those walks with Betty, the pooch?

Bill Kennedy didn't fail to honor good old St. Patrick by wearing a large green carnation. Frances Logue certainly got into the spirit of the day. She was dressed entirely in green.

Steve Lutich's favorite candy is a good old-fashioned sucker. He likes to go to the show, stock up with suckers, and enjoy himself.

Lenore Chaikoff has been seen more than several times with a certain blond named Leroy at the Lincoln Golf Course.

What has San Francisco State College got that we haven't got? Ask Carlyle Caine that question.

Josephine Stanley meets her boy friend, Pete Smiley, almost every day for lunch. Some racket, this free lunch business!

Was it or was it not? It was hard to decipher whether the dance in the Galileo girls' gym, Friday the 13th, was that of J.C. or Galileo. There were nearly as many college students there as Galileans. But, with some detective work, it was discovered that the dance was given by Galileo for the new freshmen.

The orchestra played, the vocalists sang, and Galileo and J.C. had a very fine time.

Helene Murphy, Bob's beloved blonde, has been that way about Mr. Neal for so long, and vice versa.

Ed Scott and his shadow . . . she's engaged to somebody else.

SMITH SEZ—

Crew at Dawn
Boxing Card Good
Track, Baseball
And Just Things

By DEMING SMITH

No stay-in-bed-laters for Jack Gaddy's crew men. The boys have to be up and at it every Friday morning at six o'clock—if they want to earn a place in the Rams' first varsity crew.

Jack wants to prove that the old adage, "The early bird catches the worm," is true, and bring home the conference championship in the first year the crew is out. The oarsmen are rapidly rounding into shape and callouses are appearing in various and sundry spots, which spots, however, we'll leave to your own imagination.

Mad Monk vs. Killer

Al Cohn, the 'Mad Monk' of Whiskerino, is in training for the coming boxing and wrestling matches to be put on by the Men's Club, and will probably box in the light-heavyweight class. If he boxes in this class, he will oppose Charlie "Killer" Kremesec, last year's champ and knockout expert de luxe. It looks like a great card this year and President Bob Sisco is signing up contenders who are expected to put on fast and spirited battles.

As yet no heavyweights are signed. Jack Brigham, last year's champ in this division, has left school and a vacant crown must be filled. Any prospective heavyweights are welcomed to sign and they may see Bob Sisco or Joe Amori for further information.

Experience Comes

With basketball over, baseball and track are filling the sport limelight.

Coach Lee Eisan's ball-hawks have got off to a great start and look like coming champs. Larry Wilgus, former Balboan, is the premier mound ace, with Ben McGuire head relief man.

Ben has the stuff, and, with a little more experience and training, will develop into a first-rate pitcher capable of turning back any of the other junior college teams.

Russ Sweet's trackmen are conditioning themselves fast, and with their large array of talent should wind up at the top.

The highlight of the season will be the San Mateo meet, for which Sweet's men are priming themselves.

* * *

Is it, or is it not, true that the crewmen had to wake Jack Gaddy last Friday at six for crew practice? We're afraid that Jack may have to go house hunting now because the boys succeeded in disturbing everyone's sleep within a radius of a mile or so.

Caine Hi Scorer—in Golf

Our versatile athletes are now taking up the great Scotch game of golf. Dolf Fedrin, Carlyle Caine, and Whiff Cox took to divot digging last Thursday and their games were nothing less than sensational.

Dolf started off great, losing three balls on the first tee and ending up with the magnificent score of 103, taking great advantage of the hand mashie. Whiff's drives left nothing to be desired, and he ended up mostly in the rough, with a 102. Carlyle proved to be the Hagen of the threesome and carded an 89, low score of the game.

Ingleside has now decided to have special officers patrolling the links to give the other players a chance to see the green.

Prexy in Stitches

The only casualty at the swimming party last Wednesday was sustained by President Maury Schwarz when he attempted to imitate an English archer in the process of shooting or something or other. When he hit the water, his knee folded somewhat like an accordion and split his lip half off. One stitch managed to close the cut, however, which all goes to prove that a president shouldn't forget his dignity.

If the Board of Education sees fit to buy the Lurline Baths for the school department and turns it over to our swimmers at certain times, we can see great possibilities for many Ram championships.

Golden Gate J.C., with its excellent swimming opportunities at the Y.M.C.A. Building, turned out many Olympic prospects.

With an opportunity such as this, San Francisco J.C. should become one of the greatest aquatic schools in the country.

SWUM FUN—EH, KID?

Crewmen Race On Friday

After having finally secured sufficient boats and oars to accommodate the thirty huskies out for the varsity crew, Coach Jack Gaddy and his followers are working out daily at Yacht Harbor in preparation for a race with the Galileo High School rowers Friday.

Although having several experienced oarsmen on his roster, Gaddy is having difficulty picking the first twelve required to propel the whale boat. Only eight men are needed for the ordinary shell, but finances restrict the purchase of one.

The Galileo race will be a benefit to the Rams, as the high schoolers have a fairly strong crew and Gaddy can see how his men do in competition. Other meets with bay area colleges and high schools are being arranged.

The boys have to get up early to go out for this sport, because Gaddy starts them off at 6 o'clock in the morning. A few of the early risers are Bert Gross, Ed Craig, 6-foot 2 muscle man; Bill Moll, wrestler and soccerite; Don Manfredi, another six-footer; "Red" Martin, captain of the San Mateo J.C. crew last season.

BASEBALL NINE SPLITS SERIES

By LOU BERTOLUCCI

San Francisco Junior College's first invasion of San Mateo was only half as successful as it could have been. The Rams' trek to the peninsula institution last Saturday resulted in a victory and a defeat. The first game was won by the locals, 9-8, while the Bulldogs won the second time out, 8-5.

Old Faithful Larry Wilgus was credited with the victory in the ten-inning contest. Larry put on a show of his own, setting the Blue and White down with nine hits and whiffing 11 batters.

LEAD WHOLE GAME

The Eisan-Gaddy coached boys led all the way in the first fray. Going into the ninth, they had, what appeared to be a safe 6 to 3 advantage. But with two down and two runners on base, Ferris, the San Mateo second baseman, slammed the ball over the fence for a home run, to knot the count at 6-all.

It took a former San Mutean, George McGuire, to start the Rams' scoring in the tenth inning. McGuire laid a perfect bunt with the bases loaded to bring in a score. Lucchesi slashed out a double to score two more runners.

The San Mateo rally fell short by one run in the inning, and the Rams won, 9-8.

ANIDO AT PLATE

Felix Anido had a perfect day, obtaining five hits for five times up, and scoring four runs besides stealing four bases. Altogether, S.F. got 17 hits, Guisti getting three of them.

Diminutive Tony Scafani displayed some classy playing on second. Tony made several hard catches that resulted in putouts. Lucchesi played good ball in left field, turning in some good catches.

SUPPORT IS BAD

Jo Martinez drew the mound assignment in the last game. Jo pitched good ball, allowing only nine hits and might have won with a little more support.

The Rams faltered in the first, when they gave the Bulldogs four runs on two errors. San Mateo scored again in the second to take a 5-to-1 lead.

The peninsula nine extended their lead to 8 to 1 in the sixth inning.

Trailing by seven runs, the Rams never gave up hope. The first two batters walked and a single by Scafani drove in two runs. Another walk and a hit by Guisti were good for two more. The rally was short, however, and the S.F. batters came out on the short end of an 8-to-5 score—the first defeat suffered by them in the conference.

Jack Taylor hurled a great game for San Mateo, allowing seven hits. Odero Guisti hit Taylor's offerings for two singles to lead the batters. George McGuire made some pretty stops on the first sack, which saved possible embarrassment for some of the infielders.

Lucchesi's average for the series was .714, while Guisti hit .555.

The Rams are idle this week, but play Modesto at Funston on April 4.

THROW 'EM OUT

Lettermen Enforce

'FOREIGN POLICY'

Planning absolutely to do away with the wearing of emblems and letters obtained at other schools, President Adolph Pedrin of the Block SF Society is organizing a "Clean-up" committee to see that the ruling is enforced.

In order to save embarrassment, Pedrin suggests that students guilty of wearing "foreign" awards remove them of their own accord.

"We'll allow a week for this to sink in," Pedrin said, "and after that the rule will be carried out to the letter, by force if necessary."

Rams Are Best Defensive Five

Proving themselves to be the strongest defensive team in the junior college basketball loop, San Francisco Junior College cagers are credited with an average of 27.9 points scored against them in 12 games, according to statistics released Monday by Commissioner Paul Mohr.

Offensive honors went to Sacramento J.C., with an average of 46.7 points in 14 contests. The San Francisco scoring average was 35.2 per game.

Complete defensive and offensive records follow:

	Games	Points Against	Aver.
San Francisco	12	335	27.9
Modesto	12	355	29.6
Santa Rosa	14	446	31.8
Marin	10	328	32.8
San Mateo	14	474	33.8
Sacramento	14	483	34.5
Yuba	14	671	47.9
Menlo	10	554	55.4

The San Francisco cagers' offensive record would have been fattened considerably had they played Menlo, an easy touch. The Menloites forfeited, however, thereby preventing the Rams from going on a wild scoring spree.

	Games	Points	Aver.
Sacramento	14	654	46.7
San Mateo	14	582	41.5

Trackmen Lose To Frosh As Lack Of Place-Men Shows Up

By BUD McSWEENEY

California freshman tracksters handed the Rams a 75½ to 45½ beating Saturday at Edwards Stadium in Berkeley. The battle was not so lop-sided as the score indicates, however, for the jaysee team lost, not through not having stars, but through not having enough men to take second and third places. Both teams took seven first places, but the locals had only enough men to take three second and third places, while the freshmen gained points with 11 seconds and 11 thirds.

Three lads on the losing squad starred by tallying 30 of the 45 points scored. Jublonsky, Bertram and Southard scored double wins in their events.

An idea of the lop-sided man power was evidenced in the mile run, the first feature of the morning, when Bertram was pitted against six Cal men. This did not bother the "Precision Power-house" however, who rambled home in 4:36.8, defeating Baker and Melhert, Cal aces, in this grind.

LOSE CENTURY

California scored a clean sweep in the century when Trumbly broke the tape in 10.1, followed closely by Lewis and Frick.

Southard chalked up his first five points in the 120-yard high hurdles, defeating Hall and Vann in 15.5. It looked as though Barre and Vann ran a dead heat for third, but the close decision went to Cal.

It was at this point that the old "Precision Power-house" proved what intestinal fortitude is. Bertram took sick just before the start of the 880 grind, but started and fought it out with five Cal men, who tried to run him in the ground, but he stuck with them and outraced them in the last 50 yards to win in the good time of 2:02.6.

Southard gleaned his other five digits defeating Hall and Manuel of Cal in the 220 low hurdles in 25.1. Dan coasted home for an easy victory after running a nice flight.

The 220-yard dash caused a bit of a furor when Lewis won over Frick and Compas of J.C. Many thought Compas nipped Frick at the tape but the score sheet remains unchanged and the argument still goes on.

SURPRISE IN 440

The expected battle between Warren and Biggs in the 440-yard race was upset by Watts, a newcomer at Cal, who romped home in 51.2, to defeat Warren, who copped second, and Biggs, who tallied third.

Pole-vaulter Monroe of the Frosh climbed 12 ft. 6¼ ins. to beat Shardin of S.F., who cleared 11 ft. 6 ins. Clausen and Manuel tied for third at 11 ft. ½ in. Little Jim Fahn turned his ankle and was forced out of the battle, thereby tossing this expected duel in the discard.

"Jumbo" Jublonski sent the discus spinning 127 ft. 4¾ ins., outslinging Cal's Bohme and Flamm, who did 126 ft. and 119 ft., respectively.

George Dunne outleaped Kido by 4 inches in their little duel, jumping 22 ft. 7 ins. Shibata jumped into third spot, with a hop of 21 ft.

Cal took first and second in the javelin throw, Anderson doing 167 ft. and Manuel 163 ft. Scott of J.C. out-tossed three of the Frosh to grab third spot. He tossed one right up in the leaders' spot, but in so doing fouled by an inch.

Jublonsky picked out first spot in the shot put with a heave of 41 ft. and Big-Boy Loving was second with a toss of 40 ft. 2 ins. White of the Frosh took third with 39 ft. 8 in.

Cal placed one-two in the high jump, and Ernie Loustalot tied McMillan for third spot.

RELAY MIXUP

The relay went to Cal, but Warren, the Ram anchor man, ran into tough luck when one of the Cal men failed to clear the track after passing the baton and "Whizzer" almost ran up his back.

Coach Russ Sweet was pleased with the performance on the whole and the old Montana speed-burner deserves a world of credit for turning out a battling contingent.

After the meet the boys were treated to lunch and were guests at the varsity meet. After seeing the outcome they are very earnest in wanting a meet with the northern college.

Summary of the meet:

100-yd. dash—Trumbly (C), Lewis (C), Frick (C), 10.1.

220-yd. dash—Lewis (C), Frick (C), Compas (S.F.), 22.8.

RACQUETEERS IN WIN OVER MENLO

By ED SCOTT

Getting off to a flying start in the J.C. Conference by defeating Menlo at Stanford Monday, Ram tennis enthusiasts are getting ready for the forthcoming match here with San Mateo on April 2.

Although having previously defeated Menlo, six matches to none, the Rams were forced to forfeit two conference tilts when it was discovered that Mel Hodes, No. 2 man, was ineligible for competition, so the results were four to two.

Present ratings, according to Coach Tom Wilson, are: Durfee, No. 1; Novikoff, No. 2; Rogaway, No. 3; Pricenco, No. 4; Gee, No. 5; Cardinal, No. 6; Kennedy, No. 7; Madsen, No. 8; Lum, No. 9.

On May 1 and 2 there will be a two-day conference meet at Stanford, with all junior colleges represented. Best singles and doubles players will be awarded medals, according to Wilson.

The Conference tennis schedule is as follows:

Apr. 2—San Mateo, here
Apr. 11—Sacramento, there
Apr 18—Modesto, there
Apr. 24—Marin, there

Soccerites Work Out at Funston

By S. REPP

With several members of last year's team returning and a fine squad of new players, the college soccer team looks forward to a championship in the fall.

Inspired by the fine showing of the championship basketball team, the soccer men are holding Spring practice every Tuesday and Thursday at Funston Field from 4:30 to 5:30.

The turnout has averaged thirty men at each practice but as the team is not yet picked, any one interested should attend these practices.

The coach, Thomas Bass, and last year's veterans are happy over the prospects and hope for the league's highest honors. Outstanding players include Lambie, Fahn, Nelson, Oberhouse, and Odeon.

The correct and official name of the U.S.S.R. is Soyus Sovietskikh Sotsialistichesskikh.

Rams Win as Ben Faces Alma Mater

Benny McGuire didn't do so good on the mound against his alma mater, Lowell High School, last week, and Jo Martinez had to relieve him in the fourth inning. However, the Rams, after trailing seven to six in the ninth inning, scored two runs to win the ball game, eight to seven.

Felix Anido gathered a triple and a double, while Ed McSweeney knocked out three safe hits.

BOXING SHOW AT VERDI CLUB SET

Officially setting the date for the Men's Club boxing and wrestling show for Tuesday, April 21, President Bob Sisco and Faculty Adviser Joe Amori are busy outlining plans for the program. The show will be staged at the Verdi Club.

The weight classifications will be more varied this time than ever before, according to Amori, which will make the competition keener.

Those interested in entering the events should report to Amori on Monday at 1:30 p.m. in the men's gymnasium, ready to weigh in and try out. Prizes will be awarded the winners of the bouts.

Wilson Steps Up Tennis Tourney

With the various net tournaments now well under way, Coach Tom Wilson urges that tennis players still in the tournaments get in touch with the opponent they are to play next and meet them as soon as possible. "We don't want them to start dragging along," said Wilson.

The men's singles matches have been completed to the first round. Those to play off for the second round are: Durfee vs. Cabanez, Rogaway vs. Austin, Floroff vs. James, Lum vs. Gee, Cardinal, Novikoff, Pavloff and Hodes have finished their second-round matches.

The second round has been completed in the men's doubles. Those to play next are: Hodes and Novikoff vs. Merrin and Mogolashi, Cardinal and Lincoln vs. Hassant and Pricenco, Durfee and Rogaway vs. Gee and Lum, Davis and James vs. Floroff and Pavloff.

The faculty singles tournament has not quite been completed. Those who have yet to play the first round are: Nichols vs. Goss and Parder vs. Berman. Those for the second round are: Gerstung vs. Sweet, Eisan vs. Hughes and Mohr vs. Sandys.

STATE WINS

The junior college tennis team lost to the strong San Francisco State College netmen Saturday at the Palace of Fine Arts courts by a five to three count.

Gaddy Rated High When in College; All-Around Star

Starting his career at Kelseyville High, in Lake County, where he played four years of basketball and baseball, Jack Gaddy, crew coach, next entered the University of San Francisco. At U.S.F. he played four years of basketball, baseball and football.

In 1929 Gaddy participated in the national basketball tournament at Kansas City. He was selected on the mythical college All-American baseball nine in the same year.

In 1932 he captained the Don grid outfit and was honored with an All-Coast end position, besides attracting honorable mention in 1931 and 1932 on All-American football selections.

Gaddy ended his football career in a blaze of glory in the annual East-West game of 1933.

After working a year, he obtained his teacher's credentials at the University of California, and became a member of the jaysee coaching staff when the college opened in 1935.

Chinese Club Plays Basketball Friday

Opening hostilities with members of the University of California Chinese Students' Club, the junior college Chinese Club travels to the East Bay Friday to meet the Berkeley outfit in a basketball game. The contest will start at 7 o'clock in the Oakland Tech High School gymnasium.

Paul Mark will manage the local aggregation, who are figured to give the California group a good battle.

THE BAT BAG

By OSCAR BAUER

So far Catcher FELIX ANIDO is the team's leading hitter and slugger. Felix, a hustling backstop, has been connecting so often, that he looks to be a certain candidate for the conference batting championship. . . . ED McSWEENEY, outfielder, is now swinging from the port side. Formerly an orthodox batsman, Ed switched in hopes of breaking a long hitting slump. The lanky center fielder is now expected to swat that lively ball often. . . . Second baseman TONY SCAFANI drew the applause of the San Mateo fans in the tenth inning of the opening contest by running twenty feet to his left to spear one-handed a hard-hit grounder for an assist. This fine stop eased the situation as the tying run was on second base. . . . In registering his second win in as many starts, LARRY WILGUS, Ram mound ace, extended his string of conference strikeouts to 28 in 23 innings pitched. . . . It took three hours to complete the initial San Mateo ball game. No little blame may be placed on the gale which formed whirlwinds of dust around home plate. This led to many times out being called until the dust settled and subsequently slowed up the game.

MARKSMANSHIP CLUB INSTRUCTS NOVICES IN TARGET PRACTICE

14 Inexperienced Members Given Aim Help at Gov't Armory

Commencing activities for the term, members of the college Rifle and Pistol Club held their first instruction period and target practice recently at the National Guard Armory, Fourteenth and Mission Streets.

Fourteen of the less experienced members received their elementary instruction in sighting and aiming exercises, the mode of instruction paralleling that given annually at Camp Perry, the government training camp to which rifle organizations throughout the country send their most promising marksmen.

After the instruction, qualified members were permitted to shoot on the armory range. The rifles and pistols were supplied by members of the club who owned them, since the official target rifles ordered from the East have not as yet arrived. The ammunition and targets were donated by the National Guard officers.

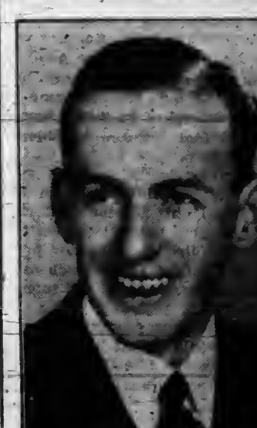
All members are asked to be present at the meeting Friday afternoon at 1:45 o'clock in room 203, Galileo, where a lecture on the care of the rifle will be given. Newly purchased rifles are expected to be exhibited at this time.

Marin County Hike Held by Local Club Sunday, March 22

Adding to their numerous activities, members of the Pi Mu Gamma Society held a social hike to Rattlesnake Canyon in Marin County, Sunday, March 22.

"The outing was one of our most successful undertakings this term," reported Bill Painter, head of the society's social committee.

Plans were formulated at the last meeting of the club for a weinie roast and dance, to be held at Sigmund-Stern Grove, either March 26 or April 2.



According to Painter, admission will be 15 cents per person. Outsiders will be admitted only as guests of a member.

Initiation of new members will take place on April 1. Many novel and original ideas are promised that will make this ceremony a success, Painter said.

12 Hotel Students Get Summer Jobs

Twelve students of the San Francisco Junior College Hotel and Restaurant course have already secured jobs for the summer, according to John P. Gifford, coordinator of the course. These men were appointed at a meeting of the Educational Advisory Committee of the California Hotel Association, held Wednesday, March 18, in the Tapestry Room of the Fairmont Hotel.

George Smith, manager of the Mark Hopkins and Fairmont Hotels, was chairman of the meeting and other guests included J. C. Beswick, of the state department of education; Edwin C. Browne, dean of men; Paul M. Pitman, assistant to President Cloud, and Harvey M. Toy, president of the San Francisco Hotel Association. Toy was among the first to ask for a student trainee in his organization.

Dr. Eugenie Leonard, above, vice-president of the college, will give an address at Parkside school as part of the Public Schools Week observance.

HORSES 'N' HORSES: AFTER THREE YEARS THEY HURT 'N' HOW!

Instructing two riding classes in one day when you haven't been on a horse for three years is no cinch, according to Mary Jane Learnard, assistant registrar of the college. Miss Learnard replaced Miss Laurine Kuhn, women's riding instructor, for a day when the latter accompanied Dr. Eugenie Leonard, Verrel Weber, Bertha Keller and Vera Spencer on an excursion to Palo Alto to glean inspiration for the women's gymnasium soon to be constructed on the new junior college campus.

The date was appropriately enough, Friday, March 13, and the next day—"You may state without any alibis that I was awfully stiff," laughed Miss Learnard.

The day's program consisted of a strenuous hour's ride through Golden Gate Park with the 2:30 o'clock class, and another hour directly after with the 3:30 beginners.

Fun? Certainly, but, strange as it seems, Miss Learnard was not heard to express any envy for the life of a gym teacher.

Beta Phi Pledges Six New Members

The Beta Phi fraternity is pledging six new members this week, according to James Neal, president. Initiation ceremonies for the pledges will be taken care of at the fraternity house, location of which is secret, Neal said.

Charter members of the organization include Bob Harliss, Clyde Pollen, Dick Riley, David York, Al Leake, Henry Kerney and Attilio Ferrari, while the pledges are Steve Lutich, Art Robinson, Herbert Ward, John Hansen, Felix Castagnola and Clyde Yerby.

Plan For Library Section Discussed

Discussing the possibility of beginning a special economics section in the junior college library, the Economics Club convened at Charlotte's Tavern last Thursday noon. Michael Zarchin, faculty adviser of the club, was among those present.

Samples of designs for a club pin were submitted to the members for approval, and a key-pin with Greek letters was temporarily selected. In addition, the club made plans to obtain guest speakers for future meetings.

Household Art Club Will Give Sport Tea

Sigmund Stern Grove will be the scene of a sport tea to be given by the members of the Household Arts Association on Friday afternoon April 3, at 2:30 o'clock. This announcement was made by Virginia Elliott, secretary, after the meeting Friday.

All women students desiring to attend the tea may secure tickets from members of the association. The price will be 25 cents.

CALL IS ISSUED FOR FEMININE SWATTERS

Call for female Babe Ruths! All potential "home-run queens" of San Francisco Junior College please take notice:

W.A.A. baseball will be played during the months of April and May, according to Caroline Knottner, baseball manager. A general sign-up is in progress this week, in Gymnasium A at Galileo. The first meeting will be held on Monday, March 30, at 5:30 o'clock, in Gymnasium A, and practices will take place at Fort Mason field. All who are interested are urged to sign up early.

The new baseball classes will be held on Mondays and Wednesdays at 2:30 and 5:30, and on Tuesdays and Thursdays at 3:30.

U. C. BOARD LOWERS REQUIREMENTS FOR COLLEGE ADMISSION

Students Advised to Consult Registrar Prior to Making Change

The Board of Admissions of the University of California has modified entrance requirements to the university without in any way lowering the standard of admission at the college, according to an announcement received last week.

The modified rules make it possible for good students without exact requirements to make petition for entrance, although no guarantee is made that the petition will be favorably acknowledged. San Francisco Junior College students planning to take advantage of this new ruling are warned against dropping subjects required for entrance to the university, without first consulting Paul Mohr, registrar.

The Daily Californian carried an article which left the impression that the modified requirements would entitle all students to entrance, but this is erroneous, according to authorities, who advise interested persons to read the official announcement thoroughly.

OFFICIAL ANNOUNCEMENT

The announcement follows:

The Board of Admissions and the special committee on admissions have unanimously approved certain policies governing the admission to freshman standing in the University of California of high school graduates who are unable to meet exactly the requirements of the "1933 plan." These policies should be of interest to high school principals.

In the first place, the "1933 Plan" is endorsed as the best single plan of admission to the university that has yet been devised. This statement is based on the fact that those who meet the requirements of the plan are not only capable of doing successful university work, but also, because of the pattern of their high school program, of entering almost any field of higher learning without further preparation.

REQUIREMENTS STRETCHED

Nevertheless, the university takes the viewpoint that no student should be denied admission when his previous record makes it appear that his scholastic ability is of a sufficiently high order to insure success in university work. It has, therefore, for a number of years admitted to freshman standing students whose pattern of high school subjects failed in one way or another exactly to conform to the published entrance requirements.

Studies have been made of the university records of these students admitted under exceptions to the rules in comparison with the records of students who fully met the entrance requirements. As a result, we urge high school principals to encourage their graduates who do not meet the "1933 Plan" of admission and who have no scholarship shortage to present their records for the consideration of the Board of Admissions, provided they meet any of the criteria, I to IV, set forth below:

NEW RULES

I. Rank in the upper tenths of the graduating class with substantial preparation in academic subjects.

II. Not less than fifteen high school units of A or B with not more than two units of subject deficiencies in the required list.

III. Fifteen high school units with no grade less than C; and not less than six high school units of A and B selected from the following ten units of academic subjects: third year English, mathematics, laboratory science, language and history, and fourth year English, mathematics, laboratory science, language or history.

IV. Glee Will Sing To University Women

Singing before a meeting of the Association of University Women, the college Men's Glee Club, directed by Flossita Badger of the music department, will offer entertainment to that group March 28.

Among those to sing will be Paul Fechtner, Winston Fisher, Tak Iijima, Henry Kearney, Karnig Khenchelian, Sam Kimbrough, Stuart Kingsland, Willard Lincoln, Robert Lowe, Walter Loving, Laurence Mitzman, Richard Parle, Conrado Oller, Alex Pellett, Alexander Ross, Stephen Simon, Chason Tucker, Robert Vinson, and Byron Warner.

Miss Badger announced that the club will sing a group of three songs, the selection of which is yet undecided.

President Willard Lincoln and Vice-president Henry Kearney will also sing with the group.

WHISKERINO WINNERS

The hoary hermit, Joe Amori, faculty adviser to the Men's Club, picks the winners in the Whiskerino, and Bob Sisco, left, wins a prize for having the fanciest beard. The grizzled fellow on the right is Al Cohn, who had the heaviest beard in the contest, which was sponsored by the A.M.S.

Awards System Is Discussion Subject At Exec. Meeting

An awards system, which proposes that 100 points be the requirement to receive an athletic block, and that the design for this term's awards be left to the judgment of the coaches, was one of the main points discussed at last week's meeting of the executive council. After the Block Society has given its approval, the matter will be voted upon by the council.

Others matters taken up at the meeting are as follows:

In order to raise funds for the awards to be presented to the new members of the Block Society, a dance will be given on April 3 in the Galileo gymnasium.

A committee was appointed to suggest ideas for the college banner, which will be purchased from the money donated by the Filipino Club. Those appointed were Jim Fahn, chairman; Bernalyn Seymore, and Adolph Pedrin.

Although the date bureau will continue, there will be no more blind dates, according to Marie McKnight, chairman of the committee. A week before the dance the candidates will sign up and be chosen.

Luckmann Resigns From Skull, Blade

Resigning his position as faculty adviser to the Skull and Blade, men's honorary service organization, Lloyd D. Luckmann said that, though he was reluctant to sever his club connections, other scholastic duties prevented his cooperation. Luckmann was the organizer of the Skull and Blade and helped draw up its constitution as well as that of the Associated Students.

The organization, however, will continue to function until another adviser is chosen, according to Ray Brunn, president.

The service group plans to take part in the Men's Club Hi-Jinks, which will be held later in the semester.

Phonograph to Aid in Music Courses

To offer college students a better study of music, a phonograph, modern in mechanical equipment and design, has been purchased by the students' association.

This instrument will be used in such courses as harmony and ear training and the history and appreciation of music under the direction of Flossita Badger to illustrate to the members of the class just how the notes and voice should sound.

In addition to the phonograph, a set of well-known and educational records has been purchased that embodies the newest in vocal technique and harmonic structure.

MUSIC IS PART OF LIFE—'BEST PART,' AVERS MISS BADGER

"Music should be a part of life, a part to be lived with and pondered over for its own sake and beauty," said Flossita Badger of the San Francisco Junior College to her music appreciation class, indirectly quoting from an article on some of the views of Alfred Frankenstein, music critic of the San Francisco Chronicle.

This article, she said, reflected many of her ideas completely. She, too, feels that music should be tied up with all the arts, and that it should be understood in connection with things, and not as a single unit. In relation to history she said, "History and music should not be separated when the link is such a complete one."

Miss Badger advises all students of music or art to hear the famous Leopold Stokowski and his Philadelphia symphony orchestra, during one of his three performances in the civic auditorium of San Francisco on the evening of May 2, or the Sunday, May 3, matinee.

As one of her "ideal" programs with Stokowski as conductor, Miss Badger expressed the hope of hearing a wholly "American Composer" night. "There are some of us who are very anxious to hear the work of the modernist of our own country. I for one am hoping that Stokowski's own choice will be just such a program."

Current Magazines Swell Library List

Students will no longer need to resort to the San Francisco Public Library for reference work in magazines. A variety of current periodicals, rapidly being extended, on vocational and literary subjects, is now ready for use in the college south library, located on the third floor of the Galileo building. Many of the periodicals have not as yet arrived, but those that have come within the last two weeks are:

American Journal of Psychology, American Review, Forum, Journal of Educational Psychology, Die Kunst (in German), Journal of Geography, Junior College Journal, Literary Digest, Nation, Nature-Magazine, and Occupations.

The Physical Review, Psychological Review, Saturday Review of Literature, School Science and Mathematics, Scientific American, Scientific Monthly, Science News Letter, La Petite Illustration (in French), Social Science, Journal of Heredity, Gardens of the Pacific, and L'Illustration (in French).

Speakers Chosen For Public Schools Week; Bert B. Meek Will Talk At Galileo April 29

Further plans for the annual observance of Public Schools Week, to be held April 27 to May 1, were announced today by Charles R. Cooper, general chairman of the committee for the event.

The first San Francisco observance will be by the Shrine Luncheon Club, on April 23, at the Palace Hotel. The luncheon program for this date is to be taken over by the Public Schools Week committee, which has chosen as guest speaker Earl Warren, District Attorney of Alameda County.

In addition to Warren's address, entertainment will be presented by San Francisco school children.

Arrangements have been made for all schools with auditoriums to present celebration programs. Cooper has named as guest speaker for these observances outstanding leaders of education.

Dr. Eugenie A. Leonard, vice-president and dean of women of San Francisco Junior College, will speak at Parkside Elementary School. Lieutenant-governor George Hatfield, Dr. Edwin A. Lee, superintendent of San Francisco schools, the Hon. C. Harold Caulfield, president of the San Francisco Board of Education, and Dr. Aurelia Reinhart, president of Mills College, will also take part in the Public School observance.

"Dr. Reinhart, as president of a private college, should have views on education that will be of special interest during a Public Schools Week program," Cooper said.

"San Francisco Junior College," Cooper continued, "will be particularly fortunate at its observance on Wednesday night, April 29, which will be held in conjunction with Galileo High School and Galileo Evening High School. In having as guest speaker Bert B. Meek, executive vice-president of Hearst Consolidated. The subject of Meek's speech will be announced as soon as it is available."

The program for the junior college and high school is now being formulated by Major J. P. Nourse, principal of Galileo High School. Archibald J. Cloud, president of the college, will act as chairman.

J. C. Faculty Guests of Club in Tour of Chinatown

Mysteries of the Oriental mind were laid open when the S.F.J.C. Chinese Club invited the faculty to spend an evening with them on March 18.

Entertainment by the club included a tour of Chinatown with students acting as guides, a talk on the Chinese language, and a chop suey dinner at Hang Far Low.

"It was an unusual and most interesting experience," commented Mary Jane Learnard, assistant registrar. "The guests were particularly struck with the extreme courteousness of our hosts," she said.

About 70 faculty members and their friends spent several hours wandering through dim alleys, peering into quaint shops, and perusing newspapers lettered in Chinese by hand. Absorbing the exotic atmosphere of the temple, examining rare objects of art, inspecting the Chinese Y.M.C.A. were a few other delights to which the group was treated. Souvenir chopsticks were carried home by the impressed sightseers, Miss Learnard said.

New De Molay Club To Choose Adviser

With a petition for a charter from the Ex Council already signed and submitted, the selection of a faculty adviser is now the principal business being considered by the newly organized S.F.J.C. De Molay Club.

Any member of the De Molay organization may join the local club, according to Al Greeper and Jack Bolts, sponsors of the club. Although not yet officially recognized, many activities for the future are being mapped out.

All interested persons are asked to see Groeper or Bolts for particulars.

$800 IS LOST TO CO-ED: FATE FOOLS STUDENT

An unfortunate turn of fate caused an $800 loss to Marie Wells, junior college student, at a neighborhood theater bank night drawing last Wednesday night. Out of thousands of tickets, Miss Wells' number was drawn for the second prize of $800—but she was not there to get it. You have our sympathies, Miss Wells.

while frozen countenance on one of the soursides, while another, weakening from his proverbial cynicism, disgraced himself by laughing out loud.

The result of it all was that Williams could scarcely refuse to give two encores, which were applauded as enthusiastically as the originals.

To use the full time available, Schwarz had the cheer leaders lead a yell. Before they started, students began leaving, which caused Schwarz to berate them for their lack of courtesy. After that, the premature dashers left midst the boos of the polite ones.

STANFORD PERMITTED BREAK OF FIFTY YEAR PRECEDENT

Endowed institutions, which have feared possible currency inflation, can now hope for release from legal restrictions barring investments, through a San Jose Superior Court decision. The recent ruling allows Stanford University to break a 50-year precedent, and to invest part of its $24,000,000 endowment fund in common stocks.

MASKED MARVEL WILL BATTLE AT VERDI APRIL 22

Mystery Man Expects Good Meal from Schwarz As Pres. in Training

AWARDS FOR VICTORS

Men's Club Athletic Show Is Expected to Draw Large Crowd

Featuring a mysterious "masked marvel" as the main attraction of the Men's Club boxing and wrestling card to be held at the Verdi Club on Wednesday night, April 22, at 8:30 o'clock, President Bob Sisco is making plans for the biggest crowd yet anticipated for such an occasion.

A word about this mystery man. He is a member of the Associated Students of the college, will enter the ring at approximately 165 pounds, is an amateur grunt and heave man, and challenges all comers; has been busily training, and claims that his opponents will be so busy protecting themselves that they won't even think of his mask, let alone try to remove it.

Schwarz

"SET-UP!"

So far, the only one to accept his challenge has been Pres. "Mushy" Schwarz. When informed that Schwarz was to be one of his opponents, the mystery man growled amusedly, and declared, "Humpf! Heem wan beeg seeet-up! 'ow aboud sum combedishun?"

Maury really hopes to defeat this masked marvel, and has been undergoing strenuous training. Ringside observers give Schwarz an even chance of dumping the alleged wonder, and of tearing from his imagined terrifying countenance the dark covering.

IMPRESSIVE SLUGGERS

Other notable veterans of slugfests and mat-tearings are Charles "The Red Terror" Brickley, Al "Mad Monk" Cohn, Charles "Killer" Kremesec, Odero "Little Dynamite" Giusti, Vic "Iron Man" Barfield, and Tom "32-gulp" Connolly.

Joe Amori will referee the bouts and matches.

Awards will be given to the winners of all events. The types of prizes have not yet been decided, but Sisco advises all participants that they will be well worth having.

Prices for the affair will be 20 cents with A.S. cards and 30 cents without. In view of the sterling card arranged by the Men's Club, a near sell-out is predicted.

Cooper Tells Of Plans For School Week

Lieut. Governor Hatfield Is to Be Among Speakers for the Occasion

Announcing completion of arrangements for men and women distinguished in civic life to give addresses during Public Schools Week, Charles Cooper, general chairman, also told yesterday reasons why the general public should attend the event, which will be held during the week of April 27 to May 1.

"The purpose of Public Schools Week," Cooper said, "is to afford an opportunity for the people to be kept thoroughly informed with respect to California's program of public education, to combat destructive criticism and to aid in correcting errors which may creep into the system, and to insure that close contact between the public and its schools so essential to a continuance of the friendship, faith and confidence upon which they necessarily depend."

"DISTINCTIVELY A CALIF. INSTITUTION."—PRES. CLOUD

Briefly touching on the history of the occasion, and further bringing out its importance, President Archibald J. Cloud, of the junior college, issued the following statement yesterday:

"Public Schools Week is distinctively a California institution, having been begun in this state in 1920, and having been continuously observed annually since that date. The primary purpose of the Week is that of affording opportunity to the people to gain first-hand information regarding the work of Public Schools.

"Whenever the people have a complete understanding of the educational program, invariably they give their support to it. The success of Public Schools Week, therefore, is a matter of more than ordinary importance to young and old alike."

WILL ADDRESS

Among those who will speak at the various occasions celebrating Schools Week are Lieut. Governor George Hatfield, Robert Fouk of the California State Junior Chamber of Commerce, Dr. Eugenie Leonard of San Francisco Junior College, Vaughn Maclaughey of the San Francisco News, C. Harold Caulfield, president of the San Francisco Board of Education; Bert Meek of Hearst Consolidated, William H. McCarthy, president of the National Postmasters' Association; C. S. Morris, president of San Mateo Junior College; Mayor Angelo Rossi of San Francisco; Joseph Morcombe, editor of the Masonic World; Elmar E. Robinson, presiding judge of the Superior Court, and Dr. Edwin A. Lee, superintendent of San Francisco schools.

Allman Puts In Bid For New Building Decoration

"We'll bid right now for the job of decorating the college art building—when we have an art building, and if this building is suited for murals. We could, and we would like to, give a course right now to help students to understand and execute mural design. Then we would be ready to contribute to the beautifying of our building—just in case we're asked to."

Thus Richard Allman, art instructor, admitted, with a grin, his interest in murals and his modest suggestion for decorating the proposed college art building. Allman worked one summer vacation designing and executing a mural pattern consisting of seven panels over the arch of the auditorium at Riverside Junior College, where he was an instructor. The theme is based on architecture in its 20th century phases and it is symbolized in seven panels. The purpose of his philosophy was to stimulate the students' minds to become builders. He also designed and painted three stained glass windows.

"Any good architecture calls for murals," continued Mr. Allman. "Occasionally they are superfluous, but usually the decoration, if adequate, adds much; however, the murals must conform to the architect's point of view and should be approved by him.

"The main theme," declares Allman, "should be worked out by one person, though the separate panels need not convey the same idea. There can be diversity of the right type; it is not necessary that they be narrowed down to a single approach. Each student who has shown his ability could, then, be alloted a special portion to decorate. If adequate funds were available, it might be appropriate to have some well-known painter in the vicinity do a portion.

"And there's one thing more. An architectural approach is a great help to anyone in life. But at the present time I believe there is far too much individualism, not only in architecture but in everything—and a scarcity of collective thinking."

IT MEANS THE SAME IN EVERY LANGUAGE: ARE YOU A SUCKER?

Pow! And the lid blows off another month!

Today marks the entrance of gentle April and its showers, beginning its 30-day stay with "All Fool's Day."

Teacher, no doubt, will find a neat cake of soap in a luscious looking candy box on her desk; fat men will stoop to conquer wallets stringed by "ornery brats," and the curious ones will look upward and then jerk sheepishly back when a ringing "April fool!!" breaks forth.

Among the slower-geared tricks will be the ones about "Your father just died!" . . . "Your shoestring's undone!" . . . "A flower pot's falling on your head!" . . . not to forget the one that the employer pulls about the raise in salary.

According to the encyclopedic version of All Fool's or "April Fool's Day," the celebration is the survival of a custom dating from the ancient pagan festival of spring. It is considered proper to make fools of all the people possible by playing practical jokes upon them. In England and the United States the victim is called "April Fool," in Scotland an "April Gowk," or cuckoo, and in France a "poisson d'Avril," or April fish.

Rifle Group Plans To Enter Matches

Acting in conjunction with its membership in the National Rifle Association, the college Rifle and Pistol Club has made plans to organize a ten-man rifle team for intercollegiate competition in the bi-monthly matches of bay region rifle teams belonging to the association.

The local team will be chosen from the following members who have had experience in competition: James Fuller, Robert Crowley, Chris Hammett, Abner Kuperstein, Beverly Markel, Alen Newman, Bradley Schwarz, Gordon Sollman and John Stewart. The team is being coached by William Hancock, range officer.

The next meeting of the club is scheduled for Friday, April 3, at 1:45 p.m., in room 203, Galileo.

Festival For Art Students Planned

The art section of the Northern California Junior College Conference is giving a Festival of Arts, according to Richard Allman, chairman. The object of the festival is the stimulation of interest through observation of work done in other colleges. A meeting open to students and faculty of the various art departments will be held at the San Francisco Art Museum April 11.

Economics Honor Students Plan To Form New Society

Five economics honor students, together with Michael Zarchin, instructor, met at luncheon at the Tick Tock last Thursday for the purpose of organizing an Economics Honor Society in the college.

As the society's emblem the group chose a gold key, embossed with Greek letters and engraved with the individual's name and that of the college, together with the date of presentation.

"Admission into this honor society," announced Zarchin, "requires a minimum of B in six units of economics. When arrangements are complete, the honor students will be initiated into the society by a secret ritual."

Those present at the initial luncheon of the society Thursday included Dr. Zarchin, Jeanne Foster, Florence Ravazzano, Margaret Ceccotti, Wallace Fowler, and Eugene Cramer.

Next Guardsman To Come Out April 22

Because of the Easter vacation next week, during which even newspapermen do not like to work if it is not necessary, there will be no issue of The Guardsman until Wednesday, April 22, it was disclosed today from official sources.

Faculty Will Have Badminton Teams

Issuing a call for all faculty badminton enthusiasts, Richard Allman, art instructor, has announced the formation of a club to sponsor that sport.

The games will be played at the Palace of Fine Arts, where a tournament is scheduled.

The first contest of the proposed series was played last week between Paul Mohr, registrar, and Edward Sandys, English instructor. As their match was unofficial, the score was not recorded.

Household Arts Tea Bids Still on Sale

Tickets for the Household Arts Tea, to be held at Sigmund Stern Grove on Friday, April 3, are still on sale, according to Virginia Elliott, secretary. The time of the tea is a 2:30 o'clock and the attire will be sport clothes.

COLLEGE DOCTORS TO SHOW HEALTH FILM THURSDAY

Showing a film on the subject of health, Dr. Richard Friedlander and Dr. Alice Potter will have charge of an assembly on Thursday at 1:45 o'clock p. m., in Galileo auditorium.

The purpose of the assembly will be a discussion of general health problems of today.

Dr. Friedlander will give an introduction, after which the movies will be shown.

Following the presentation of the films, the two doctors will answer questions from the floor on the subject of health, with special reference to its application to college students.

Dean Tells Plans of Colorado Meet; Co-eds Are Invited

Hoping to find some college women who would like to represent this institution at the affair, Dean Eugenie Leonard yesterday told of the bi-annual joint meeting of the Western Conference of Deans of Women and Associated Women Students, to be held at the University of Colorado from April 15 to 18.

Among the events planned for the delegates at the conference are a tea to be held in Denver on Sunday, April 19, under the sponsorship of the American Association of University Women, and a Junior Promenade to be held on the evening of April 18, by the National Organization of the Mortar Board.

Dean Leonard will address both the group of deans and the A.W.S. delegates on two different occasions.

Feeling that there should be some representation at the conference from the West's newest junior college, Dean Leonard asks that any women who feel they can afford the trip to get in touch with her immediately.

Classes Will Visit S.F. Stock Exchange

The economics classes will visit the San Francisco Stock Exchange on Sansome Street Friday to see just how current financial marketing is carried on.

Jennet Henderson and William Goss, of the junior college faculty, will direct the group in its visit. The economists will leave at 1:30 and any student desiring to accompany the group should see the faculty advisers, Goss said.

Cloud Leaves For Pasadena Thurs.

President Archibald J. Cloud will leave for Pasadena tomorrow to attend the annual session of the California Secondary School Principals' Association, which meets in the southern city April 2, 3, and 4. Headquarters are at the Hotel Maryland.

President Cloud is secretary-treasurer of the Western Association of College and Secondary Schools, of which Frank Thomas, president at Fresno State College, is president, and to which San Francisco Junior College belongs.

Cash Prize Is Announced In Novel Contest

Five Dollars for Author of Best Translation from Spanish to English

With a cash prize of $5 offered to the winner, a contest for the best translation from Spanish to English of a humorous essay has been announced as open to all students now enrolled in any Spanish class of the junior college.

The essay to be translated is Time and Space, written by Julio Camba, a well-known Spanish journalist.

The prize will be awarded on a basis of accuracy of translation and the use of good English, according to Thomas Gabbert, Spanish instructor, whose efforts have made this contest possible.

Copies of the essay are available at the college office at Galileo. Gabbert reminds students that they may consult a good Spanish dictionary in the South Library. The name of the winner will be announced about June 1.

Those who desire to compete should note the following regulations announced by Gabbert:

1. All manuscripts must be submitted not later than Monday, May 11.
2. Write on one side of the paper only, and use a typewriter if possible.
3. Sign your translation with a pseudonym, NOT WITH YOUR OWN NAME.
4. Place your manuscript in a sealed envelope.
5. In another sealed envelope place a slip of paper bearing your pseudonym and your real name. The envelopes will not be opened until the judges have made their final decision.

FACULTY CLUB WILL MEET IN CAFE TODAY

Plans for a social function to be held in May will be discussed at a luncheon meeting of the San Francisco Junior College Faculty Association this afternoon at 1:45 o'clock in the faculty cafeteria at Galileo, according to Francis March, association president.

Other important questions that will be of value to the junior college and students will be discussed by the group.

Luncheon will be served at 1 o'clock, and all members of the faculty have been requested to be present at this, the first meeting of the association this semester.

Mind Paper Is Read As Thinkers Meet

Fifteen members were present at the last meeting of the Philosophy Club, held on March 18, at the home of David Goldshur, 1805 Vicente Street. Alex Goodoshnikoff's original paper, "A Mind in Transition," met with the prepared criticisms of Bob Metcalf and John Rushdoony, and the discussion and questioning of all members present.

"It is remarkable how, in just one-half semester of philosophy and college environment, the quality of the papers read at the meetings and discussions which followed, have improved," said Goldshur. "I noticed a distinct rise in both the calibre of the critical questions asked and in the answers accepted; and this development of critical analysis is, after all, the primary function of the Philosophy Club."

BLOCK SF DANCE FRIDAY EVENING AT GALILEO GYM

Live Ram Will Welcome All at Sports Affair of Pedrin's Society

TICKETS ARE 40 CENTS

Proceeds to Buy Tokens For Winners of Athletic Awards, Blocks

Winding up quarterly activities with their first function of the semester, the Block SF Society will sponsor a sport dance on Friday night in the women's gymnasium. The proceeds, according to Adolph Pedrin, president of the organization, will be used to buy varsity tokens and certificates for block winners.

Howard Markuse and his orchestra will provide the music for the affair, with admission set at 40 cents per couple.

A special feature of the evening will be a live ram, borrowed from a local zoo, which will be on display at the door during the early part of the evening. This marks the first animated appearance of the junior college mascot.

Inasmuch as a large crowd is certain to attend, a public address system will be attached to the orchestra dais to insure good dancing.

Tickets are on sale by all lettermen, Pedrin said, although bids are not necessary.

This will be the last social engagement until April 24, when the Social Committee presents a "bad taste" dance, Mimi Colton, chairman of the committee, has announced.

Ex-Council Names Dates For Events At Weekly Meeting

The setting of dates for various college activities took the main part of the discussion at the Ex-Council meeting last week.

Among the dates arranged are the following:

April 24—Student Body Dance in Women's Gymnasium.

Commencement Day, June 12, set tentatively as the date for the Graduation Dance, with the place and orchestra still undecided. Bids for the affair will be $1.50 per couple.

The group also exhibited for the first time a college banner, donated by the Filipino Club, and a model for a Block SF award. The change in awards has been recommended by athletes for reasons unknown.

Birnelyn Seymour, chairman of the fingerprint committee, reported that 800 students were fingerprinted during the week in which the drive took place. Helene Wright, A.W.S. president, also submitted a report on the A.W.S. convention at Sacramento.

Many Attend Mark on College Night

Filling the Peacock Court almost to capacity, an unestimated number of couples from the college was present at the Mark Hopkins Hotel's San Francisco Junior College Night last Friday evening.

Gladys Hirst, a junior college student, offered brief amateur entertainment with Griff Williams' orchestra.

Galileo Gives First Broadcast Presented From Own Building

Marking the first time that any high school in California has given a radio broadcast from its own building, educational history was made last week when the Galileo High School presented the fifth in a series of programs honoring great historical American figures, from the Little Theatre on the fifth floor of the high school building.

Consisting of a drama portraying scenes from the life of the great American statesman, Patrick Henry, the program was conducted by Darrell Donnell, The Examiner News Editor of the Air. The broadcast was made possible through the arrangements of Helen Swinton, director of dramatics at the school, with the aid of Esther Bruckner, public speaking instructor; Constance Keehan, music; Hartwell Preston; E. J. Cummings, principal of Galileo Evening School, and Charles M. Dennis, director of music for all S. F. schools.

Dr. Edwin A. Lee, superintendent of schools, opened the broadcast held in commemoration of Patrick Henry. Other speakers were Hon. C. Harold Caulfield, president of the board of education; John McGlade, deputy superintendent of schools, and Major Joseph P. Nourse, principal of Galileo High School.

Edward Dupuy Donates Library Valuable Book of French Poems

A welcome donation to the San Francisco Junior College library was received March 6 from the private library of Edward J. Dupuy, who graciously gave the college a late 19th century publication of Premieres Poesies, a book of French poems by Alfred de Musset.

Edward J. Dupuy, a native of France, is a retired French instructor, who taught for a number of years in Girls' High. Always active in school affairs, he was particularly interested in those activities which pertained to the welfare of teachers and teachers' organizations.

Published in Paris in the year 1891, Premieres Poesies is a collection of French poems by Musset. While time has gently cast a yellowish tinge over the pages, the binding, strong and rather decorative, is in perfect condition. In addition to poems, this book includes one of Musset's plays, La Coupe et Les Levres. The book may now be found in the junior college library.

At a time when a contest was raging in French literature between two classes known as Romanticists and Classicists, Alfred de Musset began writing in a neutral style, utilizing the most excellent qualities of both schools of writers.

VACATION

For some, next week will be one of true vacation; for others, another week of work. In all cases, it will be a rest from classes, and, for most, a relief from the arduousness of study.

The value of taking a week's rest from the books, of running the risk of forgetting some of what is supposed to have been learned already, is not certain. It is a known fact that those few "bookworms" will continue diligently to pursue the elusive wisp called knowledge.

The greater majority of us, however, will take a week of ease, fervently wishing that trout season came a little earlier.

If one has nothing better to do during the week, one might follow the advice of some philosophers, and spend the time in meditation and contemplation, something that probably never hurt anyone (perhaps because so few try it).

Regardless of how the week's vacation is spent, here's wishing all a pleasant one, free from care and worry; and here's hoping the Monday that classes reopen does not see many trying to recover from a hangover caused by a week of what-have-you, instead of the usual blue Monday that is the result of only a week-end's foray into—what-have-you.

INTEREST (OR LACK OF IT)

A little experiment to ascertain the knowledge of the average student of current affairs was conducted on students picked at random last week. The results were not particularly startling; they were merely what one might expect. Some of the questions and answers are as follows:

Do you think that America is heading toward dictatorship?—Huh? How should I know?

Do you know what a dictatorship implies, and just what one is?—Sure; that's like Italy. A guy like Mussolini would tell us what to do, instead of Roosevelt.

How do you think you would like living under a fascist regime?—Shucks, would it make much difference to guys like you and me?

Now, off on another tack:

Have you tried the new cafeteria yet?—New one? Where? Say, this is a heck of a dump where you never know what's going on around you!

Aw, we give up. What's the use?

RESPONSIBILITY

A true sense of responsibility is an asset that will materially increase one's prestige throughout life.

One upon whom dependence cannot be placed may as well resign himself to the fate of going through life holding down those mediocre jobs (if any at all) which make no demands upon original thought, and which are cut and dried, black and white, unchangeable, day in and day out, drab year after drab year.

College life offers a major opportunity for the development of responsibility, not only through the pursuance of the academic studies, but also through the openings presented by extra-curricular activities and organizations.

The usual complaint for the justification of a club or similar group that exists only in a slip-shod manner is that so few students are willing to take any responsibility, or if they do, they so often fall down on the job.

In college, no money is lost, as a rule, when members of an organization fail to cooperate, to do their small share of the work. That which is lost, however, is, at the present phase in the young man's or woman's life, more important than money—prestige and the respect and confidence of faculty members and fellow students.

HONESTY AND CONSIDERATION

Grumble, grumble, grumble, "the street cars done us dirt," is a cry now heard on some sides as a result of one line's new student ticket system.

"I've wondered quite a while just how long it would take them to catch up with us," laughingly philosophize others, as they dig into pockets for nickels.

Honesty never put anyone in trouble; a slight—and some think permissible—deviation from a strict interpretation of honesty is not only political, but also economical, according to some schools of thought.

Be that all as it may, we are now faced with two issues at once—honesty and consideration—either of which can stand alone firmly on its own virtue.

There have been a few rumors that one of the street car companies might discontinue selling half-rate rides to college students entirely. Those who have reached the age of 18 should have no complaint, if they follow strictly the policies laid down by the virtues of honesty.

To that fairly large percentage of students who have not yet passed the dozen and six marker, such an occurrence might seem an injustice; and it would be, truly, an injustice brought about by the selfish, inconsiderate action of those who have already had the benefits of half-fare transportation for the stipulated duration of time.

To prevent this possible injustice, hoist the pride up a few notches, take on an air of righteous paternalism, and dig up nickels instead of bumming, begging, and—car tickets.

(Be thankful you do not live across the bay, where the street car fare is 10 cents, and where the issuance of student tickets is strictly supervised.)

LEST YOU BE DUPED

While you are reading the material to be found on Page 4, may we gently remind you of today's date?

SAILING THROUGH THE NEWS

If you do not like someone, and want to do something about it, Germany will soon be the place for you. In the interest of honor, that country plans to legalize the so-called gentleman's privilege of dueling.

Claiming that honor is of utmost importance in the welfare of mankind, the Nazis will soon be letting men kill each other for petty grievances. Maybe they are right. It all depends on one's interpretation of honor.

And So We Tell a Story

The usual evening crowd was sitting in the cafe, sipping champagne, beer, and wine. A gentleman, perhaps slightly under the influence of various and sundry beverages, asked a lady to dance with him. She refused, perhaps politely. Slightly offended, the man made some remark that he would not ordinarily have made, a remark not particularly bad, but yet not overly flattering.

The lady, in supposed righteous indignation, called her escort. Cards were exchanged, grimly yet significantly.

Shortly after the break of a chilly dawn, a man lay dead on the outskirts of town. Which one, it doesn't matter. All for glory, all for glory.

Noah's Little Friend Grateful

". . . and Noah took with him into the ark two of every kind . . . and doves . . . and after forty days, Noah sent out a dove . . ."

In Portland, a pigeon is proving its loyalty to its owners by saving them twenty cents a day.

The system is this: A family has a street car company pass. One member of the family goes to work, and, arriving at his destination, attaches the pass to the pigeon, who flies home with it. The next member of the family then goes to work. This process is repeated until the whole family has accomplished its transportation.

The Failure Cannot Kill Self

Albert Maciejewski, official hangman in Warsaw, Poland, bungled a job, permitting his legal victim to come out alive. Maciejewski was discharged, and in his disgrace attempted to hang himself. He bungled that job, too, adding further to his chagrin.

The next day, his sweetheart, Anna Agnieszak, committed suicide by taking poison. She really succeeded.

One paper remarks: "From what we've seen of Russian drama, we venture to say that Moscow dramatists could not make a play out of it."

Final Step Planned by Italy

Premier Benito Mussolini was expected last week to bring into reality the dream of years—the initiation of what he considers the twentieth century state, one employing a corporative legislature instead of the orthodox chamber of deputies elected by a country at large.

The corporative legislature would be composed of delegates from the corporations, representing every walk of life, employers, workers, farmers, technicians, professional men.

Anyway, it will be an interesting experiment to watch, and under the present regime, Italy's Chamber of Deputies probably doesn't amount to much. The question that arises, however, is just why doesn't Mussolini abolish the whole works outright, without bothering with a substitute to which he will dictate anyway?

Crows For Dinner

Down in Oklahoma, a doctor got the brilliant idea of helping out the farmers, and at the same time giving people something cheap to eat.

Crows have generally been thought somewhat unpalatable, and rather unfit for human consumption.

This doctor, by a clever bit of propaganda, convinced the people, and perhaps truthfully, that the bird makes very fine food. Shooting them, too, he pointed out, is very fine sport.

The people believed him, and still do. We hear that the Oklahoma Legislature is now even considering putting the big bird on the list of game birds, and inaugurating a closed season to prevent its extinction.

The Musical Association of San Francisco has announced a series of four concerts for young people to be given in the War Memorial Opera House on the following dates: Saturday morning, April 11; Saturday morning, April 18; Wednesday afternoon, April 22, and Saturday morning, April 25.

It Comes Out Here

They all come back—

Vernon Smith, better known as Smitty, dropped S.F.J.C. at the beginning of the term, but he has just recently enrolled here again. Smitty is famous for the words, "Gee, she's pretty. I'd like to kiss her."

Gloria Stockhausen quit school last term, but is also back this term. She wants to be an "embalmer" and has to have a J.C. certificate.

We thought it was Yale—or is it Harvard?—for Dot Fitssimmons.

Mary Ann Heath seems to be the only attraction for Geo. Hagens. He is seeing a lot of her at present.

Redwood City is the place of Helen Skelly. It is said that her boy friend resides there.

Why did Fred Wilkinson knock the bumper off his car the other Saturday night? Was it Donna or Bad Breaks?

Charlie Blumenthal is very young in his ideas. His name is linked with a certain Agnes that goes to junior high.

Social affair of the season—two model Fords went a coffee-potting the other Friday night.

Santa Clara, rah! rah! rah! Is that the yell Marge Kennedy gives? He is a Santa Clara man, isn't he, Marge?

With all these girls going around college asking you to sign for a contestant that sang or entertained over an amateur hour, we certainly must have a lot of talent at J.C.

Ruth Peterson has a "peaches and cream" complexion. Have you noticed?

FASHION FLASHES

By FEM

To those of you have been lucky (lucky?) enough to read all of my fashion columns this semester, I have a confession to make. I've been holding out on you, girls, and keeping all the really smart fashion news to myself. But, alas, my conscience has caught up with me!! I must pass my knowledge on to you so that you, too, may know the joys of being a really well-dressed woman. Here it is, ladies, and my advice is that you file it away for future reference:

If you want to be really well dressed, you should have at least five or six pairs of overalls. To be really effective, these should be made of lavender-tinted burlap and trimmed with red organdy ruching around the neck. Blue or green buttons add a sophisticated touch to these charming garments, and a Roman striped sash will help take away the drabness.

Hats this Spring aren't. I mean really! The very smart person does not wear a hat, but wraps a dishtowel or one of mother's old lace curtains around the head when going out so as not to disturb the coiffure.

On the campus, clever co-eds will be seen wearing long, flowing skirts of fragile yellow chiffon. These are topped by heavy red sweaters like those worn by the Block SF boys. In fact, don't bother buying one—just borrow the boy friend's. That baggy effect will only add to the smartness of the outfit, and blue tennis shoes and green and purple striped socks, complete the ensemble.

Easter outfits come in many beautiful colors. These include egg white, Hearst red, Monday blue, Eye black, Taxi yellow, and Paul green.

(Everyone with weak eyes is requested to wear dark glasses to school tomorrow, just in case some poor, misguided soul decides to take my color combinations seriously!)

By ROBERT L. SPENCER

"A savage horde of wild pagans were dancing fanatically around a grinning skull mounted atop a bamboo pole on the beach. Suddenly, an old chief of the Seris began waving a huge sword at us in a manner which foreboded trouble. At that moment, Mildred produced a ten-cent bag of jelly beans which we had bought in the States and forgotten about till that moment. You should have seen the grin that spread over the face of that dirty, ugly savage chief, as he gingerly sampled one. After the tribe had tasted those ten-cent-store delicacies, they were our friends for life."

Thus, Mr. Gordon Gordon, explorer and lecturer, tossed aside one of the many close shaves with death that he and his wife have encountered in their many trips into wild and inaccessible portions of Mexico.

"A few trinkets will conquer any savage tribe," he recalled during his lecture at the Civic Auditorium Saturday afternoon.

Mrs. Gordon appeared in native costume of the various Indian tribes and also sang native folk songs.

"It is interesting to note," she said "that the styles in clothing for the Yucutecean miss do not change from Spring to Spring or even from century to century, but the same identical style of women's dress has endured unchanged for one thousand years."

Mr. Gordon illustrated his lecture with motion pictures, including some of the ancient Maya ruins at Chichen Itza in Yucutan, which are being restored by the Carnegie Institute.

Commenting on the capture recently of an American mining engineer by bandits in the province of Jalisco, Mr. Gordon remarked: "There are only two bands of bandits in Mexico, and those in the mountains of Jalisco are by far the more dangerous. There are not as many bandits in Mexico as there are gangsters in our own United States," he added, with a smile.

The Gordons will return to Mexico sometime in April.

President Burns Midnight Oil To Keep Everyone Posted on Events

By Maury Schwarz

This being an April Fool edition with quite a bit of the paper solely devoted to senseless stuff, this column has finally come into its own.

Since a whole page is cluttered up with this kind of stuff, I'll refrain from apologizing for my column this week.

At the time I begin writing this jumble of words, it is exactly 4:50 a.m. Saturday. It might seem strange that I should be doing anything but peacefully slumbering, but, of all things—writing a column! But writing this column and sleeping take about the same amount of mental exertion except that I accomplish much more when I sleep. During the last dance number, some big—well, anyway, he was bigger than I—gracefully stuck one of his elbows into one of my eyes. The lights were low at the time so I didn't get a chance to duck, or, for that matter, didn't close my eye soon enough. The result is, I'm still picking fragments of cloth from it—at least, it feels that way. I can't fall asleep because I can't close that eye, and I can't keep it open, because I'm too sleepy. Might as well pass the night writing this so-called column.

Don't forget the Block SF dance this Friday eve at the Galileo gym. Tickets are on sale now. All you have to say is, "I want a ticket to the Block SF dance," and you'll have a half dozen ticket salesmen on you. Anyway, if all the ticket salesmen attend, the dance is bound to be a financial success—if the salesmen all pay for the tickets. Incidentally, Adolph Pedrin is bringing a live Ram to the dance, which the zoo is lending him. I guess with each ticket you may pet the Ram as you walk in. Personally, I hope he keeps the animal off the floor—for more reasons than one.

Plans of the Social Committee:

Mimi Colton, our vice-president, has just announced that the next Student Body dance will take place on April 24. It is to be a "bad taste" dance. Usually, a "blind date" will give you that "bad taste" feeling if you should be stuck for ideas.

* * *

And, so ends another hectic half hour of painful endeavor to finish this column—before it finishes me. Until then, we can also look forward to the boxing and wrestling tournament, April 22, at the Verdi Club.

CURTAINI

By Irvin Silberstein

Starting Sunday afternoon, April 12, the Geary Theater will present the premier California showing of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's screen spectacle, The Great Ziegfeld. It is a road show preview and will be here for a limited engagement only.

The picture, starring William Powell in the title role, depicts the eventful life of America's greatest showman, the late Florenz Ziegfeld. Myrna Loy and Luise Rainer play the characters, Billie Burke and Anna Held, two women who had an important influence on Ziegfeld's life. Virginia Bruce, Frank Morgan, and Fannie Brice, who starred in many of Ziegfeld's own productions, are in the supporting cast of 300.

The picture, which is three hours long, will be shown twice daily.

In keeping with the backstage idea, so to speak, the Curran Theater will present, some time in April, Brock Pemberton's smashing hit, Personal Appearance.

The cast, headed by Gladys George, is the same group that played over 500 performances on Broadway. Personal Appearance is a take-off on the lives of the glamorous, glorified, girls of Hollywood.

If looking for a vacation pastime, it's worth while to attend one of the motion picture revival programs presented under the auspices of the San Francisco Museum of Art. Seeing pictures that were produced two decades ago offers some interesting comparisons.

BOOK REVIEW

Gaudy Night

By Dorothy L. Sayers
(Reviewed by Donald Flash)

Making a complete novel, Dorothy L. Sayers, in her latest book, Gaudy Night, has written a fascinating mystery story. Set in the romantic atmosphere of Shrewsbury (a women's college in Oxford), laden with academic weightiness, the plot advances slowly, with profuse discussions on the relation of intellectual women to marriage, while sharp outbursts of action in the development of a "poison pen" mystery keep an enlivened interest throughout.

Harriet Vane, a writer of mystery stories, reluctantly attending a "Gaudy Night," which is equivalent to a college class reunion, comes upon some vulgar, threatening notes. This is the start of a long reign of terror by a "poison pen," which inflicts innumerable outrages upon the college and its members, and which successfully eludes detection. Harriet Vane is asked to stay and to try to track down the culprit with the least possible publicity.

Being rather lengthy, detailed, and progressing at a leisurely rate, the recreational reader, especially a feminine one, would find this book worth reading. Since the only hindrance in reading Miss Sayers' work seems to be time, this reviewer would not recommend it to the hurried reader.

A distinguishing style, amazing dialogue, the unusual novelization of a mystery story, a clever plot, and excellent psychological studies of character—all these things contribute to make this an outstanding book and explain why it is a best seller.

◄PAPER TALK►

Reno is generally accepted as the biggest little city in the world. We have a slogan something like that around here, also, though in a different regard.

The ticket booth on the mezzanine floor at Powell Street is, in our opinion, the "biggest, little auditorium" in the world.

Originally adopted by members of The Guardsman staff for the handling of morning copy, the booth has become the tramping ground of nearly every organization in the junior college.

Besides its use as a journalistic base, the ticket office has been, at different times, and sometimes at the same time, the headquarters for a so-called Date Bureau, which took up a lot of space and accomplished very little; a central point for the W.A.A. in order to sign up new members; a study hall; a check-room for tired raincoats, hats and umbrellas; a lunch room for certain particular persons; a trysting place for those in love; a storehouse for books and other paraphernalia; and other uses too numerous to mention.

Because so many people have claimed this nook as home, it has been blessed with a number of names, most of which cannot be printed. "Rubino's Roost" is the one used most generally, for when Rubino is in there, no one else is, and vice versa.

The situation has become so acute that already it has been suggested that we put up a few strap hangers, like they have in street cars, or a few upper shelves to accommodate the crowds.

Yet, the situation is no worse than that encountered on the upper stairs between classes. Those above, finding their progress barred by a cavalcade of humanity, simply fall, and slowly ooze out the front door in a seething mass. Those going up to classes are simply out of luck. They ought to use the stairs coming down and the fire-escapes going up. It looks like bargain day.

SUCCESS

When you have done your best, and failed,
And everything seems through,
Take heart, and keep your spirits high,
Let hope shine forth anew.

Return with courage to your task,
Success will be your prize,
For in the worldly scheme of things,
The man must win, who tries.

Robert MacArthur.

SPORTS

Modesto Rated Favorites Over Local Tossers

The Ram baseball team will be out to emulate the feat of the basketball outfit in defeating Modesto twice in a two-game series when they travel to Modesto Saturday to engage the Pirates in a double-header. The series was originally scheduled for Funston field but was switched to the southern diamond Monday.

The Modestans, pre-season favorites to cop the conference baseball crown, were knocked out of the league Saturday when the San Mateo tossers upset them in two struggles. However, the Pirates still rate as the most formidable nine in the jaysee loop.

BOTH NEED 2 WINS

As a result of the San Mateo debacle, Coach Jack Gardner's boys are in a tie for second place with San Francisco and need a double win to put them at the top of the league ladder again.

Mainstay of the Pirate attack is Frank Sieber, who cavorts around the first base section, and who was a member of the championship Modesto nine of 1935. Sieber made All-Conference rating last year.

The Modestans are particularly strong on the mound, boasting several hurlers, best of whom is Dave Jamme, who chucked a no-hit, no-run game against Menlo earlier in the season.

John Thompson, another veteran pitcher, will probably start the other game against the Rams. It is this strength that gives the Modesto tossers the edge. Dino Morall will be behind the plate.

RAMS UNDER-RATED

However, Lee Eisan and Jack Gaddy are used to having their team in the underdog position. Rated short-enders in the Marin and San Mateo tilts, the Rams have lost but one game.

Larry Wilgus, ace San Francisco moundsman, will start the first contest. Wilgus hasn't yet been beaten in league competition and will give the home team something to think about.

LUCCHESI HITS 'EM

Babe Lucchesi, .600 batter, is the Ram hope at the plate. He will be backed up by the heavy hitting combination of Odero Guisti and Felix Anido, both of whom are handy with the bludgeon.

George McGuire at first, Tony Scafani at second, and Bob Fex in the shortstop position, round out the infield. These three are a vastly improved bunch and hold the fate of the team in their hands.

Lucchesi, McSweeney and McGuire will play the outfield for the Red and White.

RAMBLINGS

Olympic History
Rassles
Tennis and Track

By DEMING SMITH

Olympic year, and everyone's mind is filled with expectations of the superhuman efforts and records that will be established. These games, long famous, were originated by the Greeks as early as 776 B.C., and have been the source of many myths concerning both man and immortal. The name is derived from Olympia in the Valley of Ellis, Greece, which was the site of 293 games extending from 776 B.C. to 394 A.D. Each game marked a period of four years, an Olympiad, which served as the recognized calendar for eleven years until abolished by Theodosius the First.

The events comprising these early games were jumping, foot racing, discus, javelin, wrestling, boxing, and the Pankraton, the last a combination of the first events.

Competitors ran in the nude with their bodies carefully oiled. There were two classes of athletes, boys from 17 to 20 years, and adult men. Training was a strenuous campaign lasting 10 months. The winner—there was only one—was presented with a garland of olives cut from a sacred tree growing near the altar of Aphrodite in the Altis of Olympia, and his name, with that of his father, was proclaimed throughout Greece.

Rediscovery of the ancient site of the games is credited to Richard Chandler, in 1776, but the stimulus for their revival was accomplished by Baron de Chouhertin of France in 1893 and 1894. First of the new games was held at Athens in 1846, and since then the Olympic Games have risen to the highest position in the sports world. Every large nation in the world with the exception of Russia and India takes part in them. The United States has always been a leader in this sport, and we of America are hoping for many victories this year.

With a "Mad Monk," a "Red Terror," and a "Casanova" all signed, sealed, and delivered, it looked as if the wrestling matches to be sponsored by the Men's Club would be the most colorful ever this year. However, not content with the stellar entertainment already obtained, President of the Men's Club, Bob Sisco, managed to secure one more attraction, a giant among giants, in short, a "MASKED MARVEL." Now what could be more intriguing, more spectacular, more to the likes of a crowd, than a masked "rassler" daring anyone to best him and remove his incognito! The mystery man is 160 pounds of well-proportioned muscle, and is a member of the student body. He has issued a challenge and will probably give a weight advantage to his opponents.

Tom Wilson's tennis men have been doing right well for themselves so far this season, with several victories and only one defeat chalked up against them. Tom feels that his boys deserve a little more credit than they have been given, and we are somewhat inclined to agree with him. Though our tennis experience is limited to nil, we still feel that the boys have been working plenty hard.

In the Menlo conference series, the team entered the courts two points in arrears, that is the team was forced to concede two matches due to ineligibility of certain players; the racqueteers fought on to win by a score of 5-3. When any bunch of fellows can overcome odds such as these and come out on top, they deserve a hand, and so here are compliments to them.

Figures sometimes are deceiving. Such was the case in our track meet with the California Frosh. Although we were defeated by a score of 75½ to 45½, we took seven first places, the same amount as the Cal Babes. The difference came in the second and third places, where the Bear Cubs garnered 11 seconds and 11 thirds to three seconds and three third for the invading Rams.

There is plenty of loose material around the school that could manage to get out and bring in points for our team. Practice goes on all week, and Coach Russ Sweet will be glad to arrange programs for promising men. So let's have a few more fellows turn out so we can turn back our dyed-in-the-wool enemies, San Mateo, in the coming meet with them.

Distance Too Long For Crew

Over a course of distance foreign to them, the jaysee crew bowed twice to the Galileo rowers Friday on San Francisco Bay.

The mile and one-quarter was just a little too long for the Rams, who are not yet in top condition. At the three-quarter mark the varsity evidenced the shortcomings of a too short practice season and tired noticeably.

Mutiny in the second shell caused the other defeat. The Rams led all the way into the home stretch and looked to be sure winners. Here Bob Neal stopped rowing and held out for a new oar. Before difficulties could be straightened out, the Galileans swept ahead to the second win.

Crewmen are practicing daily from 11:40 to 1:30. All new candidates are welcome, as there is room for several boatloads of aspirants.

McSWEENEY TURNS CHUCKER; BAFFLES GALILEO BATTERS

Center Fielder Does Mound Duty as Eisan's Men Take Victory

By LOUIE BERTOLUCCI

Coaches Lee Eisan and Jack Gaddy put their heads together and decided they needed a new pitcher. So big Ed McSweeney was drawn in from center field and placed on the mound against the Galileo High School tossers last Tuesday in a practice game.

And who was more surprised than the coaches themselves when Ed twirled four innings and limited the Lions to four hits and two runs? Bob Dumesnilt was sent in to relieve Mac and finished the game, which the Rams won, 7-4. McSweeney was credited with the victory.

It was the second victory for the Rams over the Galileans, they having won the first encounter in a closer game, 7-6. Bob Fex was the singger for the jaysees, connecting for a triple and single in two times at the plate.

Ed Dito of Galileo limited the Ram batters to six hits but this wasn't sufficient to keep the Red and White from a victory. Michelucci and Ward did the hitting for the losers, each connecting for two hits.

Esseff scored heavily in the opening innings, tallying once in the first and putting across five runs in the second. Singles by Benny McGuire and Odero Guisti, plus several walks, aided in the rally. The Rams scored again in the third on Fex's long triple.

Galileo scored their runs in the fourth, putting over two, and in the sixth and seventh, each time making one.

The Bat Bag

By OSCAR BAUER

BABE LUCCHESI, diminutive outfielder, is the prize baller of the EISAN-GADDY-coached nine. Babe has rapped out nine basehits in fifteen trips to the plate for an average of .600. . . . This is the first time BENNY McGUIRE has ever played ball on an organized team. Ben stands third among the Ram batters with a .539 average, and leads the squad in fielding with a perfect average of 1.000. . . . JOAQUIN MARTINEZ, southpaw hurler, has dubbed ODERO GUISTI, hard-hitting third sacker, "Dean-pan." Incidentally, Mart's initial conference start against the San Mateans, which he lost 8-5, did not prove that he does not deserve a regular turn on the mound. Poor fielding in the clinches led to his downfall. . . . The EISAN-GADDY braintrust is contemplating shifting BOB FEX, former gardener, back to his center field berth. BEN McGUIRE will then try his fling at holding down the shortstop position, while ED McSWEENEY will cover the right field pasture.

Rain Delays Golf Tourney Practice

Poor weather delays Golf Manager Jack Welch's proposed school tournament this week.

With all of the Ram golfers straining at the leash, rain held up the pre-tourney practice needed for the best showing.

All aspirants are advised to keep in close touch with Welch or Dutch Conlon, as the play is subject to little advance notice.

Heavy favorites to cop places on the squad are Welch, Bob Dumesnil, and Bob McGlashan. Harding Park looms as the choice of courses.

WAA Basketball Competition Is Genuine

Continuing an interesting series of women's athletic events, an exciting basketball game, which ended with a score of 39 to 19, was held at Galileo last Friday. One of the two teams was from the basketball class which meets on Mondays and Wednesdays at 2:30, and the other, and winning, quintet belongs to the W.A.A. group which plays on Tuesdays and Thursdays at 5:30.

Incited by a spirit of genuine rivalry between the two teams, the game proved to be exceptionally fast and exciting, and in spots rather rough, several fouls being made by both sides. Some brilliant playing was displayed, the W.A.A. cagers taking the honors on this point, as on every other. Completely outclassed by their rivals, the other group, nevertheless, turned in a creditable showing. Three of their players, Donna McPherson, forward; Helen Davis, guard, and Agnes Adams, forward and captain, did outstanding work, and with more practice might develop into real stars.

The W.A.A.'s displayed their superiority early in the game, the first quarter ending with a score of 16 to 2 in their favor. The large score chalked up during this quarter was due in part to the excellent work of Forward Gloria Swiegood.

During the next quarter, however, the W.A.A.'s found that their rivals were stepping up, and they had to fight to make the score 20 to 10.

Swimmers Entered In Berkeley Relays

With a relay team composed of Bob Mowat, Herb Brotman, Monroe Staley, and Waldon Klaffke, the San Francisco Junior College will be represented at the Northern California swimming championships to be held at Berkeley under the auspices of the University of California on April 25.

This quartet of mermen will compete against junior college and college freshman relay teams, and will also swim in separate events in which all four are outstanding.

Mowat will be entered in the 300-yard event; Brotman has chosen to swim the distance of 50 yards; Staley has entered the 100; and Klaffke will be competing in the 110-yard free-style race.

Coach Sweet has said that every one of these aquatic stars has a great chance to walk off with the honors in both the separate events and the medley relay. All four swimmers work out at the Olympic Club daily.

Ram Tracksters Have Chance To Beat Stanford

By BUD McSWEENEY

Traveling southward for their second taste of bitter competition, the Ram track team meets up with the strong Stanford freshman cinder artists Saturday at Palo Alto.

The boys are out to dissolve the tartar of defeat which they met at California two weeks ago, with the "Sweet" wine of victory. And victory is feasible, when times and marks of the two aggregations are compared. However, the rub comes in, in the words of Coach Russ Sweet: "We haven't enough men to take the necessary second and third place spots that mean the difference between defeat and victory. However, we have enough talent to command the respect of all our competitors."

The Stanford Papooses are worried to the same extent as the Rams. Sitting around the fire at the Farm are such stars as Kelly, Soltero, Carew, Emanuel, Hawkins, Bale, Veenker, Zagar, Hillback, Weisgerber, Siefert, Taggart and Slater.

"TRIO" SHOULD WIN

The "thirty-point trio," Southard, Jublonsky, and Bertram, are out to repeat the double victories they scored in the U.C. meet, with Bertram particularly favored in the 880 yard and mile events. Southard should come through all right in both hurdle races, but "Jumbo" Jublonsky will have his hands full when he vies with Stanford's Zagar and Hillback in the discus and shot put.

"Whizzer" Warren, who has more nicknames than there are synonyms for inebriated, should win in the 440 contest, and will probably be entered in the 100 and relay races.

Carew and Kelly of Stanford should win in the century dash as Jackson and Compas are both suffering from muscle ailments and neither has turned in a commendable time so far this season.

FIELD EVENTS CLOSE

With only three inches separating their best marks, Ed Scott and the Indians' Veenker should put up a close battle in the javelin throw. Another close one is the broad jump. George Dunne and Kelly have only a two-inch difference in marks, and the event can go either way.

Soccerites Tie Granadans, 4-4

Vinson Stars with Three Goals in Second Period

In a game marked by pre-season blunders, the J.C. soccer team battled to a 4-4 tie with the Granada A.C. last Sunday morning. The first half was slow and the only goal scored was that of the Granada team.

In the second half the Rams began to play ball and went to town to the tune of four points, with Bob Vinson accounting for three goals and Don Leed one.

The jaysee men were off in their play at the first of the game, missing kicks and passes. Vin Zurado, last year's full, staved off many a Granada threat in the first half.

Spring practice has improved the team to a great extent, and Coach Bass should have a powerful aggregation by next term. Bob Vinson, Don Leed and Bob Zegura carry the brunt of the attack, with Conway and Taylor at halves, and Nelson and Odone, a powerful combination, rounding out the squad.

Support and interest should boom since the conference committee has declared soccer a major sport. The team is outfitted with new maroon and orange jerseys and a lot of spirit, and intends to be right up there in the conference standings.

New candidates may report any day between 4:30 and 5:30 to Coach Bass at Funston field. The Rams will engage U.S.F. Saturday at 10:30 at Beach Chalet field.

COUNTRY THREATENED BY DISASTER

New Section of Galileo Building Declared Earthquake Menace; Useage Condemned

College Will Be Ousted Next Fall Along With High School; Barge Building Is Mentioned

Not Even Relief Men Permitted Entrance To Untenantable Edifice as Done in Previous Instances

Condemned as an earthquake menace, the entire new building of the Galileo High School will be marked as untenantable next semester, it was revealed early this morning among certain educational circles.

Not even the high school students will be permitted the use of the building when their Fall semester opens, it was announced.

What will become of the junior college is still a nebulous question, although some contractors have already submitted plans for the construction of temporary quarters to be located on an old fishing barge anchored off the Marina yacht harbor.

Proving the dangerous condition of the building, officials have said that not even relief men will be allowed to enter the building, as was the case in Berkeley after part of the high school was deemed unsafe for students.

Graft Exposed As Gifford Confesses To Years of Work

It was disclosed today that John P. Gifford, instructor of botany and head of the hotel management classes, was deep in graft. When informed of this, he merely smiled and with a jaunty air said, "Oh yes, I love to graft. Every botanist at one time or another is a grafter. Our life is practically composed of grafting in one way or another." And with a look of ecstasy he added, "Grafting plants, trees, and shrubs is our life's work."

Apple Campaign To Finance Activities As Yet Undecided

"An apple a day"—so begins the time-worn proverb, newly dusted off and adopted as the temporary motto of the Women's Service Club during its forthcoming apple campaign.

According to Helen Davis, president of the club, this campaign will be as follows: Beginning this week, and continuing indefinitely, one member of the W.S.C. will be stationed in the Powell Street bookstore every period until 1:25 o'clock. She will be armed with a crate of apples and a gladsome smile. You will (probably) have a nickel and little, if any, sales resistance. Result: The sale of one luscious apple.

As for the hundreds of dollars soon to be accrued from this gigantic enterprise, Miss Davis impressively stated that the club "plans to use the money for various social activities for the college." When pressed for information on what sort of activities are planned, however, Miss Davis said the club was as yet undecided on this point.

SKONK SKONK SKONK!

—Because they brought a skunk (one of those nice little animals with a scent quite unlike any flower) into the main hall of the building and placed him in a locker, two students of Ventura Junior College were suspended from classes for one week by the student court. Any time we want to take a week's vacation, we'll know what to do.

A SOLDIER'S WIFE? HIS LIFE, TOO, NO?

"There's something about a soldier, there's something about a soldier, there's something about a soldier that is fine, fine, fine!!"—and truer words were never spoken!

Proof needed?

Every afternoon at four when the Ghirardelli plant whistle blows, several junior college women may be found above the Fort Mason dock, waving goodbye to the U. S. Army steamer Coxe as it slides out toward Alcatraz.

It might be that the time of year is spring—perhaps the girls are doing their calisthenics, or even . . . they might be waving at "them soldier fellers"!! "Red" Murphy, who throws the mooring rope on the front of the boat, has often wondered about those "gals" up there on the cliff, and the captain of the Coxe, ever youthful, often winks a humorous eye at their antics.

But girls—BEWARE!!

Fasten not thy heart upon a soldier's buttons. Wouldn't thou be akin to a "golf widow" or a "navy sweetheart"?

Who knows but that some evening a waving handkerchief would flutter at a post emptied—emptied by a call from far-away Manila?

WARMING UP

The world's highest temperatures have been recorded in the Temperate Zone. In Izzizia, Italy, on September 13, 1922, the mercury reached 136.4 degrees Fahrenheit. In California, on July 10, 1913, it was actually 134.1 degrees. In Algeria it has been 127, and in northern India 125.

The superstition that thirteen at a table, the thirteenth day of the month, and the thirteenth floor of a building are unlucky, is believed to grow from the fact that thirteen were seated at the Last Supper and the ancient tradition of paying a hangman thirteen pence for an execution.

DISASTER STORY CENSORED!

Pictured above are members of the Administration's Censor Board as they tore into small bits the story pertaining to the threatened demolishment of everything. No reason was given for the action, but rumors claimed that the story contained the results of lengthy investigation into the causes, which revealed a molten hotbed of sedition that has long been smouldering in underworld campus circles. (The picture was censored, too; besides, the photographer forgot to put a film in the camera at the time, and it was night, anyway, and nobody was present.)

Colossal Babel Represented Here As Nations Offer Best

That one one-thousandth of the men, women and children (dogs, cats, horses and cattle not counted) of the San Francisco Bay region are attending S.F.J.C., was revealed after a lengthy and diligent perusal of the voluminous records kept on file in the drafty hall in front of the J.C. office at Galileo.

Considering the course in the junior college a fitting climax to their previous studies in California's penal institution, San Quentin daily sends across the bay, along with the multitude of seagulls, one lone student. The federal government, always outdoing the state, manages to spare from its vast resources three inmates of Devil's Island of America, Alcatraz.

With a startling delegation, Hilo, Hawaii, sends to this palace of learning the sum whole substance of one searcher after knowledge.

Equaling Hawaii in the number of embryonic American presidents, them thar hills of Morganfield, Kaintucky, in lieu of a crate of southern blue grass, a thoroughbred racing stallion, and a quart of that famous distilled moonshine, offers another aspirant.

In this same category it is also possible to find represented: San Jose, Merced, Gonzales, Hollywood, Riverbank, Sutter Creek, Grass Valley, Palo Alto, Rio Vista, Hercules, Bradley, Petaluma, Pengrove, Rodeo, Likely, Stockton, Lakeport and Ukiah of California; Harlan and Hartford City, Indiana; Toppenish, Kirkland and Dayton, Washington, and Missoula, Montana.

The Southwest, hearing of the formation of a new junior college in San Francisco, decided to send three cow-waddies. After catching the persons who shot up the town, the vigilantes of Santa Fe and Dawson, New Mexico, and Prescott, Arizona, thought that sending the cowhands to S.F. would be sufficient punishment. So the delegation hopped a hoss and trekked their way to 'Frisco.

S.F.J.C. is proud to have a graduate of the school at Napa, Calif. Posing as Napoleon, the lone Socrates seeking a higher intellectual training, hit town on a white horse.

After rowing across the Pacific Ocean in a row-boat, seven citizens of the Philippine Islands, thinking that they reached San Francisco, found out that they only crossed the Manila Bay. Getting their thumbs oiled up and in perfect working condition, they managed to hitch-hike to S.F.

Because only one student comes from north of the U.S.-Canada border, various highly developed intellectuals came to the conclusion that one student comes from Canada, and that the student is Canadian.

San Francisco, the city by the Golden Gate and supposed metropolis of the bay region, is thought by experts to be the New York of the West, and the largest contributor to S.F.J.C., because it supplies 96 per cent of the daily attendance. Of course, their opinion is unofficial and can not be guaranteed. This deduction came after a long and laborious conference of ten minutes.

WORLD NEWS FLASHES

ADDIS ABABA, Apr. 1.—Reports that the conflict between Italian and native troops here has been discontinued were received from unreliable sources today.

While Benito could not be reached for a statement, the report quoted Haile Selassie, Ethiopian leader and "Conquering Lion of Judah," as follows: "Huh! Me fight with Mussolini? It's all off. In fact, I would like to have Ben for dinner some time."

Haile then disclosed he would rather have Il Duce roasted than stewed, because he has been stewed himself and knows how it feels.

GENEVA, Apr. 1—(Special to The Guardsman)—League members sent a lengthy message to Secretary of Navy Swanson today in complaint against an alleged overstepping of treaty bounds by the U.S. The complaint charged that a new ship, under the direction of Admiral Jack Gaddy, was being manned by members of the San Francisco Junior College without official sanction by the league. The league report said that unless the matter was checked, the league would be very much put out about it.

S.F.J.C., Apr. 1—(Special to The Guardsman)—In a vehement retort to a message received from Geneva this morning, Admiral Gaddy refused to dock his ship.

"We will continue to slop ovah de waves," he said.

As a result, international negotiations are in an uproar, and it is feared by authorities that S.F.J.C. will be snubbed and refused an invitation to a tea which the league is throwing soon.

SAN FRANCISCO, Apr. 1.—The Masked Marvel, cyclonic wrestling star recently returned from a tour of Europe, arrived here today to begin training for a match with M. Schwarz at the Verdi Club late in April.

The Marvel, whose identity is still unknown despite the probing of reporters, will not eat for two weeks prior to the engagement, for he says, "I will make my first meal from eating the ear off this bum whom they call Schwarz."

Schwarz declined to make a statement.

SACRAMENTO, Calif., Apr. 1.—Announcing that he has solved the depression—except for a few details—Senator J. Y. Tripegut of Colma is the man of the hour at the state capitol.

Among the "details" yet to be completed is the problem of what to do with more than 1,000,000 unemployed persons.

"I'll tell you about that after election," Tripegut said.

WASHINGTON, Apr. 1.—The Veterans of Future Wars, national organization founded at Princeton University, today announced completion of treaty negotiations formally ending the Universal War, 1945-1965.

Although the dispatch was declared official, no definite terms of peace treaty were made public. It is believed, however, that straws will be drawn and the country that is decided to have lost the war will be made to pay a huge indemnity in order to facilitate payment of the bonus demanded by the veterans' organization.

Meanwhile, armaments manufacturers are arranging a schedule for a new war to be held in about 20 years. The explosives dealers will sponsor a world-wide slogan contest to pick out a suitable name for the next conflagration.

TORTURED MAN TELLS OF MISERY

Some of you men students may get a great kick out of watching us bearded humans roaming around the college campus (?) looking like freaks of nature, but this idea of becoming an outcast among the lady friends for two weeks is something to be reckoned with.

We start off the day by waking up having the feeling a horse is trying to brush against our faces. When it comes to washing the face it is just like rubbing through new-mown hay. On the way to school, occupants of the street car gaze at us in amazement while we have to grin and bear it. Upon arriving at the college, our greatest fear is having the men and women rubbing their hands over our growth of two weeks—and boy, if you don't think it hurts when they pluck out a single whisker!

The itching, and burning feeling of our beards is most uncomfortable, and when sitting in a warm classroom all day we could surely go for a shave.

Every time we open our mouths to gulp a morsel of food, the feeling is that adhesive tape has been stretched across our countenance. Every hair seems to be a live wire, ready to burn right through our skin.

Don't think we can shave our beards off when the contest is over. Oh, no! The bunch of hair has to be extricated by a tonsorial artist that really knows his business.

He must do his job with ease and finesse to be sure he does not tear off half our faces.

You think a whiskerino is fun? Try it sometime, you young and handsome Don Juans of S.F.J.C., and see how you feel after the ninth day has passed.

Such a Building!! Entrances All Over

Strange facts, as Ripley prints them, include the one about the house in France which has three stories with an entrance from the street on each floor.

Ripley could have gone a little farther and found out that Galileo High School has a like oddity. A four-story building, the high school has street entrances on three floors. A first floor door opens on Bay Street; second floor entrance is on Francisco Street, while at Polk and Francisco a doorway leads out onto the third story.

All nations are eligible to compete in the next conflict, the manufacturers said.

SAN FRANCISCO, Apr. 1.—Completion of the new San Francisco Junior College campus at Ingleside was set for next week by city officials in charge. Two thousand students will occupy the new quarters after the Easter vacation.

Among the various novel features of the new educational plant are: loge seats in classrooms; elevator service for all; free beer in the cafeteria, and a thick wall separating students and professor in lecture rooms.

REVERSE YEAR ADVICE IS GIVEN

The leap year commandments for men at San Jose State College are:

1) Don't accept dates immediately. Stall, use tact.
2) Accept three or four, if possible, then choose the best.
3) Must ask mother's permission.
4) Ask date if it is to be closed or open car, so you'll know what to wear.
5) Make 'em wait while you dress.
6) Have 'em make favorable impressions on the folks.
7) Must promise to be in early.
8) Have 'em carry as much junk as possible for you (smokes, gloves, cash (?), etc. etc.).
9) Be sure to forget something to make it necessary to return home.
10) Make several subtle cracks as to quality and vintage of car.
11) Put up a big beef about way the program is filled. Trade at least eight of the ten dances.
12) Say "hello" and wave at every girl present, whether you know her or not.
13) Say you're not hungry, and then eat like a horse.
14) Tell 'em you must be in early, and then beef because they take you home.

Panel Group Discusses Peace At Open Forum 9 A. M. Today Under Direction Of Dr. Sewell

Student Speakers Handle Various Phases Dealing with National Security in Three One-Hour Sessions

Offering what is known as a panel discussion group, six students under the direction of Dr. Franklin Sewell, political science instructor, will talk on the subject of Peace in three one-hour sessions to be held this morning in the auditorium on the third floor of the Extension Building.

In an endeavor to offer the subject in the most interesting way possible, and at the same time to give the entire subject general coverage, the panel system, in which the six speakers will discuss the matter before the audience in an informal manner, was adopted, Sewell explained.

Following the discussion carried on between the speakers, questions from the floor will be considered, and an effort to give satisfactory answers will be made, Sewell said.

The students who will conduct the affair are Joe Graham, Dave York, James Mayer, William Rawson, Maury Schwarz and Robert Sisco. These men were chosen, the political instructor explained, as they were considered representative of various fields in the college—respectively, law students, international relations, general, publications, associated students, and Men's Club.

"In this panel we are endeavoring to bring out all sides of the question of peace," Dr. Sewell said, "taking into full consideration the matter of national defense and preparedness.

"Because any one of the many phases that will be discussed briefly could be debated for hours, we hope to have as many of these panels as possible before the end of the semester, in order to go more deeply into particular matters in which the general student opinion may be interested."

NOW IS THE CHANCE TO HEAR AND SPEAK

Despite his youthful appearance, Dr. Franklin Sewell is a man with years of knowledge stored, always ready for use, in his mental books of wisdom.

Recognized as an authority in the field of political science, Dr. Sewell has worked in Washington with men who have been said to be those controlling the destinies of this nation. A few years ago, he went to Europe with the Carnegie Peace Endowment.

Under his guidance and directorship, the panel discussion on Peace, to be held at 9 o'clock this morning, has been arranged.

The Guardsman throughout the semester has editorially promoted the matter of Peace. Perhaps, it is feared, some of the editorials were not intensely interesting.

Today, however, students will not have to read what one man writes; they will have the opportunity of hearing six students discuss the subject of Peace informally, and will have the opportunity of participating in the discussion themselves.

New Co-ed Course Is Listed for Next Spring's Calendar

Augmenting the list of courses offered by the college, a new curriculum for women has been devised, and will probably be taught for the first time during the next Spring term, according to Verrel Weber, women's physical instructor.

The new course is designed to train women, who are not planning to continue studying after junior college, to become leaders of girls' activities. The large field open to capable people trained in this work includes such pleasant and well paid positions as play-ground director, camp counsellor, and leader of organizations such as Campfire Girls, Girl Scouts, or Girl Reserves.

Women students taking this course will obtain some first-hand practice during the semester, when they direct activities at various playgrounds in the city.

The curriculum is intended to be sufficiently versatile that a student who has taken it will be well prepared to fill almost any of the many positions open to women trained in the field of recreational leadership.

Following is a list of the subjects comprising the course: Camp leadership, trail technique, hand-crafts, story-telling, one-act play production, and recreational leadership. In addition to these subjects, the student should also take part in as many sports as she can, Miss Weber says.

Service Club Boasts Member Expansion

Bringing the total membership of the Women's Service Club to 21, eight new members have been chosen from throughout the college, according to Helen Davis, president of the club. The new members are: Ruth Johnson, Arlene Frazieres, Parnell Brown, Beatrice Muychey, Elaine Domingus, Betty Hyde, Barbara Latz, and Jane Neal.

These eight women will be probationary members until next semester, when, if their marks are satisfactory, they will be initiated as regular members.

New members, Miss Davis said, are chosen on a basis of outstanding service to the college and active participation in student affairs.

The roster of the club now includes 10 regular members, three old probationers, and eight new probationers, which brings the total membership to 21.

$2626 NYA Money Distributed Among Student Workers

An NYA pay roll amounting to $2626 for work done in the month of March has been distributed among 198 students, according to Edith Pence, NYA director for the junior college.

The next work period for April closes on April 28, Miss Pence said, with time reports due by April 29.

This month there are 200 workers on the NYA, the students being placed as rapidly as possible in positions as readers, typists, mimeograph, laboratory assistants, clerical positions, graphs, and numerous other fields of work.

The administrator particularly wants students to bear in mind that their grades in this second mid-term must be satisfactory if they wish to continue on the NYA in May.

The final date for work under the NYA this semester is May 28.

200 Attend Block SF Sports Dance

Approximately 200 couples danced to the music of Howard Markuse and his orchestra at the Block S.F. Society sport dance Friday, April 3, according to Adolph Pedrin, president of the organization.

Carlyle Caine officiated as master of ceremonies, and a public address system was attached to the orchestra dias to insure good dancing.

The proceeds of the dance will be used to buy varsity tokens and certificates for block winners.

PUBLIC SCHOOL WEEK TO BE HELD APRIL 27-MAY 1

S. F. J. C. Combines With Galileo Institution in Celebration

PRES. CLOUD TO SPEAK

Musical Entertainment To Be Provided by Choir and Orchestra

San Francisco Junior College will celebrate the 16th annual observance of Public Schools Week, April 27 to May 1, in conjunction with Galileo High School and Galileo Evening School next Wednesday evening, April 29, in the Galileo High School Auditorium.

With Archibald J. Cloud, president of San Francisco Junior College, acting as chairman of the evening, opening remarks will be made by Major J. P. Nourse, principal of Galileo High School, who will present President Cloud.

MEEK TO SPEAK

The speaker will be the Hon. Bert B. Meek, executive vice-president of Hearst Consolidated, who will speak on Education as Viewed by a Layman. "San Francisco Junior College," said Charles R. Cooper, general chairman of the committee for Public Schools Week, "will be particularly fortunate in having such an interesting speaker as Meek for its meeting."

Music for the occasion will be supplied by the A Cappella Choir, of the San Francisco Junior College, under the direction of Flossita Badger, instructor, and the Galileo Evening School Orchestra, under the direction of Constance Keohan.

VALUE TOLD

A Public Schools Week Committee, under direction of C. R. Cooper, and having as honorary vice-chairmen, Cloud, Dr. Edwin A. Lee, superintendent of schools; the Hon. C. Harold Caulfield, president of the Board of Education, and Mrs. Joseph E. Morcombe, president, second district of the P.-T.A., has made arrangements for celebration programs to be held in various schools throughout the week.

The value of Public Schools Week is aptly summed up by Cooper as follows: "The purpose of this week, set aside by the state of California, is to afford an opportunity for the people to be kept informed thoroughly with respect to California's program of public education, to combat destructive criticism, and to aid in correcting errors which may creep into the system, and to insure that close contact between the public and its schools, so essential to a continuance of the friendship, faith and confidence upon which they necessarily depend."

Debate Team Will Speak at Stanford

Under the direction of Lloyd D. Luckmann, forensics coach, the college debating team will enter the trio-debate conference, to be held at Stanford University May 1 and 2.

Those who will participate in the matches are Isabelle Sherratt, Mildred Ross, Ruth Reinglass, Eugene Blumenthal, Wallace Fowler, Fred Wright, and Walter Schmidt.

The topic of the forensic contest will be Government Ownership of Public Utilities, and Ross will also given an extemporaneous speech on this subject.

LEAVES

Mimi Colton, above, formerly vice-president of the Associated Students, left college just before the Easter vacation to take a position with a local law firm.

Following is Miss Colton's farewell message to the Associated Students:

"It is with much regret that I find it necessary to take leave of the many friends and associates who have made my term as vice-president so pleasant. It is their cooperation and support that has made possible any success that I may have attained during my term of office.

"To Dean Browne, Dean Leonard, Maury Schwarz, the social committee, and its advisers, the executive council, The Guardsman, and the student body as a whole, I extend my thanks.

"To Neal Martin, my successor, congratulations, and my sincere hope that he finds much success and enjoyment in his new position."

(Signed) MIMI COLTON.

STUDENTS INSPECT STANFORD CAMPUS IN TOUR OF CAFE

The hotel and restaurant class spent Thursday, April 9, in Palo Alto. At Stanford University they were the guests of Miss Caroline Richer, director of dining halls, and Mrs. Brandon Watson, assistant.

The class left the Powell Street building at 6:45 and met at Encina Hall on the Stanford Campus for breakfast. In the morning the class visited the dining and kitchen facilities of Encina, and the Student Union "Cellar."

In the afternoon, the class was given the opportunity of visiting the new model kitchen installed in "Lagunita," women's dormitory. The ice cream plant was opened to the class, which observed the working facilities in operation. They were able to see how fancy molds and bricks were mixed and frozen, as well as how the ice was made in quantities for all the dining units on the campus.

The cafeteria and main dining room of the Stanford Union were visited under the guidance of Miss Richer, who explained the changes that were contemplated to increase efficiency. The survey was completed in one day, and gave the students an excellent basis for the section of the course in restaurant engineering, according to Mary Smiley, hostess at the Galileo cafeteria.

Those students who made the survey included: Stuart Kingsland, Charles Dondlei, Lawrence Wong, Frank Claverie, Marcel Frankerts, Victor Robelet, Graham Sullivan, and John P. Gifford and Miss Smiley.

Honor Group Holds Member Initiation

Initiation of new members of the Skull and Blade Society will take place in two weeks with an informal initiation ceremony, it was announced by Ray Brunn, president. The formal part of the rites will be held in the evening at the Park-Presidio Y.M.C.A. so that students of the college will be able to view the informal part of the ritual in the afternoon.

Those to be admitted officially to the society are: Ed Frediani, Henry Kearney, Joe Kissel, Maury Schwarz, and Bob Sisco, all prominent members of the student body.

A gavel was recently donated to the Skull and Blade by an anonymous person who has taken an interest in the organization.

Questions of service to the student body will be discussed by the club during its stated meeting this afternoon at 1:45 o'clock at Galileo.

Men's Ass'n Raffletto At Verdi Club Tonight With Variety of Entertainment

Schwarz Winner In 2nd Round At Preliminary of Men's Club

Viewed by a large crowd of men and women students, the preliminary bouts of the Men's Club Raffletto were held in the Galileo Men's Gymnasium last Friday.

In the first match on the program, Maury Schwarz, local light-heavy boxer, kayoed George Poole in the second round. Poole started off fast until he received a hard right-cross to the pit of the stomach, which put him on the canvas for a nine count. He was on his feet at the count of ten, only to be finished by another blow in the same weakened spot.

The second bout between Jedinaff and Barfield, the 147 pounders, ended with Barfield winning the decision. Although Jedinaff was more aggressive, Barfield took the decision on the strength of his punching.

Byron Sylvester and Mervin Weiner traded punches in the second 175-pound bout, with Sylvester taking a close decision. Sylvester proved himself a classy boxer, and outmaneuvered Weiner's superior strength.

Tom Connolly defeated Hale by a technical knockout in the second round of the only 165-pound event on the program.

In the 126-pound class, Charlie McKeon uncurled a dynamite-laden punch and dropped Leon Kalimos for the count after three seconds of the second round.

The Sylvester-Schwarz bout was halted after 30 seconds of the first round by Joe Amori, referee, due to an injury to Sylvester's nose suffered earlier in the day. The judges, Adolph Pedrin, Tony Scafani, and Fleming Pope, called the bout on the advice of Dr. Richard Friedlander, school doctor.

MASKED MARVEL MAURY'S MEAT —MAYBE!

Declared to be the greatest show of its kind ever to be held at San Francisco Junior College, the Men's Club Raffletto will be held tonight at the Verdi Club under the leadership of President Bob Sisco and his helpers, who have been working all term to line up a suitable program of entertainment for the Raffle ticket holders.

Claiming that the talent to be presented is the best obtainable in the college, the club has arranged a large group of boxing and wrestling exhibitions in varied weights.

Charles Kremsne will be the favorite in the 175 pound boxing class, and Adolph Pedrin and Al Cohn will square off in the heavyweight division. Bill Moll, veteran wrestler, has signed up for the 150 pound events, and will be faced against two opponents. Tim Rogers and Charles McKeon will be featured in the lightest match of the evening, entering the ring at 126 pounds. Other matches are to be offered featuring Sylvester, Weber, Reynolds, Knowlton, Allen and others.

To enthuse further the ticket holders, a mysterious Masked Marvel has been signed up to appear, and he challenges any one to remove the disguise covering his mysterious features. The only wrestler to accept his challenge so far has been Maury Schwarz, who places great confidence in his ability for a stunning victory. Although Schwarz' experience and ability as a wrestler have never been doubted by his friends, many of those supposedly in the know fear the direst results of this match.

Dean Edwin C. Browne will offer a monologue, and music will be presented by Mort Werner. Prizes will be offered in the Raffle, and in order to view the entertainment it will be necessary to have a raffle ticket. The winners must also be in the audience at the time of the drawing in order to win if they do.

LEAPIN' LIZARDS IN PURSE CAUSE NEAR CATASTROPHE

A scream resounded through the rooms and halls Friday, April 17, when Helen Reveal, instructor of typing and shorthand, ran into one of the offices with a white face and, gasping, said "She put a lizard in my purse." "Who did?" someone asked. "B-B-Betty Gentry."

She later explained that she had been threatening to buy Betty Gentry a one-way ticket back to Alameda, if she continued wearing a dull greenish chameleon (lizard to you) in class.

"Today, when I left my purse lying on the desk, Betty must have stolen up and put the lizard on top of the clasp. I almost closed the purse together with the lizard in between —— I don't know what I would have done if that had happened," Miss Reveal managed to explain, after she had recovered her breath.

Soph Formal Date Is Set for May 22

The orchestras of Al Rushton and Carvel Craig, well-known dance leaders, will vie for the opportunity of playing at the High Sophomore Formal to be held in the Room of the Dons at the Hotel Mark Hopkins, May 22. The orchestra chosen by the dance committee will give a student body rally April 30, at Galileo.

Admission to the dance will be $1.50 per couple. Tickets are now on sale by high sophomore representatives and members of the dance committee.

Members of the dance committee are: Neal Martin, chairman; Marie McKnight, Donna McPherson, Jane Neal, Eleanor Schaub, and Maury Schwarz.

Star-Gazers Form Society Under Dr. Berman of Faculty

To become acquainted with astronomical science and methods and to make visual and photographic observations of celestial phenomena is the objective of the Astronomical Society, tentatively formed last week under the leadership of Dr. Louis Berman, prominent member of the S.F.J.C. teaching staff.

Through the kindness of Henry Rafael of Galileo High School, the Galileo observatory has been placed at the disposal of the club members for the meetings and observations.

A varied group of activities is planned for next semester and the balance of this period. Observations of the sun, moon, and planets, as well as serious observations of binary, or double stars, star clusters, and nebulae are contemplated in the near future. Meteor observations—both visual and photographic—will be made, and the results will be sent to the American Meteor Society.

Because of the great scientific value of systematic observations of variable stars, much of the club's research will be along this line. The results of these observations will be published in Popular Astronomy, an international magazine of astronomical research.

Lectures both by club members and professional astronomers on the research carried out in their respective fields will feature the meetings to be held weekly.

Any student interested in either the photographic or visual observations and desirous of joining the society can do so by communicating with Dr. Berman. As intricate mathematical problems are not included in the club schedule, any one is eligible to join without previous training, although an elementary course in astronomy is very helpful, Dr. Berman said.

Pi Mu Gamma Visit Hospital in Presidio

Members of the Pi Mu Gamma Society were guests of the medical staff of Letterman General Hospital last Saturday, April 18. They were conducted on an inspection tour through the hospital, and received first-hand information regarding modern medical care as administered by the United States government, according to Bill Painter, prominent member of the club.

At a meeting held during Easter vacation, at the society's club rooms, 1150 Union Street, plans were formulated for a field trip to Marin County. The date for the outing was not definitely decided.

Frank Cirelli, president of the society, announced also at the meeting plans for the formation of an alumni association, which met the approval of all members.

It was also announced that Dr. Joseph Geiger, head of the San Francisco Health Department, will be guest speaker at a meeting of the society in the near future.

Chess Club Plans Dance

Dinner dancing at the Mark Hopkins will probably be the next activity of the Chess Club, according to Henry J. Ralston, the group's faculty adviser.

Proudly, Ralston said the group has won all its matches and intends to keep on doing so.

The club's best player is probably Edward Eklund, he added.

The meetings of this group take place once a week.

Tuberculosis Test To Be Given By San Francisco Health Dept.

After announcing plans at an assembly April 2, of conducting a voluntary tuberculosis test among the students of the junior college, Dr. Richard Friedlander, San Francisco Junior College physician, launched the campaign this week by distributing among the student body blanks that, when signed by parents, will entitle students to a free tuberculin test.

In discussing the requirements for the test, Dr. Friedlander said:

"We should like to have these blanks signed and returned to the doctor's office as soon as possible. If parents do not wish to approve of the test, we asked that they make note of the fact on the blank and have it returned anyway.

"Of course, if the student is over 21 years of age, there is no need of his having the blank signed. I should like to impress upon those who wish to take the test that we cannot give it to a minor without the consent of his parents.

"Also, it should be understood that the test is purely voluntary, and involves no obligation whatsoever. It will be to the student's advantage to have this test made, because if any sign of tubercular germ is found, a more thorough examination will be given by the health department without cost," declared Dr. Friedlander.

Jack Carter Inaugurates New Radio Program Over KGGC

With the idea of giving college and high school students a chance to show their talents over the airways, and at the same time to acquire a person who will lead the radio amateurs in the future, Jack Carter, S.F.J.C. student, opened a weekly KGGC guest artist parade last Wednesday afternoon.

The program was named "Jack Carter's Hour," and was entirely under his supervision. Numerous letters and telegrams have been received by KGGC congratulating the group on its achievement.

Last Wednesday S.F.J.C. was represented by singers, Betty Gentry, Eleanor Newman, and Corrine Lynwood, and piano artists, Inez St. Ledger, Alice Johnston, and Mary Colhert. Misses Johnston and Colhert played a duet.

Jack Martin, the effervescent banjo player, and Richard Ferrari, his accordion accompanist, were two of the outstanding guest stars of the afternoon.

Another highlight of the program that received praise from George Tomlin, student hour director, and many other listeners, was Howard Markuse's orchestra. Markuse is a college student here.

Girls from Polytechnic High School also participated in the program.

THE LADIES CAN'T TAKE IT!

The country at large thought that Princeton's idea of organizing the Veterans of Future Wars was rather amusing; a few thinking, far-sighted individuals saw the serious subtlety of it.

Some of the Ladies' Auxiliaries of this war and that, however, do not think it at all funny; as a matter of fact, they consider the whole matter a personal insult. These imagined insultees feel that the Veterans of Future Wars movement casts aspersions upon their integrity, and makes light of their intense patriotism and continued stand in favor of Americanism.

The inanity and ridiculousness of the indignation of these sweet gossip-circle haranguers would be a great deal funnier if it were not that the alleged good accomplished by these hangovers of 1776 is so dubious. In other words, although the Princeton idea was undoubtedly not intended as an insult to anyone, the question arises as to the genuine sanctity and benevolence of these capitalizers on the imagined glory of past wars.

How much does the continual harping on the virtues of intense patriotism contribute toward the maintenance of peace? Observation of other countries will reveal that such patriotism, when overdone, becomes chauvinism. A country, under such influence, sooner or later becomes obsessed with the idea of its superiority over all others, and that it is its benign duty to force, by war if necessary, the alleged inferiors to bend to the divine will of the "super-country."

One should love one's country, respect it and its legitimate institutions and organizations. One should be patriotic. Unless one likes to engage in the gentle art of war, however, one had better take it easy when it comes to commemorating too industriously past instances of mass carnage. (Of course, however, if one is an adherent of the German philosopher Nietsche, who believed that a good war justifies the causes, all this will, naturally, fall on deaf ears.)

If the beloved Ladies War Auxiliaries have so little else to do that they must snoop around for insults, perhaps they might examine the genuine worthiness of their own principles.

WANT TO GO ON STRIKE?

In a nation-wide "strike against war," students are urged by the Young Communists' League to leave classes at 11 a.m. today.

At this writing, there is no knowledge of pamphlets having been distributed at this college to this effect, but by the time of publication it is possible that the contingency may have occurred.

The average student here is not sufficiently nationally-minded to pay much attention to the "strike." Few, if any, will stage the 11 o'clock walk-out.

The idea may have its merits, but it is extremely doubtful that the merits outweigh the disadvantages. It is very regrettable that the movement is being sponsored by the Young Communists, because for that very reason the strike will defeat its own ends.

Communism is still held in extreme disfavor by this country at large, and the psychological effect of any idea promoted by its advocates is to make most Americans take an opposite stand. In this case, however, the Communists should be commended for taking a decided stand against war, despite the negligible value of their methods of putting across their ideas.

(One should also bear in mind, however, the fact that failure to support a DEFENSIVE war smacks dangerously of suicide.)

THE TEAR OF PARTING

A single student seldom, if ever, is of such importance as to merit space in the editorial columns. Likewise, the event of a single student's leaving college is, as a rule, not of great general importance.

When, however, a student has sincerely, industriously, responsibly worked with unceasing efforts in the interests of the college, an exception is in order; and when that student's leaving college causes genuine regrets in the hearts of the general student body, it is time for a public expression of sincere appreciation for past work, regrets upon the necessity of her leaving, and best wishes for success in the outside world equivalent to that noteworthy pinnacle achieved in college.

And so, Mimi Colton, adios, y que vaya con Dios!

BOTH BLESSED AND CURSED

There are students, men, and children—
Independent some, but others,
With no business of their own,
Must need to bother others,
With their puerile, senseless drivel.

Words are at once a blessing and a curse. An effective medium through which to send thoughts from one to another, words have been described. That, however, implies that the user of the words must first have a thought.

For that purpose, yes, words are a blessing, conveying thoughts that, while perhaps not of great import, are, at least, sincere.

When, however, used by either tongue or pen to blat out drivel, worthless nothings, words immediately become a foul curse, and the quiet of the mountain fastness of the hermit appears in the mind's eye as a delightful haven of rest from the thoughtless mutterings that pour forth from so many empty minds.

SAILING THROUGH THE NEWS

The older one gets and the closer one gets to death, the more one seems selfishly to cling to life.

That, at least, is one conclusion that can be drawn from the huge, nation-wide sweep that the Townsend Plan has made. At the same time, it has shown the simplicity with which the average aged can be duped by promises of a modified elixir of life, and how easily smart promoters can make fortunes from such "snake-medicine."

Regardless of how the present investigation into the Townsend Plan turns out, the majority of its supporters will still blindly and blandly hail Doctor Townsend as a second or third Messiah, and anything said against him or his idea will only serve further to extol his virtues as a martyr.

Bad Politics to do This in South

Those who rock with ecstasy when they see a boomerang clip a publicity hound in the back of the neck will be delighted to learn that Eleanor Roosevelt, wife of F.R., by her "democracy and love of the common people" has lost her husband some thousands of votes in the South.

Photographs showing Mrs. Roosevelt entering a building with a burly negro hanging on either arm have been widely circulated, especially in Texas.

"My conscience forced me to do it," explained Vance Muse, tall, broad-shouldered Texan, as he told the Senate Lobby Committee recently of the wide photograph distribution.

Funnier and Funnier

Germany is providing the world with more laughs than any other political body since the world tired of the amusement offered by the feeble antics of the League of Nations.

The latest is Herr Ludwig Mueller's Nazi translation of the Bible, which, in reality, is not a translation, but a corruption.

His corruption of the "turn the other cheek" idea is as follows: "Should a comrade slap thee in the face in excitement, it is not always the right thing to hit back immediately. It is more manly to keep imperturbable poise. Then the comrade will probably be ashamed."

A local paper editorially comments: "If not a sense of reverence, we should think a slight sense of humor might have saved Herr Mueller from that."

What's the Difference?

Senator Arthur Vandenburg, Republican, has announced that the G.O.P. will endeavor to have relief administration taken from the Federal Government and relegated to those of the individual states.

There is only one hitch—the Federal Government will still have to supply the money. What, then, will be accomplished, and how will this set-up differ from that of the now defunct SERA?

FASHION FLASHES

By FEM

Being among the interested spectators at the Easter Parade, we were secretly pleased to find that many of the things we've discussed in former columns were very much in evidence.

Most popular, of course, were the tailored suits, with gay, colorful prints next in line. Some suit-wearers went feminine with fluffy blouses of chiffon and organdy, while others were smartly tailored in crisp linens and piques.

Tops among the Easter bonnets were the shiny straws, which were tastefully trimmed with gay clusters of bright flowers. Many women carried the flower motif even further, and had matching nosegays at the necks of their dresses or blouses or on the lapels of their suits.

Violet was easily the most outstanding color worn in the Easter Parade. This ranged in hue from pale orchid to deep purple, and some of the smarter prints combined several of these shades.

Colored accessories were abundant, and gloves and bags were especially bright.

In our opinion, the most attractive outfit of all was a two-piece knit suit of cream color, worn with a wide brimmed red straw hat, and with purse, gloves, belt and sandals of bright red suede.

If all the college men who sleep in class were put end to end they would be much more comfortable.—Cornell Widow, via Daily Californian.

LACK OF SPIRIT ASSAILED

Has the practically non-existent school spirit of San Francisco Junior College finally become extinct?

The example set by the 125 persons who attended the Rally last Thursday is to be commended, but how can this meager representation of a student body of nearly two thousand, expect to vote wisely on an issue as vital as the Constitution, when more than nine-tenths of the students are absent?

Although a hundred per cent attendance at any student body affair is generally believed to be impossible, nearly that many have filled the Galileo auditorium on two occasions this semester. Occasions featured by musical programs of local orchestra leaders. Excellent entertainment, yes—but it is hardly possible to have a program studded with celebrities every week.

Any student body calling itself an Associated Students organization, retains that status only in name, if it refuses to cooperate in the common interest of the school it attends. And, as rallies are the only means of getting the entire student body together to listen to either a musical program, a pep talk, a speech, or to discuss and vote on a student body issue which concerns every student, it is a reasonable conclusion that not every rally can be devoted exclusively to entertainment. But it is through these rallies, which are less entertaining and consequently so scatteringly attended, that interesting and entertaining rallies are made possible. We cannot have one type alone, we must have both. Therefore, if we hope to have more interesting and entertaining rallies in the future, it is imperative that every student should arouse at least enough school spirit to attend those assemblies requiring an exercise of the mind as well as those merely requiring your presence as an audience. Only in this way, by 100 per cent cooperation will we be able to keep our waning school spirit from disappearing altogether.—Robert L. Spencer.

◄PAPER TALK►

By A New One

One of the more interesting of suggestions offered to date was that a course in "mooching" cigarettes be added as a regular part of the curriculum. Seriously considered by school heads for some time, the main difficulty confronting them seemed to be in placing the course in its proper department.

Some were of the opinion that it was strictly an art, that those proficient in parting the filthy weed from their owners all had an abundance of natural ability.

This theory was stoutly denounced by one faculty member who termed the requirements for an A-1 "moocher" as "a student of advanced psychology."

"Take myself, for instance," he expostulated. "For years I was the timid type, never asking, continually refusing, and always secretly hoping for a second offer. It was not until I was in my junior year at college that I realized that my psychology courses could cut down my stogie expense." He elaborated on the systems in which psychology was employed, claiming that the most effective was in shocking or startling a person with bad news. Invariably, the victim, taken back and shaken, would drag forth the weeds in an attempt at nonchalance and —"Smoke?"

Still others claimed that the best "moochers" were the public speaking students. A good personality and an interesting "line" make them pleasant company, and no one begrudges "Good old Harry" a smoke.

Cigar-relievers have a particularly easy time pursuing their art (?). Their most popular method is referring to the birth columns of newspapers and contacting the cigar-sprinkling fathers. Then, too, there are good "seasons" for this type, as cigars are always lousier and more plentiful around election time and the brother or sister (cute kids) generally dig up a box of rope-lengths around Christmas time that nick the jeans for about 83c, tax included.

It was at this point that the chairman presiding over the discussion arose beaming at the assembly. "Marvelous, gentlemen, marvelous! I've gained a complete education in the past hour. But I can see no point in divulging this invaluable information to ungrateful students that will not only cut our own throats, but, being trained, will recognize our own advances upon themselves. The meeting is adjourned."

CURTAINI

By Donald Flash

Leaving a monumental work to mark the close of a five-year period at the unique Civic Repertory Theatre, the Wayfarers, a talented theater group, gave a brilliant presentation of Henrik Ibsen's Hedda Gabler. Vividly portraying the unusual characters and doing full justice to the tense drama, the Wayfarers, one feels, have succeeded in producing a work of art.

The play, in its attempt to present a clear picture of Norwegian aristocracy, shows us the strong, impulsive, cruel, yet amazing personality of Hedda Gabler, who desires more than anything else to mould and shape human destiny. Finding nothing more than boredom in her married life, she eagerly sets about to inflict injury upon two persons who are in love, one of whom formerly was in love with her, and the other an old school chum. The supreme moment of the play comes when the man, encouraged by her to make beautiful the act of committing suicide, does so by shooting himself in the intestines, instead of in the temple, thus signifying not the supreme gesture that Hedda so respected, but only utter despair.

As Hedda Gabler, Dale Frederick is convincing, handling the role with finesse. Jack Thomas, director of the production, portraying Judge Brack, who is interested in Hedda Gabler, gives as usual a fine, smooth performance. In the role of Dr. Tesman, the husband of Hedda, Ray Stansbury projected into his characterization a personality and poise that is certainly pleasing. Likewise, Jerald Elwood excellently portrayed Eilert Lovborg, the unfortunate scholar who can't escape the influence of drink.

Perfect in conception and execution, this production sets the real standard for this dramatic group.

Losing the unusual atmosphere, which the waterfront district has lent to the Wayfarers' plays, the Civic Repertory Theatre is to have a new situation, located at 1749 Clay Street. Here they will open with Jonah in June.

Carrying on their fine work, we may expect even greater results from the Wayfarers in their new building, which will be all their own, and whose greater accommodations, including a larger stage, should aid their efforts. We wish them luck in their new home.

Modest President At Last Grateful For His Column

By Maury Schwarz

For probably the first time I'm really thankful for my column, thankful that I have the chance not only to express my regret over Mimi Colton's leaving, but also to be able to toss a few well-deserved bouquets in her direction.

It is not without the feeling of a great loss that I now write, for none knows better than I to what extent we'll miss her and the fine work she has started.

About the nicest compliment ever paid to any girl is that given to Mimi—"Even the girls liked her."

Our first dance, for which Mimi was largely responsible, was a huge success. And such was every one of her succeeding ventures.

The best that we, or anyone else, can wish you, Mimi, is that you succeed as well in your new position as you have here.

To find a successor to the vice-presidentship equal to Mimi is very difficult. Neal Martin will find that it takes a real man to approach Mimi's record. I personally believe Neal is the one person that can take over Mimi's position and make a success of it.

The Verdi Club, on Potrero Ave. and Mariposa St., will be the scene of tonight's "Raffletto," sponsored by the Men's Club. Boxing, wrestling, and an abundance of other entertainment will be on hand. The evening's highlight will be the cash raffle. The time is 8:30 p.m.—men and women invited. The raffle tickets cost 25 cents.

Our Hi-Soph Formal is definitely set for May 22 at the Mark Hopkins, in the Room of the Dons. Bids are on sale now at $1.50 per couple, and are limited to 150.

They say that some of our laws are passed to protect the men who are unable to protect themselves. Perhaps that is why we have the law against polygamy.—Punch Bowl.

Wants Signs and Sellers to Agree; Art Bothers Some

THE RAM'S HORN

Dear Editor:

You'd be surprised how many people believe in signs. In 260 at Galileo there is a sign which reads "Car Tickets 2:15-3:30 Every School Day." The students who want car tickets are the ones who believe in signs, BUT it seems those selling car tickets DON'T believe in signs, for usually the window is opened at 2:25.

Hoping the attendants will arrive on time or else change the sign.—A Car Ticket Buyer.

Note: Do you always believe everything you read?—Ed.

Dear Editor:

Do you suppose that you could convince the librarians that what the students want is a library NOT an art gallery? There's still the scraping of chairs, but I'm sure they'll put up with that if they didn't have those terrible pictures staring them in the face.—Terribly Distracted.

Note: Maybe the art students would like the idea of having an art gallery, so why not incorporate one in the library? Or maybe you just don't like art, anyway?—Ed.

* * *

Dear Editor:

So far, the plays we've produced have left too much to the imagination—as a matter of fact, the whole thing.

What is sadder than latent dramatic ability, unless it's late production agility?

Plenty of talent flying around; don't let it fly by.

A coach is a coach, and an actor is an actor. Will never the twain meet?

We've heard the cackle, now let's see the egg.—Hopeful Dramatics Spectator.

Note: Lack of some dramatic production by the college has been lamented on other hands, also. It is a generally accepted fact that every good college should display some Thespian activities before the general student body at least once a semester.—Ed.

Dear Editor:

As the end of the semester draws near can't action toward preparing facilities through which students can trade or sell their used books be taken? This would not necessitate the forming of a co-op, but merely a bulletin board on which students could post their offers and arrange meetings with prospects. I believe this would prove beneficial to buyer, seller and trader, as the first two mentioned could split the profit of the then eliminated "middleman" and the trader the whole difference.—Saving Sam.

Note: I have nothing to say.—Ed.

It Comes Out Here

How did everybody like the Easter vacation? It seemed to be over quicker than a junior college love affair.

Speaking of love and that sort of trivialism, more students are anxious for the writer of this column to know about the romance between our Pat Scott and Gene Blumenthal. They say that Gene doesn't even know what time of day it is, now that Pat is perpetually on his mind. But he takes all this razzing good naturedly. Maybe he's got it so bad that he can't even fight back.

Was a certain blond Bob excited to some great extent, when two blonde twins from Hollywood visited him during the Easter vacation. What a vacation it proved to be for Bobby.

So I've been told—Yvonne Jackson works very fast. She came to the Block S.F. dance with one gallant and went home with another.

Helene Maloney's birthday was last week. What a beating she took, and I mean a BEATING. She was practically in tears when "her friends" finished wishing her a happy birthday.

Will Ed Talavera take that picture of his when he was in the fifth grade of grammar school home, or else bury it, as it is proving very embarrassing?

Why is Bob Sisco going to the noonday dances at State College on Tuesday? Who's the attraction?

It wasn't told to me I only heard. Sue Parisi is expecting an engagement ring from a doctor.

Helen Fine and Bob Nelson are in the "mood for love" with each other.

Don't know if there's any truth in the matter, but it is rumored that Ty McHugh is a married man. His "wife's" name is Jackie Montgomery.

While the modern college man is getting a liberal education, his dad is getting an education in liberality. Notre Dame Juggler.

RAMBLINGS

Baseball National Favorite Ram Varsity Conference Lead

By DEMING SMITH

Baseball, long the favorite national pastime of America, is again in full swing. Starting last week the National and American Leagues, largest baseball organizations in the country, have been drawing huge crowds, and arousing the baseball enthusiasm of the entire nation. Grammar schools, high schools and colleges, as well as many commercial firm teams, all have their own teams entered in championships, both major and minor, throughout the country. More men, women and children compete in this game than any other sport. Boys start on the sand lots of their neighbors, all hoping to become future Dizzy Deans and Babe Ruths. In spite of the fact that the great Babe has retired from baseball altogether, he still remains, and will remain for years to come, the diamond hero of American youth.

Although it looked as if college football would become an important contender for first place in the sporting hearts of the people, its glory was dimmed by the more popular hard ball sport. Baseball has spread to many countries, but none has accepted it with as much enthusiasm as Japan. It has rapidly become her greatest sport and stadiums are filled to capacity for every appearance of the home team.

While on the subject we might say a word about the Ram Varsity. The fly-chasers are leading the conference at the time of this writing, having won 4, lost 1, and tied 1. The players have made an excellent record for their first year out, and look forward to bringing home the second major title in the history of San Francisco Junior College.

Just a little pep talk now for an organization which has done something deserving and ought to receive the entire student body's support. It is the Men's Club Raffletto to be presented tonight at the Verdi Club. President Bob Sisco and his corps of workers have done everything possible to provide an interesting and entertaining evening for the ticket holders, and from all indications the program promises to be a tremendous success. If you have not purchased your raffle ticket yet, do it right away and get out there and support something worth while. Remember, the Verdi Club, Mariposa and Potrero, at 8 p.m. We'll see you there!

That's about all for this week. Let's see everyone out for the coming events. Incidentally, we express our sincerest appreciation to the Filipino Club for the fine banner they were kind enough to present to the student body. It was a splendid gesture of the fine spirit they have shown all along, and a splendid example for the rest of the school's somewhat dormant clubs to follow.

RAM BUTTS 16 TIMES ON THE CELLAR DOOR

Off on one of their batting sprees, the Ram baseball team downed the Menlo tossers twice, 16-6, and 5-4.

Menlo, holder of the cellar position in the conference, was no match for the heavy-hitting San Franciscans led by Babe Lucchesi, who garnered five for six.

The second game was not as close as the score would suggest, tho Rams were ever in command and holding much in reserve.

Swimmers Doing Well

Although the San Francisco J.C. swimming team has not had any swimming meets so far this semester, members of the team belonging to the Olympic Club showed that the college really has a team to be reckoned with when they participated in an aquatic struggle under the colors of the Club against the Fullerton jaysee swimmers recently.

Bob Mowat did his share of the work by capturing the 100-yard backstroke event in the nice time of 1:07.8.

TENNIS SQUAD HOLDS TIE WITH SAN MATEO IN OFFICIAL MATCH

By Ed Scott

In their first conference match, the Rams tennis team ran into some stiff competition when it battled to a tie of three all with the San Mateo Bulldogs.

Rod Rogaway, who played No. 1 position for the Rams, almost upset the dope bucket when he forced Neil, who was last year's conference champ, to three sets, finally losing 7-5, 5-7, 5-7.

Milt Durfee of the Rams evened the score in the second match by toppling Selig, No. 2 man of San Mateo and second to Neil in the conference playoff last year. George Novakoff, Ram's No. 3, took Petty in stride without being troubled, 6-0, 6-4. In the final singles match, Bill Kennedy ran into trouble against Ellis, dropping the match in two sets, 2-6, 5-7.

Going into the doubles matches with the score of two all, Durfee, teamed with Kennedy to defeat Neil and Selig of the Bulldogs, 6-3, 6-3. In the final and deciding match, George Novakoff and Bill Cardinal fought a valiant and hard fought battle, only to lose 2-6, 12-10, 4-6. The play-off for these matches was held last Friday, the 17th.

Saturday, April 11, the Rams traveled to Sacramento to play off a scheduled conference match, but the Sacramento squad forfeited—four singles and two doubles. (Anyway, the fellows had a swell trip.)

Melvin Hodes and George Novakoff came through last Thursday to win the S.F.J.C. men's doubles tournament, winning three of the four sets played from Milt Durfee and Bill Kennedy. The set scores were 6-3, 1-6, 7-5, 8-6.

After taking the first set handily, they were completely outplayed in the second set. Going into the third and fourth sets, with both teams playing a seesaw battle, Hodes and Novakoff finally broke through Durfee's and Kennedy's service to take the sets and match.

Hodes and Novakoff had previously beaten Bill Cardinal and Al Liacoln in the semi-finals, while Durfee and Kennedy defeated Rod Rogaway and Jack James.

In the men's singles tournament, James has progressed to the final round, winning his last match on a default from Hodes. James will play the winner of the Durfee and Novakoff match, probably this week.

The faculty tournament is in a similar situation, with Lee Eisan winning the semi-final round from John Gerstung on a default. Eisan will play the winner of the Louis Berman-Paul Mohr match.

Matean Babes Fall In Diamond Game

The San Francisco Junior College tossers traveled to San Mateo last Thursday to engage the San Mateo High School team in a practice tilt. The result was entirely satisfactory to the Rams, for they came out on the long end of a close 3-2 count.

Bob Dumesnil and Ed McSweeney pitched great ball for Essef, limiting the home team to six scattered hits. Bob didn't do so bad at the plate, either, as he hit a long triple in the third inning. The Rams scored their runs in the second, third and fourth innings.

The San Mateo runs came as the result of a disputed home run with one on in the eighth. The ball was thought to have gone at least three yards foul.

MARIN DUMPS RAM FROM CONFERENCE LEAD BY VICTORY

The San Francisco Junior College baseball team journeyed to Kentfield last Saturday as conference leaders, but they were brought down a few pegs and returned a third place club. The Rams lost the important series to the Marin Junior College nine by the scores of 5 to 2 and 10 to 7.

In the opening game the Mariners concentrated their attack in the fourth inning when they scored three runs. Bob Creighton, Kentfield hurler, held the Red and White to five hits in eight innings, loosening up in the ninth frame to allow two runs on two safeties by Eddie McSweeney and Larry Wilgus. Besides getting two hits, Wilgus pitched good ball, but the Rams' bats were painfully silent and Gus suffered his first conference defeat.

San Francisco was a different ball club at the start of the nightcap, scoring four runs, but Marin kept on the heels of the Rams by pushing across three tallies in their half of the first inning. The West Bay squad opened the second with two base hits, but the attack went up in smoke as the following batters went out one, two, three. The Mariners evened matters with an unearned tally, and continued to score at least one run in the following innings. Although touched for 10 hits in the five innings he worked, Joaquin Martinez allowed but four earned runs. Costly errors intermingled with a timely hit aided Marin in continuing its winning ways. Tony Scafani, Ram second baseman; and Bob Creighton, Marin pitcher-infielder, collected three hits each to lead their respective teams.

Intraschool Golf Tournament Commences Friday at Harding

Headed by an intraschool golf tournament, the long-awaited interclass program swings into action on Friday, April 24, at Harding Golf Course. Anyone with the slightest amount of divot digging ability will be welcomed to play in the tournament, according to Coach Dutch Conlan.

The only requirement to compete in the play will be the conforming of players to the Junior Conference ruling. This ruling is made necessary, in as much as the winners and runners-up will be placed on the school team, which is to be host to the junior college teams in the Conference Championships at Stanford in May.

The competition will be medal play over 36 holes, and the winner and runner-up will probably be awarded medals, Conlan said.

Bob Dumesnil, lanky baseballer, looms as the logical favorite, with Bill Moll, powerful driver, as a possible surprise package. All candidates are requested to sign up at the gym office with Conlan.

Coach Jack Gaddy also wishes to announce that there will be intraperiod boxing for pugilistically minded men.

In addition, there will be intraperiod teams in the following sports: indoor baseball, touch football, and basketball. These sports will be organized within the next two weeks, and will fill in the entire last six weeks of school. All gym students will be eligible to participate. Russ Sweet, track coach, claims that the interclass tracksters' events will be held after the closing of the track conference on May 2.

THE BAT BAG

By Oscar Bauer

Coaches LEE EISAN and JACK GADDY and "DUTCH" CONLAN, basketball mentor, vacationed in Los Angeles during the Easter holidays. . . . DICK "SHERLOCK" HOLMES did a fine job of holding down the short patch during BOB FEX'S absence. A good hitter and an acceptable fielder, HOLMES can be counted upon for infield or outfield duty whenever the occasion may arise. . . . ED McSWEENEY is again batting from the right side of the plate. Mac swung southpaw style for several games, endeavoring to break his slump. On returning to his natural stance, Mac celebrated with his first hit at the expense of Steers, Menlo hurler. Ed continued to mace the horsehide by garnering four safeties in the Marin series. . . . JOAQUIN MARTINEZ is often called Jo, Jose, or Mart by his teammates, much to the southpaw's dislike. Jo will never fail to remind you that his name is JOAQUIN and not by any of the abbreviations. . . . The Rams will have to win their remaining eight games with San Mateo, Modesto, and Menlo if they want their name on the conference pennant. . . . To an impartial observer, it would appear that the team has only itself to blame for the Marin double defeat. They got off unfortunately on the wrong foot by being overconfident. Further, it would seem that matters became worse when dissension hit the ranks, and the payoff came in the nature of several players thinking more of their individual records than of the team. San Mateo is our next opponent, and is said to be the strongest balanced club in the conference. There is no reason why Lee Eisan's squad can not buckle down to business—that of defeating San Mateo next Saturday, and waiting until the end of the season before worrying about making the All-Conference team.

Ireland, New Zealand, and Hawaii are the three snakeless isles of the world.

Northerners Lose To S.F. Cindermen

San Francisco's track team romped over Santa Rosa under a blistering sun, 77-44. The Rams copped 11 first places and tied for another.

Warren, Bertrum, Southard and Jublonsky scored double wins. Bertrum and Warren worked overtime, each running a lap of the relay.

Compas' leg showed improvement and he came through with a second and third in the sprints. Warren ran a beautiful race in the 220, whipping Miulnski, Santa Rosan ace, at the tape.

Southard ran Gambozi, Rosan ace, into the ground in both hurdle events, winning the 220 sticks with ease.

Ram Diamondmen Butt Bulldogs

By Louis Bertolucci

The first local appearance of the San Mateo Junior College baseball team is scheduled for this coming Saturday. And with its appearance, San Franciscans will witness the nine that is tied for the league lead with Modesto.

In their first league encounter several weeks ago on the peninsula diamond, the two teams split a double header, San Francisco winning the nine-inning game, 9-8, and losing the seven-frame affair, 8-5.

The Bulldogs have a good record. They have won six of their eight contests, losing only two, one to Essef and one to Marin. On the other hand, the Rams have won four of their eight starts, losing three and tying one.

Coach "Tag" Taggert will bring a great little pitcher with him, who is expected to give the Rams some trouble. His name is Jack Taylor and he is rated one of the better twirlers in the circuit. Taylor is the boy that beat the Red and White in their second game, setting the locals down with seven hits.

Ferris, the ranking second baseman, and Sloper, the new catcher, will carry the batting attack of the peninsula nine. Both boys led their team in the first San Francisco series.

To match the pitching staff of San Mateo, the Rams have Larry Wilgus and Joaquin Martinez. Both have plenty on the ball and will give the opposing batters no end of trouble. Larry will pitch the first game, as usual, and Martinez the second.

Big Ed McSweeney seems to have come out of his batting slump. Ed connected for several long blows in the Marin games and he should show up well in the coming series. Several of the other players have gone off in their hitting, so Ed's return to form at this time is lucky.

If the San Franciscans expect to win they will have to hit better than they did last week against Marin, when they batted only 284. Their fielding was away below their usual standard, with 13 errors in two games.

The diamond to be used has not, as yet, been selected. Funston was to have been used but it will be occupied on Saturday. However, it may still be secured; but if it isn't, one of the many diamonds at Father Crowley Playground may be used.

The probable starting line-up:

S.F.J.C.	POSITION	SAN MATEO
Scafani	Second base	Ferris
B. McGuire	Right field	Quin
Guisti	Third base	Brandenburg
Anido	Catcher	Sloper
Lucchesi	Left field	Mobley
Fex	Shortstop	Little
G. McGuire	First base	Calvelli
McSweeney	Center field	Rozzi
Wilgus	Pitcher	Goldstein

STONE LEADS STATE TO VICTORY IN TRACKMEET

By Bud McSweeney

State Teacher's slapped a 72-50 defeat on J.C. in the first annual track meet with the aid of Runar Stone, the Gators' Olympic decathlon hope, who scored 25 points single-handed.

The outstanding man of the meet, however, was our own "Whizzer" Warren, who blazed home in the 440-yard dash in 50.2, so far in front of the field that he stood by to watch the place men cross the finish line. Then, to keep warm, he romped off with the 220-yard dash in the good time of 22.3. To top off his morning workout, he cut down a 20-yard lead on his anchor lap of the relay to a mere foot and was barely nosed out. Timers stated that he ran his lap in the good time of 49.4.

Bertran scored double wins in his events, defeating Kuder in a home-stretch battle in 4:39.2, to take the mile, and outran Cota and Gibean of State to take the 880 in 2:08.3.

Dan Southard upset Runar Stone in the 120-yard high sticks in a driving finish in 15.5. This second win was in the 220-yard lows, defeating Hopkins four yards in 24.8. This is Southard's best time this season.

"Jumbo" Jublonsky scored the other first place for the Rams in the shot put, besting Jones and Ebert of State.

George Dunne, Ram broadjumper, caused quite a furor when he entered the century and raced to what we think was a dead heat with State's Murphy. Officials gave the first place to Murphy, though, in their only raw decision of the day.

Although the meet was not won, most of the cinder-crunchers showed vast improvement, especially Compas and Gibean, who are returning to the form expected of them. A new broadjumper was uncovered in chunky Johnny Ryan, football man, who gleaned a third in his first attempt at this event.

The relay was lost by poor stick work, and State scored an upset in the discus with a clean sweep.

The meet was dedicated to Stone, as it was his last appearance for State at home, and though his day's work was brilliant (he scored four firsts), none of his marks was exceptionally good for him.

Go Against Best In Runfest on Saturday

Saturday the Rams tangle with San Mateo, conceded to be the strongest track contingent in the jaysee conference. Again our hopes lie with the forty point four. The hurdles event will be the feature attraction of the whole meet. The heavily favored Kirkpatrick, co-holder of the unofficial world's record in this event, will be hard pressed by teammate Hewitt and our own Dan Southard.

San Francisco points should be garnered in the 220, 440, 880 and mile. Dunne and Jublonsky should account for some points. The Rams should knife through for at least 15 points.

TUBERCULOSIS PREVENTION

Tuberculosis has its beginning in childhood and is often present many years before any definite signs are shown.

If tuberculosis is recognized early and before it has gained a firm foothold, much can be done to cure it and prevent its further development.

The Tuberculin Test, a simple skin test similar to the Schick Test for diphtheria, detects those children who need special protection from tuberculosis.

If you wish your child to have the benefit of this test which will help you safeguard his health and future, kindly sign the form below and return to the school nurse.

THE WOMEN'S SPORT PARADE

By ARDELL WHITE

At the last W.A.A. council meeting each manager was required to report her club's activities. Most of the clubs proved to be actively enthusiastic, and almost all of them are planning tournaments, hikes, riding parties, and such, to be held in the near future.

The Outing Club, headed by June Woo, is planning a Marin County hike. An over-night hike, a swimming party and other affairs will be held soon. See June Woo for details.

The W.A.A. baseball club will meet today for a short business meeting at 5:20 o'clock in the women's gymnasium. A change in time has been made, and baseball practice will in the future be held on Mondays and Wednesdays at 2:30 and on Tuesdays and Thursdays at 3:30 instead of the old 5:30 hour! Sign up now!

Hermine King, dancing manager, suggested that her group put on a performance at the next suitable student affair. The suggestion was accepted, so don't be surprised to see a lot of embryo Martha Grahams and Eleanor Powells at the next shindig you attend. Scared?

Caroline Origlnos, tennis mentor, said that her group has played off the singles on its ladder tournament and, teaming with the golfers, will soon hold a play-day with San Mateo J.C.

For the purpose of planning the San Mateo Play Day and a mixed doubles tournament, the W.A.A. Tennis Club will meet on Thursday evening, April 23, between 7 and 8 o'clock at the home of Bertha Keller, 2140 Hyde Street. The meeting will be both business and social. Miss Keller urges all those who expect to attend to notify her by Thursday noon.

Junerose Bellew, basketball manager, and Ellen Cumming, team captain, reported that their group will practice and play competitive games on alternate Fridays. This Friday is game day, so if you like basketball, don't fail to be in Gym A at 4:30 o'clock in the afternoon. The game is always exciting.

DON'T FORGET THE BIG SONG CONTEST! Hand in your entry, which should fit the rhythm of some tune, as soon as possible to Birnelyn Seymour, contest chairman. The contest ends May 7, and a $2.50 money order will go to the winner.

As a result of improvement shown by the tennis students during the last weeks, Bertha Keller and Thomas Wilson, physical education instructors of the college, are planning a mixed doubles tournament scheduled for next month.

The tournament is open to all women students, W.A.A. or otherwise, and those interested should sign up with their partners by April 28 at Powell Street, Galileo, or in their physical education classes, Miss Keller said.

Matches, Miss Keller announced, can be played off in the class period or outside. Five courts are available for the practice of the college students at the Palace of Fine Arts on Saturday mornings.

Warning Issued In Women's Net Match

Women tennis players of the college are receiving beneficial practice from the singles and doubles ladder tournaments now in progress, according to Bertha Keller, tennis instructor.

In the W.A.A. singles ladder, Diane Bryson is now holding first place. Dorothy Fitzsimmons, on the same ladder, climbed a few more rungs by defeating Nabuko Yamada last week.

In the W.A.A. doubles ladder, Catherine Pearce and Gloria Stockhausen won first place over Dorothy Fitzsimmons and Annabelle Tyler. Caroline Orginas, tennis manager, has announced that the several W.A.A. girls who have not played matches will be removed from the tournament soon unless they play off the scheduled games.

Esthetic Judgment Ponderer's Paper

John Rushdoony, philosophy student, will read an original paper at the next meeting of the Philosophy Club on April 29, at the home of Beatrice Crist, 3435 Clay Street. This paper, entitled The Criteria of Esthetic Judgment, will consider the nature of beauty and standards in terms of which to evaluate works of art.

Club Plans Activities

At the next daytime meeting of the Faculty Club, the election of officers and the dinner dance to be given by this group will probably monopolize the discussion, said F. Grant Marsh, president of the group.

Other members include: Joseph Amori, Miss Alice Cooper, Harold Leuenberger, Ward Nichols, Miss Edith Pence, and John Gifford.

PARKER CHAIRMAN AT JUNIOR COLLEGE CONFERENCE MEET

Marking the first time San Francisco Junior College has been represented at the annual spring conference of the Northern California Association of Junior Colleges, an invitation was extended to all members of the faculty to attend, according to Dr. Robert J. Parker, instructor of social sciences here, and chairman of the social science department of the conference.

The meeting was held on Saturday, April 18, at Sacramento Junior College, and lasted from 9:30 o'clock in the morning until 4 in the afternoon.

Parker, appointed to his chairmanship by J. Evan Armstrong, secretary-treasurer of the organization, chose for the discussion topic, Are the Social Sciences Meeting the Needs of Students, Community, State, Nation, and World?

Under this main subject, each social science was discussed individually as a sub-topic. Dr. Joseph Williams of this college spoke on Geography, and William Goss, also a social science instructor here, acted as official time-keeper.

The sub-topics discussed were: Economics, history, political science, psychology, geography, and philosophy. A panel discussion was also held.

The main topic discussed, Parker said, was chosen in the following manner: A list of ten subjects was sent to each junior college belonging to the association, with the request to check the preferred one. The results were then tabulated. The subject checked by the majority was that chosen for discussion.

San Francisco Junior College was represented in the fine arts department by Richard Allman, art instructor.

Several other S.F.J.C. faculty members attended the conference.

Rifle Club Holds Regular Practice

At the regular weekly target practice held Saturday, April 11, Alan Newman, Bradley Schwarz and James Fuller tested the new rifles that were recently purchased for the Rifle Club. The rifles are of the 22-caliber type, fully equipped with slings so that they meet the requirements of the National Rifle Association for its competitions.

Judging from the groupings of shots, the sights on the rifles proved perfect in every detail. Special front sights were arranged under the supervision of William Hancock, range officer of the club.

George Mallick and Robert Kahn, visitors to the club, gave members who wished an opportunity for practice in pistol marksmanship. There were five pistols available for practice in that field of shooting.

Cafeteria Group Inspects New Units

The San Francisco Junior College class of hotel and restaurant men spent the entire Easter week in a survey of high school and grammar school cafeterias, under the supervision of John Gifford and J. Graham Sullivan, instructors. The class made a complete analysis of the plants of all schools in the city, the most outstanding being that of the new George Washington High School.

This survey will play a major part in the equipment, furniture, and floor plan of the new junior college cafeteria and in the remodeling of school cafeterias in action, and in a determination of food costs.

The class is now submitting, from its survey, plans for improvements in the Galileo Building, the enactment of which will insure a better service to the students.

Flossita Badger, instructor of the San Francisco Junior College music department, is to be a solo guest artist at the Music Club, in the Hotel St. Clair at San Jose, on May 5.

Invite W.A.A. to Be Guests at Play Day of Santa Rosa J.C.

An invitation to attend the Santa Rosa Junior College Spring quadrangular Play Day scheduled for May 9 was received by the Women's Athletic Association of this college.

Any who desire to participate should sign up with Arleen Fraziers, W.A.A. president, or any of the women gym teachers as soon as possible, for the names must go in by May 1. The number of participants is limited to 20, due to lack of facilities.

Tennis, basketball, volleyball, baseball, archery, hockey, and badminton are the sports suggested. The day is divided into the following schedule:

9:00- 9:30—Registration.
9:30-10:15—1st playing period.
10:15-11:30—2nd playing period.
11:30-12:15—3rd playing period.
12:45—Luncheon and program.
2:00—Free hour—swimming.

40 Women Sip Tea With Householders

Approximately 40 women students attended the Household Arts Association sports tea held at Sigmund Stern Grove Friday, April 3, and everyone had a grand time, according to Louise Corica, president of the organization.

Donations for the tea were from Kraft, S. & W., Borden's Dairy Delivery, Langendorf, Orange County Fruit Distributing Co., Libby, McNeill & Libby, Emporium, City of Paris, and O'Connor Moffatt. Cakes were donated by women members of the club.

An amateur contest was held, and Vera Griffin won, singing "I Got a Feeling You're Fooling."

Cafeteria Announces Ad Contest Winners

The winners in advertising contest for Galileo Cafeteria, conducted by the class in hotel and restaurant management, were announced last week as follows: First prize of $5 meal ticket, Pamela Spalding; 3rd prize of $1 meal ticket, Diane Bryson.

No name appeared on the ad winning second prize, so the winner cannot be announced. All winners should see Mary Smiley in the faculty dining room in regard to their meal tickets.

Joel Wong Woo was announced as the winner of the contest for designing a menu cover for use in the cafeteria. The prize consists of a $5 meal ticket.

FOREIGN LANGUAGE EXAMINATIONS TOLD

The College of Commerce, University of California, announces the examinations in foreign languages, subject B, will be given on Saturday, April 25, from 2 to 4 p.m., as follows:

French: 211 Wheeler Hall, University of California campus.
German: 211 Wheeler Hall.
Italian: 443 Wheeler Hall.
Latin: 211 Wheeler Hall.
Spanish: 212 Wheeler Hall.

Students who intend to transfer to the College of Commerce of the University are welcome to take this examination at those hours, according to Mary Jane Learnard, assistant registrar here.

"All students wishing to enter the College of Commerce for upper division work, must pass this test unless they have 12 units in one foreign language," Miss Learnard advised.

The parrot-fish, so called because of jaws shaped like a parrot's beak, has the unique distinction of chewing a cud, much like the cow.

Wedding Bells To Ring—Luckmann, Goss in June, July

Wedding bells will soon ring for two members of the college faculty. Lloyd Luckmann will marry Catherine Vasserot Conlin, daughter of one of San Francisco's pioneer families. The couple will honeymoon in Europe, returning in the Fall so that Luckmann will be able to resume his position as member of the college faculty.

The betrothal was announced by the bride's mother, Mrs. Arthur Conlin, last Saturday. Miss Conlin is a graduate of the Academy of the Sacred Heart and of the San Francisco College for Women. Luckmann is a graduate of the University of San Francisco and of Stanford.

Climaxing a two-year courtship, William Goss will marry Virginia Sebastian of Culver City, on July 11. The ceremony will take place at Glendale, Calif.

The bride-to-be taught at Dinuba High School and both are graduates of the University of California at Los Angeles.

Women's Chorus At San Jose Festival Held Last Monday

A combined women's chorus of seven junior colleges led by Flossita Badger, conductor, and instructor of San Francisco Junior College, featured the Musical Festival at San Jose Monday.

Miss Badger was also director of the A Cappella Choir in their rendition of "Cherubini's Song," and "All in the April Evening," by Dickenson, and the harmonizing of the Men's Glee Club in "Olaf Trygvason," and a modern arrangement of an old Welsh song, "All Through the Night."

Men Tell Work Done By Those In Cafeteria

By Kenneth Bixler

"The San Francisco Junior College has a cafeteria of which the students should be very proud. Its management and mode of operation are of great value to the school, besides being unique in the United States," was the statement of Coordinator John Gifford, faculty advisor to the student cafeteria staff, as he surveyed the statistics and reports for the first month of operation. He, as well as instructor J. Graham Sullivan, expressed belief that it will not be long before the sales are increased substantially.

Hart Smith, student maitre d' hôtel, expressed his views by saying:

"When the hotel course of the junior college took over the cafeteria on March 18, they were confronted by many difficult problems.

"The staff of students who served as cashiers and bus boys was not large enough, nor was there time to do all the work allotted.

"In general, our greatest change was to insure faster service and a greater variety on the daily menu.

"In addition to this," said Smith, "there was the problem of the disposal of dirt left by the student customers.

"When the hotel course took over the cafeteria, all of these faults were taken into consideration and the majority remedied.

"In the teachers' cafeteria, a la carte service was inaugurated. Service by uniformed waiters and choice by menu of excellently prepared food was a change greatly appreciated by the faculty.

"The staff of students was increased, resulting in greater cleanliness. A food control system was inaugurated in the students' cafeteria with checkers and cashiers in charge of the system. A perpetual food inventory is kept by inventorying all stock on hand each day before and after operation. As a result, we have increased the efficiency, service, and quality of our cafeteria, and have brought it up to a standard paralleling any establishment of its kind."

A fountain service is the latest addition to the establishment, and milkshakes are now a part of the daily menu.

Deadline Set for Dropping

According to an official report from the office of the registrar, May 8 is the deadline for dropping a course.

After this date it will be impossible for any student to drop any course. Cinch notices will come out during the week of May 1-8, and students receiving cinches must drop the course before May 8, or go to work and receive a better grade, or fail the course.

Again The Cry Comes! Finish Job of Registration Pictures

None of the people all the time, all the people none of the time, or —well, just what is the matter?

This registration picture business is getting to be a nuisance. Something like 61 students who are hangovers from last semester still have to be photographed, not the least among whom is Maury Schwarz, Associated Students president.

In addition, there are some 63 students new this semester who should take the important trip up to room 401, Galileo, some time between 2:30 and 3:30 p.m. today and tomorrow.

Oh, yes, failure to have a picture taken is a very serious matter, and all sorts of dire threats have been made against the offenders. Despite such intimidations, the 60 from last semester have managed so far to elude the clutching fingers of the registrar's office. Even these, however, are threatened some more, indeed, and it is recommended that they get off the well-known . . . . !

The complete list of shirkers is as follows:

DEBATERS MEET MENLO TEAM AT GALILEO THURS.

Student Body Is Invited To Forensic Contest Tomorrow

Inaugurating forensic activities of the San Francisco Junior College, Eugene Blumenthal and Wallace Fowler will debate speakers from Menlo Junior College at an assembly tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock in the Galileo High School Auditorium.

The debate topic, according to Lloyd Luckmann, forensics coach, will be, Resolved: That the Government Should Own All Public Utilities. Blumenthal and Wallace will uphold the affirmative side.

Because of a high school senior day program that will last until 2 o'clock p. m., Luckmann asks college students please not to enter the auditorium before the high school students have left, nor to loiter around the doors in such a way as to interfere with the entrance or exit of them.

Isabel Sharrat will act as chairman of the assembly.

"This contest," said Luckmann, "will be in place of the California Coast Debate League's second annual tournament scheduled to be held May 1 and 2 at Stanford University, and which has been cancelled.

"This is our first debate before our own student body, and we hope that we can boast a large attendance."

Rifle Club Smacks Target at Armory Shooting Practice

Blasting the bull's-eye with consistent accuracy, the Junior College Pistol and Rifle Club convened in firing practice last Saturday at 3 p.m. in the National Guard Armory at Fourteenth and Mission Streets.

Firing in the armory, recently contributed to the club's use by the 250th Coast Artillery, members used their new .22 caliber rifles in a busy session that lasted from 3 to 5 o'clock, under the supervision of William Hancock, range officer. Among those present to sight rifles were Chris Harnett, James Ford, Allen Newman, John Stewart, and Hancock.

In response to queries concerning those non-members interested in shooting, Allen Newman, president, said.

"All students with a 'yen' to shoot are heartily invited to attend our practices on Saturdays at 3 o'clock. There are plenty of rifles and ammunition for quite a number of potential marksmen."

Skull and Blademen Initiate Members

Formal initiation of new members of the Skull and Blade Society has been set for Saturday evening, May 9, at the Park-Presidio Y.M.C.A., according to Ray Brunn, president of the organization.

The informal part of the ritual will be held on Friday, May 8, in order to prepare the members for the following evening.

Those to be admitted to the organization are Ed Fredlani, Henry Kearney, Bob Sisco, Joe Kissel and Maury Schwarz. All of these men are prominent in student affairs.

Fears For Country—

Pitman Tells Broadcast Evils Of Radio When Unscrupulously Controlled By Selfish Interests

"I fear for the future of this country because the people don't realize the powerful influence of the radio on the opinions of the majority of people; once the radio is in the hands of selfish interests, the opinion of the large mass of people will be unconsciously dictated by the power behind the radio voice," declared Paul M. Pitman, assistant to the president, in his informal address concerning radio before the social psychology 51 class recently. Pitman speaks from his knowledge of the radio gained from his experience as "Big Brother" on the children's hour, his part in the Pacific Coast School of the Air, his position as educational director of KPO, and many other programs in which he has taken part.

"The fact that radio can be easily controlled by selfish money interests does not contribute to the idea of free thinking in the future of the country," he continued.

RULE BY PROPAGANDA

"Radio can rule the minds of the majority by propaganda more effectively than anything else because all undesirable elements concerning the question at hand can be easily suppressed.

"Another explanation for this fact is that the radio audience can't talk back or ask questions; it has to be more or less satisfied with what it hears. The setting of the radio stage, and almost the effect itself, can be entirely controlled by the expert manipulator behind the radio scene.

CREDULITY SCORED

"Another factor in support of this belief is the credulity with which the average mind tends to accept what is heard over the radio, and the quickness with which its emotions respond," Pitman continued.

"Money power can buy up the limited amount of radio stations," he concluded, "and thereby gain supreme control of 'the air.' Once all the existing stations are controlled, the case is hopeless, for, unlike the other organs of propaganda, the newspapers for instance, it takes a great deal of money to build the stations; and also, permission must be granted by the Federal Communications Commission."

Women Are Cruel, Dangerous; That's What's Been Said

Have you ever thought of what women are made of?

Well, according to a definition of woman found in the San Bernardino Union Junior College paper, "God took the lightness of the leaf and the glance of the fawn, the gaiety of the sun's rays and the tears of the mist, the inconstancy of the wind and the timidity of the hare, the vanity of the peacock and the softness of the swallow's down. He added the harshness of the diamond, the sweet flavor of honey, the cruelty of the tiger, the warmth of fire, the chill of snow, the chatter of the jay, and the cooing of the turtle dove. He melted all this and formed a woman. Then He made a present of her to man." Sounds like the recipe for a new kind of dynamite that ought to be labeled, "Handle with Care."

Statistician Comes To Cafeteria Class

For the purpose of teaching the general facts of statistical methods and presentation for hotel and restaurant operation, Arthur Hellett, statistician now employed by a local brokerage firm, will soon be at work in the Galileo Cafeteria, according to word received late last week.

Kellett now makes charts for a local newspaper, showing the daily business statistics of San Francisco.

JACK MARTIN WILL HEAD CEREMONIES AT KGGC 'HAM' HOUR

Acting as this week's master of ceremonies, Jack Martin will present his Student Hour at KGGC tonight from 10 to 11 o'clock.

This program is unusual, because instead of having one master of ceremonies, there are eleven, according to Martin. Each high school is represented by one of the M.C.'s, and the junior college with three, namely Jack Carter, Charles Brickley and Jack Martin.

Talent from college consists of Annabelle Tyler, a recent winner from Mort Werner's student amateur hour at station KROW, and Corrine Lynwood, recently a winner of a $50 watch on Eddie La Montagne's opportunity parade at KPO.

"The feature of the program will be the 'Continentals,' that sensational swing band under the direction of Dorothy Coletti, former Galileo High School student," Martin says.

Mixed Doubles To Feature Matches In Tennis Contest

We've had leap year dances, dates, parties, and such, but the college tennis coaches have crowded such conventional affairs off the map by thinking up a leap year mixed doubles tournament.

The idea is for you women who are interested in tennis to ask your best boy friend, or any boy friend who plays a good game, to team up with you, thus forming a team which will compete for first place on the ladder. A trophy will go to the winning couple, and you may sign up at the Powell Street office any day this week. The tournament is open to all college students.

Coaches Bertha Keller and Tom Wilson plan to make the tournament an annual or semi-annual affair, the men or women doing the inviting alternately.

Men or Mice? Try Playing Badminton

Ladies and gentlemen of the faculty! Are you men or mice? Or are you? Anyway, do you like to play badminton or would you like to learn? If so, see your colleague, Richard Alman of the art department. He is organizing a mixed faculty badminton club, equipment and instruction to be furnished free of charge. Don't crowd, the line forms to the right!

Gifford Prepares New Class Bulletin

Expected to be ready May 1, a bulletin of information regarding the curriculum related to the course in hotel and restaurant management is being compiled by John Gifford, coordinator.

This bulletin will be sent to high schools and colleges on the Pacific Coast, Gifford said, so that students interested will be correctly informed.

WELCOME, JAN

The latest faculty member to have an addition to his family, Milton J. Polissar, announced the arrival of an eight-pound four-ounce son April 14.

The little fellow has been named Jan.

Date Bureau Opens Drive—

"Get acquainted" is the slogan of the date committee headed by Marie McKnight, high freshman co-ed. Miss McKnight said that already the members number over 100, and of these, the men enrolled outnumber the women.

"Our purpose is to introduce the members of the college to one another," said Miss McKnight. "If interested in meeting a certain student, you sign up with one of the committee, or with me. We then arrange a meeting and as a couple you can attend all school affairs. Of course," she said, "all of this is strictly confidential."

The "Date Bureau" believes this system will bring about a better school spirit. They are ready now to pair students for the Soph Formal.

The committee members are: Verna Cames, Pete Jambruno, Jerry Roberts, Jane Neal, Ed Scott, Elizabeth Yates and Don Young.

"Many men think that applying to a date bureau lessens their prestige, and reflects upon their lack of manly attraction," Miss McKnight added. "This is really not so; taking advantage of this service only shows a sense of cooperation and school spirit."

Spanish Essay Contest Closes Mon., May 11

Time and Space, humorous Spanish essay to be translated into English in a contest open to all Spanish students, is really funny, according to Thomas Gabbert, sponsor of the competition.

"The Spanish writers have a marvelous sense of humor, and several eminent literary authorities have even gone so far as to group the two schools, Spanish and Anglo-Saxon, close together in comparison."

PUNS DIFFICULT

When questioned as to whether the student translation would be anything like the author's line of thought, the instructor said:

"It should. Other languages have various interpretations, but this should be relatively close to the Spanish version. About the most difficult thing to translate will be the puns.

"CASE OF THIN HAIRS"

"Two translations of equal excellence? That's hard to say—but there is a possibility that when the final judging of the transcripts takes place, it will be a case of 'thin hairs'."

Entrants are again reminded that the closing date of the contest is set at Monday, May 11, leaving twenty-six days for completion. Copies may be secured at the Galileo office of the junior college. Five dollars hangs in the balance—get yours early!!

CHOW MIEN IS HERE; SERVED CHINA-WAY

You won't have to go to Chinatown to get real oriental food this week. You can get it right here in the Galileo Cafeteria.

Chow mien, prepared as it should be prepared, will be the feature of this week's culinary offerings, according to Graham Sullivan, instructor in food preparation.

This novel set-up is being made possible through arrangements made with a Chinese friend of Sullivan.

Fifteen Announce Intention To Take C.M.T.C. Training

Applications for the summer Citizen's Military Training Camp, to be held at Monterey, Calif., from July 5 to August 5, have been coming in quite satisfactorily, according to James S. Hughes of the junior college faculty.

"Entrants to the number of fifteen have expressed a desire to attend and more are excepted before the final date," Hughes said in a minute interview.

As already stated in the March 4 edition of The Guardsman, the camp will convene at Monterey for a full month's training in military drill and healthy, competitive sports—all expenses paid. Those interested in the venture are urged to see Hughes, first lieutenant in the Infantry Reserves, at their earliest possible convenience.

New Chem Lab Has Modern Facilities

Have you seen the new chemical laboratory in Galileo? Modernistically painted in soft tan and cream, it has acid-proof tops to the demonstration desks, and a central trough for all waste material instead of the usual white enamel sink. Hoods are in the back of the room.

Walter Forbes, chemistry instructor, says it's the best equipped laboratory in the school, and certainly the best looking.

It is Room 406—why not take a look at it?

Boys that set up pins in a bowling alley often smell smoke after a collision of the bowling ball with the pins. This smell is caused by the great friction that is created between the pins when they are struck.

CARDINALS ARE CHOSEN TO PLAY AT SOPH FORMAL

Neal Martin, New Head Of Social Committee, Starts Plans

Craig's Cardinals have been selected as the orchestra to play at the Sophomore Formal. Dance scheduled for May 22, Neal Martin, new vice-president of the Associated Students, revealed yesterday.

The formal will be held in the Room of the Dons in the Hotel Mark Hopkins, according to plans, with bids priced at $1.50 per couple.

RALLY MAY 7

Craig's Cardinals will give an exhibition of their abilities at a rally to be held before the associated student body May 7, Martin has announced.

It has been rumored that the sale of bids will be limited to 150, although Martin could not be reached for verification. Martin has stressed, however, the importance of securing bids early.

ELECTED BY COMMITTEE

Those selling bids are Joe Kissel, Bill Kennedy, Fleming Pope, Martin, Marie McKnight, Eleanor Schaub, George Hagens, Eddie Schwartz, Donna McPherson, Bob Sisco, Don Mills and Russell Turver.

Martin took immediate charge of plans for the Sophomore Formal two weeks ago, when he was elected vice-president by the Executive Council to fill the vacancy left when Mimi Colton, former vice-president and head of the Social Committee, left college to take outside employment.

Sophomores Meet To Discuss Plans Of Commencement

Meeting this afternoon in Room 212, Galileo, at 1:45 o'clock, the high sophomores of the college will discuss plans for the commencement exercises to be held on the evening of June 12 in the Municipal Opera House.

Dr. Edwin A. Lee, retiring superintendent of schools, will preside over the graduation ceremonies, according to plans revealed late last week, and Dr. Paul Cadman, formerly dean of men at the University of California, will be the main speaker of the evening.

At the present time, 66 students are planning on graduation in June according to Registrar Paul Mohr. A tentative list of the prospective graduates appeared in last week's issue of The Guardsman. Those who believe they should graduate, and whose names were not in the list, should consult his office immediately, Mohr says.

Philosophers Meet For Paper Reading

In another of their meetings for the discussion of philosophical subjects, members of the Philosophy Club and other students interested in attending will hear John Rushdoony read an original paper, The Criteria of Esthetic Judgment, at a conclave of the organization to be held tonight at 8 o'clock at the home of Beatrice Crist, 3435 Clay Street.

"All students interested in art from the philosophical point of view are invited to attend this meeting," David Goldshur, faculty adviser to the Philosophy Club, said.

Students Guests At Kingsland Home

Members of the college class in hotel and restaurant management were guests of Stuart Kingsland at his home in Oakland Saturday and Sunday evenings.

The students' party was held Saturday night, attended by Jean Gahard, Paul Allsman, Lawrence Wong, Charles Doudiel, Victor Robelet, Hart Smith, Helene Wright, Marie McKnight and Kingsland.

At the buffet supper served Sunday evening, John Gifford, botany instructor and coordinator of the management class; Graham Sullivan, instructor in food preparation; Brandon Watson, instructor in hotel engineering, and Mary Smiley, instructor in dining room service, were present.

Public Schools Week Program Broadcast Over KYA Tonight

Marking the third radio broadcast from Galileo High School, the Public Schools Week program presented by the college, in conjunction with Galileo High and Evening School, will be given tonight from 8:45 to 9:15 over KYA.

Through this station, broadcasting equipment is being installed in the Galileo auditorium so that radio audiences may hear the speaker of the evening, the Hon. Bert B. Meek. Meek, executive vice-president of Hearst Corporations, will discuss public school education in his talk entitled, Education as Viewed by a Layman.

HEARSTMAN

Executive vice-president of Hearst Corporations, Bert Meek, above, will speak on the Public Schools Week broadcast from Galileo tonight on the subject of education as viewed by a "layman."

The opening address will be made by Major Joseph P. Nourse, Galileo High School principal, who will present the chairman of the evening, Archibald J. Cloud, president of the college.

Music will be supplied by the college A Cappella Choir, directed by Flossita Badger, music instructor, and the Galileo Evening School orchestra, under direction of Constance Keohan.

TUBERCULOSIS TESTS GIVEN ON MAY 4-7 BY DOCTORS OF COLLEGE

Voluntary tuberculosis tests among the students of the junior college will be given May 4, 5, 6 and 7, according to Hilda Willard, college nurse.

These tests will be given by Dr. Richard Friedlander and Dr. Alice Potter to students who have filled out the blanks that were printed in last week's Guardsman, and who have turned them into the main office. The tests will be held in Room 202 at Galileo between 2:30 and 5 o'clock p.m.

Tests will be given on May 4 and 5, and readings on May 6 and 7. Miss Willard announced that free X-rays will be given by the San Francisco Department of Public Health to those showing positive reactions.

U.C. Chinese Club Team Defeats S.F.

By virtue of a score made in an extra five minutes' period of play, the University of California Chinese Club defeated that of San Francisco Junior College, 33-31, in a basketball game held last Saturday night at the French Court in Chinatown.

Chin and Wong were high scorers for the junior college quintet. Joe Amori, faculty adviser to the Men's Club, refereed the game for the Chinese clubs.

First a Tea, Now It's Fashion Show

Plans regarding a fashion show will be the subject of discussion at the Households Art Association meeting to be held in Room 317 at Galileo at 2 o'clock today.

The location of the show is indefinite as yet, according to Claire Cuneo, household art instructor. Louise Corica, the president of the organization, will preside at the meeting and complete arrangements will be made at that time, Miss Cuneo said.

PETITIONS ARE DUE NO LATER THAN MAY 8

That all students seeking to run for an Associated Students office in the elections for the fall semester's executives should have their petitions in his office not later than May 8, was the announcement issued yesterday by Edwin C. Browne, assistant dean of men.

Qualifications necessary for offices are listed under Article VII of the new constitution, a complete copy of which is printed on Page 4 of this issue of The Guardsman.

Famous Dance Team Visits Mark Hopkins

Opening at the Peacock Court, Friday, April 24, with their own 14-piece dance orchestra, the famous Veloz and Yolanda dance team has attracted capacity crowds of San Francisco and bay area dance lovers for the past five nights, at the Hotel Mark Hopkins, and will, according to observations, continue to do so throughout their two weeks' engagement.

The routine and dance arrangements presented by this team have won for them the acclaim of the most critical audiences from Broadway to Hollywood.

Pre-Legals Meeting In Lunch Session

Admittance of new members will constitute the chief issue to be discussed at a luncheon meeting of the Pre Legal Club to be held next Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock in the faculty dining room of the Galileo Cafeteria, according to Attilio Ferrari, club president.

WOMEN OFFERED WORK

All women students of the college wishing to acquire work in homes of San Francisco families are requested to see Edith Pence, assistant dean of women, as soon as possible in Room 212 at Galileo, during the afternoon. Women taking work now have a good chance to continue during the summer months, their work being in exchange for room or board, or both, according to Miss Pence.

CLASSMEN INSPECT

Meeting at the Berkeley Women's City Club April 18, members of the hotel and restaurant managers class were conducted through a tour of inspection of the building and its power plants by Brandon Watson, manager of the club and instructor to the class in hotel engineering.

Special Edition Planned—

"A complete eight-page pictorial, containing pictures of graduates, organizations, administration, and social activities of the college will be the feature of the final issue of this term's Guardsman, June 3." So said Bill Rawson, editor of the paper, today.

Beginning this week, all high sophomores can have their pictures taken in Room 401 at Galileo.

In stating his plans for the special edition, Rawson said, "It will be necessary to assess each graduate and organization a small amount to cover the extra expense of the photography, in view of the fact this pictorial will be distributed free of charge.

"In order that this issue can be the first complete record of our college's activities, it will be imperative to have the full cooperation of all students and organizations in order to get all pictures taken by May 15. Heads of all groups will be notified as to the time and place."

In order that the last edition of this term's Guardsman can be issued June 3, it will be necessary to eliminate the next issue of the paper, May 6.

THE OPEN FORUM—GOOD STUFF

Marking the possible inauguration of a series of forum gatherings, the panel discussion of peace held last week met with a fair degree of student approval.

Lack of time, regrettably, prevented a full discussion of questions raised from the floor. In the future, however, it is possible that discussions can be conducted in which at least one-half of the time would be devoted to general questions and attempted answers.

Last week's panel represented, for the most part, the commendable work of Dr. Franklin Sewell. Unfortunately, some of those who participated were not overly interested in the subject, nor had they devoted what might be termed intensive research and thought to it.

There is, no doubt, a number of students who spend a comparatively large amount of thought on subjects pertaining to national and international policies.

It would prove interesting to hear the results of diligent investigation and logical thought on some of the individual items mentioned so briefly because of the general scope covered, and the limitation of time, on the last panel—the truth about politicians, religion addicts, financiers, and others who have so often throughout history wrought havoc under the various guises of "the will of God," national honor, economic necessity, and ad infinitum.

WRITE OR SHUT UP

In this college, there are some students who look upon the college publication and its editor with a degree of superior disdain, saying to themselves, "He talks a lot, but doesn't amount to much; anyway, all newspapers are a racket, and newspaper men don't know about what they're talking."

Those students are gently reminded that the columns of this paper are open to the legitimate views of all, whether pro or con, on politics, communism, alleged red activities, democracy, student affairs, or any other matter.

These talkers-but-not-doers, then, may observe that if they do not care to show how the thing should be done in writing, what they say cannot be taken for much worth.

SOME WORTH IN DOCTORS

It is a common—and probably true—assumption that the medical services rendered in public schools are of negligible value, and that physical examinations in them do not amount to a tinker's dam.

A pleasant exception to this, however, is apparently within the grasp of every student in the college. Free examinations—not at all compulsory—to determine whether or not any symptoms of tuberculosis are present in the body are offered.

Not being a medical authority, the paper cannot list a series of reasons why students should avail themselves of this opportunity, other than to say that it appears to be a splendid opportunity to which logic and common sense demand compliance.

THE VALUE OF SPEECHES

Impressively, the speaker clears his throat. Brushing back his hair, and performing the other necessary small ablutions, he launches forth.

"Friends, students, Mr. You, and Mr. Someoneelse, I feel greatly honored to have the privilege and opportunity . . . etc.

"You should feel proud to be this, to have the opportunity for that . . . etc."

Inevitably, a joke is told, a joke that appears funny only because the rest of what is said smacks so reminiscently of graveyards.

There are few laughs, anyway, because by this time the audience has encountered more difficulty in remaining awake than during the third or fourth performance of some current thriller as Shakespeare's "Tempest."

In some typically trite manner, he auspiciously finishes. The audience claps out of courtesy, yet half fearful that the speaker will take the applause as a request for an encore, and will wind himself up again.

Ever since Mr. Adam was elected president of the Eden Nudist Colony, 'way back before when, there have been politicians and speeches; and they will exist until the last candidate has talked himself into or out of Paradise or Purgatory.

Rave on, my friend; we sleep unmoved.

CELEBRATION OF EDUCATION

Today is the first in which San Francisco Junior College will participate in Public Schools Week. The value of the commemoration of this week, as the educators see it, has been mentioned in advance news stories carried in The Guardsman for the last few weeks.

SAILING THROUGH THE NEWS

"If the DAR went back to their knitting, they would accomplish more than by sitting in convention."

Thus did Congressman Marcantonio, Rep., N. Y., reply to the complaint registered by the Daughters of the American Revolution against "socialistic attempts to amend the constitution."

"We will battle any attack on the American form of government, whether by Republican, Democrat, or Hottentot," the Daughters said.

"I am interested in the glorious history of the mothers of the American Revolution," said Marcantonio, "but their progeny have certainly degenerated tremendously intellectually."

Again, the Poor Jews

Persecution again threatens the Jews. A general strike by Arabs in an effort to stop Jewish immigration and the sale of land to Jews in the Holy Land was feared last week.

Through no particular fault of their own, the Jews have, since the execution of Jesus Christ, been the principal factor in no end of trouble. Since their enemies greatly outnumber them, there would at present seem to be only two solutions possible—absolute extinction, or assimilation. Seems like the latter would be the choice to end the tragedy of errors.

But World Is Not Ready

Not yet, though, can such a thing be. Just another one of many similar occurrences, Francis Allison, New Jersey heiress who married an Arabian sheik to prove her theory that interracialism and interreligionism are practical, announced she is going to get a divorce.

Three years were enough, she said. Her husband's people poisoned her, her retainers stoned her, his relatives robbed her, her servants beat her into insensibility, and as the final blow, her turbanned spouse deserted her three times.

Wishing Her Luck

"My career is just beginning, and I'm going to work until I'm at least 100," said May Robson, Hollywood's "grand old lady," who celebrated her 76th birthday by canning strawberry jelly, buying herself a new car, and promising herself a trip to London.

Hats off to such ambition and cheerfulness in old age. I have, however, one of those little intuitions—. Remember this in the course of the next year.

Not New, But Squelched

Light, heat, and power for the Corn Belt from gases created out of waste cornstalks is foreseen by Prof. Ellis Fuller of Iowa State College.

In some regions of the Mid West, there are places where enough corn waste is available within an eight-mile radius to furnish sufficient gas for the use of a city of 80,000 inhabitants, Fuller said.

This is not so new. Several years ago it was discovered that a cheap, satisfactory substitute for gasoline was available from the corn plant. As in the case of so many other economics-changing discoveries, however, the big business trusts thought it inadvisable to sacrifice their wealth for the benefit of the public, and so bought up all patents—and that's that.

We Can Solve That

—Merely because someone found a petrified bone nearby which has been identified as part of a camel's foot, residents of Beaumont, Texas, are discussing possibilities that the humpback once roamed the Texas coastal plains.

Not only is it possible, but also probable—but the roaming probably took place less than an hundred years ago, when the western division of the United States Army was experimenting with the use of camels for desert work, as per Arabia and Africa. Strange, rapid chemical changes sometimes occur under the desert sun, which would account for the rapid petrification.

ANOTHER GOOD MAN GONE

Naturally, the paper has felt his loss to a degree. Readers will miss his weekly feature, Paper Talk, which last week was written by his friend, Howard Capps, and is written this week by still another person.

The high quality of the make-up of the Sports Page was due entirely to Green's ability; as a matter of fact, he did more work in the sports department of The Guardsman than anyone else, although his official capacity was Managing Editor, and not Sports Editor.

'Trivialism' Love Is Not for Mature Mind Out With Column

THE RAM'S HORN

Dear Editor:

I do not think that the column, "It Comes Out Here," is a worthwhile article for a college paper. In the first place, this college has such a large enrollment that half of the significance of the article is lost. Only the persons mentioned are really able to enjoy it, and for that reason I think that it is simply selfishly occupying good space.

Secondly, its author admits that it treats only of that "trivialism" love, so why not discard it, and find a more suitable "trivialism"? It is entirely unappropriate, and unbecoming; and we ought to credit ourselves with more worthwhile interests than it divulges. Just because one fellow has the cash and the car to take some girl home, the entire student body needn't be informed. Besides, who cares, anyway?—Private Life.

Note: Frankly, I heartily agree with you on every point. If enough students express disapproval of this type of column, I assure them that I should be only too delighted to file it in the corner basket.—Ed.

The President Is Blue; Quiet, Don't Disturb

By Maury Schwarz

Most of us already are looking forward to the old swimming hole, dances every night, and just basking in the sun. All this spells a wonderful vacation. We're all looking forward to this—outwardly. Inside, however, we have that uncomfortable feeling creeping around—at least, that's the way I feel.

It may be the "joy-killer" in me, but I cannot get that impression off my mind that with vacation will come the end of a great many happy friendships.

Before the editor puts a deep, black border around this column, however, I should like to give my reason for this little "blueness."

We still have a few weeks in which we can cram enjoyment, and there is no one who can put the "dampers" on these few weeks but yourself.

In the next month we are going to have two good rallies, a men's smoker, a hi-jinks, a noon dance, the Sophomore Formal, and a college night at the Mark Hopkins on the last day of school—June 12.

I urge and plead with you, therefore, to take advantage of these activities before it is too late. If you do, we can close this semester in such a manner that we shall all remember it—free from any regrets—long after the last note of the dance orchestra has sounded.

Speaking of the Soph Formal, remember that only 150 bids will be available, and that they may be purchased in Room 260 any afternoon, or from any member of the Social Committee.

I wish personally to urge that all sophomores make it a point to get their pictures taken for the special edition of The Guardsman that will come out the first week in June. Remembering that all activities have had to operate on a "shoe-string" budget this semester, I know that you seniors will not mind being assessed a few cents to ensure getting your picture in this edition, which will take the place of the customary yearbook.

This and other matters will be discussed at the most important meeting of the commencement class to be held this afternoon at 1:45 o'clock in Room 212. BE THERE!

FASHION FLASHES

By FEM

It is very smart to have your petticoat showing these days, but only when it is made of crisp whispering taffeta. These throwbacks to the early 1900's are bias cut and form fitting, and have deep, knife-pleated ruffles around the bottom. Gay wisps of red, green or purple, peeping beneath dark dresses, will be seen a lot this spring, and we gals shall be able to have the laugh on the so-called comedians who delight in going around the campus shouting, "Charlie's dead!"

• • •

Already the stores are beginning to show sports clothes to be worn this summer. Along with the usual shorts and slacks there are many of the "Dude Ranch" outfits which are becoming so popular. Most of these consist of heavy denim jeans, loud plaid shirts, and gay bandanas. With boots, these make perfect riding outfits, and many prefer them to the more formal habits.

• • •

Another sign of summer's approach are the pastel print dresses, gay cotton sports frocks, white coats, white shoes, and linen suits. White low-heeled sandals are going to be popular again this year, and nearly everyone agrees that they are tops in style and comfort.

• • •

Some enterprising stylist in the East has devised the idea of having handkerchiefs with you telephone number embroidered on them. The idea is, when the new boy friend asks for another date, you toss the handkerchief at him and slink away, hoping that he'll take the hint. Not very practical, but a lot of fun!

OUT OF THE HAT

By Kenneth Bixler

At a recent convention of the Associated Press in New York, it was interesting to note the frankness of Henry L. Mencken, noted columnist, when he said, "The editorial page is our grandest and saddest failure. It is so gloomy and forbidding, typographically, that only a reader itching for punishment is ever tempted to read it."

We cannot help agreeing with Mr. Mencken, though we do so reluctantly. Some of our editorial writers have fallen into such a rut of cynicism and soap-box preaching that they often loose sight of the issue at hand. Also, the American public have come to take their editorials with a grain of salt, having found that most of them are only hypocritical writings—they do not practice what they preach.

The power of the editorial page has waned because certain groups of men have taken over this power to promote their own interests, distorting facts and sensationalizing the issue in order to sway public opinion. In their effort to outdo one another, they have yelled "wolf" so many times that whatever they have had to say in the past few years has failed to register upon the people. Their methods have become comparable to some of our national advertisers, who try to sell their products by over-emphasizing their qualities.

Mencken suggested running editorials on the front page, and offered to bet a case of good rye, by the way, that they would draw ten times as much response there as would the same editorials, run a day earlier, on the editorial page. We would like to take this bet offered by Mr. Mencken, not with the idea of winning the case of rye—because we don't drink—but only to prove that the people would not be swayed by the average editorial run in our American dailies just because it might be on the front page. We suggest that Mr. Mencken consult Mr. Hearst as to the effect of editorializing the front page. He tried it, remember?

We cannot help but note the inconsistency of Mr. Mencken's remarks. He tells us what is wrong with our editorials, but advocates putting them on the front page. Oh well, maybe we don't live right.

The Music Box

Our school has spirit and plenty of it. The A Cappella Choir and the Men's Glee Club of our college proved it. One of the biggest inter-collegiate turnouts took place in the auditorium of the Teachers' College in San Jose on April 20. Four hundred representatives of school spirit were evident from Modesto, Sacramento, San Mateo, Marin, Santa Rosa, Yuba, and San Francisco junior colleges.

The ovation given to the college representatives was flattering, to say the least. Appreciation should be extended to Flossita Badger of the music department for her supervision and direction.

After the banquet, served to 400 students, entertainment of an amusing form had the spotlight. Corrine Lynwood gave her impression of an amateur hour, that smacked of a certain master of ceremonies who specializes in the word "all right." Robert Vinson followed, playing in "A Moment's Nonsense," a skit contributed by Dean Edwin C. Browne—who said, upon being questioned, "It should be good; it was very funny at the Hi Jinks, and the Lion's Club."

At night the symphony orchestra played Russian Easter and Caesar Franck's D Minor Symphony. Then, with the night already on its way, the combined groups sang Hosanna by Christianson.

"It was really very beautiful," said Dean Browne. "This is our first contribution to this yearly festival, and I'm proud of its initial attempt."

Paul Pitman commented later by saying, "To hear the praise offered to the college by members of the audience who attended is more than gratifying. To me it seems remarkable for an organization as young as this one to produce such beautifully trained and co-ordinated voices."

It is interesting to note that the A Cappella Choir has already gained recognition. The Teachers' Institute has asked them to appear and entertain for a quarter of an hour during one of its meetings. They will sing almost the same selection of songs that they presented at the Musical Festival. This will include Cherubini's Song; All In An April Evening, by Dickenson; In These Delightful, Pleasant Groves, by Purcell; Steal Away, a Negro spiritual, and Oh, Suzanna, by Stephen Foster.

• • •

To those who think the teachers are "cold" when it comes to jazz, Donald Sandifur says: "I do like jazz—to prove it, I have favorites in jazz—Duke Ellington, Ray Noble, the Casa Lomas, and Andre Kostalanetz. It's possible, however, to like symphony and jazz, especially in the combination form of Constance Lambert's "Rio Grande." Get the record and see if I'm not right." (Notice to Ed Scott: He didn't say a word about Benny Goodman!)

Paper Talk

By Still Another

We are peeved and disappointed. They didn't ask us. We are referring to the questions asked a few citizens by a city newspaper, "What would be your first act if you were mayor of San Francisco?"

We had an answer all ready, one which we consider much better than, "Oh, I'd plant a row of geraniums down the middle of Market Street," or, "I'd have nets put around every tall building to catch would-be suiciders."

Yessir, our first act would be to take immediate and decisive steps to insure San Francisco Junior College an adequate home of its own by next Fall.

How to do it? Oh, very simple. We would first visit the Park Department and say, "We want a full title to a certain bit of ground, and we want it right now."

"Nuts to you," the Park Department would say. "We'll take our sweet time about it, and you'll be lucky if you get it at all."

"Oh, very nuts to you," we would reply. "You don't own all the good land in our fair city."

Then we would go out and find another suitable location, selected by thought uninfluenced by anybody—bearing in mind only economy and welfare to the future students.

Having selected the site, we would call a meeting of the Board of Education.

"Gentlemen," we would say to them, "here is our school budget, in which an allowance is made to construct a junior college. We want that you pass it. Also, we have said nuts to the Park Department and have another site. Pass it, too."

Naturally, the board doesn't pass either. So, we put a corps of confidential detectives to work. A week later, we call members of the board individually to our office."

"Mr. Grabwhatchakan, Mr. Snoopenfind tells me you had an interesting time on the night of the 14th. We know an editor who would be delighted to publish a scandal about members of the board. Of course, you know we wouldn't give you away, but you do have a most annoying way of voting . . ."

"Mr. Potgrab, you have a very nice home. Of course, we suppose it is paid for." Mr. Potgrab grabs the first boat for Brazil, and we appoint a very tractable friend to fill his position.

"Mr. Benderbinge, it was a good thing you arrived with the milk-man the other morning; but do you think it quite nice to utilize the baby's milk that way?"

And so forth. Pretty soon we have another meeting of the board, and then we have some money. We then call in several contractors, and tell them to submit bids to us for a building in the morning, and to call again at four in the afternoon, and we will announce the successful bidder.

All very simple. Now we have a building. All we need is a fast, propriety-disregarding politician like us to become mayor.

Next week we shall elect the officers of the Associated Student Body for the Fall semester for you.

It Comes Out Here

Could it be true that Barbara Davis is back in circulation? Rumors have been flying. What's the matter, Bill?

These high school kids have something. With all the men at J.C., Margie Delhi is being faithful to a Lowellite.

Byron Silvester is just another victim of Dan Cupid. He seems to be serious about Jeanne McGruer, who goes to Miss Miller's Business College.

Seen at the opening night of Larkspur—Donna McPherson without her "husband." Bob Fex giving the girl stags a break. Frank Bowden there in all his glory. Vernon Smith and Johnny Dissmeyer arriving late, but making up for lost time.

Is Bud Gardner really going for Dorothy Barber, or is he just being nice to her because she's good in English? Only Bud knows the answer.

We wonder what the score is with the Frank Johnson-Beth Hillyard affair. They aren't going steady, and he is seen very often with Lucille Johnson. Sometimes the whole three are together. Try and figure this triangle out if you can!

Charlotte Zier was seen at the Mark Hopkins the other Friday night with dashing Felix Castagnola.

There's a certain charming brunette J.C. woman who is dated up until the latter part of June. That's popularity in its highest form.

Louis Yuvan will welcome sunny days again, it's been said, as his perfect "tan" is fading.

Watch New Sport

Biggest Upset

Spring Practice

By DEMING SMITH

It is always interesting to watch the development of a new sport or the improvement of an old one. So it is with crew. Although not a new activity, it is more or less strange to the average coast sports enthusiast. Since the record-breaking performances of the University of California crew, interest has increased by leaps and bounds and hundreds of people are clamoring for an opportunity to view more races.

In view of this fact, we favor the efforts of the Junior Chamber of Commerce to stage crew races on Lake Merced. The first of these attempts were held last Saturday, featuring the University of California in a race against their brother college, U.C.L.A. They were fortunate in having an excellent day for the races and a goodly crowd turned out. The Golden Bears from Berkeley were victorious and showed excellent form. The Bruins from Los Angeles were a younger and less experienced group of men and were not quite up to the class of Ky Ebright's rowers.

The course was over the regulation Olympic distance and was excellent in all conditions. A better place could not have been asked for, and we feel that many more races can be successfully staged there. More power to the Chamber of Commerce—may they be encouraged to put on many more regattas in San Francisco.

Aside from his presidential duties and other functions, Maury Schwarz was able to find time the other night to win three matches and two championships at the Men's Club Raffletto. It was quite a night for Maury and we are wondering why he didn't do the evening up right and stage an exhibition with his "pardner in groans," Sam Goldstein. We guess he was just kinda tired.

The biggest upset of the evening was Monty Mordecai's victory over "Red" Brickley in their wrestling contest. Brickley was the cleverer of the two, yet Monty's towering strength was too much of an obstacle. (However, "Red" believes himself capable of rewinning his championship and stands ready to challenge Monty in a no-limit, one-fall match at the next bouts.)

Highlights and sidelights of the matches: Al Cohn, the most excited second in the house; Fred Wilkenson, the most nervous; Bob Neal's impersonation of the "Masked Marvel" was just about "tops," at least he startled Maury Schwarz out of about six years' growth; Bob Sisco's imitation of Joe Humphries; and we can't forget Joe Amori's refereeing. There wasn't a dull moment in the whole evening, and those who missed it will want to be present at the next one.

The triumphal procession of King Football will be heralded some time after the second of May with the opening of Spring practice for the San Francisco Junior College Rams. Black eyes, sore ankles, stiff muscles, and shoulder pointers will again return to vogue, with the aspiring candidates for the varsity squad fighting hard in order to show favorably in the eyes of the coaches.

Due to the conditions at Galileo field, the Rams will not be able to do any Spring practice there. Funston field, another well-known stamping ground for football cleats, will not be offered to the team until after baseball season is finished. As a last resort, the suggestion was made to use the field at North Point and Van Ness Avenue, but after investigations by the coaches it was found that the ground could not be penetrated by thin-skinned and skulled candidates. The ground is covered with broken glass, sharp rocks, and an abundant supply of cinders.

At present, the Spring practice, although the men are in shape, looks a long way off. If members have any ideas where practice could be started, the coaches would be willing to consider any suggestions.

It seems that the girls of our young and growing institution are doing right well by themselves as far as publicity is concerned. Pictures of local co-eds have been appearing quite regularly in city newspapers in the past two weeks. It seems that they participated in every sport from shuffle board to badminton. Congratulations to them for their fine representation. Incidentally, we wonder why the men of our worthy institution fail to crash the front pages?

While on this subject we might pause over the fact that the city high schools receive a great deal of publicity in local newspapers, while San Francisco's only free junior college receives very little, if any, from the aforementioned papers.

The same lad who stated in class that he came to school for a good time is the same person who remarked: "Jack Gaddy is going to outfit the crew with brooms so that they can make a clean sweep of the races."

DURFEE WINS OVER JAMES TO TAKE INTRAMURALS

By Ed Scott

Playing the usual brilliant game for which he is noted, Milt Durfee smashed his way to a decisive victory over Jack James in three sets to win the J.C. Intramural tennis championship, 6-1, 8-6, 6-2.

Durfee, former Polytechnic High student, seemed to have the situation will in hand at all times, although he ran into hot water in the second set when James began dusting off the side lines with some well-placed shots. In the last set, Durfee regained his steady game and proceeded to outplay James for the set and match.

A terrific overhead smash and a consistent forehand are the main features in Durfee's game, while his backhand seems to be his Achille's heel.

James previously had defeated Melvin Hodes in three sets, 6-4, 8-6, 6-4, while Durfee vanquished George Novakoff 6-1, 6-1 for the right to play in the finals.

The trophy will be presented next month.

Intra-school mixed doubles will start within the next two weeks. Tom Wilson, tennis instructor, announced. Sign-ups begin next week, and Wilson stresses that players should get their partners as soon as possible. The winning team will be awarded a trophy.

Soccermen Off To Inflict Revenge

In an effort to avenge a 2-0 defeat suffered late last season, the Ram soccer squad will travel to San Mateo to engage the strong peninsula J.C. team Friday.

Coaches Wilson and Bass have a vastly improved squad over last year's, and figure to make a more interesting game. Several shifts in the Ram lineup have resulted in a better balanced aggregation. One of the more important switches brings Ellard Taylor, former wing, to the center half position.

SCHWARZ TAKES 3 DECISIONS IN FIGHTING

Featuring the college's best grunt and groaners and leather-eaters at the Verdi Club last Wednesday evening, the Men's Club provided a capacity house with the best exhibition of amateur boxing and wrestling matches that have been held in these parts for a long time.

The main event of the evening, starring "Iron Man" Maury Schwarz and the Masked Marvel, came up to all expectations of a fast and furious contest. Schwarz, after two minutes and forty seconds, with time out to smile at the cameraman, succeeded in pinning the Masked Marvel to the floor, costing the masked man the secret of his identity, proving to be none other than Frank Knowlton.

EVENING'S ONLY KAYO

All boxing bouts ran their full lengths of three rounds except in the fourth event when Odero Guisti landed a hard right under Tom Connely's heart and laid him away for the count.

Iron Man Schwarz came through his two wrestling and one boxing matches with flying colors of victory. He took a decision over Charles Kremesec in the 175-pound boxing class, and defeated Jack Segurson in the final bout of the evening in the 170-pound wrestling.

Charles McKeon, in the first preliminary, took a three-round decision over Gene Sullivan in the 126-pound boxing class.

The second preliminary resulted in a draw between Renolds and Barfield for the 147-pound class. Each man will receive an equal award.

Deming Smith emerged an easy victor over his opponent in 135-pound wrestling. Smith took the offensive throughout the match.

In the heavyweight class, Adolph Pedrin was crowned new champ over Bob Keon in a three-round decision.

MORDECAI TAKES TITLE

Monty Mordecai downed Bill Weber in the heavyweight wrestling, and then took the heavyweight title away from Charlie Brickley by decision.

Joe Amori, faculty adviser to Men's Club, officiated over all events in a manner becoming the great Joe Gardenfield.

Bob Sisco, president of the Men's Club, proved his ability as announcer, though requiring several beers at the end of the evening.

• PIPE THAT TENSE EXPRESSION! •

Monty Mordecai and Bill Weber strain and grunt, as the latter tries in vain to overpower the winner Mordecai, whose face registers such anguish in the above picture, while Referee Joe Amori looks like he is telling one of the men that he is doing something that perhaps he shouldn't.

Pretty well tired out after winning three boxing and wrestling bouts in one evening, Maury Schwarz is having his hand raised by Amori in the picture to the left in token of final victory.

Racqueteers Hand Marin Trouncing For Six Matches

The Ram tennis team handed a terrific defeat to the Marin J.C. last Saturday, taking all six matches, two doubles and four singles, without losing a set.

In the feature match of the day, Milt Durfee, No. 1 of the Rams, defeated Willet, No. 1 of Marin, 6-3, 6-0. Bill Kennedy, Ram No. 2, continued the one-sided affair by defeating Beckett, No. 2 of Marin, 6-3, 6-0. George Novikoff won his match, 6-2, 6-4, and Bill Cardinal defeated his rival, 6-1, 6-1.

In the doubles Durfee and Kennedy teamed to defeat Willet and Beckett, 6-1, 6-1, while Novikoff and Cardinal defeated their opponents, 6-3, 6-4.

Coach Tom Wilson was enthusiastic about the team's win, and believes that some of the players will come out victorious in the coming conference doubles and singles tournament to be held May 1 and 2.

Crewmen at Last Eke Out Two Wins On Choppy Courses

Two victories in a row are now chalked up for Jack Gaddy's crewmen. The rowers defeated the Galileo lightweights by three lengths last Friday over a choppy course off the Marina.

Gaddy piloted the boat himself and, aside from almost falling in a countless number of times, inspired the boys to the extent of bringing home the victory.

The bay was exceedingly difficult for rowing, with the tide at a standstill and a stiff wind prevailing.

The superior strength and size of the Ram crewmen was a large factor in allowing them to defeat the smoother rowing Galileo boat.

The previous Friday the Rams defeated the Lowell varsity by the safe distance of five lengths. This was the third race the J.C. crew has had this season and the records now stand at two victories and one defeat, having suffered a defeat at the hands of Galileo earlier in the season.

Four J. C. Swimmers Place In Berkeley College Water Event

Averaging two gold medals apiece, and accounting for one of the five records established at the Northern California Championships at Berkeley last Saturday evening, four S.F.J.C. swimmers, namely, Bob Mowat, Herb Brotman, Monroe Staley and Waldon Klaffke, won two junior college relays and placed in numerous other aquatic events to stand out among the 150 swimmers from every college and club in the state of California.

The San Francisco team shattered the 150-yard medley relay record by three whole seconds and won the 400-yard relay by 50 yards.

Harold Weatherby, S.F.J.C. student swimming under the colors of the Olympic Club, took a close second in the 220 backstroke event.

Medals were given for three places in each event and the trial heats were held in the afternoon with the finals in the evening.

The summaries:

THE BAT BAG

By Oscar Bauer

TONY SCAFANI, cocky second baseman, continues to be the ideal leadoff man. The diminutive mite has been getting his share of safe blows lately besides getting on base 50 per cent of the time through walks and fielding miscues. . . . The team dedicated the San Mateo win to EDDIE McSWEENEY, who was laid up last week because of illness. Ed was beginning to hit consistently and his absence in the lineup was keenly felt. . . . Even BABE LUCCHESI wanted to try his hand at pitching in the San Mateo debacle. At the present time, Bruno is in the throes of a batting slump. His sudden fall dates back to the Menlo series when his favorite bat was split. . . . The Rams drew a bye this Saturday. Coach LEE EISAN will probably schedule a game with a local nine. . . . The Bulldog and the Ram fought to a standoff this season, each team winning two games. . . . GEORGE McGUIRE, the bespectacled first baseman, is playing a bang-up game at the initial sack. Showing a rare dexterity at catching wild throws, Mac's presence is a steadying influence to the infielders.

Coaches And Wives Go To The Right Place, But Wrong Time

Note in a local society column: Mr. and Mrs. Jack Gaddy, Mr. and Mrs. Lee Eisan, and Mr. and Mrs. Louis Conlan recently enjoyed a trip, which lasted from April 11 to April 17, through the southern part of the state.

Always consistent with its policy of bringing you dear readers the news behind the news, The Guardsman now revenis the story of this little jaunt, entitled "A Trip Through Southern California," or "The Rover Boys in the Land of Promise."

According to Lee Eisan, men's physical education instructor, the party originally intended to visit the Physical Education Conference at Long Beach, but a slight mistake in time prevented this, the conference having been held the previous week.

Business and pleasure were no longer combined and youth must have its fling, so—our heroes tried out the golf courses at Pasadena, Glendale, and Los Angeles, and visited the men's gymnasiums at Los Angeles J.C., Pasadena J.C., Pomona College, and LaVerne College.

The trip was then topped off with a visit to the famous Coconut Grove, where Veloz and Yolanda were dancing.

BULLDOGS RUN WILD IN CINDER MEET WITH RAMS

By Bud McSweeney

San Mateo J.C. ran away with the Ram cinder crunchers to the tune of 80 to 42 at San Mateo last Saturday. The expected battle between Kirkpatrick of San Mateo and Dan Southard, the San Francisco hope, failed to materialize as both men were unable to take part in the meet.

Cole of San Mateo, however, more than over-shadowed this loss when he won the mile run in the time of 4:26.9 minutes, giving San Mateo a clean sweep of this event.

Hiserman won the 100 in 10 flat, and later on took the 220-yard dash in 21.9. Hewitt took both hurdle events, winning the lows in 24.5 and topping the highs at 15.6.

"Wizzer" Warren was badly trapped in the 440 race, being pinched between Johnson and Wirz for the first 300 yards. "Wizzer" fought to get to the pole position, but he was matched stride for stride by Wirz, who had a little more power at the finish line.

Bertram had an off day. He finished out of the money in the mile run, and could only get himself a third place in the half mile. "Sandy" Barre took one second and two third places to be the Rams' busy man of the day.

Golfers Off Form In Tournament At Harding on Friday

Poor golf and a weak turnout resulted in the S.F.J.C. men's golf tournament becoming anything but a success last Friday at Harding.

Even the scores for low handicap men soared to the nineties; the mediocre scores of 165 was low for the 36-hole test.

The feature of the day was provided by "Slugger" Marich, ordinarily a good golfer but another that was sadly off form, when he tried to place his drive somewhere on the course from the second tee in the afternoon round. He put no less than four balls into Federal Works Project No. 41376 before even finding the rough. It was this hole that denied him his resolution to better his morning score of 87.

There is much doubt as to the number of men that will qualify for the team, as Bob Dumesnil and Jack Welch, sure place winners, failed to appear. Other potentials who did not report to the first tee at 8 o'clock were Stafford Repp, Lambert Meyer, Max Brewen and Ed Hamill.

SCORES

Capps, 87-78—165; Marich, 89-87—176; Groeper, 93-98—191; Wallerstein, 94-98—192; Fredlani, 104-97—203; Manning, 104-99—203; Ching—113-98—211; Wallace, 111-101—212.

No Foul Struck Is Doctor's Decision On Match at Verdi

"Vic Barfield wasn't hit a foul blow," was the decision of Dr. Richard Friedlander, ringside physician, commenting on the disputed Barfield-Reynolds match at the Men's Club bouts in the Verdi Club last Wednesday.

Although the decision was declared a draw, many spectators believed Barfield was struck low, and should have been awarded the decision.

Joe Amori, referee, and judges on three sides of the ring, as well as Dr. Friedlander, claim the fight was free from low blows.

"Both Barfield and Reynolds will receive medals," announced Bob Sisco, Men's Club president. "And furthermore, I wish to go on record as saying that the Barfield-Reynolds fight was a cleanly and closely contested bout," he said. "The decision of the judges was, in my opinion, very fair."

RAMS SPLIT WITH SAN MATEO IN DOUBLEHEADER

Wilgus' Pitching Garners Nightcap Decision by 4-1 Score

By Oscar Bauer

After losing the first game of the double header baseball series to the San Mateo Junior College Bulldogs, 15 to 5, the Rams came back behind the superlative pitching of Larry Wilgus to gain the decision in the nightcap, 4 to 1. Thirty-three hits were registered in the initial contest, and the winners garnered 19 and made the most of them. Goldsten, San Mateo ace, was in hot water eight of the nine innings, but through the flossy fielding efforts of Rozzi, left fielder, he managed to set the Red and White down without a score until the peninsula nine had built up a commanding lead.

Sloper and Mobley connected for five safeties apiece to lead the victors, while Scafani and Guisti, with three each, led the stick work of the vanquished.

In a fruitless endeavor to stem the hectic batting spree, San Francisco used four hurlers. Larry Wilgus went out in the fifth in favor of Bob Dumesnil, who gave way to Ben McGuire in the sixth, while Joaquin Martinez pitched to the final three men.

In the second encounter, Wilgus pulled another one of his iron man stunts to hook up with Jack Taylor in an old-fashioned pitching duel. San Francisco broke the scoreless tie in the fifth frame, scoring two runs on hits by Fex, Ben McGuire and Anido, and a walk issued to Scafani.

San Mateo went down one, two, three in the sixth inning. The Red and White continued its march on pay dirt again to score two runs on three hits and a walk.

In the final inning the Bulldogs made a belated rally, starting after two were out. They scored their lone tally on the longest blow of the game, a two-base hit by Lindi which soared over Benny McGuire's head in center field with feet to spare. The next two batters followed up with singles. Then Wilgus settled down and Taylor made the final out, Scafani to George McGuire, who made a sensational stop of Tony's low throw.
